Taxing Situation . . .

THEY CAME IN DROVES to pay real estate tax bills at City Hall especially opened for them this weekend. Homeowners were trying to beat the Dec. 31 deadline to claim the payments as income tax deductions for 1979. By early Saturday afternoon, when this photo was taken, the waiting line stretched from the city treasurer's office to the City Hall lobby.

Income Tax Deductions Sought Long Lines At Tax Windows To Beat Deadline

Long lines of people threaded their way through City Hall corridors over the weekend as taxpayers sought to pay their 1980 real estate taxes in time to deduct them from their 1979 income taxes.

Some were in such a hurry that they were paying up even before they received their bills. The last minute rush was created by the long deadlock between the Tobin administration and the State Department of Revenue over the setting of the tax rate, which was not approved at $224 until Dec. 17.

Taxpayers have 30 days after they are billed in which to pay but they had only until Dec. 31 to pay if they wanted to deduct it from their income taxes.

As of last Monday, the computers in the Treasurer's office were up to the letter "O" in billings. They are expected to reach "Z" by Thursday night.

In their rush to pay, many house-owning residents were obtaining their assessments from the assessor's office, multiplying by the tax rate and dividing by two to get their tax bill in order to meet the Dec. 31 deadline.

Some Quincy banks also were paying the tax bills of their mortgages before the actual bills arrived, although at least one local bank questioned the legality of such payments.

Actually, the mortgages have paid their taxes to the bank over the past year with their mortgage payments. The money is kept in an escrow account to pay the bills. Francis X. McCauley, president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, said his bank sent the city a check for $125,000 in advance and will pay the balance, expected to be $17,000, when the bills arrive.

"We'll bill later for the difference between the escrow and the new rate," he said. "The main thing is that they get paid in time to deduct from their income taxes."

A spokesman for the Quincy Savings Bank said a check covering the tax bills of 2,500 to 3,000 Quincy mortgages held by that bank was sent in Monday, Dec. 31. Bank employees devoted some 140 man hours to calculating the bills.

Sale, Lease Possible

Blue Ribbon Panel To Study Hospital

The City Council Monday night named six members of a seven-person Blue Ribbon Commission to study the problems of City Hospital.

Among the proposals to be studied by that commission is the possibility of selling or leasing the institution. The commission was directed to report back to the council in three months.

The commission is to consist of one person named by each member of the council's hospital committee, which includes all councillors except Daniel Raymond and John Quinn.

Councillor James Sheets asked for more time to think over the matter and may make his choice later this week.

Nominated to the commission were:

Houghs Neck Community

Council president John Nigro, by Councillor Leo Kelly.

Robert Blair, retired president of the South Shore Bank, by Councillor John Lydon.

John Kane, an officer of the Shawmut Bank and member of the board of directors of Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, by Councillor Francis McCauley.

Semi-retired surgeon Dr. John McGowan, by Councillor Joseph Brett.

Daniel Driscoll of Dedham, director of the Neponset Health Center and former member of the city planning department, by Councillor Joanne Condon.

Meanwhile, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who first suggested the possibility of leasing the hospital to a management firm a month ago, indicated he will set up a committee of his own to consider possible moves.

"Right now," he said, "we're exploring the legal phases of it through the City Solicitor. Once we get the answers to the legal questions I will designate certain

'Autoveyer' Intrigues Councillors

Lydon: 1979 Best Development Year In Quincy History

Planning Director James Lydon called it "one of the greatest years in terms of development that Quincy has ever had and we expect to go farther in 1980."

Lydon appeared before the City Council's Downtown Development Committee to report on new construction work in progress all over the city during the past year.

But members of the council committee appeared to be most interested in hearing about a project proposed for downtown Quincy that is still only an inventor's dream.

It's called the "Autoveyer" system of parking automobiles underground and its inventor wants to build one next to First parish Church if he can coax $4.5 million out of the federal government.

"There is a good likelihood the grant will be approved once we get your endorsement," Charles Hilgenhurst of Hilgenhurst Associates told the committee.

"It would be one of the most spectacular firsts in the history of Quincy. It would be the first of its kind in the world."

Hilgenhurst was the spokesman for the inventor, Jacob I. Nevo-Hacohen of Brookline, who demonstrated a working model of "Autoveyer" to the fascination of the committee.

It would park 200 cars underground where Hancock and Washington Sts. meet, bounded by First Parish Church, City Hall and the Bargain Center.

All that would be visible above ground would be up to four kiosks ("vestibules," Hilgenhurst called them) into which cars would be driven, left and taken underground automatically for storage.

If the federal money were forthcoming, Hilgenhurst said, Nevo-Hacohen's company would build the garage, turn it over to Quincy and then maintain it under contract to the city.

"We think," he said, "once the first one is open, Quincy is going to want to build one a year."

Sun Cited In Congress For Constitution Bicentennial Supplement

The Quincy Sun has been cited in the U.S. Congressional Record for its special supplement on the Massachusetts Constitution Bicentennial celebration in Quincy.

Congressman Brian J. Donnelly of the 11th Congressional District, noting the 200th anniversary of the Constitution said in remarks recently inserted in the Congressional Record:

"I would like to take this time to praise the Quincy Sun newspaper of Quincy, Mass. for its complete coverage of this historic anniversary."

"I was particularly pleased with the detailed coverage of the men and the women behind this constitution.

"The Constitution, which was drafted in Quincy, Mass. by John Adams in 1789, is believed to be the moral basis of our Federal Constitution. I have just recently introduced legislation which would create a stamp commemorating this important event."

"I hope my colleagues will take a minute to read excerpts from The Quincy Sun, which I am submitting for the Record. I found it historically interesting and informative."

Donnelly inserted into the Congressional Record four of the articles in The Sun's 28-page supplement that appeared in the issue of Aug. 30.

Three of the articles, "John Adams: His Mood And His Times" and "Little Red Farm Houses Were Probably Once Cream", "An Aging Firebrand Is Asked To Lift His Pen" were written by Sun staffer Tom Henshaw.

The other article, "A Constitution Is Born In Quincy" was written by Dr. James R. Cameron, head of the Department of History and chairman of the Division of Social Science at Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston, and vice-president of the Quincy Historical Society.

Two Quincy Families Receive Christmas Greetings From Carter

At least two Quincy addresses turned up on President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter's Christmas mailing list this year.

Mrs. Carmela Lynch of 16 Glenview Rd., Quincy Point received a Christmas card from President Carter and his family, as did the William Sheehan family of 28 Hovey St., North Quincy.

Both cards depicted a painting of the White House as it looked in 1860, painted by Laferre Cranston, which hangs in the Lincoln Room.

"Surprised? We were shocked," said Mrs. Mary Sheehan, who works in the mortgage department of the Quincy Savings Bank. "We felt very honored, though."

Her husband, William is a salesman. The Sheehans have six children, William Jr., Richard, Mary, Francis and married daughters, Donna Flynn and Kathleen Drew.

What does she think of the president?

"I won't comment on that. I just wish him well in everything he does. I wouldn't want his job for everything in the world."

Mrs. Lynch is an ardent supporter.

"I think he's terrific. I've already received his bumper sticker for 1980 and a couple of buttons."

Mrs. Lynch is a housewife. Her husband, Timothy, is a city employee and they have one son, Timothy Jr.

'Washington Express' Jan. 6 For Hostages Vigil

Today (Thursday) is the deadline for reservations on "The Washington Express", transporting area residents to a one-day vigil at the Iranian embassy in Washington, D.C., Jan. 6.

The "Express", containing 105 buses, is scheduled to leave

Schaefer Stadium, Foxboro, at 9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 5 and will return sometime Sunday night.

Reservations are on a "first come - first serve" basis. For further information, contact Villareale at 584-7129.

RETIRING FIREFIGHTERS were honored by the Quincy Firefighters' Retirement Association recently at Morrisette Legion Post. ## Chamber Supports Pilgrim II Construction

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce supports the construction of the Pilgrim II nuclear power plant in Plymouth. Chamber General Manager Ronald Frazier said at a recent State House hearing.

"Our support is both strong and enthusiastic," Frazier told the Governor's Three Mile Island Advisory Panel last week. "We have had concerns about nuclear power, as have the opponents, and our questions have been answered."

"What happens when we lose nuclear power? What are its viable alternatives? The answer to the first question is that we're in trouble if we lose it. And, true, viable alternatives when we consider energy independence do not exist unless we take major steps immediately to open up Alaska, commence off-shore drilling and take a number of those other not-so-popular actions," Frazier said.

In addition, Frazier made the following claims:

- "There is an evacuation plan and has been since Pilgrim I began its operation.

- "Training of personnel and operators at the Pilgrim I site is conducted according to Federal standards.

- "Safety requirements for fuel are set by several federal agencies, chiefly the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Department of Transportation.

- "Technology exists for permanent waste disposal and waste disposal is currently being practiced in Europe.

- "Plant security is regulated by the NRC."

"The Three Mile Island incident and the resulting attention focused on nuclear power operations by both the public and private sectors will serve a worthwhile purpose. But, to condemn nuclear power or to halt its further development at this point -- when its technology has now been so highly developed and when we have realized its benefits is a major step in the wrong direction," Frazier said.

Sterling Parents To Get Public's Attitude Poll Results

Two tasks will dominate the Sterling Parents' Association meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 8 at 7:30 in the school cafeteria.

Tally teams of parents will first record the results of the December Mini-Gallup Poll of the public's attitude toward the results to the parents.

Afterwards, all the parents will take a look at how these results compare with the national poll and at what significance lies in the comparisons.

Mrs. Maxine Eames will report on the Quincy High School Parents' Council and Mrs. Mary Dowd will update information coming from the City-wide Parents' Council.

Shoppers More Selective But:

Christmas Business 'Good To Excellent' In Downtown

By TOM HENSHAW

Christmas business was good to excellent in downtown Quincy despite the energy crisis and the threat of hard times to come, a Quincy Sun survey shows.

But a lot of the buying came in the last few days as if shoppers were waiting to see how the money held out before laying it down on the counter.

And they were very cautious and selective in what they bought.

"Business was excellent," said Joseph Angelo, general manager of Remick's of Quincy. "But a lot of it came at the last minute. We were very busy Thursday through Monday."

"People were very aware of what they were buying. For instance, they seemed to be conscious of the energy crisis because they were buying more sweaters and velours."

"Business was somewhere between sensational and super," said Mark Bertman of Roger's Jewelry. "It was the biggest Christmas we've ever had."

"People did a lot of last minute shopping and they were buying goods with value attached, like diamonds and gold. The last three or four days were dramatically successful."

Sunday business was good, too, although it started slow and got better as the season went on.

"We did well on Sunday but the early Sundays weren't good," said Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods. "If we are open Sunday in the future it would be the last three."

"We had a fine Christmas but we suffered a little from the lack of the kind of weather we need, cold and snow. As the warm weather persisted the demand for heavy clothing and ski equipment was slight."

"Sundays were real good," said Tony Merlino of Claus Gelotte's Camera. "The last Sunday was fantastic. We were only open two Sundays and it was definitely worthwhile."

"There was a rush in the last week or week and a half and people were buying better quality items, the more expensive things."

"We had a fairly good season," said Ove Strandskov, manager of Sears, "and it was the strong close that made it good. It was up a little from last year."

"Business was slightly off from last year," said Mike Stone of Stone's Jewelry. "I figure it's because of the tax rate, the problems at the shipyard and the overall economy."

"We sell luxury items so it depends on how much money people have in their pockets toward the end of the season. They didn't have much, thanks to fuel bills and everything."

"Business was very good," said Harry Tucker of Woolworth's. "It started slow but it closed well. We did better than last year."

Two downtown Quincy merchants faced unusual situations.

"We didn't end up too badly," said Jason Feldman of Jason's Luggage and Music. "But the record business has not been up to what it was once."

"We did a little less than last year. Usually the holiday starts slow and gathers momentum. This year it started slower than usual and the rush was not enough to get up over last year's figure."

"Sales were off about 15 percent from last year," said Remo DiNicola of South Shore TV, "but service business was up about 50 percent."

"Usually when something goes wrong with the stereo, people come in and buy a new one. This year they came in for repairs. We were working two shifts to keep up."

"We had a good year, but people were spending their money much more wisely."

"We never saw so much traffic in Quincy Square as we did Sunday and Monday," said Burt Cook of Tag's Discount Furniture & Sleep Shop.

"We did very well although it's hard to compare to last year because we're handling a lot of new items in our new location."

"Sundays were good, although the first one, the day of the parade, wasn't very good. They got better as it got closer to Christmas."

CITY HALL WORKERS put in extra hours over the weekend to accommodate the hundreds who wished to pay their real estate tax bills before the end of 1979. The city treasurer's office was open for eight hours on Saturday and five on Sunday.

South Shore Secretaries Plan 25th Anniversary Party Jan. 9

The South Shore Chapter of the National Secretaries Association plans a 25th anniversary celebration for Wednesday, Jan. 9 at the Lantana in Randolph.

All present and former members, as well as family and friends, are invited to attend the party commemorating the chapter's January, 1955 founding.

A social hour at 6 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 7. Entertainment will be by impressionist Ann Warren.

Among those attending will be five charter members who are still members. They are Bernice Brown, retired executive assistant to the president of Boston Gas Company; Beatrice Chandler, retired secretary in the Navy Department of Bethlehem Steel Company; Mary Ilacqua, secretary to the president of Carney Hospital, Dorchester; Winifred Jarvelin, secretary to James Asher, Jr., president and treasurer of radio station WJDA and Mabel McMorris, retired secretary to the president of Braintree Cooperative Bank.

In addition, three new members will be installed. They are June Nease of Readville, secretary at the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center in Roslindale and Christine Comerford of Roslindale, and Marguerite Quinn of Dorchester, secretaries at St. Margaret's Hospital in Dorchester.

250 Sign Justice, Equity, Harmony Covenant At Archbishop Williams

The Covenant of Justice, Equity and Harmony initiated on Boston Common last month was discussed at a day-long session recently at Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree.

Some 250 students and faculty members have signed the covenant so far as a result of the program which was presented to the full student body in four assemblies.

Speakers at the sessions were Rev. Donald Lester of Dorchester and Father Walter Waldron of the South End, both of whom have been active with the Covenant process from the outset.

Boston College High School student Lawrence Fitzgerald also spoke, as did Archbishop Williams faculty members Margaret Scannell of Quincy, and Ralph Fucillo, Somerville.

Each session began with a scripture reading by a member of the class. Speaking at the assemblies were freshman Carol Greene of Quincy; sophomore Viola DiMascio, Holbrook; junior Kathy Galvin, Quincy; and senior, Michael Ford, Quincy.

The program consisted of reading of the Covenant, student statement from Isaiah, what the covenant is and is not, invitation to the process of signing and wearing the pin.

The Covenant grew from concern over the violence that plagued Boston in recent months. It calls for respect for all brothers and sisters.

150 At QJC Open House

Over 150 attended the first Quincy Junior College Open House held recently.

Rep. John Finnegan, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, spoke on 'Education for the 80's'. Finnegan stressed the changing world of work and how education can prepare one for change and make a person more adaptable to different situations.

Robert Takuhi of the city's energy conservation office and Sarah Saccoccio, of the city auditor's office, both QJC alumni, spoke about the personal attention the school provided. They compared QJC to the four-year institutions they attended after receiving their Associate Degrees. Both agreed they received an excellent academic preparation for their continued studies and thought the close relationship they were able to establish with the QJC faculty helped build their confidence.

Students and parents also had an opportunity to speak with college representatives on different programs, financial aid, career choices and admissions.

QJC STUDENTS Linda Widdison and Joe Grane, both of Quincy, discuss the QJC newsletter and student government with prospective students and their parents at recent open house.

Koch Delivers Gifts For 'Little Christmas'

The Koch Club of Quincy completed its 1979 Christmas charity program this week with delivery of books, games toys and dolls for distribution to several hundred needy boys and girls in Boston's South End.

The gifts are for Sunday, 'Little Christmas', the traditional hispanic celebration which highlights the reenactment of the three wise men's gift giving visit to the Christ Child.

Among the gifts delivered were dozens of newly Christmas wrapped items donated by the Quincy Junior Wonder Candlepin League and the South Shore Ten Pin Bowling League of Wonder-bowl Alleys and donations from the Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy and the Day Care School of North Quincy.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, said that over 2,000 new and used items have been delivered and distributed for the past month by organizations, groups and individuals for presentation to children in need during the holiday season.

The program was initiated in 1971 with 300 gifts provided to children of families who were driven out by a pre-Christmas fire that burned out the belongings of the families involved. The total number of gifts distributed in the nine years exceeds 13,000 items.

Organizations and individuals in Quincy and on the South Shore each year donated hundreds of new and used toys to the Koch Club which acts in a coordinating effort to contact social and charitable agencies in Quincy, the South Shore and Greater Boston to evaluate the numbers of needy children that are in need of service.

The response to the 1979 Christmas charitable endeavors was exceptional with 40 groups and individuals donating toward the 40 food baskets delivered in the Quincy area.

Koch expressed his thanks to all those who participated in the 24th annual Christmas program resulting in a happier and more enjoyable holiday for hundreds of boys and girls of all color, race and creed.

Fire Dept. Cites Hazards Of Wood Stoves, Space Heaters

The Quincy Fire Department has issued a warning to those people who might use wood-burning stoves or space heaters to relieve the increasing cost of heating their homes with oil.

Unapproved or poorly installed wood stoves or unvented portable space heaters can start a serious house fire, said Deputy Chief Carl V. Valenti of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

"The shortage and escalating cost of home heating oil has produced many problems for everyone, particularly with the approach of winter," said Valenti.

"Many people are going to find it extremely difficult to keep their homes as warm as they would like. Therefore, they will be looking for a cheaper way or a secondary means to heat their homes.

"Unapproved wood-burning stoves - those not bearing the label of Underwriters Laboratory or sub-standard installation of such stoves, even if they are approved, can and will present many problems to home owners and the Fire Department.

"An unapproved stove or an improperly installed one can start a serious house fire with devastating results.

"Another problem that has recently arisen is the sale of unvented portable space heaters. According to Chapter 148, Section 5A of the General Laws of Massachusetts:

"No person shall use or allow to be used a portable wick-type space heater in any building which is used in whole or in part for human habitation. Violation of this law carries a hundred dollar fine."

"Also, in Section 25A of Chapter 148: 'No person shall sell, offer for sale or install a second-hand space heater or a second-hand portable stove which uses kerosene, range oil or number one fuel oil.'

"This sale of a space heater only applies to a second-hand one as there is no law that forbids the sale of a new one. The law refers to installing them in places used for human habitation.

"In addition, no person shall install or use in a place of habitation an unvented space heater.

"The fire department wants to make everyone cognizant of this law because some places that sell new space heaters might not tell the purchasers that they can only be used where there is no habitation and to also point out the dangers involved in the use of them.

"Since July 1, 1965, they have been banned because of the many fires that have occurred by their use and because when they are used in a home they use oxygen to an extent that could be dangerous to the occupants and will give off poisonous carbon monoxide gas."

Good News, Bad News For Oil Users

The price of home heating oil rose slightly last month while supplies also continued to rise, the Massachusetts office of Energy Resources reports in its most recent survey.

The statewide average price was 88.5 cents per gallon, the OER found in its Dec. 27 survey of 125 dealers, up seven-tenths of a cent since Dec. 13. Prices for individual dealers ranged from 80.2 to 94.4 cents per gallon.

Consumers in the eastern part of the state are paying a slightly lower 87.7 cents per gallon.

In addition, dealers report that mild weather and conservation have combined to cause a 20 percent drop in home deliveries since last year.

The 1979-80 "degree day" total - used to measure heating oil needs - is running slightly below the 30-year average and well below last year's total.

According to OER, recent price hikes ordered by Saudi Arabia and other OPEC nations are just now being passed on to consumers and will probably be reflected in the next bi-weekly survey.

Brownell Would Put Dollar Cost On New Legislation

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has filed a bill to attach a dollar cost estimate to all legislation considered by the state legislature.

If the Brownell bill becomes law, each piece of new legislation must be accompanied by a fiscal note indicating the financial effect of the change proposed in the legislation. This aspect of the bill will help ensure awareness by legislators of the ultimate effect of a bill on the tax-paying public.

"The time has arrived," said Brownell, "for elected officials to respond to the pocketbook of constituencies before heralding supposed benefits and shepherding through costly legislation which may or may not benefit the citizenry at large.

"Furthermore, an attached fiscal note will create public awareness of an estimated dollar cost while the bill is going through the legislative process, thereby allowing adequate response time to lobby for or against proposed changes."

Other aspects of the Brownell "Bill Form" legislation include easier readability for the lay person and a constant numbering system for better monitoring.

Dr. Henry Paterson Honored At Retirement After 40 Years In School System

Adams School principal Dr. Henry F. Paterson Jr. retired on Dec. 31 after 40 years of service in public education, most of them in Quincy.

Born in Quincy, Dr. Paterson's school years began in 1924 at the Adams School, where he attended elementary school, and concluded there in December where he has served as principal since 1974.

Dr. Paterson's professional career took him first to North Quincy High School as a teacher, to Massachusetts Fields School where he was the first male teacher at the elementary level, to Willard, Gridley Bryant, Montclair, and Snug Harbor Schools as principal, and finally to Adams. He also served as superintendent of Hazelton, Pa. public schools for 11 years.

Dr. Paterson earned a B.S. degree at Bridgewater State College and master's and doctorate degrees at Boston University. He served in World War II in Europe from 1941-1946, becoming a major in the U.S. Army.

More than 160 friends and colleagues honored Dr. Paterson at a retirement dinner recently at the Lantana in Randolph.

'The Good Old Days' Topic For Beth Israel Women

The Women's Council of Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton St., Quincy Point, will meet in the Morris Silverman Social Hall Monday, Jan. 7 at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Jack Klaver presiding. Guest speaker will be Mrs. McPherson of the Boston Gas Co., who will talk on "The Good Old Days". Mrs. Klaver and Pauline Fogel will be hostesses. Refreshments will be served prior to the business meeting. Husbands and friends are invited to attend.

The board will meet Wednesday, Jan. 16 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Irwin Kurtzman, 23 Harrington Ave.

Winner of the Chanukah bond raffle drawing, held recently at the synagogue family breakfast, was Mrs. Samuel Shapiro of Quincy.

LOUISE GRAVEN is congratulated upon her retirement, by Lincoln-Hancock School Principal Morris Hibbard and two of her kindergarten students, Jason Wojciechowski and Patricia Yarra.

Louise Graven Honored On Retirement

Mrs. Louise Graven, a teacher at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, was honored recently upon her retirement after 12 years of teaching in the Quincy Public Schools.

Over 102 co-workers, friends, and relatives attended the retirement dinner at the Lantana in Randolph. Master of ceremonies was Morris Hibbard, principal of the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Mrs. Graven's life in the Quincy Public Schools was captured through a slide presentation prepared by staff members, Gayle MacDonald and Fatima Allie. The guests were entertained with a few selections by Mrs. Graven's daughter Annemieke and her singing partner Mark Meau.

Among the guests were School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon; School Committee Vice Chairwoman Patricia Toland and members Mary Collins and Joan Picard and husband, Thomas Picard; and Rev. Robert Bullock of Sharon.

Also attending were members of Mrs. Graven's family, her husband Jan, her children Hans, Frans, Loecje with their spouses, her daughter Annemieke along with her grandchildren Tyna, Sonya and Lance Graven and Jessie and Cerissa Creedon. Her son Hans and his wife flew up from Georgia to be with her that evening.

Mrs. Graven, who lives in Sharon, grew up on her family's sugar plantation in Indonesia, where she was tutored by her mother. She later attended high school and college at Ursuline Academy in Jakarta, Indonesia.

She taught school for about 12 years in Jakarta and was principal of the Sukabomi School there until imprisoned by the Japanese from 1940 to 1945. During this time she was separated from her fiancé and family.

In 1945 she and her husband left for Switzerland, where she taught asthmatic children for two years, and then Holland, where she taught pre-school children.

She and her husband applied for admission to the U.S. as former prisoners of war and, after two years of waiting, were admitted.

She arrived in America in March of 1959. Mrs. Graven worked at various jobs eventually opening a private nursery.

After becoming an American citizen she attended Bridgewater State College to receive a teaching degree. Graduated in 1964, she taught at the Hunt School in Bridgewater for two years. She was asked to become educational supervisor of the Old Colony Head Start Program in Brockton. She was appointed a member of the state committee on establishing kindergartens in Massachusetts.

In 1967 she came to the Quincy Public School System teaching at the Merrymount School, the kindergarten center housed at St. Ann's, the Hancock School, and finally at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

Mrs. Graven has also taught evening classes at Boston State College on early childhood education.

She is studying for her certificate as an area teacher in ceramics.

Jewelry given for a special occasion takes on special significance. Throughout the year, there are many times that a gift of jewelry is appropriate. A child may be too young to appreciate the full value, both esthetic and monetary, of a fine piece of jewelry, but he or she will grow to appreciate it over the years. A family heirloom, reset and repolished makes a very special gift. An engraved message on the back of a watch, pin or pendant, or inside a ring, also will serve to bring just the right touch of sentimental and personal value to a celebration.

If you would like to have a special piece of jewelry designed and custom made, or reset, be sure to see our experts at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 526 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. We have a fine selection of diamonds, loose or mounted, and invite you to come in and choose what you like, including the diamond and its setting. We do our own diamond setting, designing and remodeling, on the premises. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD is presented to former Congressman James Burke by Gov. Edward King and Mayor Arthur Tobin at party at Granite Place, Quincy, benefitting Camp Massasoit. Looking on are Rev. William McCarthy, Pastor, St. John's Church; Harold Crowley, scoutmaster and member of the Massasoit Development Committee and former Mayor Thomas Burgin.

$30,000 Goal At Halfway Mark

Good Scout Party Raises $4,500 For Camp Massasoit

The recent "Good Scout Holiday Party" raised $4,500 for the Camp Massasoit Development Committee, according to special events chairman James McIntyre.

The committee is now about halfway to its goal of $30,000 to fund renovations at the Plymouth camp, a home away from home for Quincy Boy Scouts for over 50 years, according to general chairman Richard Koch.

The party, held at Granite Place in Quincy Center, attracted over 250 persons, many of them former Scouts who reminisced about their trips to the camp.

Honorary committee chairman Mayor Arthur Tobin presented an award to guest Gov. Edward J. King for his support of the scouting program.

Koch presented a plaque to the guest of honor, former Congressman James Burke, in memory of his service to scouting during his years in Washington.

A special presentation was made to Navy Captain Richard Stratton of Quincy, a former Vietnam POW who is now Deputy Superintendent of Operations at the U.S. Naval Academy.

A recent "Sunbeams" column by Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth recounted how a board inscribed with the words "Dick Stratton Slep Here" was found at Camp Massasoit. It turned out to be carved in the mid-1940's by Stratton as a young scout.

A copy of the column, embossed in a piece of wood, was presented to Stratton by Harold Crowley, member of the Massasoit Development Committee, who found the board.

Films, slides and other displays recalled Massasoit's heyday as a camping center.

The Development Committee still seeks contributions of cash or materials to help restore Camp Massasoit as a year-round site.

Financial Aid Information Nights At Quincy High School

A two-session Financial Aid Information Program for students, parents, and members of the community will be held Jan. 8 and 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Method Center at Quincy High School.

The program is sponsored by the guidance staff, under the direction of Edward Nankin, head counselor.

The first evening will provide information on grants, loans, scholarships, and work study programs. Significant hand-outs will be available.

During the second session, parents and students will be given help in completing the new Financial Aid Forms used in applying for federal, state, and college grants.

High school counselors will be available in their respective offices at 6 p.m. Appointments are suggested and may be made by calling 471-0100 (ext. 392).

QJC Accepting Students For January Semester

Quincy Junior College is accepting applications for full-time or part-time studies for the second semester which begins Jan. 21.

New students interested in full-time study should immediately submit an application and a copy of their high school transcript. Upon receipt of these documents, an interview will be arranged with an admissions counselor.

Students who are currently enrolled in another college may transfer to Quincy Junior for the second semester by completing an application form and having both their high school and college transcripts sent to the admissions office.

Among the Associate Degree programs available for mid-year entrance are Criminal Justice, Early Childhood Education, Secretarial Science, Accounting, Management, Marketing, and Liberal Arts Transfer.

Part-time students need only call the Admissions Office at the beginning of January to arrange an appointment. Special part-time schedules can be arranged for homemakers and others who only have specific time available.

For more information about the college programs and admissions procedures, Call Dean H. Saluti at 786-8777.

38 Lincoln Hancock Students Tour Hancock Bank

Thirty-eight fifth graders from the Lincoln Hancock elementary laboratory center for gifted students toured the Hancock Bank recently in conjunction with a week long study of economics.

The students toured bank facilities from the basement where coins are wrapped to the computer room. Directing the tour were Annalee Keay and Charles Cahill, of Hancock Bank. Bank president William Kelly welcomed the children and they received refreshments. Susan B. Anthony dollars and frog banks.

Teachers accompanying the students were Lorraine Sholler, Peter Smith and Mark Dempsey.

Other schools interested in touring the bank are asked to contact Charles Sullivan, at Hancock Bank.

1979 'Best' Development Year For Quincy

Nevo-Hachoen, who said his company has only one employee (himself) right now, told the committee if Quincy sponsors the project he would locate his headquarters and manufacturing plant in the city.

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond proposed that the committee hold a public hearing sometime in January to have a more extensive look at the project.

The committee also listened to the following reports on construction work now in progress:

- Lydon said the agreement to use 100 per cent union labor on the $10 million Campanelli-Stop & Shop office building in Quincy Center will increase the total cost 9 to 14 per cent.

The added costs, he said, will be split three ways among the city, Campanelli and Stop & Shop since neither the developer nor the prime tenant wanted to absorb the increase.

He offered an amendment to the Campanelli lease on the proposed parking garage which would rebate not more than $30,000 a year for up to 25 years to the company.

This would reduce the city's income from the 500 spaces under lease to $60,000 a year, which is not enough to cover the expected $90,000 to $100,000 yearly operating costs.

Lydon said the difference possibly could be made up from revenue from night and weekend parking in the garage.

"It's hard to judge what the revenue will be," he said.

- Architect John Sheskey said the MBTA is now drafting an interim agreement and long-term lease for air rights over the tracks to make way for an office-apartment development at Hancock and Dimmock Sts.

Sheskey, speaking for developer Nat Martin, said the development would have 190 units, most of them two-bedroom, in twin towers with 30,000 square feet of office space.

Martin, he said, is now preparing to submit to HUD an application for an insured mortgage and it is expected that construction will start in June at the latest.

The office section would front on Hancock St. and the apartment building on Dimmock St., he said, and every effort would be made to retain the current tenants.

- Dick Winn of the National Fire Protection Association said foundation work for its building on Pine Hill in West Quincy will start about Jan. 15 and steel erection will begin about March 1.

"Preliminary site work has been completed," he said, "and the access road and parking lot have been paved. In the last few days we settled on Vapri Construction Co. as the contractor."

Councillor James A. Sheets praised the NFPA for its close cooperation with the people of West Quincy in the project.

"It's a classic model of how a job should be done," he said.

- Mark Dickinson of Grossman's said all the street level space in the Gilchrist building in Parkingway, 30,000 square feet, has been leased and all the stores should be open by April 1.

"T. J. Mass, which opened Nov. 8, says it was the best opening of all their stores," said Dickinson. "They are very happy with the business."

The Garland Co., another tenant, will close Jan. 8 for a month or six weeks while the building is being refurbished, he said.

Tempo Fashions, a nationwide women's clothing chain, will open at the end of March, he added, as will Shetown, a New Jersey-based store that sells expensive shoes at discount.

- Anthony Herrey read a statement from the Costa Shipping Co. of Genoa, Italy, that the site is currently being prepared for the SCI Investment Co. $4.5 million office building in North Quincy.

"They expect to drive the pilings after the first of the year," he said. "Steel work probably will begin in April or May."

- William O'Connell of O'Connell Brothers Construction Co. said he expects to break ground for the eight-story Hancock Court apartment building on School St. in April or May.

It will take 12 to 14 months to complete, he said, due largely to the 875,000-gallon solar heated water tank beneath the building. Occupancy is expected in the summer of 1981.

O'Connell is currently negotiating a federal rent subsidy agreement for the building, which will house 80 elderly with commercial space on the ground floor.

Pile driving for the O'Connell Brothers' Monarch Office Building in North Quincy was completed last Thursday, O'Connell said, and the foundation is 50 per cent complete.

"We hope to have it ready for occupancy early in the fall of 1980," he said, "and we are optimistic that it will be all rented."

- The 582-unit apartment development at 1001 Southern Artery has passed the 90 per cent occupancy mark, said Leo Corcoran, partner in the John F. Corcoran Co.

Units rent from $380 to $720 a month.

"Quincy is the sleeping giant that has turned the corner," said Corcoran. "I can't see anything but up from here."

Long Lines At Tax Windows

The Granite Cooperative Bank also made payments for their mortgages.

But Robert Keddy, who heads the mortgage department at the Quincy Cooperative Bank, said the bank's lawyers had questioned the legality of taking a customer's money and paying a bill before the bill is issued.

"Under state law we can't take money out of an escrow account until we have something to pay with it," he said. "The other banks may be taking a chance of overpaying or underpaying the bill."

Instead, the Quincy Cooperative Bank was devoting its efforts to obtaining the bills of their customers hot off the computer and paying them on the spot.

The bank's people worked through the weekend and were preparing to work late Monday night to get as many bills as possible paid before the deadline.

City hall was open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday to accommodate tax bill payers.

The problems were compounded by a computer breakdown the day before Christmas, one that couldn't be fixed until the day after the holiday.

Also the computer had to be shut down for four hours out of every 24 to give it a chance to cool.

Meanwhile, Mayor Tobin began sending out messages to department heads to start preparing their budgets for fiscal 1981. That budget is due to the City Council by March 7, or 60 days after the Mayor is sworn in for a second term.

In the past few years special acts of the legislature have extended the time to 120 days and 90 days but, said Auditor Charles L. Shea, there is no such legislation pending this year.

Sheriff Marshall Honorary Chairman Leukemia Drive

Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall is honorary chairman of Norfolk County for the Leukemia Society of America's 1979-80 Cannister Drive to Fight Leukemia.

As last year's chairman, Marshall presented the Leukemia Society with a check for $10,000. The money was from the cannister drive and personal donations by members of the Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Marshall has commended Joseph Lyons, of Quincy a member of the Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association and Work Release Director at the Norfolk County House of Correction and Jail, for his efforts in the successful planning of this year's drive. Lyons has been instrumental in coordinating all the necessary details for this campaign.

The South Shore Bank again has agreed to set up a separate account for deposits throughout the entire drive. All money collected from cannisters and from donations will be deposited at the South Shore Bank and withdrawn the day of the Telethon, Jan. 27, for presentation to the Leukemia Society.

Sheriff Marshall will present

the check which he hopes will exceed last year's amount, during the Leukemia Telethon to be telecast on Ch 5.

The amount presented will be in behalf of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department employees, and the citizens of Norfolk County.

Anyone wishing to become more active may contact Lyons at the sheriff's office (329-6730) or make a Tax Deductable Donation by sending it to: individuals to take the matter from there."

Tobin said he feels his administration has "strengthened the hospital immeasurably" as a result of a study by Touche Ross and Co., a Boston accounting firm, which suggested the creation of several new positions to keep collections up to date.

"But we feel it is in the best interests of the city to explore all the alternatives at the hospital so we can satisfy all those who will ask 'Have you looked into this? Or have you looked into that?'" said the Mayor.

Councillor Joanne Condon, chairman of the Hospital Committee, said she hoped the Blue Ribbon Commission can accomplish some things she has been unable to do with her committee.

"Quite honestly," she said, "the hospital committee over the two years has tried to work with the hospital and find a direction and I would suggest that we've made no progress."

"The Board of Managers is an active group that meets every month and works hard on behalf of the hospital but I don't think they've made any progress either."

"As I look back over two years I don't think the hospital is in much better shape than it was two years ago. The Board of Managers has been kind of silenced and put in their place; they are no longer a strong governing body."

In spite of the Touche Ross survey, Mrs. Condon said she feels that the financial problems that have plagued the hospital in the past few years still exist.

"The survey clearly pointed out some administrative deficiencies," she said, "and I personally worked very hard to convince the councillors to go along with their recommendations insofar as creating new positions.

"But all of those positions have not been filled, the key position being the assistant director for financial affairs. The money has been appropriated and the position put in the budget but it has not been filled."

"So I don't think we have followed the guidelines of Touche Ross and I don't think we in fact went and did what they told us to do completely, so the end result is not much better."

Mrs. Condon said the Blue Ribbon Commission is expected to address all aspects of the problems at the hospital and report its findings back to the City Council in three months.

Tobin conceded that an assistant director for financial affairs had not yet been named but he said the city had had trouble interesting a qualified individual in the job for the $25,000 salary.

"We had an excellent candidate at one time, exactly what we were looking for," he said. "But we couldn't get the person with the background we wanted at that salary level. We got the impression that we'd have to pay more money for the job."

It was then, said Tobin, that a hospital management firm, having read of the hospital's problems in the newspapers, called on him to discuss the possibilities of leasing or taking over management control of the hospital.

The firm, which Tobin declined to identify, owns 30 hospitals, leases or manages 25 others and is involved in the operation of more than 100 nursing homes and other extended care facilities, said City Auditor Charles L. Shea.

"I thought it would be a good time just to explore the feasibility and determine the merits of putting the hospital under private auspices," said Tobin.

Tom Rand Carrying On Tradition At QHS

By TOM SULLIVAN

The fact that Tom Rand, outstanding guard on the Quincy High football team, is first in his class, should come as no surprise to anyone familiar with Tom and his family.

The 5-9, 190-pound senior, the son of Allen W. and Dorothy (Anderson) Rand of 49 Edison Park, is the youngest (17) of 12 children, all Quincy High graduates who went on to college and became successes either in the business world or in the service of their country.

Mr. and Mrs. Rand also are Quincy High graduates. Allen in 1938 and Dorothy in 1939.

Their oldest son, Robert, 37, graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and is an aeronautical engineer for GE in San Jose, Calif.

Marilyn, 36, is a North-eastern graduate and is working with the government in Washington.

Richard, 35, graduated from Wentworth Institute and works with an oil rig company in Brownsville, Tex.

Kathleen, 33, is a graduate of Bridgewater State College and is a school teacher in Colorado. Her husband, Paul Fairbanks, is an instructor at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs.

Dorothy, 31, went to U. of Massachusetts for a year, then dropped out. She and her husband, Donald Greenwood, live in Quincy with their two children and Dorothy is now attending Mass. College of Art.

Ronald, 30, graduated from the Air Force Academy, is a captain in the Air Force and is working for his masters degree at Boston University through the Air Force.

Allen Jr., 28, is a Lowell Tech graduate, is living with Bob in San Jose and is working for his masters degree at San Jose Community College.

Judith, 26, graduated from Bridgewater State, is a captain in the Army where she is an instructor and she also is working for her masters degree.

Douglas, 25, is a graduate of Lowell Tech and works as a shipfitter at General Dynamics Quincy yard.

Russell, 24, is a Bridgewater State graduate and works at the Wollaston Credit Union.

Michael, 23, graduated from the Coast Guard Academy, is an ensign stationed in New Bedford and has been out to sea in a cutter.

"All of them run and Allen has run in the marathon," Mr. Rand said. "Richard played some football, Doug played lacrosse at Lowell, Michael played rugby at the Coast Guard Academy and they all played in the Quincy Church Basketball League for the Bethans Church teams."

"Tom is very popular with everyone and is an outstanding young man both on the football field and off," Quincy Coach Tom Fitzgerald said. "This is a remarkable family and Tom, the youngest, is a real credit to them." Fitzgerald is also assistant to the vice principal at Quincy.

Tom, who had one of his best days in this year's win over North Quincy, will continue his education as all 11 of his brothers and sisters have. He hasn't decided where he will go but among the possibilities are RPI, Coast Guard Academy and an Ivy League school.

Some Residents Opposed But:

QTA Backs Quantum Development

The Quincy Taxpayers Association voted at its most recent meeting to support the proposed development of the former Naval Air Station site in Squantum.

The vote was made after QTA members heard a presentation on the proposed development by general manager Gordon Robins and development director Walter Hannon of Squantum Industries, Inc.

That development has been opposed by some Squantum and North Quincy residents who cite traffic and environmental concerns.

"We believe that the Marina Complex will enhance the North Quincy community and be a great asset to the city of Quincy," said QTA executive director Harry Roemer.

"We further believe it will take the cooperation of the city as a whole to accomplish this end. We further believe that traffic problems within the city are not the full responsibility of any builder or developer."

Squantum Rezoning Opponents Speak At QCA Meeting

Opponents of the proposed rezoning of the Boston Harbor Marina were scheduled to discuss that controversy last night (Wednesday) at a meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association.

President William Golden and Mrs. Eleanor Johnson of the Squantum Community Association were scheduled to speak on "The Reasons Squantum Opposes Rezoning of the Boston Harbor Marina Now." The meeting was scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, 93 Holbrook Rd.

The QCA heard Marina Industries, Inc. planning director Walter Hannon speak in favor of the rezoning at a previous meeting.

The Planning Board voted Dec. 20 to rezone five parcels of land at and around the marina for industrial development. The City Council was scheduled to vote on approval of that rezoning at its Dec. 31 meeting.

Thomas Koch Chairman SHYO Governing Board

Thomas P. Koch was elected chairman of the governing board of the Sacred Heart Youth Organization at its recent general meeting.

Also elected were Paul Hines, vice chairman; Colleen Lynn, treasurer; Mary Halloran, secretary; and Daniel Flynn and Neil Leonard, activities program co-chairmen.

The chairman announced that the annual musical "Another Openin' Another Show" was one of the most successful of the 11 sponsored by the organization and over 1700 spectators enjoyed the three performances. Members of the cast and chorus also performed for the patients at the Presidential Manor Nursing Home.

Koch said the reservations for a ski trip Jan. 25-27 at Mt. Orford, Quebec, have been closed and a total of 50 youths will attend the event by bus.

Uncle Sam Is An Incompetent Employer

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

If you think you have problems knowing how to deal with incompetent employees, you can take an iota of comfort from the fact that Uncle Sam is doing a far worse job than you. The nation's largest employer, Uncle Sam keeps adding workers and fires practically nobody.

He gives his staffers automatic pay increases just for remaining on the job. In addition, he provides for additional raises which are supposed to be based on merit. But he's such a soft touch that in 1977, out of one million workers who were eligible, only 600 were refused. This means that 99.94% of all eligible workers received merit as well as automatic pay increases.

How do you reconcile this fact with the statement of Fileen Shanahan, H.W. Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs: "While there are many highly competent, dedicated civil servants, the percentage of the civil servants who are not earning what the taxpayers are paying them is almost as high as any figure you ever heard by any right-winger you ever hated."

"There is a very substantial number of people on the civil service rolls who are literally balking the taxpayer." Despite his avowed war on the Federal bureaucracy, in President Carter's first year, only 226 employees were fired for unsatisfactory work. Too much red tape is required. It took one supervisor 18 months to get rid of a clerk-typist who, as he documented, "couldn't clerk or type." Then he was reprimanded by his boss because he had to spend so much time on the case that he neglected his own work.

Government experts estimate that fraud alone in Federal transfer programs amounts to at least $12½ billion, "perhaps as much as $25 billion a year." The General Service Administration believes that its employees "are stealing more than $60 billion a year" from that agency.

How long are we, the American public, going to allow this colossal waste which permits our Government to spend tax revenues at the rate of $63 million an hour and overspends by $60 billion a year?

"The people are simply going to have to devote enough time and energy in election years to impose greater discipline on their elected representatives," says House Minority Whip Robert H. Michel. "They are going to have to make their government accountable, and they ought to start with the Congress."

The continuance of current and past irresponsibility can only lead to national bankruptcy, and we shall have only ourselves to blame.

John O'Connell of Wollaston was among 27 Massachusetts skiers who "went the distance" in a recent Easter Seal 24-Hour Ski Challenge held in Bretton Woods, N.H.

For skiing the full 24 hours, with 10-minute breaks each hour, he raised $185 in pledges for the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society, John, who lives at 73 Bromfield St., is a 14-year-old student at Boston College High School.

Over $6,000 was raised by the event for therapeutic programs and services for the handicapped in Massachusetts. The Easter Seal Society plans a seven-hour "Ski-athon" at Mount Watatic in Ashby, Mass. on Jan. 19. For information, call 475-1477.

Quincy, S.S. Committee Raises $102,579 For Jerry's Kids

The Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee and Pledge Center raised a record $102,579 for 1979 according to final official total figures.

It brings to $243,442 raised here during the three-year existence of the committee and pledge center.

Of this year's $102,579, $53,437 was realized from various pre-telethon fund-raising activities sponsored by the committee in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton, Cohasset, Randolph, Hingham and Hull.

Some $40,019 in pledges and $9,123 in fish bowl proceeds were raised during the Labor Day weekend telethon at The Quincy Sun based pledge center.

Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth and Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board are co-chairmen of the telethon committee and co-coordinators of the pledge center.

Station WJDA again was a partner in the effort, broadcasting live reports from The Sun office all day Labor Day, helping to spur pledges and fish bowl donations.

The 1979 $102,579 figure was $25,354 higher than 1978 and $38,941 over the first year of 1977. "This is a community effort," said Bosworth and Koch. "People from various civic minded organizations, from all walks of life and all ages make this possible. It is a united, community effort and we are grateful to everyone who participated or donated to help wage the battle against muscular dystrophy."

Biggest single pre-telethon event was the first Quincy Jerry Lewis Spelling Bee which raised $8,464 and topped all spelling bees in the country.

The event, held in the Quincy public and parochial schools, was chaired by School Committee-woman Mary Collins and coordinated by Janet DiTullio, coordinator of Language Arts in the school system.

Second biggest event was a swimathon held at the Lincoln Hancock School pool that raised $5,605. The event was co-sponsored by the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council with the cooperation of the Quincy Recreation Department. Recreation Director Charles Alongi was the chairman.

Quincy pre-telethon events brought in $28,010. Braintree, $9,190; Weymouth, $5,643; Hingham, $5,512; Randolph, $2,944; Hull, $1,800; Milton, $235 and Cohasset $100.

The Quincy-South Shore Committee will begin its 1980 fund-raising activities in January.

Things That Won't Happen In 1980

It's that time again when all the so-called experts like to tell you what to expect in the year ahead.

But I'm not going to try, simply because I don't consider myself an expert even though some people think I'm a know-it-all.

However, if you insist, I can pretty well predict what won't happen during 1980. For example:

You won't see Arthur Tobin and Joseph LaRaia going out together for a cup of coffee.

You won't see Governor King munching on peanut butter sandwiches.

You won't see Sgt. Don Riley emceeing a testimonial dinner for Judge Albert Kramer.

You won't see a tax decrease.

You won't see the Red Sox win the pennant. (But you may soon see the day when you can have almost any seat in Fenway Park.)

You won't see the Bruins autographing hockey sticks in the stands at Madison Sq. Garden.

You won't see a day on Chestnut St. without cars untagged but illegally parked between "No Parking" signs. (No one wants to ruin the reputation of Chestnut St. as one of the nuttiest streets in the world.)

You won't see former Mayors Thomas Burgin, James McIntyre or Walter Hannon running for mayor again. (But you might see former Mayor Joseph LaRaia having a go at it.)

You won't see Ayatollah Khomeini being invited to spend the night at the White House.

You won't see a decrease in the price of anything you are now eating, drinking, wearing or driving.

You won't see the telephone company winning any award for that TV commercial. You know, the one about the relatives out of state, telling you to call them because they miss you. They don't want you to call just once, but every week. (If they miss you so much, why don't they call you?)

You won't see many cars stopping for the pedestrian light in front of City Hall. Or, for that matter, any pedestrian light.

You won't see a TV weather forecaster admitting he really didn't know whether it was going to rain or snow. So, he flipped a coin just before he went on the air.

You won't see anyone as young-at-heart as Quincy Furniture owner Max London. (The other night at the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association holiday get-together at the California, Max had a ball discoing. He's 98.)

You won't see Jimmy Carter trying to kiss Jackie Kennedy Onassis.

You won't see Ted Kennedy popping peanuts into his mouth along the campaign trail. (And, let's hope, not his foot, either.)

You won't see Police Chief Francis Finn all decked out in uniform to welcome Joe LaRaia back at the Jan. 7 Inaugural ceremonies.

You won't see Bob Colman complaining when it snows.

You won't hear Quincy parents complaining about overcrowded classrooms.

You won't see Gov. Ed King and Lt. Gov. Tom O'Neil together on a slow boat to China—or to anywhere together.

You won't see frustrated commuters "passing the hat" to bail out the MBTA.

You won't see the former Shah of Iran admitted to Quincy City Hospital.

You won't see any change from a $10 bill if you drive into a gas station and tell them to "fill 'er up". You may soon not see any change from $15.

You won't see General Dynamics workers proposing a ship be named for Jimmy Carter.

You won't see me buying a rock 'n roll album. (And you won't see my daughter, Dolly, buying a Glenn Miller album. But I'm still trying to convert her.)

And, one thing you can be sure of: you won't ever see 1979 again.

A taxpayer is allowed an additional personal exemption if he is 65 or older on the last day of the year. For tax purposes he is considered 65 on the day before his 65th birthday.

Fr. Joseph Byrne:

He Belongs To The New Breed

By LESLIE THOMPSON

One of today's most controversial occupations is the priesthood.

Religious and non-religious alike are debating the issues of celibacy, the ordination of women, and whether or not there will be enough priests left for any of this to really matter.

But the drastically decreasing enrollments in the seminaries coupled with increasing "drop out" rates of those already ordained are a striking contrast with the new breed of men that are interested in the priesthood today.

St. John's Seminary, in Brighton reports that the average man there today is much more educated than 20 years ago: enrollments with prior degree and the active modern intellect that questions everything and demands satisfying answers in his philosophical and theological training. The school believes these men are making a deeper and more thorough commitment with which to boldly tackle today's problems.

Joseph Francis Byrne is one of these men. He is involved.

Handsome, athletic-looking, 36 years old, he is sometimes found in jail, assisting someone as Quincy police chaplain, as one of the many ways he serves the people. Or, you may have seen him if you have children in the religious education program or if you are a divorced or separated Catholic. Whether you have a retarded child in need of special education or simply want to know more about the Catholic church, Fr. Byrne can help you.

The first impression he makes is one of an excellent communicator. During his sermons, he is never found isolated on the elevated podium, but constantly moves across the altar speaking to not at each person almost individually. Spontaneously, he may respond humorously to the stray comment of a child or reveal his depth of religious conviction. He speaks conversationally; no one feels he or she is listening to a memorized speech or essay. He speaks with humility, devotion and sincerity. But becoming a priest was not an easy decision.

"I first wondered if I wanted to be a priest in high school. Maybe I was attracted to the personality of the type of person some priests were; it looked like it would be a very interesting life. But then one of the things I didn't want to be was a priest," he explained.

Because he enjoyed playing high school sports, socializing and dating, Fr. Byrne was drawn to the style of life that he felt was contrary to that of a priest, and yet God continued to "bother" him until he graduation he felt "a call" to enter Cardinal O'Connell Minor Seminary and resolve the conflict.

"The ordination of women will also come someday . . . there is nothing in sacred scripture that would prevent women from becoming priests. What there is right now is tradition; we are a church of scripture and tradition. I think women should have the right to choose the priesthood and they will in the future because there will always be a need for priests in the community because there will always be a need for Christ. But some women will be refused ordination just as some men are today—if they are determined as unsuitable by the counsel at the seminary."

"I left after a year. I didn't like it. I suppose now, only in retrospect, I never made the real commitment. I don't believe you can . . . until you come to appreciate the sacrament that you share. Many times this could come even after you are ordained. So you make a commitment to give it your all. It's a terrible struggle always "if" in the background until you say, 'God, leave me alone or else don't make it like this.'"

So he enrolled at Boston College, but when classes were about to start, he returned to the seminary. The four other graduates of his high school that had entered the seminary with him in 1961 went through much the same difficult decision making process. Four years in the minor seminary and

'What's The Matter With Merry Christmas?'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am very much provoked over omission of the customary greeting at Christmas time, "Merry Christmas", from the decorations in Quincy Square.

Both ends of Hancock Street had the greeting "Happy Holidays". What's the matter with "Merry Christmas"? Are they naughty words now? Are we keeping Christ out of Christmas? I always thought we were a Christian community.

I am also disappointed with the token nativity setting in the Hancock cemetery. I only can think of the words of Christ, "Let the dead bury the dead." Is Christ's birthday dead? I suggest the local merchants take an interest and perhaps come up with a worthwhile nativity setting on McIntyre Mall.

Lydon Praises City Councillors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The intent in writing this letter is to praise the elected officials who serve on the Quincy City Council, and it is the direct result of having worked very closely with the Council on the Campanelli/UDAG project.

For many months both my department and the Council members have been in constant communication regarding different and developing announcements concerning the project. Even though the City Councillors are expected to serve as part-time officials and they are paid a very small amount of money based upon that premise, they expended innumerable hours digesting volumes of written material, coming to briefings and in day-long union negotiations. It is to the City's credit that they have representing them a group so committed to the betterment of the City and willing to give so generously of both their personal and private work time to that end.

We are very fortunate to have these individuals committed to the public good.

James E. Lydon
Director,
Department of Planning

Points To Ponder

- With inflation at 13% and Boston the most expensive city in the country to live in, it's hard to believe that ten or fifteen years from now we will look back on these as the good old days.
- Do you know what Santa's wife is known as around income tax time? A dependent Claus.
- Have you noticed that there are fewer telephone booths around? Rumor has it that they're being converted into condominiums.
- Some professional football teams are considering changing their playing surfaces to something that is greener, softer, and reproduces itself when it starts to wear out. It's called grass.
- We know it's a federal regulation, but wouldn't it have saved thousands of dollars to prohibit right turns on red except where posted, instead of the other way around.
- With the introduction of the metric system, certain well known phrases have to be altered. It is now proper to say "Give him a centimeter and he takes a kilometer."

Of Priests— He Gets Involved

then four more years in the major seminary is a lot of time for careful consideration, but ...

"You make a decision and you stick with it a while and then you question it. Your feelings of the priesthood towards the priesthood in my case, I would say, changed every year, and they still change every year now. The priesthood, like marriage, is a relationship with another person ... a personal presence to one another, living for one another, fidelity to one another. But there is no priesthood free from the cross, and there is no marriage free from the cross. A lot of people don't fully understand this ... neither do all priests understand. I am growing in my understanding and appreciation ... that's what makes every relationship grow stronger."

But some relationships within the active ministry don't grow stronger ... or even begin. Enrollments in the seminary have been in steady decline since 1960. St. John's Seminary had 18 entering this year (1979) from the Boston Archdiocese compared to 85 that entered with Fr. Byrne's class. Fr. Byrne believes the church will survive.

"There are many fewer applicants to the seminary today, but it isn't the first time in history there has been a decline. The church will survive. Around 1960, about 70 men were ordained ... I was ordained with 40 ... last year (1978) eight were ordained."

"The appearance of instability in the church might be part of the reason. But the faith has to be nourished and the vocation has to come alive through the community because we are members of the community."

A spokesman from the seminary in a telephone interview wanted to know: "You are from St. John's parish? What is going on down there anyway?" ... referring to the fact that this parish has five men in the seminary right now. Fr. Byrne knew why:

"That is true because of the faith that has come alive in this parish. And the feeling that brought those men into the seminary is the same feeling that allowed me to stand up last May in front of three Masses of 3,000 people and say that I love the priesthood and I love the Lord and that is something I wouldn't have dared to say years ago in public. It is the community

Mayor Burgin Calls For More Fire Dept. Officers

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, in an inaugural address starting his first full term as mayor of Quincy, called for an increase in officers in the Quincy Fire Department from two captains and 12 lieutenants to 11 captains and 10 lieutenants.

The mayor also asked for an immediate start to construction of the new Central Fire Station on Quincy ave. near Christ Church and an enclosed municipal stadium on the site of Pfaffman's Oval at the junction of Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

And he recommended the city purchase the parking land that was now being leased and that an unpaid commission of citizens be set up to study a proposal to build a new City Hall.

TWIN YACHTS STARTED

Construction was started at the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard on sister 71-foot yaws, the first time that two such large yachts of the same design have ever been built side-by-side in the same yard.

The two luxury craft, both due for early spring delivery, were ordered by Thomas Dabney of Medfield and Carl J. Schmidlapp II of Cincinnati.

NORTH BOWS TO LATE RALLY

Pete Cooke's 12 points sent the North Quincy High School basketball team off to an early lead but Waltham rallied in the last two minutes for a 34-28 victory over the Raiders.

The North Quincy lineup: Pete Cooke and Nino Mayer, forwards; Red Navin and Roger Comins, centers; and Freddie Cummings and Harold (Miff) Leith, guards.

TRUNKS FOR BOXERS

Dominic A. Grazio was reelected president of the Community Club of South Quincy, whose members voted to buy trunks for Charles Daley and Bruce Campbell so they could compete in the Golden Gloves boxing tournament.

QUINCY-ISMS

Harry Wallace Tirrell, who had served as city messenger since the post was established in 1889, was reelected to a 49th term ... Trousers were being cleaned for 9 cents at Penn Cleaners Inc., 1508 Hancock St. ... Henry S. Burr of 39 Wollaston Ave., Wollaston, was named manager of the real estate department at the Wollaston Cooperative Bank ... Bill Mayer and Jack McKenna scored goals but the Quincy High School hockey team bowed to Framingham, 5-2, in a Bay State League game. ... John Savage, not yet 26 and one of the youngest city councilors ever, was reported in line to be the new chairman of the Finance Committee ... A 600-pound birthday cake, baked at Quincy Market, was on display in the Temple St. window of the Patriot Ledger, which was 100 years old Jan. 7 ... Philip K. Barker was installed as president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club ... Mae West was starring in "Go West, Young Man," with Warren William and Randolph Scott, at the Strand, where Thursday night was Bank Night featuring drawings for $250 and $50 ... Almo Lukkarinen was elected captain of the Quincy High School track team ... Mayor Burgin wrote to Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth and Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. asking their support of plans to continue the Works Progress Administration (WPA) ... Boston Red Sox pitcher Ted Olson of Squantum was the guest at a smoker given by the Holy name Society of St. Ann's Church ... Rev. Thomas Reed Turner, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church since 1918, died at his home, 95 Quincy St., South Quincy ... Hamburger and stew beef were 17 cents a pound at Mohican Market, 19-25 Chestnut St. ... Robert L. Fischer of Quincy was belatedly awarded a Purple Heart for wounds suffered July 19, 1918, in France ... David S. McIntosh reached agreement with his leading opponent, Neil A. McDonald, over the weekend and was elected president of the City Council ... Harvey H. Dennis, proprietor of the Quincy Fur Shop, 1249 Hancock St., left for Hollywood to study the latest fur fashions ... Capt. Bob Comparato scored 13 points to lead the Quincy High School basketball team to a 42-21 win over Quincy Trade ... Raphael Papile was installed for a 15th term as president of the Torre de Passeri Mutuo Soccorso ... Two Wollaston residents, Frank H. Bridgman and Irving N. Hayden, were reelected clerks of the State House and Senate respectively ... The Gov. Charles F. Hurley Cup arrived in Quincy for presentation to the Queen of the St. Moritz Ice Carnival but, in view of the warm weather, it was doubtful if there would be any snow for the carnival ... A businessman's lunch of Italian spaghetti with meat sauce and parmesan cheese, rolls and butter was 35 cents at Howard Johnson restaurants in Quincy and Wollaston ... Rep. Joseph Whiton (R-Quincy) filed a bill for the construction of a breakwater from Great Hill to Spears Island.

Registrar Reminds: Stay Stopped For School Buses

Changes in school bus contracts necessitate a change in driving habits, according to Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin.

"Some cities and towns have discontinued home pick-up. This means our youngest pedestrians are more numerous," the Registrar said.

"School buses will be making fewer but longer stops, and the children will be walking longer distances. I suggest motorists avoid impatience and bear in mind the law which requires them to stop when a school bus is displaying its flashing red lights.

"The motorists, coming in either direction, must stop on such a signal and not resume travel until the flashing lights on the bus are turned off, unless in the opposite lane of a median-divided street or highway.

"There is no passing allowed unless the bus is not displaying the flashing red lights, or is itself moving.

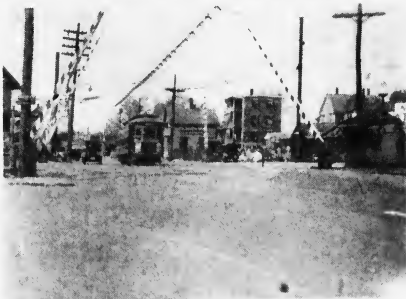

"And I repeat, motorists have an even greater responsibility to pedestrians, as there will be more of them, especially those in kindergarten and elementary school.

"With near 1.25 million students in the Commonwealth, the driver must remain aware of his obligation at all times. Children are inclined to frolic and dart out into the street, despite the hazards of doing so.

"The responsibility of the motor vehicle rests with the driver, who by law must have the vehicle under control at all times," he added.

Fr. Byrne Belongs To The New Breed Of Priests

that sustains the vocation."

The community is very much aware of this feeling. Many registered members of the church live outside of the geographic boundaries of the parish. A 27-year-old Weymouth resident drives to St. John's for Mass every week: "It's my church - like part of my family. I like the mood at St. John's, especially with all the music: organ, choir or folk singers. It's not just an impersonal religious service, the people are really friendly. It's a warm, and casual atmosphere that I haven't found anywhere else."

A non-Catholic mother who has brought up five Catholic children agrees. She recently made the decision that she wanted to become part of the Catholic church herself: "Because the priests at St. John's are so friendly and kind, it helped give me the confidence to meet the call to ask about converting. Their sermons are timely and they help you to go home and think about it and apply it to your life every day. I felt I could talk to them - especially Fr. Byrne, who happened to be there when I called. I feel like he is really my friend now, he sincerely makes you feel he cares about you personally."

A local attorney, age 33, who has been a non-practicing Catholic for many years, now takes his children to St. John's every Sunday: "I feel they learn a lot about what people have in common here. Although we are all different and individual, there is a unity and warmth felt in the congregation. I bring the children for the spiritual awareness and spiritual development ... to know that there is more to life than Spiderman and Hulk."

And what about children? A nine-year-old girl from Wollaston insists her family take her to the 11 a.m. folk Mass because "I like St. John's the best. The music and singing make me feel good. I like to sing. The Mass is easy to understand and I like it when they let us kids sit on the altar to listen. And I love Fr. Byrne, he makes me feel special."

It came as no surprise that when it was announced at a recent Mass that Fr. Byrne was to be the principal celebrant, the children applauded.

Fr. Byrne identifies the aura at St. John's:

"There is so much sharing here: in the liturgy we feel a sense of communication with the Lord and that means not only do we come here and pour out our needs to Him or that we speak to Him, but through the full spirit of the liturgy, the presence of the Spirit, that the people feel healed - the people feel comforted - they can actually hear communication coming in their faith relationship. People can really feel that expression from God to the heart and from the heart to the Lord."

Fr. Byrne finds the work of a priest very fulfilling, but warns that once a priest stops thinking of his relationship with God, that God is living within him and works through him, that that's where the priest's problems begin.

"We create Him in our image unless we listen. Every priest is first a human being, a member of the human community with its human condition; there will always be inner struggles."

Fr. Byrne sees peace as a result of reconciling these struggles and prayer as a means to achieve that peace. He knows priests that have had to leave the active ministry because they could not reconcile their conflicts.

In some cases loneliness has been the cause - after an active day filled with people, retiring alone to a quiet room; for others, the expected fulfillment was not there. Many priests today have turned to marriage, seeking something they found lacking in the ministry. Whatever the specific reason, Fr. Byrne believes that more priests are leaving today because they are being very honest with themselves and recognize the harm that can be done when people sense a deep unhappiness in a priest.

"I feel I can listen better when I do things in the name of the Lord and the things that I say will surprise me in that they will respond greatly to what a person is searching for. Let me share this with you:

"It was Saturday and my father was quite sick and it had reached the point where I said, 'Hey Lord, knock it off. I don't know how much more I can take.' I went over to hear confessions, and with my father dying, that's the last place in the world I wanted to be. I was drained physically, emotionally, even spiritually. I knelt down in front of the tabernacle and I said, 'I can't do it -- if you want it done, You do it.' That was the only kind of prayer I said."

His eyes saddened and he breathed more heavily as he leaned forward confiding and still reliving a personal torment.

"So I went in and sat there and a person came in and we shared a few things, and this particular person said, 'You know, I envy you priests and nuns.' And I asked 'why is that?' And she said, 'I really envy you priests and nuns because you have no problems.' And I thought, 'Hey, lady, I don't need you.' But this feeling came over me; but she needs you! She needs a priest and as difficult as it was, she was coming not for me, but for a priest. Especially in the sacraments, the priest has to be the eyes, the ears, and the hands of the Lord. You have to forget yourself like John the Baptist said, 'I have to decrease so He can increase.' It has taken me ten years to actually believe it and know that it does work. It comes through a lot of prayer."

Fr. Byrne also prays for the people that come to church, that they may have an understanding of the word of God. Each week he spends up to five hours praying and reflecting over the particular readings in preparation for his sermon.

"I have to really believe what I say. As important as I feel it is for me to be open to speak, they (the people) have to be open to hear. The spirit of God is knowledge, wisdom, truth, understanding ... and we cannot understand unless we listen."

All the qualities that make Fr. Byrne such an effective priest would also make him a good husband and father. When asked if the priesthood will ever be combined with family life, he replied:

"Yes, I think that will come in time because there is a need - not simply as a response to the shortage of vocation, but a need to respond to the faith that exists in families. But it will require a change in the structure of the church and that will frighten a lot of people. One issue leads to another."

"The ordination of women will also come someday ... there is nothing in sacred scripture that would prevent women from becoming priests. What there is right now is tradition: we are a church of scripture and tradition. I think women should have the right to choose the priesthood and they will in the future because there will always be a need for priests in the community because there will always be a need for Christ. But some women will be refused ordination just as some men are today -- if they are determined as unsuitable by the counsel at the seminary."

Finally, Fr. Byrne was asked what he would do if he were notified that he had been selected as the next Pope. The enormity of the seriousness and responsibility of the task took him into momentary silence and meditation ... then he spoke slowly, thoughtfully:

"That is overwhelming. First of all, I would have to listen ... to an awful lot of people who had expertise in all the problems and sufferings of the world -- those Christian and God-fearing people who had a sense of the problems and a sense of the Gospel and coordinate them. But first, I would listen."

TETANUS PROTECTION

Nobody is permanently or naturally immune to tetanus. It still strikes down a couple of hundred Americans each year, and one third to three quarters of the reported cases are fatal.

Surveys show that about 40% of men and women over 40 are susceptible to tetanus simply because they are poorly protected. On the other hand, if you take a few minutes for a course of shots, or even a booster, the chances of death or illness because of tetanus is virtually nil. The reason: Tetanus vaccine is just about 100% effective.

Don't guess about your level of protection or wait until you're hurt, when it may be too late. If you've been routinely immunized with toxoid in infancy or in the military, you have a good start. Depending on your age now, a booster may well be all you need to bring your immunity up to par. Immunity lasts ten years on the average.

Irvin Brogan To Be Honored At Holy Trinity Concert

Irvin C. Brogan, of Quincy, will be honored for his 50 years contribution to church music, as organist, choir director, and music teacher, during the traditional Epiphany Concert and Tableau at Holy Trinity Church, 140 Shawmut Ave., Boston, Sunday, Jan. 6, at 3 p.m.

The concert is being dedicated in honor of Brogan who retired Nov. 18. A special ceremony will take place at the intermission during which his influence upon liturgical music locally will be recognized. Brogan will also play selected organ pieces at this time.

Born in Reading, Mr. Brogan first studied music with Joseph B. Murray of Reading. He graduated from Boston College in 1935 and served as student organist while an undergraduate there. He studied counterpoint and composition under Edward C. Currie, and made his graduate studies at the Music Department of Harvard University.

He has been organist at Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck; Holy Trinity Church, Boston; St. Catherine of Siena, Norwood; Holy Spirit Chapel, Boston; St. Mary's, Cambridge; St. Theresa of Avila, West Roxbury; and others. Brogan at one time or another has played organ in a total of 91 churches in the Boston Archdiocese.

In addition to authoring, in 1954, the Authorized Rubrics for the New Rite of Holy Week, he also published Invavit Dominus that same year.

Best known for his work in organizing liturgical choirs and choral groups, Brogan has also been active with secular singing societies, particularly in the German communities, directing many of the prize-winning Maenner-and-Damen Chors in the Greater Boston area.

He has been a member of the Liturgical Music Committee of the Archdiocese of Boston, and served as co-chairman of this Music Commission in 1974.

Special Christmas, New Year Services At First Church Of Squantum

Colored balloons, children's games and contemporary music were all a part of the Christian New Year's Party Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum.

Worshippers sat at small round tables, having their coffee or cocoa and doughnuts before a fire in the fireplace in Fellowship Hall.

The program was planned as an alternative to the more traditional New Year's service held later in the morning in the sanctuary. It was designed for children, teenagers and their parents but it attracted worshippers of all ages.

The informal service included, beside the traditional elements of a worship service, a New Year's Card, a play, games, tribal chanting, and the making of public New Year's resolutions.

Jo Ann Warren gave the call to Worship. Grace Holmes led the opening prayer and Mary Ruth Scott led the prayer of dedication for the offering.

The program was well received and there have already been requests to have others like it, says Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin.

In the traditional service, Joan Hansen gave the call to worship. Mary Gifford led the opening prayer, Jens Thornton read the scripture and Don Frazer led the prayer of dedication for the offering.

The Senior Choir sang the anthem, "Sing Your Psalms to the Holy Child" attributed to praetorius. Dr. Langevin preached on the topic, "Making Plans for the New Year."

The greeters for the morning were Henry and Pat Sorenson. The ushers were Paul Paulson and Tore Wallin. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Betty Ellis, Marsha Anderson, Edna Swanson, Richard Williams and Ruth Goward.

A massed choir consisting of four other choirs was featured at the Dec. 23 pre-Christmas service. They were the Junior Choir, the Boys Choir, the Youth Choir and the Senior Choir.

They sang "O Who's That Yonder" by John Wilson, based on an old plantation hymn. The Boys' Choir is directed by Kathi Fluhr. The other three choirs are directed by Mary Ruth Scott.

The Senior Choir also sang "Rise Up Early" by Richard Kountz. Worshippers arriving at the church were greeted by a fifth choir too, the Cinnamon Toast Crowd, which was singing carols on the church steps.

The Prelude was "Medley of English Christmas Carols" arranged and played by Dan Walter on the bassoon accompanied by Mary Ruth Scott.

The Call to Worship was given by Andrew Ogilvie and Jimmy Sumner. Ralph Dougherty led the Opening Prayer. Tom Williamson read the Scripture. Barbara Colwell asked God's blessing on the morning offering, and Laurel Bumpus led the lighting of the fourth Advent candle, assisted by Bonnie MacRitchie, Tracey Gale, David Ahearn and Blythe Bumpus.

Dr. Langevin, presented the Christmas tree to the congregation. The tree was decorated entirely with Christmoss, white and gold Christian symbols which tell the story of Jesus Christ. The ornaments had been made by hand by children and members of the congregation, under the direction of Hazel Mayne. The tree was dedicated with a special hymn entitled, "Chrimson Tree."

Dr. Langevin preached on the topic, "Seeking the Christ in Our Own Hearts." This was the fourth in a series of Advent sermons. After the sermon, the Lord's Supper was observed. Church members renewed their commitment to God and to each other by reciting the Church Covenant together before the communion.

Seated around the Lord's Table with the pastor were Deacons Ellen Ogilvie, Don Frazer, Barbara Fluhr, David Mildram and Tom Williamson as well as Stewart Scott and Kathi Fluhr, the two of whom represented the church congregation.

During the service, a Christmas card to the American hostages in Iran was passed among the congregation for them to sign. The card was mailed after the service.

Anselmo May Retire If Denied School Board Vice-Chairmanship

School Committee member Francis Anselmo, who describes himself as "the old warhorse—strong of spirit and strong of heart," may be putting himself out to pasture.

Anselmo, an 18-year veteran of the committee, has sent letters to his fellow members saying he will resign from the board unless elected its next vice-chairman.

Anselmo was not available for comment Monday.

By law, the mayor serves as chairman "ex-officio." One committee member, however, is chosen vice-chairman to preside at most meetings. Anselmo, 81, has never served as vice-chairman and is reportedly bitter about that fact.

The committee is scheduled to choose its next vice-chairman on Jan. 7. Four votes from among the seven members are needed.

Christopher Kennedy, reportedly next in line for the vice-chairman's post, said Monday, "I have lined up three votes and I am still hoping to line up the fourth.

"I've always respected him (Anselmo) and we're good friends," Kennedy said. "I was sorry to receive his letter. However, I don't feel that under the present circumstances I could accede to his request."

Vice-chairwoman Patricia Toland confirmed that she had received the letter from Anselmo, but would not comment on it. Committee rules prohibit Mrs. Toland, chairwoman since January, 1978, from succeeding herself.

Ironically, Anselmo's most recent term on the committee came about in January, 1978 when member Francis McCauley resigned to accept a councillor-at-large post. Anselmo, who had failed to win re-election in the November, 1977 election, was chosen to fill McCauley's vacancy.

The committee's rules state that any vacancy must be filled by a joint vote of the committee and city council.

Amateur Nights Continue Jan. 6

The third in a series of amateur talent nights will be held Sunday, Jan. 6 at the Wollaston Theater, Beale St., beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Six to eight more nights of quarterfinal competition are planned, depending on how many acts sign up, according to Edward Bennett, producer and director of the amateur nights. The top six acts in the entire competition will split $650 in prizes, as well as prizes awarded by local businesses.

For information on entering, call Bennett at 471-3725.

Alcoholism Workshop At Ward 2 Civic Meeting Jan. 8

The Ward II Civic Association will take part in an alcoholism workshop at its next meeting, scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Fore River Club House, announces President Sharon Raymond.

Guest speaker David Essickson will conduct the workshop.

Refreshments will follow the presentation.

New Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home In Milton

The new Alfred D. Thomas Funeral home located at 326 Granite Ave., Milton, is open.

Red antique brick sets off a Colonial architecture in keeping with Milton's historic background. Electrically heated walkways to prevent icing, opens directly into lobbies, chapels, smoking rooms, business offices, and restrooms, all located on ground level eliminating any steps, thus providing full accommodations for the handicapped.

The Chapels with their pink marble fireplaces create a home-like atmosphere, and are designed to serve all denominations, and are adaptable to provide a large area or can be closed off for a more private service.

The new Home is easily accessible to the expressway and Greater Boston, Dorchester and South Shore areas.

Apart from ample parking spaces on the premises, its location near a municipal parking lot assures convenience for everyone.

An invitation to visit the Funeral Home is extended to the public.

Thomas also has a Funeral Home at 4 Fremont St., Mattapan.

THE Game Of Early Season

Undefeated Quincy Hosts Cambridge Rindge

The basketball game of the early season will be played Friday at 8 p.m. at Quincy Vo-Tech gym when unbeaten Quincy (6-0) hosts the defending state champion, Cambridge Rindge and Latin (6-0) this year and winner of its last 33 games.

Cambridge, 27-0 a year ago, is expected to breeze to the state title again this year sparked by the brilliant 6-11 Pat Ewing. The team's chances are even better now that Karl Hobbs, a transfer from Burke High and the center of a recruiting controversy, was last week declared eligible and joined the team.

The game will be a grudge battle as Quincy coach Joe Amoroso was particularly outspoken in his criticism of Cambridge coach Mike Jarvis, who has been charged by several coaches with recruiting players. "We won't be intimidated by them," Amoroso promised. "We will play our usual game and if we play up to our capabilities I think we can make a respectable showing."

Last weekend Quincy won the Hingham Christmas tournament and Cambridge won the Nashua, N.H. holiday tournament for the second year in a row.

Next Tuesday the Presidents will play at Waltham at 7 p.m.

Quincy won the Hingham tournament crown Saturday with a 54-50 victory over Suburban League rival Weymouth North.

Quincy was 12 points behind at one time and trailed by seven at the half. The Presidents held Weymouth to two points in the third period and led the rest of the way.

"This was a real tough game," Amoroso said. "They have a very strong team."

Stan Benson, named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, sparked Quincy with 21 points, nine rebounds and three steals. Junior Steve Priscella, named to the all-star team with Benson, had 10 points, nine rebounds and five assists.

Friday Quincy defeated Hull, 82-71, in its tournament opener as Brian Donovan, a league all-star last year as a junior, scored 23 points, 19 in the second half, and Benson also scored 23. Donovan had eight points and Benson six in a big third period in which the Presidents exploded for 26 points to clinch the decision and take a 63-49 lead into the final period. Benson fouled out late in that period and Donovan dominated the final session with 11 points.

Quincy played aggressively and caused 37 turnovers. "I wasn't particularly pleased with our performance but I was pleased with our ability to get the ball," said Amoroso. "I was disappointed that we worked so hard to get the ball but didn't finish it off. I think that comes from not playing. It was our first game in a week. It's nice to make mistakes and still win."

Auerbach, who collects letter openers, was also presented with one bearing the association's badge.

Win Silver Lake Tourney

Raiders At Revere

North Quincy's basketball team improved its record to 4-2 last weekend when it won the Christmas tournament at Silver Lake.

Ed Miller's Raiders will play at Revere Saturday at 7 p.m., and next Tuesday will host Newton North at 8 in a Suburban League game.

North found itself after a poor first half to defeat host Silver Lake, 57-36, Saturday night to win the tournament after trailing, 6-2, after one period and 13-12 at the half.

Trailing, 21-20, North scored the last eight points of the third period with Rick Keenan scoring two baskets and the Raiders dominated the final period.

Mark Millane, held scoreless in the first half, came back strong and led all scorers with 14 second half points. Keenan and Paul Gill scored 12 each and Bill O'Connell added 10.

Silver Lake had a taller team than North and was able to contain the Raiders for most three periods.

"Millane was upset at being held scoreless in the first half and he really took over in the last two periods," Miller said. "Keenan played well on defense and had some key baskets and the whole team played well in the second half."

North had defeated Plymouth-Carver Friday, 60-55, in its tournament opener.

Again the Raiders came on in the second half after trailing, 22-21, at halftime. They combined some excellent defense with timely foul shooting to pull ahead in the last two periods.

O'Connell, who led all scorers with 16 points, scored six in the third period when North went up, 39-36. P.C. stayed with the Raiders but a 20-foot jumper by Joe Flynn gave North the lead for good, 49-47, with a little more than two minutes left. O'Connell hit on four clutch foul shots down the stretch.

Millane had 13 points and Keenan and Bob Bolster 10 each.

Earlier in the week North bowed to undefeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, last year's state champion, 75-54, after leading in the first period. Rindge is 6-0 this year and has won its last 33 games.

Pat Ewing, Cambridge's brilliant 6-11 junior, was too much for the Raiders as he scored 19 points, blocked 19 shots and took down 15 rebounds.

"He was just awesome," Miller said.

Cambridge, trailing, 16-15, after a period, came back to move into a 34-27 halftime lead and pulled away after the intermission.

Millane, a 6-4 junior, pulled North to within seven points midway in the final period with a jump shot and two foul shots but Cambridge dominated the rest of the way.

Millane scored 16 points, Keenan had 12 and Gill added 10.

The North junior varsity, after staying with Cambridge for a half, was outclassed in the last two periods and bowed, 72-44.

The score was tied after a period and the young Raiders trailed by only seven at the half.

Steve Belcastro scored 10 points for North and big Chip Bunker had nine points and 10 rebounds.

Harry Morash N.J. Road Race Winner

Harry Morash, representing the Quincy Track Club, won the 11 and under division of the recent 6.2-mile road race in Kennelworth, N.J., sponsored by the Central Jersey Road Runners Club of America.

Morash turned in a personal best time of 39:46. More than 800 runners in all age groups participated.

Melanson Double Winner But North Swimmers Bow

Ed Melanson was a double winner but the North Quincy swimming team lost its opener to Newton North, 90-81, last Friday in a Suburban League meet.

Melanson won the 100 yard butterfly in 57:75 and the 200-yard individual medley in 2:10.1.

John Buckley placed second in both the 200-yard freestyle and 500 freestyle.

Steve Pike was second in the one meter diving, David Riley second in the 100 backstroke, Bill Feeney second in the 200 backstroke, and Bill Boudreau placed second in the 100 breaststroke in a school record 1:14.28. This broke the record set in 1977.

Tozzi, Liset Building Girls Track Program

By TOM SULLIVAN

Lou TOZZI, veteran coach of boys' track at North Quincy, and assistant George Liset have taken over the girls' program following the resignation of Jeff Strungis.

They are the first coaches in the Suburban League to take both programs.

"Our goal is to build a respectable, winning girls' program quickly," Tozzi said. "However, this is going to be difficult. Last year's team won only one meet (against Quincy) and we are very young and inexperienced."

The Raiderettes have shown surprising strength in winning their first three meets, 55-31 over Waltham, 52-34 over Cambridge and 53-33 over Newton North.

They will face Weymouth South Friday at 5 o'clock at Newton North.

There are 24 girls on the squad, five seniors, nine juniors (only four with experience), nine sophomores and a freshman.

"The girls are very enthusiastic and what we are trying to do is build the same way we did with the boys -- hard work plus positive attitude resulting in success."

Veteran Captain Elaine Robertson, a senior, heads the sprinters and is joined by three sophomores, Mary Kate Kennedy, Deidre Donovan and Kara Crehan, all talented and super athletes. However, Tozzi is looking for more depth in these events.

Eileen McKenna, a senior, should be one of the best hurdlers in the league and senior Laurie Adams and junior Loretta Garrigan also show promise.

Karen Crehan, Mary Kate Kennedy and Garrigan should be one of the better high jumping groups in the league but need plenty of technique work.

Tozzi is undecided about the relay team but said Donovan will be one of the quartet.

Sophomore Michelle Millane heads the shot putters and can be outstanding. She has immense talent and a fine attitude and has proven what she can do with the Quincy Track Club. Ann Gorczyca, Cathleen Burke and Lisa Cavanaugh are other promising shot putters.

Juniors Mary Crehan and Linda Morash and sophomore Karen Lindenfelzer, all veterans, juniors Marguerite Ladas and Cavanaugh and sophomore Nancy McDonald are all strong in the middle distances.

"Karen Lindenfelzer is experienced and has a fine attitude and is coming back from an injury," Tozzi said. "In time this will be one of our strong areas."

For distance runners North has an excellent freshman, Linda Kennedy, who was seventh in the league cross country championships; junior veteran Robyn O'Donnell, junior Deidre Corrigan and sophomores Gorczyca and Lynn Gillespie. Mary Crehan will also run the distance if healthy, but she has

Others on the squad are juniors Julie Slater and Karen Keating and sophomore Kathy Moriarty. Ken McPhee has joined Tozzi and Liset as a boys' coach.

"We are very young and inexperienced but have some good athletes," said Tozzi. "The new gym is a tremendous help as this is the first time we have ever been indoors."

"We have two major problems. We are still the smallest school in the league, which is by far the strongest in the state. Since 1974 the league has had 17 team state meet titles and an astounding 40 times in the top five teams. Also, there is a serious lack of depth."

North has a 43-15 record since joining the Suburban League five years ago and has finished 1-1-2-5 in the last four indoor state meets.

The Raiders are off to a good start, romping over Weymouth North, 53-33, and defeating Brookline, 56-30.

Their next meet will be Jan. 11 against Brockton at Northeastern at 5 o'clock.

Steve Mastrorilli, a senior three-year veteran who can run any race from 50 yards to 440, leads the sprinters and is joined by senior Bill Daley, junior Paul Earle and sophomores Kevin Wood and Joe Dudek, all good athletes.

Senior Bob Biagini, the defending league champion, heads the hurdlers and others are senior Tom Pound and juniors Steve McEachern and Jim Sullivan.

Jim Alban, a reliable veteran who has been injured, and Rich Palma, an outstanding sophomore, head the 600-yard runners and back of them are sophomores Jim Hutchinson and John Hogan.

North is weak in the 1000 and Tozzi is using Walter McConaghy, a hard worker, although he prefers not to run him at this distance. Joe McDonald, a junior, is another in this event.

Senior three-year veteran Mike Ricciuti and veteran junior two-miler Gary Morin head the distance runners with Gerry McCormick and Arif Shahabuddin joining them. Senior John Barrett, North's top two-miler, has been injured, a serious loss for Tozzi.

Other runners include Sam LaVallee, Rick O'Brien, Jake McCarthy and Mike Ellis.

Jack Leone, junior veteran, is an outstanding high jumper and may challenge the school record of 6-2, while Wood and Palma also show promise.

Liset is working with a good group of shot putters and other weight men, including junior Lou DiPietro, who has looked good; Bob Pound, a potentially excellent sophomore; juniors Tim Allen, Tom Cuervels, Bob Dana, Ted Hammon and Steve Mariano and sophomores Dave Cataldo, Paul Ciarfella, Neal Fisher, Ed Leary and Mike Panaro.

In the girls' impressive opening win, Mary Kate Kennedy won the 50, was third in the high jump and also ran a strong leg in the relay. Kara Crehan won the high jump and took second in the 300. Linda Kennedy won the mile, Deidre Donovan won the 600 and ran the anchor leg in the relay. Robertson won the 300, Millane the shot put and McKenna the hurdles.

In the boys' victory Ricciuti won the mile, McConaghy the 1000, Palma the 600, Mastrorilli the 50 and Leone the high jump, while the relay team of Mastrorilli, Biagini, McConaghy and Dudek also won.

In romping over Brookline, the North boys swept both the high jump and shot put. DiPietro, Bob Pound and Allen were 1-2-3 in the shot and Leone, Wood and Palma swept the high jump.

Mastrorilli won the dash, Dudek the 300, Morin the two-mile, and Biagini the hurdles.

The girls won eight events in sweeping by Cambridge as Mary Kate Kennedy took the dash, Donovan the 600, Mary Crehan the 1000, Linda Kennedy the two-mile, McKenna the hurdles, Karen Crehan the high jump, Millane the shot put and the relay team of M. Kennedy, Donovan, Ladas and Cavanaugh also won.

In winning their third in a row, the Raiderettes won eight of 10 events against Newton North.

M. Kennedy won the dash, Robertson the 300, Donovan the 600, M. Crehan the 1000, L. Kennedy the two-mile, McKenna the hurdles, Millane the shot and the relay team again won.

Millane won the girls' shot in the Greater Boston meet and placed fourth in the Boston College holiday meet.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You

Ever wonder who "invented" the post-season football bowl games?...

A Pasadena, Calif., businessman, James Wagner, is credited with the original idea. To promote Pasadena's Tournament of Roses affair in 1902, he got the thought of staging a post-season football game. And so, all of today's bowl games stem from Wagner's idea.

Did you know that many of today's post-season bowl games were known by different names in their early years? For instance in the first two years of the Orange Bowl, it wasn't called the Orange Bowl at all. It was known then as the "Festival of Palms Game"... The Gator Bowl started as the "Alligator Bowl"... And the forerunner of the Cotton Bowl was called the "Dixie Classic".

What was the strangest thing that ever happened in a big-time football game? Many experts vote for an incident that happened in the 1954 Cotton Bowl game. You might remember this one... Dick Mogle of Rice was running down the field for a touchdown. But a substitute on the Alabama bench jumped off the bench, ran on to the field and tackled Mogle as he went by! Officials gave Mogle a touchdown, crediting him with a 95 yard run even though he ran only 53.

I bet you didn't know... You can save 30%, 40% up to 50% off on selected ski needs. No snow, no traveling has left us overstocked on ski needs. Famous names in skis, boots, bindings and accessories all slashed. The boss says, sell out!

North Girls Shock Cambridge, Quincy 2nd In Hingham Tourney

The North Quincy girls' basketball team pulled one of the big upsets of the season last week when it shocked Cambridge Rindge and Latin's defending state champions, 41-38, for its first win of the year.

The win was even more surprising as the game was played at Cambridge.

will host Abp. Williams in a non-league game Friday and next Tuesday will be at Newton North in a Suburban League contest. Both games will start at 3:15.

North, trailing, 18-14, at half-time, outscored the Suburban League and state champs, 20-2, in the third period.

Julie Watts scored eight of her 16 points in that third period and dominated the boards with 24 rebounds. Lauren Apollo and Cheryl Ayles also had big games off the boards with 11 rebounds each.

Barbara Webster's Quincy girls finished second in last weekend's Christmas tournament at Hingham, losing to Weymouth North, 56-45, in the championship game Saturday.

The First Ladies (3-2) defeated Hull, 47-36, in their tournament opener Friday as Maureen Walsh, playing her first game since returning from knee surgery, scored 11 points.

Susan Callahan and Laura Miller scored 10 points apiece.

After a 12-12 first period, Quincy pulled away by outscoring Hull, 12-4, in the second quarter.

Quincy will play at Cambridge Friday night at 8 and will host Waltham Tuesday at 3:15.

Razer Holds Slim Lead Over Dunkin

Razer's Edge holds a two-point lead over North Quincy Dunkin Donuts in the Pee Wee Division of St. Ann's Hockey League.

Last week Razer's Edge edged

JDA, 1-0, on Steve Doran's goal.

Dunkin Donuts topped Ideal Elevator, 5-2, with Pat O'Sullivan scoring twice and Jim Cahill, Brian Callow and Kevin Cohane once each. Paul Riley, Mike McGrath and Howie Gordon had assists. Billy Palmer and George Kilroy scored unassisted for Ideal.

Keohane's squeezed by Nobile Sporting Goods, 1-0, on Matt Hurley's unassisted goal.

QJC At Bunker Hill

School at 8 p.m. following the holiday vacation.

The Jaguars will play at Hellenic College Tuesday night at 7:30.

Brian Buckley's QJC team warmed up for the second half of its schedule by romping over the Alumni, 81-42, last Friday night.

Paul Donoghue scored 18 points and Jim Holleran 14 to spark the Jaguars. Kevin Kenney had 12 points and Bob Evans 11. For the Alumni Bob Sullivan had 10 points and Bob Crowley had eight.

Raiders Meet Weymouth N. Saturday

The North Quincy hockey team was still looking for its first Suburban League win yesterday (Wednesday) against Brookline.

Saturday the Raiders (0-3 in the league and 2-4 overall) will play Weymouth North at 3 p.m. at Hingham's Pilgrim Arena and next Wednesday they will play Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 4 at the Gore Street Rink.

Kevin Lewis' young North team lost to Newton North, 5-3, last Saturday, scoring all its goals in the final period.

"We did nothing in the first two periods and trailed, 5-0," Lewis said. "The boys had a great third period with three goals and they also had four breakaways but couldn't score on them. We have to start playing three periods of hockey."

Tom Gerry, the team's top scorer last season and the leading point getter this season, scored twice, giving him eight goals for the year. Brian Ofria scored the other goal.

Earlier in the week North bombed Boston English for the second time, 10-3, in a non-league game.

Gerry, Ofria, Paul O'Sullivan and Tom Lester had two goals apiece and Rick Stevens and Tom Hannon one each. Bobby Collins, Mark Andrews, Mark Tenney, Bill Cooke and Scott Albritti played strong defense.

Quincy Faces Brockton

Quincy's hockey team (3-1) played at Waltham last night and Saturday will host Brockton at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena. It will face Weymouth South Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 5-3, last Saturday as he used everyone and had a chance to see what his reserves can do.

Robbie Craig, the number two scorer in the Suburban League last year and one of the top scorers this season, scored two goals, giving him nine for the season.

Tom Roche, Tommy Brennan and Scott Richardson had the other goals.

Earlier in the week the Presidents lost to Weymouth North, 5-2, as goalie Jim Campbell played an outstanding game and had 43 saves.

Craig and Paul Flynn had the Quincy goals.

"I said at the start of the season Weymouth North is the team to beat," Sylvia said. "They have an outstanding defense. If you can get to their goalie you have a chance but we just couldn't get to him."

North Wrestlers 3rd In Tourney

The North Quincy wrestling team (4-1) made an outstanding showing in last Saturday's Christmas tournament at Norwell, placing third, just two points behind winning Duxbury.

Duxbury scored 115½ points, Plymouth-Carver had 115 and the Raiders scored 113½, in the closest tournament in years.

North will be host to Brockton tonight (Thursday) at 6 and will be home to Middleboro Saturday at 6. The Raiders will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 4.

Steve Joyce's North team had five wrestlers in the finals last Saturday. Steve Sweet was the winner at 128 pounds, Gino Pillard won at 134, Dave Howley won at 147 in overtime and John Gorczyca won at 187.

Glenn Collins placed second at 107 and Liam Catala was fourth at 114.

"The calibre of wrestling was much higher than a year ago and of 140 matches, 40 were decided by one point," Joyce said. "I'm very pleased with our showing."

Earlier in the week the Raiders ran their record to 4-1 with an impressive 32-22 victory over Scituate, the Sailors' first loss of the season.

Scituate has 40 wrestlers on its team and North has only 18, but the numbers were meaningless as the Raiders turned in excellent performances.

Steve Sweet took a 4-1 decision from previously unbeaten Dan Frost at 128 pounds. Howley drew with John Goddard at 157, Pillard pinned Gerard Rose at 134, Gorczyca decisioned heavyweight Tony Gaera, 4-0, Greg Therrien won, 8-0, over Chris Ramsden, John Sweet held Jay Ketterer, who was 2-4-1 last year, and is undefeated this year, to a surprise draw at 114. Chris Dunn decisioned Rich Logue at 140 and John Coughlin won by decision over Gerry Curtis.

"These are the matches that mean something to me, because teams like Scituate are in Division Two as we are," Joyce said. "It gives us a chance to see who we will be facing in the sectionals and the states."

"We were only 5-13 last year and are way ahead of what we did then. I hope to finish at least .500 this season and, the way it looks now, we should have a good chance of doing so. I just wish we had more boys on our squad."

Debra Koch's 96.33 Tops For Koch Women

Debra Koch has moved into the top spot in the Koch Club Women's Bowling League with an average of 96.33 in a hotly contested battle for first place.

She is followed closely by Linda Bowes, 96.31, Betty Ann MacDonald, 96.22, Marilyn Robertson, 96.5, Gerry Cavicchi, 94.27, Pat Murphy, 93.4, Debbie Johnston, 91.23, Claire Fitch, 90.24, Barbara Donchin, 90.1 and Charlene Josephs, 89.20.

Betty Ann MacDonald and her team hold a slim lead in the team standings with 58 wins and 30 losses while Linda Bowes and her team are behind with a 57-31 score. Claire Fitch is next with 54-34. Other teams are Debra Koch, 48-40, Gerry Cavicchi, 44-44, Adele Foley, 38-50, Anne Moody, 27-61 and Barbara Lombardi, 26-62.

Debra Koch is tied with Charlene Josephs for high individual three string total. Each has 338 while Betty Ann MacDonald has top single string of 140.

Linda Bowes has the most spares with 62. Betty Ann MacDonald and Gerry Cavicchi classroom instruction and three weeks of in-pool instruction. Emphasis will be on learning the fundamentals of scuba diving with proper equipment and participant's safety. Family groups are encouraged to attend this beginner program.

There is no charge for the program and equipment is provided. Registration can be made in person at the pool office during Recreation Department sponsored swimming programs.

Registration is limited and will be on a first come first served basis. Classroom sessions will be held Tuesday evenings starting Jan. 8. The pool sessions are held Monday evenings at the pool.

Balducci's and Boston Gear played to a 1-1 tie. Eddie McArdle scored for Gear with Pat Harrington assisting, and Paul Lester had Balducci's goal.

UCT edged Mug 'n Muffin, 1-0, with Ed Munroe scoring the goal and Mark McCabe assisting.

Keohane's, Teachers, McGinn Win

Keohane's blanked the Harold Club, 3-0, and holds a one-point lead in the Mite-Squirt House League.

Mike McClory, Joey Fasano and Steve Connolly had the goals and Paul Leman and Ricky Manupelli had assists. Manupelli and Matt Smith were outstanding on defense.

McGinn edged Lydon Russell, 3-2, on goals by Kirk McDonald, Ralph Richardson and Kevin Marston. Marston and Richardson had assists. Ricky Golden and Mike Baylis scored for Lydon with assists for Kim Hartford, Hank Miller and Scott Mann.

Quincy Teachers topped Feeney's, 6-4, sparked by Greg Chambers' hat trick. Jeff Freeman, Mike Bartkus and Mark Dwyer scored the other goals and Tom Morrell, Micky Cangemi, Eric Abboud and Kevin Daly had assists. Bob Kane had a hat trick for Feeney's and John McMillan the other goal. Sean Capplis and Jeremy Burn had two assists apiece and Darren Simonelli one.

Such structure shall include any intermediate removable facade surface or portion thereof which is covered with such representation and used as above. A commercial sign is one belonging to any private establishment, office, or place of business.
SIGN AREA In the case of free standing signs and where a sign has a background color, surface, or finish material which is different from the building or window face, the area shall include that surface on which all message, symbols, or other graphic designs are displayed, but not including supporting framework and bracing. Where individual letters, symbols, message, or designs are attached to or painted on a building face or window, the area shall be the smallest imaginary rectangle which encompasses and fully contains the extremities of all copy and graphics.
SIGN MOUNTING PANEL That portion of a fascia which has a flat surface to which a sign may be attached, and which is generally set off and framed by decorative molding. In a building with several storefronts, such panels will generally be separate and distinct for each one.
SIGN SUPPORT Any pole, post, street, cable, or other structural fixture or framework necessary to hold and secure a sign.
SLOGAN A catch phrase used in advertising or promotion.
STOREFRONT That portion of a ground floor building front occupied by a separate and distinct use, and at which a major entrance is located.
SUPERGRAPHIC Graphic design which may or may not incorporate words, symbols, or letter, painted on or applied as a surface material to a large unbroken expanse of blank wall.
TEMPORARY SIGN Poster, sign, or sign card displaying a permanent support structure and intended to be replaced for a limited period of time.
TRADEMARK Name, symbol, or other device identifying a product officially registered and legally restricted to the use of the owner or manufacturer.
WALL SIGN A sign affixed in such a way that one face is flush against a wall and the exposed face is parallel to the plane of the building to which it is affixed.
WINDOW SIGN Permanent sign erected and located so as to be visible through a window and placed in the interior of a window.

In Article VIII Environmental Controls, Section 81 Signs, Delete and amend to read as follows:

Section 81. Signs.
1. General Regulations

A. Applicability

This section of the ordinance shall apply to all signs whether located in Bus A, Bus B, Bus C, Inds A or Indus B zoning categories.

No permanent sign with a size of two (2) square feet or less shall be prohibited by this ordinance, except as in conflicts with localational or other requirements specified herein.

No limitation shall be placed on municipally erected traffic or directional signs necessary for the safety and direction of the public.

No sign shall be permitted which may be confused with or construed as a traffic control device.

Sign copy may indicate the name and type of establishment, and the major products.

Any sign which identifies a firm activity trade, product, or services no longer conducted on the premises on which the sign is located or any related frame or mounting device is prohibited.

A street or mailing address may be identified without permit if the copy area is not greater than two (2) square feet.

All signs erected in conjunction with this ordinance and requiring a building permit shall clearly display the number of said permit.

B. Mounting

No sign or other advertising device with visible movable parts or with flashing, blinking, animated, or intermittent illumination shall be erected or maintained.

This shall not apply to the hands and numerals of clocks and thermometers, or signs erected to protect the public against dangerous conditions.

No sign shall cause glare on a public traffic artery; nor shall light be directed onto any adjacent property.

Illumination may be accomplished by means of:

1. A light behind the sign face illuminating the main message or background of both through a translucent material.

2. An attached or independently mounted light source designed to direct essential uniform illumination over the entire face of the sign, and

3. Direct visual exposure of conventional incandescent bulbs or fluorescent bulbs only where they are an integral part of the sign's design.

C. Characteristics

1. A sign shall not be a part of any sign.

No sign or other advertising device with visible movable parts or with flashing, blinking, animated, or intermittent illumination shall be erected or maintained.

This shall not apply to the hands and numerals of clocks and thermometers, or signs erected to protect the public against dangerous conditions.

No sign shall cause glare on a public traffic artery; nor shall light be directed onto any adjacent property.

Illumination may be accomplished by means of:

1. A light behind the sign face illuminating the main message or background of both through a translucent material.

2. An attached or independently mounted light source designed to direct essential uniform illumination over the entire face of the sign, and

3. Direct visual exposure of conventional incandescent bulbs or fluorescent bulbs only where they are an integral part of the sign's design.

D. Maintenance

All signs and their appurtenances (devices supporting or lighting them) shall be kept in good repair and safe condition. This shall mean the absence of existing rust, of broken or dangling parts, and of cracked, peeling, and flaking paint; the replacement of defective parts; and clean copy that is not obscured.

Maintenance-free materials shall be used whenever possible.

The fascia or facade, or other surface to which the sign is affixed shall be properly maintained. It shall be repaired so as to provide a structurally sound, non-eroding nor deteriorating surface, nor any loose or dangling parts.

2. Contiguous Commercial Provisions.

A. This section pertains to permanent primary storefront signs which are permitted according to the requirements herein described and may include the following:

Wall Sign, Affixed (Sign Band or Belt Signs)

Wall Sign, Painted

Window Sign, Hung

Window Sign, Painted

Dimensional Letters, Applied (to fascia or storefront)

Internally Illuminated Channel Letters

Storefront Sign, Painted

Supergraphics

Box or panel suspended over entry

Box or panel suspended over arcade

Tenant Directory

Ground Sign where building setback of ten (10) feet or more.

Sign Materials and Intermediate Removable Facade Surface materials used must conform with applicable Building, Fire, and Electrical Code requirements.

B. Location

A permitted permanent sign must be erected on the premises to which it pertains.

It shall be located so as to leave visible all features of architectural detail on the building; it shall hang clear of any cornice, parapet, lintel, sill, pilaster, column, carving, relief work, any ornamental molding, ridges, facade coping, or other architectural detail. Neither shall it extend beyond the limits of the building to which it is attached.

Other than an approved window sign, signs shall hang clear of any door and window so as not to block any view or access. Where no other architectural features or constraints exist, all signs for ground floor establishments shall be affixed so that the top edge does not extend higher than the bottom of the sill of any second floor window.

Signs located above street floor are to be used only for business located above street floor.

All signs on any one building elevation shall be located in a plane parallel to the face of the building.

Wall signs shall be affixed to or painted on the building fascia or on the sign mounting panel provided for that purpose where such exists affixed to, painted on, or hung within the interior of a display window, or where there is sufficient non-glazed storefront facade elevation, affixed to or painted on the storefront. In cases where the street, or a portion thereof, is set back from the street, the sign may be hung above the doorway, provided it meets appropriate building code safety standards. In any case, the bottom of any object affixed to a building must be at least seven (7) feet above street grade. No sign shall be affixed to a fire escape.

Secondary signs shall be mounted in the same plane as the primary sign if the same type as the primary sign. If the architecture of the building permits and, or if the secondary and primary signs are visible at the same time from any vantage point, they must be of compatible type and design. A tenant directory will be permitted at the entry to a building, affixed to a flat wall.

When a sign is to be erected in connection with a building newly constructed, or altered in such a way as to substantially change the storefront elevation, the location and design of the sign shall be considered as an integral part of the building design. All new buildings to be constructed in retail and, or commercial use shall be designed so as to provide a sign mounting panel, bulkhead fascia or other appropriate surface which will allow for safe and proper erection of signs according to this ordinance and other governing codes.

C. Number

Each establishment shall be permitted one permanent sign per building elevation fronting on a way to which the public has the right of access. This shall be considered primary signage and subject to the size and architectural limits described in this ordinance.

Where architectural constraints on any building elevation are such that the single sign must be separated to fit the building architecture, more than one sign per building face shall be allowed. Where the sign consists of letters applied directly to the inside of the window, or a panel hung in a window, the information may be divided among several windows, insofar as the graphics of panels are consistent with each other.

D. Accessory Signs

One secondary sign shall be permitted on each additional building elevation other than that with the primary sign (which is visible from a street).

E. Message

Permanent business signs in this district shall contain the following information: The name of the establishment and or identification of the primary product or ## service.

Appropriate symbols or logos may be used.

Signs shall not be included except on temporary signs.

A trademark may be used where its coverage on the sign face does not constitute more than 25 percent of the total sign face.

The same work shall not be repeated on a single sign face unless it is repeated ordinarily as part of the usual business identification, or unless it contributes to the overall design of the storefront.

Signs for businesses housed above street floor are to be used for on-premise identification purposes only, and may include the name of the business and of the product or service provided.

F. Size

Signs in this district shall be regulated according to the message size rather than the size of the sign itself.

Maximum letter height of any permanent sign message shall be two (2) feet high, except in the case of dimensional letters, applied individually. These shall be permitted a three (3) foot maximum height.

Where the letters are part of a graphic design and are integrated with the overall facade design, they may be taller.

Where no constraining architectural features otherwise exist, the maximum sign copy area shall be 25 percent of that building facade area.

An Intermediate Removable Surface of Sign Background which is proposed to cover more than 25 percent of the area of the original facade will be considered as a facade renovation and will be reviewed on that basis, as set forth in the preceding section.

3. Arterial Commercial Provisions

Free Standing signs shall be regulated by special permit only.

Board of Appeals shall use as guidelines the following language: (Highway oriented establishments set back on through arterial)

A. Definition

Certain businesses are set back from the street so that the building they occupy is not directly visible to the passerby. Such businesses require a different kind of signage for identity. They cannot rely on wall signs as can minimal setback continuous frontage businesses. The detached free-standing sign becomes their major means of identity.

Such businesses are characterized by the following attributes:

1. Deep setback located at least ten (10) feet back from the property line.

2. Highway Orientation provisions of off-street on-premise parking for each individual establishment (generally for more than five (5) cars).

3. Free-Standing generally located in buildings physically removed and on a separate lot from any other business.

4. Non-Contiguous Building Frontage the building does extend fully across the entire lot frontage.

5. Located on a Major Artery a street characterized by at least four (4) lanes of two-way traffic, with a street width of at least six (60) feet.

Generally these establishments are no more than one story high.

For purposes of this ordinance, any business with at least three (3) of the aforementioned characteristics, and any business on a property zoned INDUSTRIAL shall be considered as an Arterial Commercial Use and must comply with the sign regulations in this section.

This shall apply, but not be limited to:

Drive-In Banks

Fast Food Drive-Ins

Gasoline Stations

Auto Dealerships and Repair Garages

B. Materials

Signs on Arterial Commercial Premises shall conform to the Massachusetts Building Code. They shall wherever possible be mounted so as to either hide the supporting structure, or incorporate it as part of the overall design of the sign.

C. Type and Number

Permanent signage for an Arterial Commercial Establishment may be erected as follows:

One detached free-standing sign (Ground, Pole, Box) per establishment. This may contain from one to four faces.

It may take the form of a rectangular cylindrical, or triangular column or any other appropriate three dimensional form, not restricted elsewhere in this ordinance.

In addition, one attached sign on each street front of the building, governed by the dimensional and locational requirements set forth for Contiguous Commercial Signage.

Where two sides of a building are visible on one street frontage, and no free-standing sign is erected, then two wall signs on the same street frontage are permitted.

D. Shopping Centers

Where a single parcel is occupied by more than one business, there shall be no more than one free-standing sign.

A shopping center with two or more establishments may use one free-standing sign to identify the entire complex, or one free-standing composite sign which identifies each establishment individually, or one free-standing sign which identifies the primary establishment.

In the case of a shopping center that has more than one building located on the lot, if the total frontage is at least two hundred (200) feet, and if the main building is set back at least seventy-five (75) feet, then an additional free-standing sign is permitted for each separate building but shall be located so as to be at least fifty (50) feet distant from any other free-standing sign on the property.

E. Gas Stations

In the case of a gas station or automotive repair shop, the permitted wall sign may be divided into separate signs to indicate separate customer services and affixed to the wall of each pertinent service location and governed by the provisions set forth in section dealing with contiguous commercial.

F. Location Setback

Attached wall signs shall be governed by the locational requirements for wall signs as set forth in the section dealing with contiguous commercial.

All free-standing ground signs shall be located so that any portion is at least six (6) feet from any property line.

G. Clearance

For free-standing signs within twenty (20) feet of the right-of-way, where automotive or pedestrian action is likely to occur, or where there are other obstructions to view, the clearance to the bottom of the sign shall be measured from the bottom of the sign to the nearest edge of pavement. Otherwise, ground signs shall be governed by the bottom clearance requirements of the Massachusetts Building Code.

No ground sign shall exceed a height of twenty (20) feet, measured from the nearest edge of pavement to the top most portion of the sign or sign structure.

H. Size

Free-standing signs located within twenty (20) feet back from the edge of the right-of-way shall be permitted an area for each sign face no greater than 15 percent of the area of the building facade within which the building's main entrance is located. In no case shall the sign area exceed fifty (50) square feet.

Those signs located more than twenty (20) feet back from the edge of the public way be permitted an area for each sign face no greater than 20 percent of the building facade within which the building's main entrance is located. In no case shall the sign area exceed seventy-five (75) square feet per sign face

1. Roof signs

Roof signs shall be permitted on Arterial Commercial establishments and must meet the following requirements:

1) There shall be no signs placed upon flat roofs.

2) In all cases, signs shall be hung in such manner that all guy wires and bracing structure are hidden from view and/or incorporated in the design of the sign itself.

3) All signs shall be related to their own building in such a way that their top edge extends no higher than the roof line.

4. Secondary and Neighborhood Commercial Provisions

Business and industrial establishments located outside the boundaries previously defined shall be regulated as follows:

A. Such establishments shall be permitted one attached sign on each building elevation fronting along a street and be covered by the regulations governing commercial contiguous.

B. In any residential district, no sign or other advertising device shall be permitted except as follows:

1) One (1) sign displaying the street number or name of the occupant of the premises or both, not exceeding two (2) square feet in area. The sign may be attached to the building, or may be on a rod or post at least three (3) feet from the front lot line. Such signs may include identification or permitted accessory uses.

2) One (1) bulletin or announcement board or identification sign for a permitted non-residential building or use, not exceeding two (2) square feet in area. For churches and institutions and multi-family residential developments of more than sixteen (16) units, bulletin or announcement boards of identification signs are permitted not exceeding (15) square feet in area. Such signs may be located within the required front yard.

3) One (1) "For Sale" or "For Rent" sign not exceeding eight (8) square feet in area advertising the premises on which the sign is located.

4) One (1) sign in connection with a lawfully maintained business or industrial non-conforming use, not exceeding twenty (20) square feet in area.

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

October 15, 1979

ORDI R1 D:

The following are the amendments brought into the Council by the Planning Department to the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Quincy adopted by the Council:

1. ARTICLE VII PARKING AND LOADING REQUIREMENTS

Section 73 Location and Layout of Parking Facilities
Subsection (2)

Subsection (2) be amended by striking said subsection (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following new subsection (2):

Off-street parking facilities shall be under the same ownership as the building or buildings which they serve; or if the parking facility is under separate ownership, the owner(s) of the building or buildings must show that there is adequate parking to their building or buildings and that they have contractual agreements with the owner(s) of the parking facility to provide the building or buildings with adequate parking and said agreement is for a period of not less than 20 years.

2. ARTICLE VII PARKING AND LOADING REQUIREMENTS

Section 73 Location and Layout of Parking Facilities
Paragraph 1(d)

In paragraph 1(d) after the words "Business B" delete the words "and C" and add the following sentence:

In a Business C district, the required parking facilities may be provided on lots any part of which is five hundred (500) feet away from the building to be served.

so that the paragraph 1(d) reads as follows:

(d) In a Business B district, the required parking facilities may be provided on lots any part of which is three hundred (300) feet away from the building to be served. In a Business C district, the required parking facilities may be provided on lots any part of which is five hundred (500) feet away from the building to be served.

No. 771 693-1-1
Notice of Fiduciary's Account

To all persons interested in the estate of NATHAN HEDMAN late of Quincy, in said County, deceased. You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the First and final account of JASON A. HEDMAN as Executor [the fiduciary] of the will of said deceased has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the 30th day of January, 1980, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account. If you desire to object to any item of said account, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, ROBERT M. FORD, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this 13th day of December, 1979.

Fire Dept. Holding Elevator Fire, Rescue Procedures Course

"Elevators and the Fire Service", an intensive program of elevator fire and rescue procedures, is being conducted by the Training Division of the Quincy Fire Department.

The course is in response to the increasing number of elevators of different types and styles being installed in the city.

Cambridge Fire Lt. John O'Donoghue is presenting the program. He developed the course for his own department, and Quincy is the first city outside of Cambridge to receive this type of training.

Other courses being conducted by the training division are: MBIA Third Rail Procedures, a joint effort between MBIA instructors and the Quincy Fire Academy; Car Fires, by the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy, presented by Lt. Howard Ferguson of the Boston Fire Department; and Today's Company Officer, also by the Massachusetts Academy.

An Automatic Sprinkler System Seminar is being conducted by Joseph Shattuck, Liberty Mutual Insurance Company technical director, for the Loss Prevention Department.

The training division has conducted an "In-Service" pumping test of all Fire Department pumpers to ensure that they meet with Insurance Services Organization standards.

'I Was A Little Nervous' Death Threat Crank Call, Mayor Thinks

"It's a funny feeling to be told that somebody phoned and said he was going to shoot the mayor," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"I was a little nervous but when it was over we figured it was just a crank call."

The phone call with an apparent threat on the life of the mayor came to Mrs. Ann Clasby in the mayor's office Monday morning shortly before he was to be inaugurated for a second term.

Mrs. Clasby, who is one of the mayor's secretaries, declined to talk about the call but Executive Secretary Thomas Burke said the conversation went like this:

"Is he going to be there this morning?" the caller asked.

"Yes," said Mrs. Clasby.

"Well, I'm going to get him." The caller then hung up.

Mrs. Clasby told Burke and City Clerk John Gillis and Gillis called the police.

"Hell," he said, "don't fool around with something like that."

Tobin said he first learned of the call and its implied threat when Police Chief Francis X. Finn and four detectives walked into his office 10 minutes before the inauguration was to start. They told him they were there to escort him to the Council Chamber.

"I can find my way," said Tobin.

Then Finn informed him of the phone call.

"It was quite a feeling to have somebody come up to you and tell you something like that only 10 minutes before the inauguration," said the mayor.

"It would have been a different thing if you knew about it before and they could screen the people. There were about 200 or 300 people in the hall."

Extra police officers were stationed around the Chamber by Finn with orders to watch the crowd.

Tobin told Finn that he did not

Sees LNG Boom In 80's

Donnelly Confident GD Won't Close

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

"We were that close to losing the General Dynamics shipyard," said Congressman Brian Donnelly, thumb and forefinger separated ever so slightly.

"We are now very confident the yard will be saved," he told the Quincy Rotary Club Tuesday at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

While General Dynamics has yet to land the kind of huge contract needed to guarantee the yard's future, a variety of smaller ones will tide it over into what is expected to be an LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) tanker boom in the 1980's, Donnelly said.

Just a few months ago, he said, the yard had "no government work, no LNG work...the prospects were absolutely grim."

"We have brought almost $110 million in work into the yard in the last few months," said the freshman congressman. These smaller contracts - including a $20 million oil tanker overhaul, a $23 million cable ship repair job and three ocean-going oil barges at $42 million - are expected to stem the tide of layoffs for a year or two, he said.

"The best news, which will have long-term but no immediate results, is the adoption of an LNG importation project," said Donnelly. This Department of Energy program will result in the construction of six LNG "flagships" - and Donnelly thinks they'll be built in Quincy.

"We can build them better, faster and cheaper than anyone else. The craftsmanship at that yard is better, in my opinion, than any yard in the country," said the Dorchester Democrat.

General Dynamics, at its peak last year, employed about 5,500 workers at the Quincy shipyard. It is the largest employer in southeastern Massachusetts and the fifth largest in the state, Donnelly said.

Employment is now down to about 4,000 at the yard.

"The ripple effect (were the shipyard to close) would have been a multi-million ripple effect. To lose that would have had catastrophic consequences," he said.

"You can bet there's no way that was going to go without a lot

9 Major Point Program

Tobin Calls For Court Action On Tax Delinquents

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has pledged to make "bold and innovative decisions, at times tough and unpopular," including court action against delinquent real estate taxpayers, to give Quincy leadership and fiscal stability during his second term in office.

"I am directing the city solicitor to immediately commence suit to recover the millions of dollars presently outstanding in delinquent real estate taxes and I shall direct that no political interference will be tolerated," he said.

Among nine proposals for immediate action, Tobin said he will ask for the withdrawal of the city from the State Civil Service System and a plan for the closing of unneeded school facilities and returning them to the tax rolls.

Tobin spoke for 21 minutes Monday morning in his second inaugural that was held before an overflow crowd of about 250

Tobin's 9 Major Points

- Court action against tax delinquents
- Creation of Parking Commission
- Public works cost savings
- Energy savings in public buildings
- Private operation of City Hospital
- Withdrawal from State Civil Service
- Fair share of state aid
- Hold the line on city spending
- Consolidate school facilities people in the City Council chamber at City Hall.

Emphasizing economy in government, he said that "those of us who hold the steering wheel of government cannot drive into the 80's in a limousine. Now is the time for we politicians to sacrifice even to the extent of putting our own political careers in jeopardy to do what is right."

Tobin made the following nine proposals, some of which had already been disclosed, for helping

City Census Underway

The annual city census of persons 17 years of age and over gets underway today (Thursday).

Eighty six election workers, each wearing a badge complete with the city seal and their names, will be visiting homes in all sections of the city, counting heads.

One of the primary purposes of the head count is to locate the voters and soon-to-be voters of Quincy, although all adult residents, including aliens, will be listed.

The enumerators, who receive 20 cents a name for each resident counted, will also take a census of school children on which the city's share of federal and state aid to education is based.

The census is expected to take as long as a month.

Overall supervisor of the count is Thomas McDonald of Wollaston, the Boston Red Sox scout who has been in charge for the past 10 years.

The last official count of all residents of Quincy, regardless of age, was 91,487 in the state census of 1975.

19 Wood Stoves Approved In December

Permits for 19 wood stoves were issued during December, 1979, the City Building Department reports.

In addition, permits for work totaling $492,095 were issued during the month. Leading the way was a permit for a new Wendy's hamburger restaurant at 201 Newport Ave., Wollaston. Work for that building is estimated at $150,000.

The value of work approved rose slightly from December, 1978, when permits for $479,453 were issued.

Permits were issued last month for five one-family dwellings, work valued at $123,200; 38 residential alterations at $152,295; seven other alterations at $32,500; four removals at $12,275; six signs, at $3,800; and 24 miscellaneous permits, which included the 19 wood stoves and two coal stoves, totalling $18,025.

Receipts for the month totalled $1,845 and $481 were received for inspections.

Now Costs Nearly $500,000

Ricciuti Sees $200,000 Savings In Street Cleaning By Private Firm

Quincy is preparing to farm out its street cleaning operations to a private contractor in an effort to combat the rising costs of such work.

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti estimated that the city could save some $200,000 on an operation that costs the city between $475,000 and $500,000 annually.

Specifications for the job are currently being written and Ricciuti said they should be done by the week of Jan. 21 in time to be placed out for bid during the week of Feb. 11.

Mayor Tobin mentioned the possibility of using some form of alternative method of cleaning the streets, operating the city dump and snow removal in his inaugural address.

Ricciuti said he sees "a tremendous savings based on information I sought and received from communities that have gone to the private sector for street sweeping operations."

He said Cranston, R. I., a city larger than Quincy, farms the work out to a contractor who does it for between $115,000 and $125,000 a year.

He said he plans to pursue the possibilities of private contractors handling the city dump, street patching and digging trenches for water and sewer main installations.

Ricciuti conceded that he has gotten some flak from public works employees for his plan to do away with street sweeping.

Employing private contractors, Ricciuti said, also could help his department out of its capital outlay bind.

"We own six sweepers," he said. "Over the course of a year if we have two operating on a daily basis we feel we're rich. The others are not mechanically capable of getting out and doing the job."

"A machine today costs almost $50,000 to buy and the trade-in you get is about $1,000 or $1,500 because the machine is four or five or six years old."

Be Cautious Of Natural Ice Surfaces, Koch Warns

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park-Recreation Board, cautions all to be careful of natural frozen ice surfaces where the water beneath is of any depth. The fluctuating temperatures of recent days has a tendency to quickly diminish the ice thickness from safe to hazardous says Koch. He asks parents to advise children of the danger.

Koch says dozens of calls have been received at the Park Department Office concerning the safety of the ice surface at Sailor's Home Pond on Rice Rd., Wollaston, the largest public natural ice skating area in the city. Unless the gates are unlocked and opened at the Sailor's Home area, the ice surface is considered unsafe, he said. The Park Department requires three inches of frozen surface throughout to insure maximum safety and measures the ice thickness periodically during the extreme cold weather.

Sailor's Home Pond is fed by underground springs and several surface drains that empty in the pond resulting in continual water turbulence requiring a longer period for freezing.

Caution should be used at any location where there is a water accumulation of any depth including the natural skating site at the Wollaston Recreational Facility on Granite Ave., St. Moritz Pond in the Blue Hills and Butler Pond, to the rear of Central Junior High School.

Extreme cold weather conditions, hovering around zero, are required to insure ideal freezing conditions at the Quincy natural ice skating areas where the geographical close proximity to the ocean keeps the temperatures 10 to 15 degrees higher than the interior, Koch said.

Gutted By Fire

Neighbors Raising Funds To Rebuild Houghs Neck Roller Rink Landmark

The embers had barely cooled from last Friday's fire at the DiMarzio Roller Rink when neighbors began to rally around the owners of the Houghs Neck landmark.

The DiMarzio Fire Fund has been founded to aid owner Jean DiMarzio and her sister Helen Lynch, who lost their rink and adjacent apartment while barely escaping with the clothes on their backs.

Contributions can be sent to the fund at Presidential Co-operative Bank, 1 Granite St., Quincy Center, c/o Francis McCauley, to Jeanne Keefe, 71 Bayview Ave., or John Nigro, 245 Winthrop St., both of Houghs Neck. Checks are preferred.

Miss DiMarzio is already looking forward to reconstructing the long-time family business.

"We'll get this thing started as soon as possible," she said. "Of course, this time it will be all in concrete. We'd like to make it a little bigger, but not too much. We want to keep it a family place."

The rink, at 1284 Sea St., had been owned by the DiMarzio family from 1939 to 1946 and 1957 to the present.

"Our customers weren't just customers, they were like family," said Miss DiMarzio. "Take Edie Nigro, who got us out of the apartment. She met her husband, at the rink and her children skate there."

Mrs. Nigro awakened Mrs. Lynch and Miss DiMarzio at about 5:40 a.m., Friday.

"She was yelling, 'the rink is on fire, get out of there.' The police and the fire trucks were right behind her," said Miss DiMarzio.

THE WAY IT WAS - a post card shows how the DiMarzio Roller Rink, then Moore's Summer Ball Room, appeared in 1913.

According to Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti, the cause of the four-alarm fire will probably never be known, as the building was almost totally destroyed.

"I do believe it was an accidental cause," Valenti said.

Six Quincy firemen were injured in the fire, which took most of Friday to douse.

and were ordered out of work for seven days. Romeo Scribi suffered smoke inhalation and Paul Arsenault hurt his back while slipping on ice.

A Boston firefighter also injured his wrist while battling the blaze.

Although the building was a total loss, Valenti said the exact value of damages is unknown. The lot was cleared the following day by order of the city building department.

Named To MBTA Task Force

A former Quincy man and a former Fore River shipyard worker have been named to a 10-member task force to study the immediate and long range problems of the MBTA.

They are:

John J. Gallahue of Milton, formerly of Wollaston, the newly elected president of the MBTA Carmen's Union Local 589.

Kenneth Guscott of Boston, a consultant, who was an engineer at the shipyard from 1956-69 when it was owned by Bethlehem Steel Co. and then by General Dynamics.

The task force will study the MBTA budget responsibility, productivity standards, changes in its structure, ways to increase revenue and adjustments in service.

It is to report to Gov. Edward J. King in 90 days.

Cerasoli Uncertain

Harold, Brownell, Morrissey For Kennedy

Quincy's legislative delegation has jumped into the presidential campaign squarely on the side of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) with the notable exception of Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy).

"It's still early yet," said Cerasoli. "I'll need some more time to come to a decision I've considered endorsing Kennedy but I'm a little disappointed in some of the things he's said and done."

Cerasoli's State House conferees, Sen. Paul D. Harold and Reps. Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey, are among a number of legislators across the state who recently announced their endorsement of Kennedy.

Cerasoli said he is "disappointed in Kennedy's statements on Iran. I don't think they were very thoughtful. I'm sort of impressed with the way Carter has been handling the Iran situation."

"I'm also concerned with legislation Kennedy filed which I think would prohibit the ownership of hand guns," he added. "I feel strongly about that issue, that it might violate the spirit of the constitution."

Quincy Girl Scouts Now

In New Patriots Trail Council

The Blue Hills Girl Scout Council in Quincy has merged with five other councils to form the Massachusetts Girl Scouts, Inc., Patriots Trail Council.

The council which held organization ceremonies recently, will provide girl-centered, value-oriented Girl Scout programs for girls in Boston and 64 communities including Quincy.

One of the members at large of the organization's board of directors is Jayne F. Morovich, manager of the Community Development Coordinating Group of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and also a member of the Quincy Tourist Council.

She has served as chairman of the Finance Development Task Force of the Metro-Boston Girl Scout Organization Committee and as a member of the Board of directors of the Blue Hill Council. Her term is for two years.

Carol L. Hills of Quincy was elected to the nominating committee of Patriots Trail Council for a three year term. A professor at Boston University School of Public Communications, she is past president of the Greater Boston Girl Scouts.

$125,475 In

Wiring Work

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts announces that 109 permits were issued last month for work estimated to cost $125,475.

Fees collected totalled $1,200.75. There were 172 inspections made, with 26 defects noted.

Thirty-seven certificates of approval were issued to Massachusetts Electrical Company.

Major projects for the month was the new Wendy's Restaurant, 201 Newport Ave.

During the month, the department had two fire calls, and 14 reinspections were made.

'Earn It' Program Furor Continues

Finn, Riley Exchange Barbs

Charges, complaints and angry comments continue to fly in the wake of a CBS "Sixty Minutes" feature studying the Quincy District Court "Earn-It" program.

The latest round has Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn offering a cautious defense of the program while criticizing Sgt. Donald Riley for comments he describes as "a cheap shot."

Also leaping into the fray is retired Police Sgt. Robert Warmington, who in a letter to the Quincy Sun praised Judge Albert Kramer's reforms at Quincy District Court while describing Riley as a "perfect example of the squeaking wheel getting the grease." (The text of Warmington's letter is on page 16.)

It all began Dec. 16 when Riley appeared on "Sixty Minutes" as one of several critics of the "Earn-It" program. The program, instituted by Kramer, allows some young offenders to pay off victims of their crimes by their services instead of being sentenced to time in jail.

Riley described this and other Kramer programs as "a joke" and claimed young offenders were frequently getting off easy.

In later comments, Riley claimed that most Quincy policemen, including Chief Finn, agreed with him but that Finn lacked the "fortitude" to speak out.

"I don't need Don Riley to speak for me or anyone else," Finn said in a statement this week. "I suggest that Sgt. Riley show a little professional glow... and live up to the standards that he is expected of in his profession."

"For Sgt. Riley to have the unmitigated gall to breach the confidence of the police staff with such a cheap shot is indeed a picture of the man," continued Finn.

"I can't conceive of the truth being a cheap shot," said Riley.

"I don't want to get into a skunk-spraying contest with the chief—I never did. But he has very frequently, very venomously criticized Judge Kramer to me, to other police officers and, I assume, to other officials in the city."

"I just feel he should have the moral fortitude to say in public what he says in private."

"Only time will tell how successful the (Earn-It) will be," Finn said. "It is true, I have had some misgivings of its potential ability to address some very serious community problems. However, it is a well-meaning attempt to address a most serious social issue."

Finn further claimed that his long-time support of similar programs "hardly place me in a position to criticize another man's efforts."

Any criticism by me of Judge Kramer privately and in police circles involves individual cases and some policies which are a little too advanced for the community," he said.

Warmington's letter also said that Riley's views were not representative of force as a whole and said "my advice to Judge Kramer would be to continue to modernize the antiquated court system, that wasn't working anyway."

Over 100 officers, more than half the force, signed a letter last week supporting Riley's criticism of "Earn-It."

Michael Ricciuti, John Casey Nominated To Academies By Kennedy

Two Quincy students are among 60 high school seniors across the state nominated for U.S. service academies by Senator Edward Kennedy.

Michael Ricciuti of 31 Stoney Brae Rd., Wollaston is among 20 nominated by Kennedy for two vacancies at the U.S. Military Academy while John Casey of 100 Knollwood Rd., Squantum is one of 10 nominated for a single vacancy at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Both are students at North Quincy High School.

The final selection for appointment will be made by officials at the academies. The 60 nominees were selected from over 800 applications. Kennedy's office announced.

"It is heartening that young men and women of such high academic standing have expressed interest in pursuing their education in the U.S. service academies and in contributing their leadership, their skills and their knowledge to serving our country," Kennedy said.

Registration Starts For QJC Spring Night Classes

Registration will be held from Jan. 7 to 18 for Quincy Junior College spring evening classes, announces Richard Mula, dean of continuing education.

Registration will be held Jan. 7-11, 9 a.m.-3 p.m.; Jan. 16, 17, 9 a.m.-3 p.m., and 6-8 p.m.; and Jan. 18, 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Students are encouraged to register early to insure space in the course of their choice. Most three credit courses meet once a week from 6:30 to 9:20 p.m.

When registering, students should know their Social Security Number and must pay their full tuition. Tuition is $19 per credit hour for Quincy residents, $22 for non-residents. Most courses are 3 credits and thus would be $57 or $66 per course, plus a $3 registration fee.

Course offerings include Psychology, Business, Secretarial Science, Literature, Fine Arts, History, Sociology, Government, Early Childhood Education, Science, Math and Criminal Justice.

Classes begin January 28, 1980. Credit courses continue for 15 weeks until May 15. Non-credit courses vary in length from 10-15 weeks.

For more information and a brochure call Mula at 786-8741.

60 Year Tradition

Anderson Family Holds Reunion

Lucille and Holger Anderson of Quincy were among some 21 members of the Anderson family that gathered recently in Braintree for a traditional Swedish family supper.

The family gathering has been held just before Christmas for the past 60 years and is an evening of traditional Swedish food, conversation and family togetherness.

The tradition began with Hulda and John Anderson, both from Sweden, who lived in Quincy with their 10 children for some 30 years.

Mr. Anderson passed away 10 years ago and Mrs. Anderson, now a North Weymouth resident who celebrated her 90th birthday Dec. 10, has continued the tradition with the help of her children.

This year's supper was held at the home of Gladys and Bert Eckblom of Braintree. Co-hosts and hostesses were Dorothy and Walter Anderson of North Weymouth and Ella and Warren McKinnon of Hull who prepared the meal.

Serving the supper was Marilyn Anderson of Quincy, one of Mrs. Anderson's 39 grandchildren. There are also 32 Anderson great grandchildren.

The Swedish supper consisted of cranberry juice, oyster stew, lutefisk and cream sauce, Swedish meatballs, boiled potatoes, squash, peas, Harvard beets, vortilmpa bread, rice pudding and puncocka pie.

Also enjoying the meal along with Mrs. Anderson and the hosts and co-hosts were Charles and Jeanette Anderson of Kingstee; Harold and Mildred Anderson, Braintree; Robert and Mildred Grant, South Weymouth; Evelyn Tribou, East Weymouth; Arthur and Annette Anderson, Rockland; and Majdis and Ed Flynn, North Weymouth.

Foster Warns:

Money Problems May Delay Trains On Red Line Extension

By TOM HENSHAW

The MBTA's Red Line extension to South Braintree through South Quincy is due for completion in two or three weeks -- but the first train may not run as scheduled on March 22 unless the Advisory Board comes up with more money.

"There is a funding problem," MBTA Chairman Robert L. Foster said Tuesday on a visit to The Quincy Sun.

The problem is that the T has already submitted a tax cap budget of $301 million to the Advisory Board and the budget will have to reach the $360 million level before trains can operate to Braintree, said Foster.

"What I am going to do when I get back to the office this afternoon," he said, "is put my name to a four or five page letter to the advisory board."

"It's going to outline all the various levels of service that we can put together for them with a price tag, starting at the tax cap level and moving up ahead."

"I have to tell you that we go from the tax cap budget, through service level A and B and get to C before Braintree is included. If we don't reach that funding level there's no way we're going to operate the service."

"By statute, unless something changes, the advisory board is the agency that calls the shots over the operating budget and if they say there is no funds to operate to Braintree, it's not the chairman of the T that's saying it."

If the South Braintree station is finished in two or three weeks, it will be another year before completion of the Quincy Adams Station in South Quincy.

And right now that does not include a pedestrian access from Independence Ave., although Foster says he detects what might be a slight change in heart on the part of South Quincy residents.

Residents of the area have staunchly opposed any access at all from Independence Ave., although there is an emergency entrance cut through at the end of Verchid St. But Foster said his construction people at the site have reported to him that there has been a change in sentiment among those residents.

"Community concerns about making sure that there are no access points from that street (Independence Ave.) have lessened but apparently not to the point where the majority has swung," he said.

Foster pledged that "I will, as chairman, carry out a policy relative to that access completely consistent with the majority of the people in that area. If they don't want pedestrian access, they don't get it."

Is that a flat commitment?

"It is from me," he said.

"If 55 per cent say no pedestrian access, no vehicle access, that's the way it's going to be. If 55 per cent say let's go with a pedestrian access and no vehicle access that's the way it's going to be done."

"On the other hand," he added, "if I said a resident up there, knowing what fuel prices are, I'd begin to rethink my position."

"If I said I don't want it and now my choice is one hell of a long walk or I get my car and I know there was access there, I'd simply walk to the station and take the train to town. That's pretty good service."

Foster said if there was pedestrian access from Independence Ave. "and a kiss and ride problem develops, that's not a transportation company problem; it's a local police problem."

And he offered a unique solution to the kiss and ride problem.

He'd like to see vehicular access to the station from Independence Ave. but with cars entering from that point paying three or four times as much in parking fees in the garage.

Other cars could enter the station, he said, drop a passenger off and continue on to exits on Routes 3 or 128 after paying a nominal charge, perhaps 10 cents.

In that way, he said, there would be no kiss and ride traffic congestion on Independence Ave.

Harold First To Refuse

Quincy Legislators Turning Down

'Trick Or Treat' Raises

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

State legislators from Quincy seem to want no part of the "trick or treat" raises approved by the legislature last Halloween night according to a Quincy Sun survey.

State Senator Paul Harold has already told the state treasurer's office he won't accept his raise, while Reps. Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and Michael Morrissey say they'll consider giving the money to scholarship funds or similar charities.

The salary package approved in the waning hours of the 1979 session included raises of $1,800 for rank-and-file legislators, $6,000 to $7,000 for committee chairmen, up to $17,000 for legislative leaders and $20,000 for Governor Ed King.

Senators and representatives both earn $18,500 per year, plus $200 per month expenses and $5 per day traveling expenses. (The traveling expenses are a little higher for legislators from outside the metropolitan Boston area.)

The raises range from just under 10 percent for most legislators to 50 percent for King, whose salary would rise from $40,000 to $60,000. President Jimmy Carter has suggested a "voluntary guideline" limiting pay raises to seven percent to help fight inflation.

All four Quincy legislators say they'll vote to repeal those increases. Only Cerasoli voted in favor of the raises last year.

"I'm not afraid to say I made a mistake in judgement," Cerasoli told The Quincy Sun this week.

"My feeling is, I have no problem with the ($1,800) base salary increases. I don't feel it was excessive, especially for full-time legislators."

But a telephone survey of his constituents revealed that most objected to the increases, especially those for the legislative top brass, Cerasoli said.

Brownell added, "most of the people I have met, faced-to-face, are not that upset about the $1,800 raises. Basically, they're not that far out of line. The raises voted for the legislative leaders are way out of line."

"I'm not saying we don't deserve a raise," said Morrissey. "But you have to question the timing and methods we used."

"I don't like the way it was handled," said Harold. "We in the Senate voted on it at quarter to five in the morning. It was a voice vote; there's no record of how each one voted... It was slipped through."

"I don't think we should vote ourselves a raise," Harold added. "If a pay raise is voted, it should be for the next legislature - in this case, the 1981-82 legislature."

Brownell agreed: "I'm opposed to a sitting legislature voting on its own raises."

Morrissey noted there was no prior warning to either the legislators or public that raises would be voted on, no hearings and "no public input" on the issue.

"Most of the members were unaware that it would come up that night," said Brownell. "When it was first brought up, I thought it was some kind of trick."

Public opinion resulted in a slew of bills aimed at repealing the increases, as well as a commission appointed by King to study the matter.

An order already passed by the House and Senate has set public hearings on the raises for the week of Jan. 7 and a vote during the week of Jan. 14. At press time, the hearing had not yet been scheduled.

If all moves quickly, the raises might even be repealed before Jan. 15, the first bi-monthly pay day to include the increases.

But if the increases stick, all four legislators are thinking over how to handle them.

Harold last week notified the state treasurer's office that he doesn't want to receive the raise in his upcoming checks.

Morrissey, who isn't sure that's legal, said legislators may be legally bound to accept their full salary.

"There's been no legal determination as to whether a legislator can be paid and taxed under the old rate," Morrissey said. Apparently, even if a legislator chooses to accept only his old salary, he will still be taxed at the new, higher rate, he added.

Brownell has his own plan for accepting the raise, if he must.

"I have asked the state treasurer's office to hold the amount contained in the raise in an escrow fund. I am asking my constituents for some instruction on what to do with the money," he said. Among the options he is considering is turning the money back to the state treasurer or donating it to charity or some scholarship fund. Constituents may contact Brownell's office at 727-5200 or 727-4646.

Morrissey also leans towards such a charitable donation, although he has not decided whether or not he'll accept the raise.

"I think something like that is probably more in order than just to turn it back in," Morrissey said.

"I think turning it back creates all sorts of complications," added Cerasoli, who already sponsors scholarships for students at Quincy Junior College and graduates of Quincy High School.

"What I would probably do is find some way to use it for public service in my district," he said. "The state would probably just put it in some bank somewhere."

This is your life.

This is it. Someone's finally come along with life insurance for you. Life insurance that's readable, clear and affordable. Savings Bank Life Insurance policies are individually suited to you. If you've hesitated buying insurance because of high costs or confusing policies — this is your life.

Life with no ifs, ands, or butts.

Savings Bank Life Insurance just did something great for you non-smokers. At Quincy Savings Bank, we're offering you special reduced rates for $50,000 Yearly Renewable Term. That means if you haven't smoked cigarettes for at least a year, you'll save on our already low rates. For example, the non-smokers rate at age 30 is only $79 annually. At age 35 it's only $84. And if you're 40 years old and haven't smoked a cigarette since you were a young 39, the annual rate is $132.00.

A new issue of life.

Savings Bank Life Insurance, in fact, has lowered all rates, some by as much as 42%. That means it's an even better buy than before, at Quincy Savings Bank.

FOR EXAMPLE

SBL

$10,000 (Annual Premium)

Age	Straight Life	Life Paid-Up at Age 65	Five Year Renewable Term
25	$ 92.50	$ 99.80	$19.80
30	111.50	123.10	19.80
35	136.70	155.90	23.80
40	170.00	203.20	35.90
45	212.80	272.80	47.80

Life only a woman could appreciate.

Whether you're single or married, you'll appreciate a Savings Bank Life Insurance policy. For example, while you're under age 30 you can get $25,000 5-Year Renewable Term for just $50.00 a year. That's less than a dollar a week. Now there's no reason for any woman to be underinsured. At Quincy Savings Bank there's a wide range of low-cost policies to meet a woman's specific needs.

The easy life.

Ordinary life. Endowment and term. Non-smokers insurance. Each and every Savings Bank Life Insurance policy is easier to read. Easier to understand. And now, easier to pay for, too.

Because life insurance policies from Quincy Savings Bank are individually designed with you in mind. They're written in plain English.

If you live or work in Massachusetts — you qualify! At most ages, you can apply for up to $53,000 in protection. If you've been looking for the best coverage at the best price, this is your life.

of screaming and yelling and stamping of feet," he said.

On other topics:

• Donnelly called President Carter's actions against the Soviet Union "hitting the Soviets with a pillow."

The measures announced last Friday, in the wake of Soviet aggression in Afghanistan, include such points as cutting back grain shipments, curtailing Russian fishing in U.S. waters and preventing the sale of computer and other technology to the U.S.S.R.

"Cutting back their fishing fleets - that's not going to be disastrous to their economy. Neither is stopping the sale of computer technology - somebody else will sell it to them. As far as the grain sales, he didn't cut it all off, he just cut off some of the excess. As far as I'm concerned, he's got to either do something or not do it."

Donnelly said he also had serious reservations about increasing aid to Pakistan and neighboring countries, which he described as "totally anti-American."

"Who are our friends?" Donnelly said. "President Carter said last Friday he had consulted with our friends in Southwest Asia. Well, my comment was, it must have been a short phone call."

"I'm not sure I'm ready to send American money to Southwest Asia. And I'm certainly not ready to send 18-year-old kids to Southwest Asia."

• After over two months of talking about it, Donnelly admitted "I'm all Iran-ed out."

"The rule of thumb at the State Department right now is that the longer this thing stretches out, the better the chances for a positive final solution."

He added, in a final shot, "of course, the State Department has never been known to do things right."

Sheets Names Arnold Levine To Hospital Commission

Councillor James A. Sheets announces his choice for the Blue Ribbon Hospital Commission is Arnold Levine of 150 Plymouth Ave., West Quincy.

The other six members of the seven member commission to study the problems of City Hospital were named by the City Council last week. Sheets had asked for more time to think the matter over.

Levine is health coordinator for the Randolph School System and has been involved in a variety of state and local health care programs.

want anyone to tell his wife, Shirley, and their children, who were in the audience, or in any way interrupt the ceremonies.

Mrs. Tobin did not learn about the threat until the mayor attended a School Committee meeting Monday night and noticed that a police guard had been assigned to her husband.

"I appreciate the Chief's concern and his precautions," said Tobin. "but my concern is about the safety of my family and the people who work in City Hall. The job isn't worth it."

Tobin Proposes 9-Point Major Program

the city out of its financial and other binds:

• "Creation of a parking commission to deal with our traffic and parking requirements, including off-street, on-street and garage parking, for both the MBTA and Quincy garages, to alleviate traffic congestion, improve security and increase revenue into our city."

• "Alternative methods to keep our streets clean, to operate our sanitary landfill operation, and to plow and remove snow, in order to generate cost savings and a budget reduction."

• Consultations with School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon to form a plan "to join the cost saving energy computer program in order to reduce fuel consumption costs in all municipal buildings, including fire, police, hospital, library and City Hall."

• Continuing study of "the feasibility of the private operation of the Quincy City Hospital, keeping in mind that the health care services in the city of Quincy shall be second to none."

• "I am directing the city solicitor to immediately commence suit to recover the millions of dollars presently outstanding in delinquent real estate taxes and I shall direct that no political interference will be tolerated."

• "Enabling legislation by which the city of Quincy can withdraw from the State Civil Service system in order to establish our own merit system so that it will be responsive to Quincy people so that they will not be shunted aside in seeking city of Quincy jobs."

• "Legislation to give Quincy its fair share in allocation of state aid to cities and towns." Tobin has in the past criticized the state for using an aid distribution formula that was unfavorable to a city like Quincy.

• Support from the City Council "in keeping all funding requests within the 4 per cent tax cap restriction mandated by the Governor and the State Legislature. We all must work together to avoid any possible appropriation and/or revenue deficits."

• "A program for consolidating educational plant facilities while maintaining quality education... and a plan to place the unneeded school facilities back on the tax rolls. The hard facts are that we must all recognize this reality and consolidate our school system."

Tobin also ticked off what he called "the positive achievements of my first term," adding that they are "all the more significant when compared to the economy of our state and of our nation."

"My administration brought forth the most aggressive development program in our city's history," he said.

"In just 24 months, 29 previously vacant stores are now occupied and doing business... 10 retailers received grant assistance to modernize and upgrade their storefronts... three industrial corporations initiated and finalized plans for industrial expansion."

"We began four new major office buildings in excess of $43 million worth of construction.

This is the greatest amount of new office building in the history of our city."

His administration, he said, obtained $3.9 million in neighborhood improvement funds from the federal government and other grants to modernize the Police Department and reawakened interest in the city's history through the Constitution Bicentennial Celebration.

Tobin said that in sharing his feelings of accomplishment "I would be less than candid if I did not elaborate on my feelings of frustration. The biggest frustration, he said, was the $27.40 tax rate increase, which he blamed a good deal on "bureaucratic red tape."

"Those who made the decisions of the past must hold themselves accountable for at least $15 of this increase," he said.

"An additional $5 impact on the increased tax rate was brought about by a reduction in estimated receipts and the funding of state mandated pension systems for our retired city employees."

"The remainder of the increase, approximately $7.40, is properly charged to doing the day to day business of the city during this most inflationary period."

He called that "the history of the 1979 tax rate storm."

"With the decade of the 70s at a close," he said, "it is my hope that much of the negative and adverse happenings to our city have come to an end and all of us here in this political house will work with a common effort with one objective in mind --- doing what is best for the city of Quincy."

George Bush To Speak At Jan. 16 Chamber Breakfast

George Bush, the Texas oil man who hold sensitive posts in the Nixon and Ford administrations and now seeks the Republican nomination for president, will be the speaker Wednesday, Jan. 16 at a 7-44 a.m. breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at Valle's in Braintree.

He will be the sixth in the series of presidential candidates who have appeared at Chamber of Commerce functions.

Bush, a native of Milton and a graduate of Yale, served as ambassador to the United Nations in the Nixon administration and as chief of the U.S. liaison office in China and head of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Ford administration.

He was also chairman of the Republican National Committee from January 1973 to September 1974.

Bush, who was in the oil business from 1948 to 1966, served two terms in the U.S. Congress from 1967 to 1971 and was the unsuccessful Republican candidate for the Senate from Texas in 1964 and 1970.

The 1980 Session

The Massachusetts Legislature is back in session. The first order of business was an adoption of a resolution calling for an early public hearing to hear all bills pertaining to repealing the Legislative pay raise. The Resolution requires the Committee on Public Service to hold a hearing during the week of January 7, 1980 and that the Committee immediately report out the legislation so a vote may be taken during the week of January 14, 1980.

I voted against the raise and I am recorded on a roll call vote as being opposed to it. I felt that the lack of public input and the methods that were employed were two of the major reasons for my opposition. The Governor has appointed a Special Commission to study the pay structure and to propose solutions or possible recommendations. That report should be completed and made public in the very near future. I can be reached at my office by calling 727-7035 or at home, 328-0900.

Committee Formed To Provide Emergency Fuel Information

Volunteers from a number of Quincy agencies have formed "The Committee to Keep People From Freezing" to provide emergency fuel information for those in dire need.

The assistance is not for those who may be able to survive on their own, but is strictly for emergency purposes.

The committee is working on the coordination and publication of a booklet containing fuel assistance sources in crisis situations.

Target completion date is Jan. 11, and the booklet will be distributed to agencies, churches, civic organizations, fire and police departments.

Three city agencies have volunteered to serve as bases of operation for the project. The Atlantic Neighborhood Center will serve North Quincy, Squantum, Montclair and Wollaston and residents can contact Jane Ford, director, at 773-1380, ext. 338.

The Germantown Service Center will be the base for Adams Shore, Germantown, Houghs

Neck, and Merrymount, and residents can contact Norma

Barriere, 471-1189. The South-West Community

and those residents can contact Mary Brelsford, 471-0796.

A good gift is one that combines the spirit of the occasion with good looks and utility. A watch is one of those items that can fit into all of these categories. It can be made very personal with an especially chosen style, or engraved message on the back. Watches come in a tremendous number of shapes, styles, and sizes. Within these categories, watches can be casual or be decked with dazzling jewels. And of course, they are useful. So look for the right time to give somebody a timeless gift.

Look to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 496-1490 for all your watch and jewelry needs. We have an expert to handle watch repairs and clock repairs. Our craftsman truly loves clocks and works primarily for the enjoyment of it. Clock appraisals are also available. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Happy New Year Everyone!

Inter-Church Council Holds Epiphany Feast Of Lights Service

The fourth annual Epiphany Feast of Lights Service, sponsored by the Inter-Church Council, was held Sunday at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Featured in the service were several choral renditions by the Eastern Nazarene College a cappella choir under the direction of Greg Larkin.

The college's Brass Ensemble, directed by Robert Howard, also played three numbers. A distinctive feature of the service was a candle lighting representing the light of Christ entering the world and gradually spreading through time and space. The ceremony climaxed with each worshipper holding a lighted candle to carry forth into the world.

Rev. Cornelius Heery, Sacred Heart pastor, delivered a brief homily, and a simple collation was provided for socializing by worshippers after the service.

The Inter-Church Council consists of eight member congregations in the Wollaston, North Quincy area. They are: Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church, Union Congregational Church, First Church of Squantum, Atlantic United Methodist Church, Wollaston United Methodist Church, Wollaston Nazarene Church, St. Chrysostom's Church and Sacred Heart Church.

The council had planned to hold the service at St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston, where it had been held last year.

Last year's capacity crowd and the strong indication of even greater numbers this year led the planning committee to hold the service at Sacred Heart Church, which has a much larger capacity.

IN MEMORY of deceased handicapped rights advocate Larry Quinn, who died recently in his Quincy apartment, Braintree Hospital has established a fund in his name to benefit the Boston Center for Independent Living (BCIL). ## Quincy Resident 'Example To All'

Larry Quinn Memorial Fund Established At Braintree Hospital

Braintree Hospital has established an Annual Larry Quinn Memorial Fund in memory of the late handicapped rights advocate who died recently at the age of 26 in his Quincy apartment.

The hospital donated $500 to the fund which will go to the Boston Center for Independent Living (BCIL) dedicated to aiding the physically disabled live fuller lives.

Mr. Quinn had been confined to a wheelchair since a 1971 diving accident which rendered him a quadriplegic (paralyzed from the chest down).

He had numerous operations during the past seven years. Explained a Braintree Hospital physician, "Larry was a legend, an example to all of us that sheer determination and guts can overcome whatever odds are against us."

His therapist at Braintree Hospital remembers him as one who "always tried his best, was never depressed, and actually helped cheer up other patients with his personality and sense of humor."

Constantly seeking independence, Mr. Quinn joined BCIL. Following a training period, BCIL clients live alone in apartments with the help, once or twice daily, of a personal care attendant.

He got his own apartment and soon afterwards was offered a salaried position doing public relations for BCIL where he was well-liked by staff and clients.

According to co-worker Peter Laitinen, director of client services, "Larry was really a strong advocate for the rights of handicapped with both State and Federal agencies. He recommended legislative bills and conducted fund-raising activities for BCIL. He never took 'no' for an answer when it came to his beliefs."

Mr. Quinn died of a severe fever which developed into a fatal coma.

"Despite the fact that Larry is no longer here, he and his name will continue to help the disabled for years to come," said Laitinen.

LONGER LIFE UP TO YOU

To a greater extent than ever before, barring accidents, realizing a longer life is up to the individual. The enormous gain in life expectancy in America - (an increase of 25 years since 1900) is a gift of modern medicine, research and public health measures. The top killers at the beginning of the century were infectious diseases - pneumonia and influenza; tuberculosis; diarrhea and enteritis and diphtheria. They accounted for one third of all fatalities. Now, thanks to medical advances, all are far down on the danger list.

Today's major killers are the diseases of the middle and later years. Arteriosclerosis and cancer account for 75 percent of all non-accidental deaths among adults.

In many cases, these killing diseases can be cured, avoided or arrested if the patient reports the earliest symptoms to a doctor. A good place to start, is with a regular, complete medical checkup - especially during the crucial years between ages 40 to 50.

In Memory Of Duggan Family Virgin Mary Statue Dedicated At Sacred Heart Church

A statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary was recently donated to Sacred Heart Parish, North Quincy, by Mrs. Ellen Duggan Mayer of Winchester, a former North Quincy resident.

The statue was donated in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius A. Duggan and family, and was blessed by Rev. Cornelius Heery, Sacred Heart pastor, at dedication ceremonies on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Mrs. Mayer was in attendance along with relatives and friends. The five foot, 10-inch marble statue was created by Bartelli of the Pietra Santa Studio, Southern Italy, and is located on the plot of grass between the church and rectory.

The Duggan family have been Sacred Heart parishioners since the church was founded in 1903. Mr. Duggan was church sexton for a number of years.

Proposes Subpoena Authority

Sheets Seeks Stronger Powers For Rent Board

City Councillor James A. Sheets plans to introduce measures to strengthen Quincy's Rent Grievance Board in the wake of reports of huge rent increases asked by some landlords who blame them on tax hikes.

But rent control is not warranted at the present time, said Sheets, who took a long look at the procedures of establishing rent control two years ago at the request of a constituent.

Sheets said he will recommend that the Rent Grievance Board be given subpoena powers to summon reluctant landlords to appearances before the board.

"If a landlord refuses to come to a meeting to talk over the problems with his tenants there is little or nothing the Board can do right now," he said.

He said he will also propose that the salaried director of the Board, Jane Reikart, be given additional clerical help, perhaps from the CETA rolls.

"In a city the size of Quincy, with an increasing tenant population, it is becoming more and more difficult to run the Board with a parttime director who does her own clerical work," he said.

And Sheets noted that there are only five active members of what is supposed to be a 12-member board.

Sheets called the institution of rent control "an extreme measure."

"It's the last thing that should be done when all other efforts to bring normalcy to tenant-landlord relations has failed," he said.

"Some landlords have taken advantage of the topsy-turvy property tax situation to take advantage of their tenants and the situation will exist until we have classification."

"It is absolutely necessary to strengthen the Rent Grievance Board to protect the good landlords and the good tenants from the less cooperative and insensitive landlords."

Mayor Tobin called it "a 'copout' on the part of some landlords who blame their rent increases on the city and the $27.40 increase in the tax rate."

"One apartment house not too far from here had a $9.25 per unit increase in its tax bills yet the landlord charged the tenants $50 and blamed it on the city," he said.

"Even when I reduced the tax rate 60 cents last year many of the landlords increased the rent."

There is a lot of individual greed out there by absentee landlords who don't live in the city."

The Next Mayor?

In politics, it's always time to look ahead. Even as Arthur Tobin raised his right hand Monday to take his second term oath of office, there were onlookers wondering: who'll be the next mayor?

And sitting there around the City Council rim were several potential candidates probably wondering whether 1981 will be the year for them to make the big run.

I looked upon as likely future mayoral contenders are Frank McCauley, James Sheets, John Quinn, Joseph LaRaia, Daniel Raymond, Steve McGrath and Joanne Condon.

That's seven out of nine councillors.

McCauley, who easily topped the City Council at-large race last November would have to be considered a strong contender off that performance. If, of course, he decides to run. He seems to be warming up to it.

Sheets almost got into the mayoral ring last year and no doubt is giving it some thought right now.

QUINN

Quinn, the "dean" of the City Council starting his 12th consecutive two-year term—a Quincy record—hasn't seriously considered a mayoral bid in the past but he reportedly is doing so now.

Raymond has long been seen as a mayoral contender but the fact he made no real move for this year's City Council presidency indicates he may not be thinking mayor's office at all.

The speculation had been that Raymond would become City Council president this year and that Tobin would resign as mayor before this term was up to accept a judgeship from Gov. Edward King or some other prestigious post. Raymond, as council president, would then become acting mayor giving him an advantage in the next election.

But when Councillor Leo Kelly quickly put the votes together for himself it kind of knocked the Tobin-Raymond musical chairs speculation into a cocked hat.

Those close to Raymond are convinced he is not looking to the Mayor's office but a few miles westward to Dedham and the district attorney's office.

LA RAIA

Although one LaRaia associate is going around town saying LaRaia won't run for Mayor again, nobody believes him. The feeling is that LaRaia wants to be mayor again to vindicate his previous turbulent administration.

McGrath, starting his second term, and at age 26 the youngest councillor, has plenty of time for a mayoral run. He probably will pass up '81.

Condon, some observers think, could some day be Quincy's first woman mayor. She says she prefers serving Ward 6 as a city councillor and has no political ambitions beyond that but there are times when she seems to warm up to the thought of keeping a date with local political history.

Any way, one of the seven may well be Tobin's successor—standing in the spot he did Monday with his (her) right hand raised on some other January morning soon.

McCauley, Sheets and LaRaia would seem to be the more likely to run in 1981.

But "Mayor" watchers will keep an eye on all seven during 1980.

ONE OF THE first local boosters of George Bush for President was John Blake of Colony, Inc. They went to school together at Phillips Academy in Andover. Bush will be the sixth in a series of Presidential candidates to address the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. He will speak at a 7:44 a.m. breakfast meeting Jan. 16 at Valle's, Braintree. Blake, a member of the Chamber will have the honor of introducing Bush at the breakfast which looks like a sellout. Bush, in a way, will be "coming home." He was born in Milton (June 12, 1924).

FORMER Mayor Thomas Burgin rarely mixes a mayoral inaugural, but he did Monday—due to a mixup. The invitation went to Burgin's insurance office instead of to his home. Burgin didn't get to his office until after the inaugural—and found it there on his desk.

WJDA'S HERB FONTAINE is recuperating at home following minor surgery at Quincy City Hospital. He's coming along fine and is expected to be back at the mike very shortly.

Harold Bill Seeks More State Money For QJC

Quincy Junior College plans to try, try again in its continuing attempt for increased state funding.

A bill filed by Sen. Paul Harold asks that QJC receive sufficient state funding so that tuition may be lowered to the level of that at state-supported community colleges.

Similar bills have been filed for the last eight years, according to QJC President Dr. Edward Pierce. "They haven't gone too far," he said.

QJC is the only municipally supported junior college in the state. Quincy residents pay $600 tuition, according to Pierce, while others pay $700. Students at state-run junior colleges pay $300 to $315 annual tuition, he added. Nearly half of QJC's students live outside the city, Harold noted.

"This legislation is not just for Quincy residents, but for all students who attend Quincy Junior and find that they have to pay more than students in the state community colleges do for the same education," Harold said.

He said the junior college ought to be treated as an educational asset of the state and assisted financially by the state community colleges.

Under Harold's bill, the Quincy school committee would certify to the regional community colleges board the amount of tuition and number of students attending each year.

The board would then deduct the amount charged at community colleges and would include a request in its annual budget for the difference. Amounts appropriated under the request would be paid to the school committee earmarked for reducing the junior college tuition for the following school year.

In certifying the amount of tuition, the school committee would not include any amounts received in the previous year under the legislation, so that the true tuition level would be reflected each year, Harold said.

Former Sergeant Speaks Out On 'Earn It' Program Controversy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is with great interest that I have been following the written and verbal comments about a recent segment of "Sixty Minutes", concerning the "Earn It" program at the Quincy District Court.

As a former member of the Quincy Police Dept., I found it very frustrating to take juvenile offenders into the Juvenile Court, and sometimes I would sit there and wonder why the judge, at that time, would not sentence the youth to a correctional institution. In 1955, I was sent, with a number of other officers, to the State Police Training Academy in Framingham, in which we received special instruction in all phases of police work.

While at the academy, day and night for one month, we came in contact with a group of youthful offenders who served as stewards and kitchen help in the cafeteria. In discussions with them, we learned that these youths, upon entering the correctional facility, were subjected to homosexual rape and abuse, not only by their fellow prisoners, but quite often by some of the adults, whose duty it was to supervise their incarceration.

After completion of the course and my return to duty in the Quincy Police Department, whenever I would bring a youthful offender into court, I would be sitting on the same bench saying to myself, "I hope the judge can find a way to punish this kid without sending him into that snake pit."

I was very disappointed to learn of this petition signed by 106 members of the Quincy Police Department in support of the views expressed by Sgt. Donald Riley. Under previous police administrations, nothing like this would have even happened or even been contemplated.

I somehow feel personally responsible for the fact that Sgt. Riley appears to be the spokesman for the average working police officer. When I realize that when Riley was a patrolman on the 1 a.m.-8 a.m. shift and attending law school days, I was one of the chief officers, as a sergeant, in making sure that Riley would not be given an assignment, where he would have to make arrests, and therefore have to appear in court the next day, thereby losing time in law school.

A group of us sergeants and lieutenants figured that after he earned his law degree and went out into the legal field, he would have a special insight into police problems, having been a member of the police department. Instead Riley elected to stay in the police department and put his law degree on the shelf, and, from what I can see, has been a perfect example of "the squeaking wheel always gets the grease".

My advice to Judge Kramer would be to continue to modernize and improve the antiquated court system, that wasn't working anyway.

I would also advise Judge Kramer, that if he wants to see police work in action, to spend a few hours in the patrol car with Sgt. James Mulloy, and if he wants to know what's troubling the average everyday working cop, then he could find out more in a 15 minute conversation with Sgt. Mulloy than he could in 8 hours with Sgt. Riley.

Congratulates Quincy Co-operative Bank On 'Josiah's Journal' Supplement

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As an unabashedly-sentimental Quincy native proud of my heritage, may I congratulate Quincy Co-operative Bank for a masterful creation, the 24-page (Dec. 27) newspaper supplement, "Josiah's Journal", commemorating the bank's 90th birthday.

This superbly-written and designed keepsake, from the presses of The Quincy Sun, provides a fascinating history lesson about our beloved and historic City, replete with little-known facts presented in captivating style. Would that everyone interested in Quincy's historic past could have access to a copy of the "Journal" which appeared in The Sun, Patriot Ledger and four other South Shore publications.

Having grown up in South Quincy when the entire neighborhood (from Quincy Adams Depot through West Quincy to the Milton line) teemed with stone sheds, polishing mills and quarries producing "lasting until everlasting" Quincy granite, I fondly recall those glory days when the product was pre-eminent throughout the world. And our little neighborhood was a virtual melting pot of all nationalities, living in harmony. O for a return to those halcyon days when life was simpler, problems were smaller and easier to solve and a wonderful spirit of unselfish neighborliness abounded.

Elected President Unanimously

Kelly To Seek More Active Role For Council

New City Council President Leo J. Kelly has promised that the Council and its committees will take a more active role in running the city, particularly "to insure that sound management practices are being utilized by the government."

Kelly was elected Council President, succeeding John J. Quinn, by unanimous vote of the Council, but only after Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, returning to that body from a four-year hiatus, sought a promise of impartiality from Kelly.

LaRaia, identifying himself as one who is uncommitted but willing to go along with the majority of the Council, said:

"Leo, I expect that as president of the Council you will conduct the office with impartiality as an arbiter and if you follow that rule of thumb I think we can all cooperate very easily during the coming year."

"I think they've always been the rules of my life," Kelly responded.

The new Council president, the first ward councillor to occupy that chair since J. Vincent Smyth in 1968-69, said that under his direction the Rules Committee will study changes to make the Council more responsive to the needs of the city.

He also promised to make the Public Safety and Parks and Recreation Committee committees of the whole and take their meetings to sites outside City Hall so they can listen to the complaints and suggestions from the people.

He plans to form a new Committee on Tourism, he said, and expand the Downtown Development Committee into the Downtown and Economic Development Committee to enable it to handle development problems anywhere within the city.

Kelly was nominated for Council President by Councillor Joanne Condon who called him a man who "is at his best making government work."

"He cajoles; he persuades; he drives for those things he wants and believes in," she said. "He is happiest when that process enriches the lives of the citizens of our community. He suffers the most when that process does not serve them soon or well."

The text of Kelly's address on taking over the role of Council President follows:

"It is with much respect and reverence for this Council that I take this seat and assume the responsibility of becoming the President of the Quincy City

LEO J. KELLY

Council. I thank my fellow councillors for their trust and the honor that they have bestowed upon me.

"At a recent meeting that I called of the Downtown Development Committee, a prominent Quincy developer made a statement which I feel is worth repeating here today. He said, 'Quincy is a sleeping giant that has just turned the corner. I cannot see anything for this city but up.'"

"We are a city whose population will probably pass the 100,000 mark in the decade of the 80's. We are the only city in the Metropolitan Boston area whose population is not on the decline. We are one of the oldest settlements in the United States, but we are still vibrant, young, alive and growing. Our downtown area has survived the hard times of the 60's and the 70's and now appears to be turning the corner to go on to a new life. Our beaches and our water are beginning to show the signs of less pollution and rejuvenation. Our more tired neighborhood areas are beginning to show the effects of important neighborhood rehabilitation programs that are being conducted. We are a city that has gone through the very difficult 60's and 70's and we are just now beginning to emerge into the 80's with a new hope and a new vitality."

"This government and this City Council is charged with the responsibility of shepherding this city into the oncoming decade. At issue here, and throughout the coming year, is how should this government, how should this City Council, respond to the changing times, become more reflective of the existing conditions, and fulfill its function as a legislative body."

"Clearly, change is in order and the Council's role will continue to emerge as it responds to new challenges and issues. However, initially, I am proposing a number of changes that will be effective immediately."

"A new emphasis will be placed upon the Committee on Rules. This traditionally has been a quiet committee, not sparking much excitement or interest. It is my feeling that in the future, Rules should become the committee which is instrumental in molding the new Council. It will study and suggest the modifications that this Council must make to become both progressive and responsive to the needs of the constituency that we serve."

"Also, I am advocating that this council take a more active role in the budgetary process, traditionally our primary area of responsibility. The Finance Committee's role will emerge as a more management-oriented body. It will no longer merely approve or disapprove of a budget, line item by line item -- it will begin to monitor throughout the year. Its function will be to insure that sound management practices are being utilized by government."

"I will ask that committees such as Public Safety and Parks and Recreation, which I intend to make committees of the whole, take their meetings outside of this City Council chamber and into the neighborhoods. These committees should be listening to the people and responding to those complaints that we hear most often, about such things as public drinking, gangs, dogs and vandalism."

"I will ask that a new committee be formed, a Committee on Tourism. Its function will be to encourage the birth of this new industry in the city of Quincy."

"The Downtown Development Committee will continue to be a committee of the whole. However, it will become more broadbased; it will become the Downtown and Economic Development Committee, and in this manner it will have a more city-wide scope, handling all development activities, no matter where they might be occurring within the city."

"Change is important, and it is something which we must continue to espouse."

"We have a huge undertaking to begin. We bring this city into the 1980's and the 80's hold great promise not only for us as the City Council, but most importantly, for the city as a whole."

Peacetime Employment Highest At Shipyard

John T. Wiseman, general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Boston district, said employment at the Fore River Shipyard had reached 8,000, a peacetime high, and was expected to increase to 9,500 in the next few months.

In Navy work, the shipyard was completing the cruiser USS Salem, converting a destroyer, converting the cruiser USS Northampton to a fleet command ship and had contracts to build two large destroyers.

Other work included completion of five tankers that had already been laid down, five other tankers to be started soon and contracts to build two ships for the American Export Lines.

Sam Wakeman, the shipyard manager, said Fore River also was ready to bid on a $30 million contract to build two passenger ships for the Grace Lines.

OLD COLONY RIDERS DROP

Alexander Purdon, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, said a recent sharp decrease in commuters on the Old Colony Railroad was threatening the future of passenger service on the line.

"The hopes of retaining rail passenger service in the South Shore decreases in almost direct proportion to the drop in commuter patronage," he said.

The deadline set by the parent New Haven Railroad for abandonment of passenger service on the Old Colony line was only seven weeks away.

Kelly 39th Council President

Leo J. Kelly is the 39th man to hold the post of president of the Quincy City Council, a job that is not necessarily a stepping stone to the Mayor's office.

Of the 38 men who have occupied the seat in the past, exactly half (19) later ran for mayor and only 10 of them made it.

Current Mayor Arthur H. Tobin wielded the gavel the longest, eight years from 1970-77.

An earlier mayor, Charles M. Bryant, was on the job for six years on four different occasions, including two terms after he left the mayor's office.

Here is a list of the 39 men who have been presidents of the City Council, with a single asterisk denoting future mayors and a double asterisk signifying those who ran for mayor and lost.

Rev. Banks Honored At Last Inaugural

The Rev. John D. Banks, retiring pastor of Bethany Congregational Church, delivered what may be his last prayer for guidance at a Quincy inaugural Monday.

He was presented with a plaque by Mayor Tobin "in recognition of over a quarter century of Christian leadership to Bethany Congregation and his deep concern for the spiritual well-being for all the people of this community."

The Rev. Mr. Banks, pastor at Bethany for the past 25 years, has announced his retirement in June when he plans to move to North Carolina where his daughter lives.

The Rev. Mr. Banks delivered the prayer at Monday's inaugural while Rabbi David Jacobs of Beth El synagogue gave the invocation and the Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, gave the benediction.

9 Names Drawn For Jury Duty

The City Council Monday drew the names of nine Quincy residents to serve as jurors in Norfolk County civil and criminal courts the first Monday in February.

Chosen were: Barbara A. McGrath, 84 Wendell Ave.; Helen C. Logue, 96 Thornton

St.; Deborah A. McDonald, 94 Oakland Ave.; Richard W. Nash, 266 Farrington St.

John E. Sullivan Jr., 5 Newton St.; Robert L. Hoban, 28 Blake St.; Everett F. Larson, 79 Vassall St.; Lorene B. Austin, 88 Hamden Circle; Mark E. Harrison, 50 Ferndale Rd.

LaRaia Objects To First Tobin Order

Former Mayor, now City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia is expected to be a strong critic of Mayor Tobin's administration --- as Tobin was of his.

LaRaia got off to a flying start at his very first Council meeting Monday by objecting to the first order filed by Tobin, thereby tabling it for two weeks.

The order is designed to give the city the power to negotiate a $30,000 rebate yearly for 25 years to Campanelli Enterprises for parking spaces in a planned garage over the MBTA tracks.

The change in rates was made necessary when it was decided to use all union labor on the project and neither Campanelli or prime tenant Stop and Shop would pick up the entire tab for it.

If a councillor objects to an order the first time it is introduced it cannot be acted on until the next regular session of the Council, which is Monday, Jan. 21.

Council Delays Choice Of Committees Clerk

The City Council will be without a clerk of committees for at least the first couple of weeks of the 1980 session.

Mrs. Josephine Carnali, who has served as clerk since 1970, is leaving the job because of the press of her new duties as acting assistant city clerk.

The Council Monday moved the nomination and election of her successor into the Rules Committee, which will have to sit without the aid of a clerk to record its deliberations.

Mrs. Carnali said her appointment expired with the end of the 1979 Council session.

Kennedy School Board Vice-Chairman, Anselmo Delays Resignation Decision

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The School Committee may have filled one vacancy but created another by selecting Christopher Kennedy as its new vice-chairman.

Veteran member Francis Anselmo, upset at being passed by again for the post, said Tuesday he's still thinking over resigning from the committee.

Anselmo, 81, has never been elected vice-chairman in his 18 years on the committee. He had sent letters to his fellow members saying he would resign unless elected.

After Monday night's second ballot, when Kennedy received the necessary four votes, Mary Collins two and Anselmo one, Anselmo left quickly and refused to make any comment.

"I'm going to take a few days, maybe a few weeks to think this over," Anselmo told The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "I have some respect for the thousands of people who voted for me and I'm going to wait a while before making a decision."

Kennedy's victory came after John Sullivan, who had voted for Anselmo on the first ballot, changed his vote to Kennedy on the second. Sullivan said he changed "when I became certain that we would have a stalemate that would go on for hundreds of ballots."

On that first ballot, Kennedy received three votes, Mrs. Collins two and Anselmo two. Although balloting was secret, the votes were probably aligned as follows:

For Kennedy - Kennedy, Mayor Arthur Tobin, and Joan Picard.

For Mrs. Collins - Mrs. Collins, Patricia Toland.

For Anselmo - Anselmo, Sullivan.

Kennedy and Sullivan both praised Anselmo's service to the committee over the years and said they would try to talk Anselmo out of resigning.

"I certainly hope that Mr. Anselmo will remain on the School Committee," Kennedy said. "His strength, stability and good humour are certainly welcome attributes."

"The last two times that Frank has been a candidate (for vice-chairman) I was the only other person to vote for him" said Sullivan. "I certainly think that indicates something."

Kennedy, the new vice-chairman, is the father of eight and a resident of 27 Barham Ave., North Quincy. He is dean of students at Northeastern University and beginning his second four-year term on the committee.

If Anselmo does resign, committee rules state the committee and city council will vote jointly for a replacement.

Complete Text Of Mayor Tobin's Inaugural Address

The text of Mayor Arthur Tobin's second term Inaugural Address follows:

"Today, on the threshold of a new decade of the 80's, I stand before you with mixed feelings -- feelings of pride and satisfaction, coupled with those of frustration and determination. In this, my second term inaugural address, I wish to share with you the reasons why these conflicting emotions are within me.

"First, I wish to share with you my feelings of pride. I am proud to have been re-elected by you, the citizens of Quincy, to serve another term as Mayor of this historic city in which I was born and have lived all of my life.

"Second, I wish to share with you my feelings of satisfaction -- satisfied and pleased, that working together over the past 24 months, the promises I made upon the occasion of my first inaugural address have either been fulfilled or are on the way to being accomplished. The hours have been long and the problems complex, but a commitment was kept to those who placed their trust in me.

"Third, I wish to share with you my feelings of frustration -- frustrated that with an economy of runaway inflation, coupled with exorbitant energy costs, the citizens of Quincy have been forced to assume an additional burden of both an undeserved and unwelcome increase in our tax rate.

"And fourth, I wish to share with you my feelings of determination -- for I am determined as never before to continue to make the tough and sometimes unpopular decisions necessary to continue to turn this city around, in order to make it the best -- the best in which to live -- the best in which to raise a family -- the best in which to work -- and, the best in which to stimulate income and growth.

"I want very much to share with you this morning the accomplishments of my first term in office, but in sharing my feelings with you, I would be less than candid if I did not elaborate on my feelings of frustration.

"As a newly elected mayor, it appeared at times that the end of the era of the 70's did not smile too kindly upon Quincy. Beginning with the Blizzard of '78 to the tax rate storm of '79, we encountered a city without a growth policy, facing difficult problems -- collective bargaining demands, threatened strikes and boycotts, adverse property valuation decisions, airplane noise pollution, soaring energy costs, and potential lay-offs at General Dynamics, to mention but a few, all of which involved me personally on a day to day basis.

No one ever told me it would be easy, but at times things seemed quite overwhelming.

"During this same period of time, like most news in our city, the bad news seemed to receive front page headlines while the good news seemed to end up on the 'Funny Page'.

"The frustrations of the events of my first term notwithstanding, I share a deep respect for my many co-workers in our city government. I understand and share in their frustrations as they petitioned for salary increases in order to cope with the economic conditions of our times. These frustrations are much more meaningful to me as the son of a city employee. The demands, although arrived at in good conscience, were at times inflationary and beyond the city's ability to pay, and, therefore, too excessive a burden to ask rent payers and homeowners to assume.

"Our city, if it was to turn itself around, could not even meet the most modest of demands. A new and solid fiscal foundation had to be a primary objective, and although repugnant to me personally, someone had to say 'No', and the buck stopped in my office. No elected official or legislative body enjoys being responsible for increasing taxes, and certainly I include myself. Yet, a people cannot, year after year, go on taxing themselves beyond their ability to pay, and Quincy is no exception.

"On Dec. 18th last, it was my unpleasant task to receive from the state department of revenue a tax increase of $27.40. I derived no pleasure from their decision, and I am sure you must know by now that we fought the good fight against the bureaucratic red tape, and when I call to mind these events, my frustration turns to anger, and it still does.

"Permit me to share with you in summary form a synopsis of how our tax increase of $27.40 came to be. Basic fiscal responsibility demands that those who made the decisions of the past must hold themselves accountable for at least $15 of this increase. Past erroneous assessing practices needlessly cost this city $4.3 million dollars.

"The $1.3 million dollar total is broken down as follows:

- $168,000 for interest on loans while higher assessments were being resolved through legal proceedings.
- $1,800,000 in invalid assessments.
- $1,200,000 demanded by the state to correct the past practices of this city of placing higher assessments on commercial and industrial property, which was the result of the Tregor court decision.

"• $900,000 demanded by the state to insure that the city would have sufficient funds so that the past practice of deficit assessments would not be continued.

"• $200,000 in legal and appraisal fees accumulated while the faulty assessment practices of the past were being contested.

"This $4.3 million dollar dilemma came to light in 1978, was argued through legal proceedings in 1979, and now in tax year 1980, we all must pay the price.

"In addition to these events, an additional $5, impact on the increased tax rate was brought about by a reduction in estimated receipts and the funding of state mandated pension systems for retired city employees. The bottom line amounts to approximately $20. Recall that as early as the summer of 1979 this administration warned that all these factors just cited, when taken together, would amount to a possible $19 to $20 increase in taxes.

"The remainder of the increase, approximately $7.40, is properly charged to doing the day to day business of the city during this most inflationary period. Unfortunately, our predictions were correct. This is one time that I wish that our look into the future had been wrong, but it was not.

"That is the history of the 1979 tax rate storm, and while we have been frustrated in our dealings with Quincy's fiscal sins of the 70's, today we are at the ground-breaking of a new fiscal era for Quincy whose future is bright and promising if we make it so by working together.

"With the decade of the 70's at a close, it is my hope that much of the negative and adverse happenings to our city and its political structure have come to an end, and all of us here in this political house will work with a common effort with one objective in mind -- doing what is best for Quincy.

"I would now like to share with you in more detail my feelings of satisfaction and accomplishment.

"The positive achievements of my first term as mayor are all the more significant when compared to the economy of our state and nation. While my administration launched our city forward on a significant number of fronts, other governments were treading water during this period of economic recession, sagging economy, cut-backs in employment, and skyrocketing fuel and food costs. I assumed the mantle of responsibility during this depressing atmosphere, and concluded that if we were to turn our city around, a dramatic program for the 80's would have to be established.

"My administration brought forth the most aggressive development program in our city's history.

"I sent forth the word to convene an economic development conference, and also to inform the commercial and banking community that with their help this administration would turn Quincy around. What this city needed were new jobs for our people, new development for our city, and new growth in our tax base.

"In my inaugural address of 1978, I stated that the slow and gradual withdrawal of business from our city must end, and the erosion of our economic growth and potential must be halted. With the help of the commercial and banking community, the results of our economic conference are evident.

"In just 24 months, 29 previously vacant stores are now occupied and doing business, several of which are noteworthy because of the number of years they were vacant and non-income producing:

- The former Hancock Bank building on Hancock St.
- The former W. T. Grant store in the Parkingway.
- The former Telephone Company building on McGrath Highway.
- And the former Gilchrist building in the Parkingway.

"In addition to these accomplishments, 10 retailers received grant assistance from our department of planning and community development to modernize and upgrade their store fronts. Three Quincy industrial corporations initiated and finalized plans for industrial expansion.

"I take great pride this morning in also announcing that during this same 24 month period we began four new major office buildings in excess of $43 million dollars worth of construction, creating new jobs to uplift a sagging economy.

"This construction, unsurpassed, is the greatest amount of new office building in the history of our city, and augurs well in guaranteeing Quincy's future as the dominant, major commercial office center on the South Shore. The latest of these four office buildings is the $15 million dollar commercial complex to be constructed in the Della Chiesa Parking Area. This is the catalyst for new progress for downtown Quincy.

"The result of this massive building program will mean an additional $2 million dollars in new tax revenue for our city. While recognizing the importance of expanded business and the creation of new jobs, my administration has far from forgotten our neighborhoods which are so vital for a community's well-being, nor have we forgotten, in particular, the people who compose them.

"In my first term of office, I petitioned our federal government, and received federal funding grants, for modernizing our Police Department to keep our streets safe.

"I applied for and received $3.9 million dollars in neighborhood community improvement funds, of which I allocated in excess of $1.5 million dollars for the physical and structural improvements to the homes in our residential neighborhoods. I directed that three-quarters of a million dollars in federal funds, over and above that which was budgeted by the Department of Public Works, be allocated for neighborhood street improvements, landscaping and beautification.

"I further directed other federal monies be expended for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, the Houghs Neck Multi-Service Center, and numerous elderly and mental health outreach programs.

"My administration was responsible for the reawakening of interest in Quincy's history by our successful sponsorship of the Massachusetts Constitution Bicentennial celebration. This celebration inspired a renewed interest in tourism for our city, and I have created a department of tourism within the department of planning and community development to send forth throughout our country a story of Quincy's history.

"Recognizing the need for the delivery of human services, my administration opened the first shelter in Massachusetts for a program for battered women and abused children, initiated a cancer detection dental screening program, instituted with the United States Postal Service "Operation Safeguard", a neighborhood watch program for senior citizens, and constructed two regulation Quincy Little League ball fields with lights for both girls' and boys' recreational programs.

"The achievements of these goals, accomplished in my first term as mayor, I found to be most rewarding and satisfying to me personally, in restoring Quincy's pride and progress.

"And now I wish to share with you my feelings of determination. In order to secure the best for Quincy, I am determined to make the bold and innovative decisions, at times tough and unpopular, in the next two years and hopefully after, to give our city leadership

Registrar Hughes To Conduct Probate Program For Secretaries

The Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association will meet Tuesday, Jan. 15 at the Golden Steer Restaurant, Rte. 1, Walpole.

The program will consist of an open forum conducted by Thomas Patrick Hughes, Registrar, Norfolk County Probate. It will examine ways in which the court and members of the legal profession and their secretaries can maintain a good working relationship, a subject of interest to all attorneys and law students as well as members of the Association.

DELEEVARE KING (shown in portrait) no doubt would have approved as Harold Crowley and Richard Koch, representing the Massasoit Development Committee, accept $3,000 check from Robert L. Blair, Frank McGowan and A. Wendall Clark, trustees of the King Family Fund. Blair is former president of the South Shore Bank. The check will pay for renovations to "The Deleevare King Memorial Camp Center."

Half Of $30,000 Goal Reached

King Family Fund Donates $3,000 For Camp Massasoit Upgrading

The Massasoit Development Committee's fund drive received yet another boost recently when trustees of the King Family Fund donated $3,000 to help repairs at the Plymouth camp.

The money was donated in memory of Deleevare King, one of the city's leading citizens in the first half of the century. King, president of the Granite Trust, was an early supporter of the scouting program and a member of the committee that selected the site of Camp Massasoit in 1927.

The $3,000 will be used to renovate and convert the former camp mess hall, which will be called the "Deleevare King Memorial Camp Center."

The Massasoit Development Committee is seeking about $30,000 for renovations for the camp, used by Quincy scouts for over 50 years. Over half of that sum has already been received by the committee.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

It is important to start bringing a child to visit a dentist regularly from the age of three. However, it may not be an easy task, if as a parent, you seem nervous and concerned. The child will pick up on your anxiety. The first rule, then, is to stay calm yourself. Make the visit sound like a game of sorts. Tell the child that there will be a chance to ride in the dentist's chair, to look around the office. The dentist will most likely look into his mouth and brush his teeth with a special electric tooth brush. Most dentists will help out as much as they can. General dentistry for all members of the family is provided by Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., Last Milton Square. Dr. Sweeney stresses preventive dentistry and urges regular dental checkups as the best and most economical way to keep healthy teeth and an attractive smile. He provides routine care and gives expert referrals where specialized treatment is indicated. Call our office at 698-3636 for an appointment. Most dental insurance plans are honored.

DENTAL HINT:
Do not start a refined sugar habit with children. There is a good chance they will stay on natural sugars if started with them.

At Broad Meadows

Community Theatre To Present 'Gypsy'

The Quincy Community Theatre will present "Gypsy" Feb. 8, 9, 15 and 16, at 8 p.m., at Broad Meadows Junior High Auditorium, 50 Calvin Rd.

The play depicts the rise of Stripper Gypsy Rose Lee from her life in vaudeville to her stardom in burlesque.

"Gypsy" will be directed by George Stevens, well known for his work on the South Shore, where he has directed "Mame", "Damn Yankees" and "Bells are Ringing". Stevens is also an award-winning director at the New England Theatre Conference Drama Competition at Brandeis University.

Maria D'Arcangelo, co-choreographer, is a Foreign language teacher at North Quincy High School. She has studied ballet with Lisa Chmer of the New York City Ballet and with Sidney Leonard of the Boston Ballet. Previously, she worked on Quincy Community Theatre's production of "Sweet Charity".

Diane Flanagan, co-choreographer, received her training at the Phyllis Curcio School of Dance and presently owns and operates a dance studio in Quincy. Diane also worked on "Sweet Charity".

Geri Metcalf, pianist, is a student at Eastern Nazarene College, where she is a Music Major.

Tickets for the production are available at the following outlets: Baskin-Robbins and Sawyer's Campus Shop, downtown Quincy, Colonial Bakery, Pizza Chef in Wollaston, and Balducci's in North Quincy.

Woodward School To Present Winter Concert Jan. 17

Housing Shortage Alternative

Share-A-Home Program At Atlantic Methodist

A slide show presentation describing the House Sharing Program sponsored by South Shore Home Care Services, Inc., will be held Jan. 17, at 1 p.m. at Atlantic Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The share-a-home program, available to Quincy and South Shore senior citizens, is an alternative to the present housing shortage.

Through the program, older adults who have space available in their homes will be able to meet other adults seeking temporary or permanent housing.

House sharing can reduce living expenses for older persons because the homeowner would receive extra income, and the home sharers would obtain housing at a cost far below the average apartment rental rates.

Daily companionship shared by older people in the program is an added benefit.

House Sharing Program staff will interview prospective sharers and explain the program's benefits and liabilities. Interested sharers will then be brought together at informal coffee hours and meeting to get acquainted. People will then make their own decisions on sharing a home.

The program will also help persons who want to share during the winter months due to the energy crises.

Program brochures are available from the Quincy Housing Authority. For more information, contact Joseph McNulty, Housing Program Coordinator, 430 South Main St., Cohasset, tel. 383-9790 or 335-1310.

Would Alleviate Flooding

Braintree Dam Reconstruction May Come Soon, Says Donnelly

Reconstruction of the Braintree Dam, blamed for flooding in that area and along Quincy's Town Brook, could soon be underway, says Congressman Brian Donnelly.

After meeting with about 15 members of the North Braintree Civic Association Tuesday morning and touring the Quincy owned dam located in Braintree, Donnelly said he will arrange a meeting between Braintree town engineer Jack Fehan and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to plan work on the dam.

Repairs of the Braintree Dam, under study for several years, were held up by a 1978 change in federal regulations which made the project ineligible for federal funding. Meanwhile, the dam had been causing "tremendous flooding" in the South Quincy area.

"I had an amendment passed that 'grandfathered' projects already under consideration," Donnelly said, making the Town River project eligible again. That bill has already been passed by the House of Representatives, and been approved by a Senate committee and awaits passage by the full Senate.

PAT EWING, Cambridge Rindge and Latin's 6-11 center, blocks shot by Quincy's Brian Donovan. Ewing blocked many shots and had numerous rebounds in addition to scoring 20 points in his team's 57-55 victory.

Amorosino: 'Cambridge Still Champs'

Presidents Come Within Whisker In Season Thriller

The Quincy basketball team, following a superb showing last Friday against Cambridge Rindge and Latin, defending state champion and ranked sixth in the country, went to Waltham Tuesday and will play at Weymouth North Friday at 8 p.m.

Next Wednesday the Presidents will host North Quincy at 8.

Joe Amorosino's Quincy team came within a whisker of upsetting Cambridge, which scored in the final 21 seconds to win its 34th game in a row, 57-55, before a jam-packed crowd at the Vo-Tech gym. It was Quincy's first loss in seven games.

The Presidents, holding Rindge and Latin's second leading scorer, Kevin Headley, scoreless, turned in a remarkable defensive performance and with 8:20 to play held a nine-point lead.

However, led by its brilliant 6-11 junior center, Pat Ewing, Cambridge came back. Quincy, jumping off to a 5-0 lead didn't relinquish the lead until 2:12 to play.

Quincy tied the game at 55-55 when Brian Donovan stole an alley-oop pass for Ewing and scored with 30 seconds to play.

Karl Hobbs, the center of a bitter controversy regarding alleged recruiting by Cambridge Coach Mike Jarvis, missed a foul shot and Ewing dumped in the rebound to win it. However, Quincy still had a chance as it got the ball back twice but couldn't score.

"We had a game plan,"

Amorosino said. "We went with it and it worked. If we learned any lesson from this game, it's that there are certain things championship teams do - make free throws down the stretch and don't turn the ball over. Cambridge is still a championship team. They came back to win and you can't take that away from them."

Quincy led, 31-26, at halftime but Ewing stole the show with four slam dunks and 11 points in the third period.

"The fans saw a great ball game," Amorosino said. "We certainly took their offensive potential away and I think we really showed them a little something."

Foul shooting hurt the Presidents, who hit on only 50 percent of their shots and missed three one and one chances in the last period.

Junior Steve Priscella had a big game for the Presidents with 24 points. Ritch Finnegan had 10 and Andy Carrera, Kurt MacDonald, Scott MacDonald, Donovan and Stan Benson all played their hearts out and turned in gallant performances.

Two days before the game Quincy school officials decided, for safety's sake, to move it from 8 o'clock to 3:30. It still drew a capacity crowd.

"We wanted the students to go right from the classroom to the game," said one official. The change was made to reduce the possibility of fans drinking before the game.

Amorosino has been particularly outspoken in his criticism of Jarvis during the hearings on the recruiting charges and it was feared there might be trouble if the game was played at night.

Six police officers were assigned to the game and there were no incidents.

"We'll play our own game the best we can," Amorosino said before the game. "We'll use kids who came through the front door of Quincy High School. We don't need any players from other schools. We're proud of what we've accomplished."

The Quincy coach praised the job of the game referees for keeping things under control. "They had the game in control all the way and I thought it was one of the finest officiated games, given the pressure of the situation, that I've ever been involved in. The fans from both schools deserve a lot of credit, too, they were the real winners out there today," he said.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity played its best game of the season and handed Cambridge its first defeat, 73-67, leading by 14 points at one time.

"This was a real team effort," said MacFarlane, whose team improved its record to 3-1. "The boys knew what they had to do and went out and did it."

Gary DiNardo, the jayvees' top scorer, had 19 points and Peter Papile added 18. Jeff Morrison and Danny Whyte each had 10 points and played excellent games.

North 80, Revere 63

Raiders Host Waltham Friday

The North Quincy basketball team, which improved its record to 5-2 last week, played Newton North Tuesday, will host Waltham Friday night at 8 and next Wednesday will play at Quincy at 8.

Eddie Miller's Raiders defeated Revere, 80-63, last Saturday in a non-league game at Revere as they led all the way.

North led, 16-7, after a period and 25-16 at the half and never trailed.

Junior Mark Millane, who has been having an outstanding season, had another big night with 25 points and many rebounds. Bill O'Connell continued to play well and added 19 points. Joey Flynn played well and contributed 10 points and Rich Keenan continued to play strong defense.

Miller brought 6-9 sophomore Chip Bunker up from the jayvees, with whom he has been playing fine ball, and he looked good in his first varsity appearance.

"The team is playing good ball and we are off to a better start than last year (North was 7-11 a year ago)," Miller said. "The kids are displaying excellent team work, the rebounding has been good and they are playing strong defense."

Paul Bregoli's North Quincy junior varsity lost a 42-39 decision to Revere to drop its record to 2-4.

Vic O'Leary and Steve Belcastro scored 12 points apiece for the Raiders.

In their previous game the North jayvees defeated Cathedral, 54-45, with O'Leary scoring 12 points and grabbing 13 rebounds and Danny Marsters also scoring 12 points.

3-3 Record

Quincy Girls Home To Weymouth N. Friday

The Quincy girls' basketball team, with a 3-3 record, played Waltham Tuesday and Friday will host Weymouth North at 8 p.m. at the Quincy High gym.

The First Ladies will play at North Quincy next Wednesday at 3:15.

Senior Debbie Ohlson and junior Nancy Chludzinski moved up from the junior varsity and sophomores Nancy MacDonald and Mary Kamb round out the varsity squad.

"The addition of the two sophomores will help us a good deal, as both are 5-10 and handle themselves very well," Miss Webster said.

Callahan is one of the Suburban League's top scorers, averaging 20 points a game and Riley is the team's top rebounder with 10 a game.

"Anne McCarron and Linda Brennan handle the outside shooting and Maureen Maher is very steady for us on our inside game," the Quincy coach said.

"Susan Callahan and Laura Miller lead our fast break and we have good bench strength in Nancy Chludzinski, Nancy MacDonald, Mary Kamb and Debbie Ohlson."

Walsh missed the first three games due to a knee injury but came back to help the First Ladies in the Hingham Christmas Tournament, in which they finished second, losing to Weymouth North, 55-45, in the title game.

"Maureen is an excellent rebounder and inside shooter," Miss Webster said. "This is the kind of team which will produce a different star in every game."

Last Friday Quincy lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the defending state champion, 50-41, despite McCarron's 14 points.

Callahan scored six points and Walsh eight as the First Ladies fell behind, 32-25, at the half and couldn't come back.

The previous weekend the Quincy girls defeated Hull, 47-36, in the opening round of the Hingham Christmas Tournament but lost to Weymouth North, 56-45, in the title game, despite 18 points for Riley and 10 for Callahan.

In a 69-51 loss to Newton North Riley had 15 points. "Newton has an outstanding team and has the league's leading scorer in Sherri Levin," Miss Webster said.

In their first two games the First Ladies bombed Brookline, 63-32, with Callahan scoring 26 points, and wallowed Brockton, 69-44, with Callahan scoring 22 points, McCarron 17 and Brennan 12.

North Girls Defeat Abp. Williams

The North Quincy girls basketball team, which bounced back to win two straight after losing its first three games, played at Newton North Tuesday, will play at Waltham Friday at 3:15 and next Wednesday will be home to Quincy at 3:15.

Brian Tilley's Raiderettes, who shocked Cambridge Rindge and Latin's defending state champions for their first win, last week defeated Abp. Williams, 40-26, in a non-league game.

Cheryl Ayles scored 15 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to spark the North girls. Joanna Runge added 12 points for the Raiderettes.

The first half was a defensive battle with North holding a 15-12 lead but it got untracked in the third period to take a 29-20 advantage into the final period.

Track Club Wins Trophy , Sets 10 Records At Bates Meet

The Quincy Track Club made an outstanding showing in its winter debut recently when it won the team trophy and set 10 club records at the ninth annual Christmas Invitational at Bates College, Lewiston, Me.

Karen Rodgers, 9, set club records in the 50-yard dash, 440 and 880 in the girls 9 and under class, turning in an excellent 3:01.4 in the 880.

Kevin O'Brien set a 9 and under club record in the 880, placing third. He won the 50 and 220. In the same age bracket Patrick Murphy took third in the 880, Deirdre Murphy took third in the 440 and fourth in the 50. Sarah Edwards was fourth in the 220 and Caitlyn O'Brien fifth in the 440.

In the 10-11 division Harry Morash set a club 220 record as he placed fourth and he also was second in the 880. Matty Werth was fifth in the 880. Stu Coull was third in the 440 and fourth in the 880. Mark Lunnin won the 50 and was fourth in the 220 and Mike Flebotte took sixth in the 880.

In girls 10-11 Janice Libby won the 50 and 220. Terri Rodgers took third in the mile with a fine 6:06, third in the 440 and second in the 880 and Karen Dunn was fourth in the 50 and fifth in the 220.

In 12-13 events Georgia Traficante won the high jump at a record 4-10 and won the 440, Tracy Coull won the mile with a record 5:46 and won the 880, Maureen Roche won the 50 and 220 and was third in the long jump. Chris Picarski took seconds in the 50 and 220. Eileen Morris was second in the 880. Sandy Dunn was second in the 440, Denise Petta third in the 50 and 220, Bernadette Murphy third in the 880, Terry Hamilton fourth in the 50, 220 and 440. In the boys' events John Delappe was third in the hurdles and Steve Libby was second in the 440.

In 14-15 boys, Chris McCray set boys' records in the 50 (5.8), shot put (40.2) and long jump (18-10 3/4). Denise Santo won the girls 50 and long jump.

Coach Jeff Hennessy won the open 300 and the hurdles.

North Swimmers In First Win Over Brookline

Bill Walker's North Quincy swim team, which has won three meets in a row following an opening day loss, swam at Brockton Tuesday, will be at Newton South Friday and will host Waltham next Tuesday at 3:30 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

The Raiders, for the first time in their five year history, defeated Suburban League rival Brookline, 97-75, last week to improve their record to 3-1.

North won eight of 11 events with Bill Boudreau setting a team record with a 1:12.8 in winning the 100-yard breaststroke. Ed Melanson again was a double winner, taking the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly as well as swimming on the winning 200 freestyle relay team with Bill Feeney, Steve Pike and Boudreau. David Riley also was a double winner in the 200 freestyle and 100 freestyle. Feeney won the 100 backstroke and Scott Andrews won the one meter diving.

Presidents Skate Into First Place

The Quincy hockey team (5-1) moved into first place in the Suburban League with a 7-3 victory last Saturday over Brockton.

The Presidents played Weymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) and Friday will play Brookline at 6 p.m. at the Watertown Rink.

Scott Richardson and Paul Flynn each scored two goals for Bob Sylvia's Quincy team last Saturday in handing Brockton its first defeat and Robbie Craig scored a key goal, his 11th of the season as he continues to be one of the Suburban League's scoring leaders. He also had three assists. The other goals were scored by Tom Roche and Tom Brennan.

Brockton had taken a quick 1-0 lead but the Presidents scored four unanswered goals to lead, 4-1, after a period.

Craig scored the critical goal at 32 seconds into the third period to give Quincy a 5-3 lead and Flynn and Roche followed with insurance goals.

Earlier in the week Quincy topped Waltham, 5-2, paced by John Furey's two goals.

Bill Flynn, Bobby Curry and Craig scored the other goals and Richardson, Paul Flynn, Mike Looby, Kevin Ryan (2) and Craig had assists.

Hard Times For Green North Team

North Quincy's young and inexperienced hockey team has fallen on hard times.

Kevin Lewis' Raiders, still seeking their first Suburban League win, yesterday (Wednesday) played Cambridge Rindge and Latin. Saturday will host Waltham at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and next Wednesday will be home to Brockton at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Raiders were bombed by league power Weymouth North, 9-1, last Saturday, dropping their league record to 0-5.

"They have a very strong team," Lewis said. "They were just far superior to us, that's all there is to it. We've got 15 of 20 kids who are underclassmen and nine are sophomores. We are taking our lumps now, but we just have to keep working hard and things are bound to improve."

Weymouth salted away the win with a six-goal barrage in the second period as it improved its record to 4-1 in the league.

Boxing Lessons At Y

The Quincy YMCA will offer boxing lessons for beginner and intermediate boxers, ages 12 to adults starting Monday, Jan. 14.

Classes will be held in the Y's new boxing facility from 4 to 5 p.m. The course will run for 13 weeks, and is for full or social members of the 'Y'. Fundamental boxing skills will be taught with advancements to boxing matches. Pre-registration is required. Those interested may register at the YMCA.

For further information, contact Ron Pompeo, 479-8500, ext. 30.

Quincy Wrestlers In Westfield Meet

Quincy's undefeated wrestling team (6-0) yesterday met Weymouth North and Saturday at 1 p.m. the Presidents will compete against Westfield, Springfield and Brockton in a quadrangular meet at Westfield.

The Presidents rolled over Randolph, 47-13, last Saturday as they won nine of the 12 matches.

Quincy's winners were Peter Connolly, Eddie Ryan, Paul Orlando, Mike Dalton, John O'Leary, John Herald, Al DiVincenzo, Jeff Heath and Geoff Caflisch. Jim Mullin, Joe Callahan and Eddie Mackey were defeated.

Earlier in the week Quincy sailed over Stoughton, 46-14, featured by Kevin McCormack's victory in his first varsity meet. He pinned his opponent in the 128-pound class.

QJC Defeats Bunker Hill , 74-52

The Quincy Junior College basketball team returned to league action last week after the holiday break and defeated Bunker Hill Community College, 74-52, to improve its record to 8-1.

The Jaguars, leading the Greater Boston Small College Conference, will play at Northern Essex Friday night at 7 and will play Emerson College Monday at Brown and Nichols at 7:30.

Bob Evans sparked QJC against Bunker Hill with 15 points. Paul Waters scored 13 and Paul Donoghue had 10.

Jim Holleran led the team in assists in what Coach Brian Buckley called "the best all-around floor game we've had from anyone this year. Jim was in control both offensively and defensively." Buckley also singled out Tim Murphy who had seven points and rebounded well.

North, Cambridge Wrestling, Hockey Cancelled

North Quincy's scheduled wrestling meet and hockey game scheduled yesterday (Wednesday) with Cambridge Rindge and Latin were postponed indefinitely due to the stabbing incident Monday at the Cambridge school.

Bantam B's Complete First Half With 14-0-0 Record

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association Bantam B team, sponsored by the Quincy Rotary Club, recently completed the first half of its season with a 14-0-0 record in the South Shore Conference.

The non-league games against the Duxbury A team, South Boston B's, Framingham B's, Marshfield B's, Abington B's and Stoneham B's, Quincy lost to South Boston twice and to Duxbury once.

Due to the exceptional work of goalies Jim Clary and John Palmer, only 12 goals have been scored against Quincy, which has scored 127 goals.

The defensemen, Larry Costello, Jim Kelly, Bill O'Brien, Peter Quinn, Steve White and Bill Campbell, have been outstanding.

The forwards, Sean Aruda, Tim Barry, Denis Cronin, Chris Hurley, Dan Kelly, Paul Marshall, Bob McCabe, Tom Murphy, Mike Nourse and Brian Chase, have been tremendous and their excellent teamwork has been a big factor in the team's success.

Squirt A's Win 17th

Quincy's Squirt A team leads the South Shore League with a 12-1-1 record after walloping Braintree, 8-0. The overall record is 17-3-3.

Billy Roche, Matt Furtado and Billy Connolly scored two goals apiece and Bobby Furlan and Mike Benson one each. Mark

Zimmerman had three assists. Furtado two and Jay Rodriguez, Connolly, Roche and Furlan one each. Chuck Hughes and Kyle Robertson combined in goal, posting their third shutout.

Quincy also scored a 5-4 victory over Neponset.

I BET
YOU
KNOW

By ROBERT COLMAN

In all of football history, which game had the biggest surprise ending? A national news service surveyed thousands of results and says nothing can top the Harvard-Yale game of 1968 when Yale led 29-13 with 42 seconds left... You'd figure that with a 29-13 lead and only 42 seconds remaining, there would be no way for Yale not to win... but they didn't win. With 40 seconds to go, Harvard threw a touchdown pass and ran for a 2-point conversion... That made it 29-21. Then Harvard recovered an on-side kickoff and with only 3 seconds left threw a TD pass... That made it 29-27, and for the conversion... they completed another pass for a 2-pointer and the game wound up 29-29. Thus Harvard had overcome a 29-13 lead in the last 42 seconds for an amazing finish.

Here's an oddity... Only one head coach in football history ever won both the national championship in college football, and the pro championship in the National Football League. Can you guess who's the only man to do it? Answer is Paul Brown who coached Ohio State to the national college championship in 1942, then won several NFL championships when he was coach at Cleveland. You'd think that in all these years some other successful college coaches would have won the NFL title, too, but so far Brown is the only one to do it.

Sterling Idle

Point, Central Rack Up Wins

By PETE ZOIA

Undefeated Sterling (6-0) was idle last week and Point and Central were the winners in junior high basketball following the school vacation.

Point defeated Broad Meadows, 55-46, taking a 10-4 lead in the opening period.

The second stanza was a different story. A flurry of baskets by Mark Prescott and Mike Williams enabled B.M. to come within one point of a tie, 21-20, at half time. During this first half the big guns for Point were Chris McCray with eight points and Sal Lorenzano with 7.

Point forged to a 39-34 third period lead with the above two players adding eight points each. Continuing his accurate shooting, Prescott came up with 10 big points during this quarter, enabling B.M. to stay close. The play-making of Rick Coscia in the final frame was outstanding as Point gained its third win.

McCray with 23 points and Lorenzano with 22 were high for the winners, while Prescott had 22 and Williams 10 for B.M.

Broad Meadows Junior Varsity chalked up its second win of the season by outclassing Point, 34-14. Vin Servais was top scorer for B.M. with nine points and Tommy Travers got five for Point.

Central topped Atlantic, 40-28, to improve its record to 5-1 and the victory was attributed to stellar defensive play for three periods. Atlantic could only register 13 points by the end of the third quarter, while Coach Mike Casali's Centralites swished in 34. The final period produced a 15-point surge for Atlantic, making the final score respectable. The victorious team had three players in double figures, Tim Ryan netting 11, Bob Mudge and John Purland 10 each.

High for Atlantic was Bob Lenard with 11 points.

The undefeated Atlantic Jayvees came through with their sixth win, 30-20.

Sparkling for Atlantic were Chris Bunker, who had eight points, and Steve Hogan with seven.

Most of the Central points were split among John McDonald with four, and Bob McElaney, Nunzio Carboni and Mike Bates with three apiece.

ENC At Barrington Friday

The Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team returned to action Tuesday after the holiday vacation against Roger Williams and took a 6-2 record and a five-game win streak into the game.

The Crusaders will play at Barrington, R.I., College Friday at 8 p.m., will host Suffolk University Saturday at 8 at the Lahue Center and next Tuesday will be home to Rhode Island College at 8.

ENC's only losses were in the finals of the Codfish Bowl Tournament at Boston State and in the Roanoke, Va., Tournament.

The Crusaders have been led by sophomore Mark Carr and junior Glenn Bryan. Carr is averaging 21.6 points a game and has been the team's inspirational leader with his hustle and floor leadership. Bryan is averaging 19.8 points a game and 9.5 rebounds a game.

It is far from two-man show, however, and Coach Ron Bradley hailed the overall team effort.

One of the Crusaders' top performers has been former Quincy High standout Bob Dacey, who is scoring well and playing strong defense.

ENC split even in the Codfish Bowl as it defeated the U. of Southern Maine, 83-65, then lost to host Boston State for the second year in a row, 79-91. Carr and Bryan were named to the all-tournament team and Dacey also played well in both games.

The following weekend ENC traveled to Roanoke, Va., where it lost to NCAA Division III powerhouse Roanoke, 82-65, after playing the host team even throughout the first half.

The Crusaders came back to top Mary Washington, 97-84.

Carr, Bryan and Rich Seacore were the team's top performers in this tournament.

ENC has been unbeaten since that time as it defeated Curry, 92-73, after roaring to a 28-4 lead; New England College, 70-68, on a last second basket by Dacey; Barrington, 61-51, and South-eastern Mass. University, 89-86.

"The team has been playing very well and I expect it to play even better when we return to action after the holidays," said Bradley, a small college All-American while playing at ENC.

"I just wish we could get the NCAA to recognize us. We were 22-10 last year but didn't make the NCAA Division III playoffs. We did make it a few years ago and made a good showing. We have strengthened our schedule the past few years but we just can't get the recognition I feel we deserve."

Last year ENC again won the National Christian Collegiate Athletic Association (NCCAA) District One title and played in the national tournament in Tennessee.

Suburban League meet as O'Hare, who usually wrestles backup at 147 pounds, stepped up to 157 and easily won his bout, 6-0, to spark the Raiders.

Other North winners were Collins, Steve Sweet, Pillard, Howley, and Gorzyca, while McNamara went to a draw. Steve Sweet was especially impressive in pinning his opponent.

Against St. John's C Britt exploded for 24 points and Memmolo was five for five from the floor. Doyle had four points and Dave Gangi two. Dennis Cronin had five steals, six assists and eight rebounds.

Layden, Chris Doyle and P. J. Hussey one each.

The defense of Doyle, Jamie McArdle, Jim Kane, Bill Connolly and Hussey played a strong game, aided by the fine back checking of the forwards.

The Pee Wee B's also defeated Scituate, 4-1, on goals by Simonelli, Fasano, Milano and Holt. Fasano, Coughlin, Layden, Miller and Hartford had assists.

● St. Ann's Hockey

Razer, Bike Setting Pace

Razer's Edge increased its lead to four points in the Pee Wee Division of St. Ann's Hockey League with a 2-0 win over North Quincy Dunkin Donuts.

Bobby McDonald and John Carroll scored the goals and Jim Leonard, Mike Morris and Mike Leonard had assists. Goalie Greg Gale earned the shutout.

Nobile Sporting Goods upset JDA, 4-1, for its first win of the year. Tony Losordo, Walter Downing, Mike Barron and Dennis Carey had the goals with assists for Losordo and Downing. David Leonard scored unassisted for JDA.

Keohane's edged Ideal Elevator, 2-1, on goals by Bill Dineen and Matt Hurley. Chris Howley and Mike DeLuca had assists. Derek Robinson scored for Ideal with Peter Gardiner assisting.

In the Bantam Division Bike 'n Blade moved into first place by edging North Quincy K. of C., 2-1. Peter Quinn and Steve Beaton scored for Bike with assists for Mike O'Reilly, Ed O'Reilly and Kevin Proctor. Ben Klingenstein scored for K. of C. with Brandon Cox assisting.

Riley Club edged Blackwood, 4-3, with Ed McDonough and John Keller scoring twice apiece.

Ralph Fitzmorris, McDonough and Keller had assists. Jim Burgess had two Blackwood goals and John Downing the other. Paul Kelly, John Doran and Joe Riley had assists.

Boys Record 3-0

North Girls Track Team Off To Good Start

Last year the North Quincy girls' track team won just one meet but this year, with boys' coach Lou Tozzi and assistant George Liset taking over the reins, the Raiderettes are off to a good start with a 4-0 record.

The North girls will face Brookline Friday at 7 at Northeastern University.

Last week the Raiderettes, most of whom are members of the Quincy Track Club where they are gaining valuable experience, defeated Weymouth South, 53-33, for their fourth win in a row.

Unbeaten Michelle Millane again won the shot put with Deirdre Donovan third. Donovan edged Weymouth's Margaret Osterman, also a QTC member, in a close race to win the 600 with Lisa Cavanaugh third. Mary Crehan won the 1000, Eileen McKenna, Loretta Garrigan and Laurie Adams swept the hurdles. Kara Crehan won the high jump with Mary Kate Kennedy second. Mary Kate won the dash and Donovan, Linda Kennedy, Mary Crehan and Marguerite Ladas won the relay.

Robin O'Donnell was second in the 2-mile, Linda Kennedy second in the mile with Deirdre Corrigan third and Elaine Robertson and Kathy Moriarty were 2-3 in the 300.

Meanwhile, the North boys are 3-0 but Tozzi was forced to drop some boys from the squad and he expects trouble the rest of the way.

The Raiders will face Brockton Friday at 5 p. m. at Northeastern. North defeated Waltham, 57-29, for its third in a row with Jack Leone tying a six-year old school record in the high jump, winning with a 6-2 leap.

Other winners were Mike Ricciuti in the two-mile, Steve Mastroioli in the dash, Bob Biagini in the hurdles, Lou DiPietro in the shot put and the relay team of Kevin Wood, Mike Elliot, Walter McConaghey and Joy McDonald also won. The Raiders had several seconds and thirds to win easily.

Squirt B's Lead S.S. Conference With 13-0-0 Record

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association Squirt B team leads the South Shore Conference with a 13-0-0 record.

The strong defense consisting of Ricky Ames, Jon Bertoni, Scott Hohman, Brian Mosher, John Pacino and Eric Seamans has been instrumental in the team's outstanding goalies, Brian Mahoney and Joe Straughn, who have allowed just four goals in the 13 games.

Quincy's scoring is led by Marc Winter and Sean Hunter. The rest of the scoring is spread out among Chris Boussy, Shawn Craig, Jim Lamparelli, Jeff McDonald, Paul McGrath, Tommy Roberts and Paul Scola.

Mike Bartkus, Greg Chambers and Kevin Marston have come off the bench to help out when a player is injured.

Frank McGrath and Tony Scola are the coaches.

Laracy Shines

At Gloucester Meet

Bob Laracy, 10-year-old swimmer for the Quincy Swim Club, made an excellent showing in last week's AAU meet at Cape Ann in Gloucester.

Swimmers from 30 AAU teams from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont competed.

Laracy entered five events, winning the 50-yard freestyle, placing second in the 50-yard breaststroke, third in the 50-yard butterfly, fourth in the 100-yard individual medley (butterfly, backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle) and sixth in the 50-yard backstroke.

Proposes Local System

Tobin Wants Quincy Out Of Civil Service Frustrations

Mayor Tobin, frustrated by state bureaucracy and mandates, is studying plans to take municipal employees out of the Civil Service system and set up a similar city program for them.

The mayor, who mentioned withdrawal from Civil Service in his inaugural address, has Personnel Director Mary McGinty, her assistant, Monica Hickey, and City Solicitor Robert Fleming studying the problem.

"When they present to me a list of the things we can and cannot do then we're going to seek whatever legislation is necessary to do them," he said.

"The basic intent is if the state is going to delegate all this responsibility and additional expense and additional burden on us, why should we be subject to their rules and regulations?"

Tobin said that recently the State Civil Service has been divesting itself of some of its responsibilities and delegating them to the cities and towns.

"They're still mandating additional costs to the cities and towns but they're not giving us the money to fund them," he said.

"You can't get any information from them on examinations. People are continually pestering us for their scores and we can't get them. There's a lot of paperwork and duplication.

"We've got people in Quincy who pay Quincy taxes and who are looking for city jobs and I told I have to take the person from X, Y or Z community who has no dealings with Quincy whatsoever. "They are frustrations."

Tobin said the most recent example of the state transferring a burden onto the city is the so-called "delegation of authority" order, which was once voluntary but soon to be compulsory.

Right now, people seeking jobs as laborers come to the Quincy personnel office, fill out a Civil Service application and are given a number, which is sent to Boston and fed into a computer.

When a permanent opening for a laborer shows up in Quincy the city sends a requisition to Boston and receives back a list of all the people in the computer who are interested in and eligible for the job.

Under "delegation of authority," the list will be kept in Quincy, but still under state control.

"There is an additional cost placed on cities and towns but there is no compensating factor in state aid," said Tobin.

"I don't need some bureaucratic outfit in Boston mandating costs and additional burdens on us and then we've got to do what they tell us to do.

"We're going to research the law and see if we can set up our own system."

'EMT' Courses At Hospital Start Feb. 4

Quincy City Hospital is accepting applications for a new series of Emergency Medical Technician courses, to start Feb. 4.

There will be two courses, one on Monday and Wednesday, the other on Tuesday and Thursday nights. Classes will be from 7 to 10 p.m. according to John Felci, hospital Director of Training.

Classes deal with the provision of basic level care in an emergency setting. Subject matter includes the Emergency Medical Services System, management of hypovolemic shock, bleeding control and wound care, methods of splinting, management of spinal cord injuries, emergency child birth, patient assessment, reporting and recording, care and management of acute medical emergencies, auto extrication and patient handling techniques.

REAL ESTATE OR MACHINERY? Definition of Goliath crane at General Dynamics Quincy shipyard that is accepted by the State Appellate Tax Board could mean a tax loss or windfall for Quincy.

Is It Real Estate?

Goliath Crane Holds Key To GD Tax Value Case

By TOM HENSHAW

That Goliath crane at the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard: Is it part of the real estate like a house or a garage? Or is it personal property, just another machine used to make things?

One of these days, the State Appellate Tax Board is going to decide which and it could cost the city of Quincy a bundle of money or it could bring a windfall in free cash.

The 2,400-ton Goliath, installed several years ago to facilitate the building of liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers, is a central figure in the tax dispute between the city and General Dynamics.

"If it is determined to be real estate," says Chief Assessor John P. Comer, "it is added into the total valuation for the market value of the property and taxed at the prevailing rate. If, as the shipyard claims, it is declared personal property then it would be totally exempt as a machine that is used by a manufacturing corporation in the conduct of its business."

Since the matter is in litigation, Comer won't say what value the city places on the crane but it is considerable because the shipyard valuation went from $12 million to $20 million.

That was in 1977 and, says City Treasurer Robert E. Foy III, General Dynamics paid the first year on the basis of $20 million and then lodged on appeal with the State Appellate Tax Board.

Since then, in fiscal 1978 and 1979, the shipyard has paid part of the tax hike based on a state formula that averages out the valuations fixed over the previous three years.

For instance, in 1978 the tax was paid on a $14.3 million valuation, the average of $12-$12-$20, and in 1979 it was paid on a $17.3 million valuation, the average of $12-$20-$20.

This year, fiscal 1980, it paid the tax on the full $20 million valuation.

"People have been asking why we don't go after General Dynamics, the big conglomerate, the delinquent taxpayer," says Comer. "We would if we could. But they're not doing anything illegal. They have paid everything the state says they're supposed to pay while the case is under appeal."

'Mayor Putting Self Above Law'

Teachers To Sue For Unfunded Raises

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The teachers union will file suit against Mayor Arthur Tobin soon over recently negotiated raises that the teachers have yet to receive.

Robert Garner, President of the Quincy Education Association, said the suit will ask that Tobin be ordered to submit a budget request to the City Council for $1,075,000 to fund the agreement reached between the QEA and the School Committee in December.

The QEA and the School Committee both ratified that three-year contract, which calls for a five percent raise for teachers during 1979-80, on Dec. 12.

But Tobin, citing the city's fiscal problems, has refused to take any action on requests for that money, raises for other school system employees and $600,000 to cover increased energy costs. Tobin has told the committee that those supplemental requests, totalling $2,028,056, must be funded out of the system's present $33 million budget.

"I hate to get over emotional about this, but one thing we learned from Watergate is that this is a nation of laws, not of men," Garner said. "The mayor is putting himself above the law."

Garner was unsure when and at which court the suit would be filed, but said Atty. Brian Riley of the Massachusetts Teachers Association would probably represent the QEA.

"In court, we will argue that the mayor, as a member of the School Committee, has a legal responsibility to recommend funding to the council," said the QEA in a recent statement. "Given the mayor's attitude toward raises for any municipal employees, we expect every kind of delay, challenge and appeal imaginable."

The QEA's Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee voted last week to seek the suit, according to Garner. The membership voted Dec. 12, after approving the contract, to authorize the union leadership to take any legal steps necessary for implementation of the agreement.

Tobin had no comment on the suit, but noted that the 1980 tax rate had been set and said no further money can be appropriated by the City Council.

City solicitor Robert Fleming agreed and said a similar suit by the teachers union, seeking to block the setting of the tax rate until Tobin approved funding for the teachers contract, had been rejected in Norfolk Superior Court and the Massachusetts Appeals Court.

"The council has never failed to fund a negotiated contract, and the association will do everything possible to maintain that unbroken record," said the QEA's statement

DeFalco Says Problems Already Identified

Cheney Says Hospital Should Remain Municipal Facility

The Blue Ribbon Commission named to study problems at Quincy City Hospital organized Monday night amid indications that two officials most closely involved are a little skeptical about the whole thing.

Hospital Director Anthony P. DeFalco and John J. Cheney Jr., chairman of the Board of Managers, pledged their cooperation but appeared to question whether another study was really necessary.

"I prefer not to say 'problems' of the hospital," DeFalco told the commission. "I believe that we have identified the problems and have made dramatic changes at the hospital over the past three years."

"There are really no problems at the hospital," said Cheney. "There are solutions. We have recognized them and implemented some of them. I'd like to have the commission assist us in implementing more."

After the meeting, Cheney told The Quincy Sun:

"I get just a little tired of everyone talking about 'the problems at the hospital.' Every politician has used the phrase and frankly I'm a little sick of hearing it."

"In the four years that I've been on the board we've worked at solutions. There's little mention of the solutions that have been effected and there have been a considerable number of them."

"Maybe I was being a little facetious in saying there are no problems. There will be problems there as long as we're on this earth. But there are solutions and I'd like to be very positive about them."

"I think we're providing better patients care right now than we provided in the past."

Cheney said he disagrees with those people, including members of the medical staff, who feel that one of the solutions to the hospital's problems is leasing to a private management firm.

Leasing, or even selling the facility, is among the possible courses of action that will be studied by the commission.

"I think the hospital should continue as a municipal facility," said Cheney. "I'm very much concerned that this hospital will be turned into a private hospital."

"I'm only one board member but it is contrary to my personal feelings to even think of turning this hospital over to people whose prime interest would be making a profit."

Germantown Tenants Want Better Maintenance, Survey Shows

Quincy Housing Authority tenants in Germantown want better maintenance from the QHA but also admit they should take better care of their own homes.

These points are prominent in the response to a survey questionnaire sent by the QHA to over 500 families in Germantown public housing.

The questionnaire asked for the following information:

- How long have you lived in QHA housing?

- What is your address?
- List three things you expect from the Quincy Housing Authority.
- List three things the Quincy Housing Authority should expect from its tenants.
- What do you like about public housing?
- What do you least like about public housing?
- Further comments?

The purpose of the survey, according to authority member Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, was to identify problems at the Germantown projects and thereby "increase cooperation between the QHA, tenants and employees to improve housing in Germantown."

The sites have been plagued by a variety of complaints in recent

Quincy CETA Worker Gets Hull Assessor Job

Richard Coan of 10 Dysart St., Quincy, one of the CETA workers who trained to gather information for the Quincy assessors before the state intervened, has obtained a job as assessor in Hull.

"He left us about two weeks ago," said John P. Comer, the chief assessor. "He saw the opening; he applied; and, based on the training he received in Quincy, he was hired."

"That should say something to the people who were crucifying us for hiring those CETA personnel."

The CETA people, who are paid by the federal government, were hired last April to gather information on real property in preparation for revaluation and classification.

But the State Department of Revenue decided the folks from CETA were not doing the job fast enough and it was eventually put out to bid by a private revaluation firm.

Comer said that Coan, a Harvard graduate with a degree in economics, also took courses in assessing at Quincy Junior College in addition to his CETA training.

'No Advantage' To School Closing Says Cranch PTO President

Not everyone is joining the clamor to close schools with dwindling enrollments.

"We don't see any strong educational advantage to closing the Cranch School and we don't see any strong cost-saving advantages," said Cranch PTO president John Lutts.

Last year, parent groups unanimously opposed the four school closings discussed by the school committee. Lutts, for one, says he hasn't changed his mind.

"I figured out last year that closing the Cranch School would save $3.50 on my tax bill," said Lutts, a U-Mass Boston math teacher and father of five. "Are you really saving money?"

Lutts' three children who attend the Cranch School probably would have been transferred to the Lincoln Hancock School, about three-quarters of a mile away. The Cranch School is a five-minute walk from the Lutts' Presidents Lane home.

Besides the inconvenience, Lutts questions the effect on neighborhood spirit and property values and the kids' education.

Also expressing some doubts is teachers union president Robert Garner. Although the union has not yet been invited to have any part in the school closings process, and has no official stand, Garner lists a series of "concerns" on the issue. These include the effects of busing students to distant schools, the possible loss of teachers jobs in the closings and how the quality of education will be effected.

Garner also cites the seemingly united front of parents against the closings. During last year's hearings at the four schools, Mayor Tobin asked if anyone wished to speak in favor of the closings.

"At none of the four meetings did one person speak in favor of a school being closed," Garner said. And I don't think there was one hearing at which there were less than 200 people. I found the strength of the opposition very impressive."

Lutts, one of those who spoke against closings last year, says he'll support keeping the school open "as long as we feel we're getting a good return for our investment."

"It's not a large school, but the children seem to get a good education there. The teachers, children and parents seem to work together well. If the costs skyrocket, of course we'll have second thoughts, but even then you want to take a closer look at it."

School committee vice-chairman Christopher Kennedy, who voted against school closing a year ago, says he may change his mind this year.

"People who have children going to the schools in question naturally will oppose those closings," Kennedy said. "But people who are not personally involved will be looking more and more at the cost involved."

Fellow member John Sullivan is also "on the fence" on closings.

"I felt that, for the small amount of money involved, it would not be worth the anguish we would be putting those people through," Sullivan said. "I haven't changed my mind yet, but that's not to say I won't."

CETA Accepting Applications For Culinary Arts, Machine Operators Courses

Quincy CETA is accepting applications for its next culinary arts course and its machine operator's course.

Deadlines for applications are Feb. 1 and March 1 respectively, at the CETA Unit of the South Shore Job Center, 1433 Hancock St., Quincy.

The 24-week culinary arts course is designed to give trainees a strong solid background as a second chef. Trainees will receive instructions in menu planning, food costs and shopping, portion controlling, kitchen safety and techniques, sanitation and the do's and don'ts of Culinary Arts. Student training will focus on the "Top of the Works", a student-run full scale restaurant serving CETA employees. Classes will begin Feb. 11.

The 26-week machine operator's course is designed to train students for entry-level jobs in machine shops. Students will study shop math, blueprint reading and technical English. Classroom training will be supplemented by operating such shop machinery as engine lathes, drill presses, pneumatic control millers, and electrical dischargers. Classes will begin March 14.

Both courses will also provide job seeking skills and job placement assistance.

Eligible candidates will receive an hourly stipend and transportation allowances.

Quincy CETA is an equal opportunity employer. Handicapped persons, minorities, and women are encouraged to apply.

Kelly Makes Changes In Council Committees, Chairs

Leo J. Kelly promised some changes in City Council committee roles when he was sworn in as Council President and he appears to have kept his word in assignments announced Tuesday. Joanne Condon replaces Stephen J. McGrath as chairman of the Ordinance Committee and McGrath heads a Public Safety Committee that has been expanded to a committee of the whole.

Francis X. McCauley and Joseph J. LaRosa were assigned minor committee chairs, although each was named vice chairman of an important committee.

John J. Lydon Jr. remains as chairman of the powerful Finance Committee and replaces the departed Councillor Joseph E. Brett as head of the Oversight Committee.

McGrath's Public Safety Committee, which was chaired by Lydon during the 1978-79 session, is upgraded from five members to the status of committee of the whole.

Daniel G. Raymondi gets the chair of the Downtown Development Committee which Kelly himself had last year and the committee's role is expanded to one of Downtown and Economic Development.

John J. Quinn, Kelly's predecessor as president, succeeds the new president as chairman of the Public Works Committee and also will serve as vice chairman of Downtown and Economic Development.

One new committee, the Committee on Tourism, has been added with McGrath sitting as chairman.

Kelly said he named Mrs. Condon to replace McGrath as chairman of the Ordinance Committee because she also heads the Rules Committee and he plans to have the two work in close conjunction.

City Already Planning 1981 Budget

Even as Quincy residents are lined up to pay the first installment on their property taxes for fiscal 1980, Mayor Tobin and his staff are at work on the budget for fiscal 1981.

About 20 of the 85 departmental budgets, the smallest ones, already have been presented to the Mayor with the biggest ones -- public works, hospital, police and fire, -- to be saved for last.

The Mayor has 60 days from the date of his inauguration, or March 7, to present the budget to the City Council, which in turn has 45 days in which to act on it and send it back.

In the past two years, due to the blizzard of 1978 and the tax cap debate of 1979, the state has granted extensions on the city budget but Tobin said there probably will not be one this year.

The Mayor said all the departments have been asked for suggestions as to where the city can eliminate waste and duplication in its services and some have contributed good ideas.

"The city clerk and the purchasing agent have presented me with an idea that I'm asking them to explore," he said.

"The city has something like 21 different types of duplicating machines, all of which use different types and grades of paper.

"I'm asking them to do an in depth study to see if we can cut down on the number of different machines and buy paper in bulk and store it in the basement of the old City Hall."

Tobin branded as "totally false" reports that he will be "going after the jobs of city employees" in the new budget.

Toland Seeks Task Force To Study Closing Of Up To 11 Schools

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School Committee member Patricia Toland will ask the board next Wednesday to set up a citizens' task force to study school closings.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon says as many as 11 schools could be closed by the mid-80's because of declining enrollments and has presented the committee with a series of options to consider.

"Now is the time we really have to look at those alternatives and maybe some others," Mrs. Toland told The Quincy Sun. "I certainly expect that we will vote to close some schools this year."

Committee Vice-Chairman Christopher Kennedy agreed, saying "I think there's an excellent chance we'll close one or more."

But, how many schools could be closed by September of this year is still uncertain.

"I don't know about 11," said Kennedy. "I think two is more likely, or maybe four."

"I've heard stories that we could close anywhere from two to 11 schools," said Mayor Arthur Tobin, chairman of the school committee. "When I've spoken to Dr. Creedon, he has said he knows of two schools that could close tomorrow. There's no need for them at all."

"There's more than that," said Creedon. "I think you could zero in on any school with an enrollment under 200."

That, right now, would include five schools: Beechwood Knoll (178 students), Cranch (142), Great Hill (66), Hunting (110), and Myles Standish (111), according to the system's Oct. 1, 1979 enrollment figures.

Tobin, in his Jan. 7 inaugural address, said he would ask Creedon for a report on what schools could be closed and projected savings from each.

"I'm just looking for figures on how much we might save on these closings," Tobin told The Sun. "I don't know if the committee will consider closing one, two, seven, 10, 11 or what."

"I'm asking people whether they want to institute cost-saving measures or do they want to maintain the status quo and see costs keep on skyrocketing? And if they want to do that, don't blame the mayor when the tax rate goes up," Tobin said.

According to Creedon, the system's School Building Needs Task Force, chaired by director of elementary schools, Wilfred Nolan, has been monitoring enrollment trends and reporting to the committee on possible closings since 1975.

The most recent figures presented to the committee predict the system's enrollment, which peaked in 1971 at 17,080, will bottom out in the mid-80's at "between 8,000 and 10,000," probably closer to 8,000," Creedon said. Enrollment was 12,900 as of Oct. 1.

When the low point in enrollment is reached, Creedon said, the school system could probably get by without about 100 of its present 600 classroom teachers and without 11 of its 29 schools.

Last year, the school committee held hearings on the proposed closing of four schools: the Cranch, Great Hill, Hunting and Myles Standish. Those closings were unanimously opposed by parents at each hearing.

After those hearings, the committee rejected by a 5-2 vote a motion to close the Great Hill and Myles Standish schools. That

County Legal Secretaries Donate Books To Walpole Inmates

Inmates of Walpole State Prison received over 20 cartons of books during the holidays thanks to the annual book collection campaign of the Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association.

The books were delivered to the prison before Christmas by association members Marie B. O'Neill, secretary to Attorney Paul A. M. Hunt of Quincy, and Jeanne Pittman of Plainville.

In addition to hundreds of popular paperback novels, there were textbooks on math, history, literature, philosophy and other academic subjects.

The association received an unprecedented response to its book campaign this year which they attribute to the announcement that the prison library was almost completely destroyed by a recent fire.

The prison librarian accepted the donated books on behalf of the prison with deep gratitude, stating it would help fill a sincere need of the prisoners for reading and studying material.

Kelly Clarke President Northeastern Student Government Association

Kelly A. Clarke, daughter of Mrs. Adrienne Clarke of 1421 Quincy Shore Dr., was recently elected president of the student government association at Northeastern University.

A fourth year student at the university, she is majoring in political science. Her term as association president begins when she returns from three months in Rome, Italy, part of the school's cooperative education program. Last year, Kelly went to England through the program.

Former association president Robert G. Greenberg said of Miss Clarke, she "is surely to be a successful member of the Quincy community . . . someone to definitely watch for future accomplishments."

A dean's list student, she plans to pursue a degree in international law. Kelly is a 1976 graduate of Quincy High School.

"BROKEN HEART" CAN KILL

According to a study by British doctors, you can really die of a "broken heart". An extraordinarily high coronary death rate - 67 percent above normal - among widowers with wives dead less than six months, has led to this conclusion.

In the study, the mortality rate of 4,486 widowers aged 55 and over was compared with the mortality figures for married men in the same age bracket. Of the 213 deaths that occurred within six months of the wife's heart disease, accounted for 77 widowers' deaths as compared against an expected 46; an increase of 67 percent.

The medical researchers say emotional stress alters the consumption of fats, sugar, coffee, or tobacco, all of which are related to coronary artery disease. In some cases, however, emotional stress alone may be enough to cause death. It can bring about changes in pulse rates, blood pressure and other heart functions.

McCauley, Sheets To Seek Tax Rate Setting Info

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley plans to resubmit two home rule petitions dealing with tax rate setting procedures and notice of assessment at Monday's City Council meeting.

And Councillor James A. Sheets intends to introduce a resolve at the same meeting requesting an appearance by the auditor, treasurer and chief assessor to explain the 1980 tax rate.

Sheets said his resolution asking the appearance by the three city officials before the Finance Committee will be similar to one he filed in December, but which expired with the old Council.

One of McCauley's home rule petitions would require auditor, treasurer and chief assessor to come before the council each year and present the recap sheet of figures that will be used to set the tax rate.

The second petition would require the board of assessors to notify the owners of residential property within 30 days of any change in assessment.

Both petitions were passed by the last City Council and approved by the Mayor. They received State Senate approval but died in the House Ways and Means Committee.

McCauley credited the efforts of Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) in shepherding the petitions through the Senate.

"The passage of homeowner assessment notification is most important in view of the chaos caused by the recent spot reassessments of apartments of four units or more," said McCauley.

"The long drawn out procedure in setting the fiscal 1980 tax rate makes the passage of the tax-rate setting procedure equally important.

"The adoption of this petition will give members of the Council up-to-date information concerning the setting of the tax rate, information they receive second hand from media sources under present procedures."

Red Cross Blizzard Ball Set For Feb. 9

Long-time Quincy merchant Frank Remick will receive an "Outstanding Neighbor of the Year" award at the second annual "Blizzard of '78" ball, Feb. 9.

The commemorative ball and dinner, sponsored by the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross, will be held at the Lantana in Randolph.

Remick will be honored for his decades of leadership and support for Quincy and the South Shore.

The ball will benefit the American Red Cross. A goal of $10,000 has been set.

Last year's ball, attended by 400 persons, raised $9,600 for a four-wheel drive disaster vehicle which now services Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Tickets can be obtained by calling the chapter's Revere Rd., Quincy Center office at 472-2700.

Chairman of this year's ball is Helen A. Shea of Quincy. Robert Quinn, vice president of South Shore Bank is co-chairman. Other members of the committee are Peter J. Benelli, John Gillis, Thomas Pelletier, Mrs. Robert O. Gilmore, Clement O'Brien, Edward Flavin, Burton Sutton, James Ricciuti, Irving J. Boyes, chairman of last year's Ball, and Peter F. Macdonald, chapter chairman.

Quincy Cooperative Donates $500 To Massasoit Development Fund

A recent $500 contribution from the Quincy Cooperative Bank has brought the total raised so far by the Massasoit Development Committee to over $17,000.

The committee seeks $30,000 for improvements at the Plymouth Boy Scout camp, used by Quincy scouts for over 50 years. Chairman Richard Koch said the committee has been encouraged by recent contributions and hopes to reach the $30,000 goal in the next few weeks.

Material donations are still welcomed by the committee, Koch added. Persons wishing to donate building materials or other camp equipment should contact Harold Crowley (471-6881), Don Ilacqua (471-3586) or Bob Packer (361-5490).

A souvenir booklet is also being prepared and contributions are being solicited from area businessmen, community leaders and other friends of Camp Massasoit. Persons wishing to be included in the book should contact Joseph Gelsomini, (328-4411).

'Old Gold and Silver' Topic For 1000 Southern Artery

Monday, Jan. 21, at 2 p.m. at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy.

Bertman will explain how to avoid being "taken" when selling old jewelry.

Koch Scholarship Fund Nears $10,000

A $50 check in memory of Stephen L. Whyte has increased the Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund to $9880 as of Jan. 10, according to Executive Director Richard J. Koch.

The amount was an award to Whyte as one of the Koch Club Scholarship winners at the 1979 graduation exercises.

Whyte was graduated from the Vocational Technical School and was planning to pursue his education at Wentworth Institute before his untimely death in an automobile accident.

The Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund was established in 1973 on the Club's 25th anniversary with a $5,000 grant invested through the City Treasurer. Interest over six years and gifts have provided an additional $4,880.

Persons interested in giving to the Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund should make gifts payable to the same and mail to Robert E. Foy III, City Treasurer, Quincy City hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, Mass. 02169.

The Permanent Scholarship Fund was created to insure the tradition of the Koch Club and will take effect on June, 1998, the 50th anniversary of the organization, when the interest accrued from the previous year will be used on scholarships.

The purpose is to impress on boys and girls that, although the Koch Club's primary purpose is recreational activity, the educational aspect is of great interest and concern.

During the interim, the Koch Club Active Scholarship Fund provides $500 each year to boy and girl graduates of North Quincy and Quincy High Schools and the Vocational Technical School.

The Koch Club Scholarship Program originated in 1959 when the North Quincy District presented a $100 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High School. It was expanded to Quincy High School in 1964 as the Broadmeadows District of the Club was added and in 1970 the Vocational Technical School was included.

To date $8,000 has been presented and the $9,880 reserved for future awards makes a total of $17,880 in Koch Club funds allocated for the scholarship programs.

Why Did I Start The Informal Hour?

Have you ever felt that Life is a continual broken record? Get up in the morning - go to work, come home at night - read the paper, watch TV - go to bed - get up in the morning - 2nd verse the same as the first. Ah, but wait, it's Friday night - a week-end coming up. What's your program? Late show on the TV?

If that's your way of life right now, you are one of many reasons that I started the Informal Hour. From letters that I have read in newspaper columns, ads in TV guide and people I have talked to myself, there are many people that find themselves in the above rut. They are not ready to settle for "dullsville" there has to be more in life. But where do they meet people in the same position? With the same interests? Singles Bar? Ad in the paper, TV Guide? Now, I plan to give people another choice, THE INFORMAL HOUR - Not as a matchmaking - a trip to a museum, play or a day at a place brimming over with things to see and do.

I have a day such as the last on my above listed things to do. A Sunday, January 27th, in Salem. One day doesn't even begin to make a dent in the number of things to see at Salem. I spent a day there recently and I really came home very enthused about the whole place. I started out with breakfast at the Hawthorne Inn. A beautiful restaurant and friendly happy service there. We also will attend a very unusual theatre there, and tour a very interesting house that once was home of the first sea faring captains and merchant men of Salem. Then we will have dinner at one of the many restaurants in Salem. A limousine, chauffeur driven will take us there, wait and bring us home again.

It is my sincere hope and goal that I not only will change weekends for people but week nites too and very important holidays that mean a sad or hard day for many people. Events in our lives do happen to all of us that make quite a difference in family and friends to share good times with - so let's change events and meet new people and places. Join THE INFORMAL HOUR. Explore and grow in pleasant and enjoyable experiences with us.

Now is the time to register to get in on these current plans. The registration fee is a moderate twenty-five dollars. For your $25.00 you will be given an application form with questions which will make it possible to place you with other people having the same interests. Your registration fee will also keep you informed of each program planned by THE INFORMAL HOUR. You are eligible to participate in any of the planned activities of THE INFORMAL HOUR up to one year from the date of registration. Each activity will include a moderate charge to cover Limousine, restaurant, museum and or theatre expenses.

Call me now - 479-6164 or drop in and see me - THE INFORMAL HOUR at 21 Franklin St., Quincy, MA 02169.

'ALE' Program

Quincy High Keeps Dropouts In

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

For even an average adolescent, a 2,000-student complex like Quincy High School can seem huge and impersonal.

For one with family or other personal problems, it can be overwhelming.

That's part of the reasoning behind a Quincy High program which attempts to keep dropouts or potential dropouts in school by isolating them from it.

Known as the Alternative Learning Environment, the program involves about 105 students who attend classes at the former Quincy Court House building on Coddington St.

They take a full schedule of six courses, earn grades and credits like other students but are otherwise separate from Quincy High. So are the six teachers who work with them exclusively, acting as homeroom teachers and advisors.

According to Quincy High assistant principal Robert Basiliere, administrator of the program, the small size of the group allows students to develop closer ties with each other and their six teachers. This helps them prevent some problems and work out others that, under normal conditions, might have gone unsolved, he says.

Whatever the reason, the record suggests the 'ALE' is working. According to Ronald Martin, head teacher in the program, 41 of last year's 44 seniors graduated. Two more are now working towards high school equivalency diplomas.

When asked how many of those might have graduated under normal circumstances, he says "maybe half - if we were lucky."

Furthermore, about 80 percent show improvements in their academic standing.

"We have succeeded our expectations," says Basiliere. "When we started out, we were hoping we could help maybe half."

Daily attendance for 'ALE' students is 86 percent - below the school average, but well above the 70 percent they recorded before getting involved in the program.

Besides explaining what 'ALE' is, both men seemed anxious to point out what it is not. It's not a dumping ground for the school's trouble makers, Basiliere said.

"We're not working with the disruptive influences," he says, describing the typical student in the program as "passive". When confronted with problems in school, "they don't really scream and holler, they withdraw from

There is no need to be concerned about using sterling silver regularly. Some jewelers claim that the more use it gets, the better its quality will be maintained. In a way, sterling is like a car. It must be used regularly. If taken care of regularly as well, silver only needs major care, or polishing twice a year. Many sellers of sterling indicate that it can be easily washed in a dishwasher and that the more scratches the better. They claim that when light hits the scratches, the silver tends to shine even more.

If you are concerned about the purchase of jewelry come in and talk to us at GROSSO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. We handle many fine pieces for all your needs, including Valentine's Day gifts. We also have the capabilities to do all types of engraving work including flatware, silver and plates. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
The trend in sterling silver fashions these days is toward informality.

QEA Blood Bank Drive Jan. 22 At Central Junior

The Quincy Education Association will hold its blood bank drive Tuesday, Jan. 22, 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. at Central Junior High School, Quincy.

The QEA blood bank provides blood for association members and their families anywhere in the world where there is an American Red Cross Blood Center. There is no limit to the amount or type of blood available.

Association donations are falling short this year, and two blood drives have been cancelled due to lack of donors.

Members are asked to donate at least once before the school year ends, and to invite relatives and friends to give blood also.

For an appointment, or more information, call Carter C. Caudle at Central Junior High School, 786-8725, ext. 263 or 264. "Walk-in" donors will also be welcome.

Members can also donate blood for the QEA at the Red Cross Donor Center, Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Mondays, 1-7 p.m.

Water Savers Installed At 1000 Southern Artery

Water savers are being installed in the shower heads of all three buildings of 1000 Southern Artery as part of an effort to save energy at the complex.

The devices cut down the amount of water used in a shower, saving hot water which is a prime consumer of energy.

Management hopes that by saving energy, costs can be kept within reason and the next rent increase put as far away as possible.

According to a report in the complex's publication, The Fountain, electrical consumption is down 20% in the three buildings in a six-year period.

The decrease came about as a result of residents shutting off lights when leaving apartments, and not using ovens and air conditioners unnecessarily. Light and energy consumption was also reduced by using fluorescent lamps in corridors and by staggering lights.

Toland Seeks Citizens Group To Study School Closings

motion was supported by Mrs. Toland and Mary Collins.

But Mrs. Toland thinks continued enrollment drops and the recent furor over the tax rate may bring a majority of the committee over to her side of the vote.

Kennedy, who voted against last year's proposed closings, says there's "a good possibility" he might vote differently this year, "depending on what evidence we are presented with."

"It's a sad situation, but we may be faced with a set of circumstances which suggest that we'll have to do something."

Kennedy said.

Last year, according to figures presented to the committee, the closing of the four schools in question would have meant a net saving of about $473,000, or about $1.73 on the tax rate.

Those figures are no longer valid, Creedon said, adding that up-to-date figures will be presented to the committee. They will reflect increased savings from the school closings - because of higher heating costs and teachers' salaries - but also increased costs for transporting the displaced students to other schools.

According to Mrs. Toland, she will ask the committee to send letters to civic and parents' associations, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and other groups, inviting them to be represented on her proposed citizens' task force.

"I would hope there would be representation from a lot of different parts of the community," she said. That group would study the pros and cons of the various options on closings before the committee and report back to it by late winter or early spring, she said.

"I'm pretty sure that the rest of the committee would go along with that," she said.

Smoke Forces Evacuation Of Quincy Cooperative Bank

A smoky fire in a basement storeroom shortly after closing time drove some two score employees and customers from the main offices of the Quincy Cooperative Bank in Quincy Square Tuesday.

There were no reports of injuries.

Patricia Jones, the bank's marketing director, said the damage was confined to office supplies, most of them paper, stored in the basement.

The lobby of the bank had closed but there were still a few customers in the bank and at the walkup window when the smoke began to filter through the ground floor.

There was no estimate of damage.

Girl Scouts Cookie Sale Starts Jan. 19

Girl Scouts will launch their 1980 annual Girl Scout Cookie and nut sale on Jan. 19. Orders will be taken through Feb. 3.

For the first time Girl Scouts from 65 metropolitan Boston communities of the newly organized Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council, including Quincy, will join together in conducting the sale. Brownies will participate, as will Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts. Brownie troops, too, need the income from the sale to supplement their troop dues in financing troop activities.

Henry F. Nilsen, 81. Former City Engineer

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Bethany Congregational Church for Henry F. Nilsen, 81, of Quincy, former city engineer.

Mr. Nilsen, employed by the city for 41 years before retiring in 1970, died at his home Jan. 13.

A graduate of Quincy High School, he studied engineering at Franklin Union School. He was hired in 1924 by the water division of the Metropolitan District Commission and, in 1930, went on loan to the City of Quincy. He received a permanent appointment as Assistant Civil Engineer in 1932.

He was acting city engineer from December, 1951 to April, 1952, when he was appointed permanent city engineer.

He was a member of Rural Masome Lodge for 58 years, a member of Bethany Congregational Church, a life member of the national Society of Mass. Professional Engineers; a past president of the Massachusetts Municipal Engineers and a past president of the Merrymount

HENRY F. NILSEN
Association.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. I. Louise (Carlson) Nilsen; a son, Donald H. Nilsen of Braintree; two daughters, Patricia I. Creighton of Weymouth and Elaine M. Caliri of Hingham and seven grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were by Deware Brothers Funeral Home, Wollaston.

George Anscombe, 79, Salvation Army Brigadier

Funeral services were held Saturday at Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home for George Anscombe, 79, a brigadier officer in the Salvation Army in Quincy.

Mr. Anscombe died Jan. 10 in Quincy City Hospital after a long illness. He was born in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. but lived the last 14 years in Quincy.

He was also an amateur radio operator, with call letters WAIEY.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret (gardophe) Anscombe; a son, George, Jr. of Florida; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas (Marjell) Milne of Wollaston, Mrs. Ruth Brown of Springfield, three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Salvation Army Major Charles Waddington officiated at the service. Burial was in Forest Hills Cemetery.

Funeral services were held Sunday for Mrs. Elmyra (Reed) Pavan, 69, a lawyer active in civic and social activities, and widow of late City Solicitor Harry Pavan.

Mrs. Pavan, a Quincy native, died at her Squantum home.

She was a graduate of Quincy Schools, Boston University and Portia School of Law, in 1940. She was a past president of the Quincy Women's Club and also active in the Florence Crittenton League, the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers and the Boston Council for International Visitors.

She is survived by a daughter, Dr. Deborah Pavan Langston of Cambridge; a son, Dr. P. Reed Pavan of Iowa City, Iowa and four grandchildren. Dr. Langston is a widely known researcher in the treatment of glaucoma.

Services were held at the Levine Chapel, Brookline. Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon.

Louis Kaufman, 53, Author, Globe Reporter

Funeral services were held Tuesday for author and Boston Globe reporter Louis Kaufman, 53, of 11 Dorchester St., Squantum, who died of a heart attack Monday at Quincy City Hospital.

Mr. Kaufman joined the Globe staff in 1962 after working for the Providence Journal and El Paso Herald Post. He was also the author, along with Tom Sewell and Barbara Fitzgerald, of a book on Moe Berg, the former Red Sox catcher who became an American spy during World War II. He and his co-authors had been negotiating with Hollywood producers interested in making a movie of the story.

Born in New York City, he grew up in Boston's West End. Although underage, he quit Boston English High School during World War II to join the Navy.

After the war, he graduated from Cambridge's Rindge Technical High School, where he played on the basketball team.

He later received a degree in journalism from Suffolk

University, under the GI Bill.

Mr. Kaufman is survived by his mother, Mrs. Jenny (Eisler) Kaufman of Revere and was the son of the late Morris Kaufman. He is also survived by two brothers, Roland of Kensington, Cal. and Edwin of Swampscott; two sisters, Miriam Sokolov of Fairport, N.Y. and Sandra Silverman of Swampscott and seven nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at the Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Hyman-Son Memorial Chapel on the Salem-Swampscott line

Jennie J. (Harris) Nelson, 97.

Oldest Woodward School Graduate

Funeral services were held at the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home Sunday for Jennie J. (Harris) Nelson, 97, who died Jan. 11 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth.

Mrs. Nelson, a member of the first graduating class at Woodward School for Girls in 1902, was believed to be the oldest living graduate of the school.

Born in Quincy, she had lived in Weymouth since 1923.

She was a retired executive secretary for the former Crystal Paste Company, Quincy.

Mrs. Nelson was also a member of United First Parish Church and past president of the church's Alliance, a member of Third Universalist Church of Weymouth and that church's Unity Club, former member of the Quincy Women's club and past president of the Alumni Association of the Woodward School.

Wife of the late George B. Nelson, she is survived by three nephews, Harold Belcher and Richard Belcher of Braintree and William Belcher of South Yarmouth and several grand and great-grand nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

First Church Of Squantum Service Honors Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum celebrated the life and ministry of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in a special service Sunday, coinciding with Dr. King's birthday Tuesday.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, eulogized Dr. King and quoted excerpts from his sermons. The Junior Choir sang a special piece "Martin Luther King," by Theresa Fulbright.

The Senior Choir joined in the celebration with "Children of the Heavenly Father" by Berg, Olson and Liemohn, set to the tune of a Swedish folk melody.

Richard Williams gave the Call to Worship. Gretchen Bumpus led the Opening Prayer and Stewart Scott offered the Dedication Prayer at the time of the offering.

Dr. Langevin preached a sermon, "Living From a Higher Plane." This was the second in a series, which began last week, on the history of Israel from the end of the United Monarchy to the end of the Old Testament. The prophets will be dealt with individually in a later series.

In his sermon, Dr. Langevin likened King to the prophet Elijah. Fifty children performed a play for the congregation, dramatizing the confrontation between Elijah and the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel. Aaron Gerry played Elijah; Stephen Williams, King Ahab.

Charles and Genevieve Todd were greeters for the service. Ushers were Jore Wallin, Tommy Adams, Richard Williams, Don Frazer, Billy Cogswell and Steven Williams.

The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Joan Hansen, Tommy Adams, Holly Bumpus, Barbara Fluhr and Ginny Sorenson. Annual reports were distributed after church for the congregation's Annual Meeting.

Next Sunday Dr. Langevin will speak on "A Christian Perspective on Military Force" at 10:15 a.m.

St. John's Church To Host Ecumenical Service Jan. 23

St. John's Church, Quincy Center, will host a special ecumenical prayer service Wednesday, Jan. 23, at 8 p.m.

The service is being held in cooperation with the Adams Shore Community Church, St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church, Fort Square Presbyterian Church and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The Adult Education Committee and Spiritual Development Commission are planning the service.

All Christian clergy and their congregations in the Quincy area are invited to attend.

Refreshments will follow the service.

First Church Of Squantum Annual Meeting

The First Church of Squantum will hold its annual meeting Friday, Jan. 18, at 6:30 p.m., beginning with a covered dish supper.

The Next Mayor (Part Two)

Even though 1980 is hardly three weeks old, political watchers are obviously already thinking 1981 and speculating as to who will run for mayor.

Last week in this column we tossed a few names around—all of them city councillors—as potential mayoral candidates. And, we apparently overlooked a few others.

What about Leo Kelly for example, someone wanted to know as soon as the paper got out.

KELLY

Kelly is seldom mentioned as a mayoral contender mainly because he has never publicly said nor even hinted he was the least interested. When you think of Kelly, you usually think of him as the councillor from Ward 1. Period. But now you've got to erase that period and also think of him as City Council president.

And, during the next year or two as council president, you should also start thinking of him as a potential mayoral candidate. The feeling is that Kelly will catch the mayoral bug if he hasn't already. And, he may have it right now.

Kelly is the 40th council president. Twenty before him ran for mayor and only 11 made it. But in recent times, council presidents have fared better. Since, specifically, Quincy's return to Plan A in 1958 after its stormy marriage to Plan E.

Of the nine council presidents since 1958—James McIntyre, Joseph LaRaia and Arthur Tobin—went on to become mayor. Another, George Burke, was elected district attorney instead of running for mayor.

And, consider this: the only mayor since 1958 who was not a council president was Walter Hannon.

The council presidency is still the second most powerful political post in the city and any man wielding that gavel is a potential mayoral candidate. And, one to be reckoned with.

Other names are also being mentioned as possibilities. Rep. Robert Cerasoli reportedly is giving it some thought.

But here are a couple of other names that might surprise you: City Clerk John Gillis and Quincy developer Peter O'Connell. Both are being mentioned around town as possible contenders.

Add Kelly, Cerasoli, Gillis and O'Connell to Frank McCauley, Joseph LaRaia, John Quinn, James Sheets, Daniel Raymondi, Steve McGrath and Joanne Condon and you may need an experienced bird watcher to keep track of them.

GILLIS

SPEAKING OF THE COUNCIL PRESIDENCY. The Sun last week listed 39 presidents since Quincy became a city in 1888. Actually there are 40. Overlooked was Amelio Della Chiesa who served a single term in 1948 and was succeeded in 1949 by Clifton Baker.

DELLA CHIESA

Della Chiesa of course, went on to serve 12 years as mayor—longest in the city's history—under Plan E and Plan A.

GEORGE AND MARTHA belong in Boston and Forrest I. Neal, Jr. a member of the Quincy Cooperative Bank board of directors is one of many trying to keep the famous Gilbert Stuart portraits of George and Martha Washington here. The Smithsonian Institute has offered $5 million to take the paintings to Washington, D.C.

Neal is urging businesses and individuals to contribute to the fund-raising effort to offset the Smithsonian's offer. If you can, send it along to:

NEAL

CONGRESSMAN Brian Donnelly was fielding questions from Quincy Rotary Club members last week when someone asked whether he supported American goods over foreign competitors.

DONNELLY

"Well, right now," he responded, "I'm wearing Brockton shoes—I couldn't get away with anything else. And this is a Fall River suit I have on."

"The car I drive now is a 10-year-old Dodge Dart and when that goes I'll probably buy another used American car. Can you imagine the grief I'd get driving around in a Volkswagen?"

"I encourage everyone to buy American cars, preferably from a dealer in the 11th Congressional District."

Riley Replies To Warmington As 'Earn It' Furor Continues

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

For the benefit of those who do not know Robert B. Warmington, I am compelled to respond to his uninformed remarks in his recent letter to your paper. Those who have the pleasure of knowing him will, I am sure, consider the source.

Point #1 - I agree that Robert B. Warmington was at one time a "member" of the Quincy Police Department.

Point #2 - I share Warmington's sentiments with respect to the punishments dealt youthful offenders and hope that each of them can somehow learn to live in a civilized, ordered society without ever being subjected to the "snakepit" or any other unpleasantness.

Point #3 - I also was disappointed that 106 men signed the "petition" voicing objection to Judge Kramer's policies but only for the reason that so many more probably over 90% of the Quincy Police Department, in total, expressed a desire to be included and were, unfortunately, not afforded the opportunity to subscribe their names; most because scheduling of shifts and days off did not bring them into contact with the circulator of the petition (which I neither authored nor have ever seen) and a few others who were very sympathetic but, felt ill-advised to sign for personal reasons. In fairness, I am told that a few officers (superiors) disagreed with my stance and refused for that reason. I have received overwhelming support and encouragement from within the department, police circles, legal circles, throughout the community and from points far and wide. Negative response has been less than 1/5 of 1%.

Point #4 - I agree that this (mini-revolt) would not have happened under previous police administrations—principally because the late Chief Ferrazzi, as Head of the department and a true Leader of men, would have personally appeared on "60 Minutes" and courageously led the fight for and with his men for a safer community. Secondly, had one of his Superior Officers appeared, as I did, Ferrazzi would have acknowledged his prior statements, politically good or bad without taking the political temperature, and stood behind them regardless of pressures brought to bear upon him.

Point #5 - After graduating from college, I attended and graduated from Suffolk Law (NIGHTS), not Days. In June 1969, and very seldom, as I recall, worked with Warmington. Since favorable assignments to assist me with school would have been a "nice" thing to do, we can rest assured that this Point is incorrect since Bob Warmington, to my knowledge, never did a "nice" thing for anyone.

Point #6 - Admittedly, I have never "burned the world", however, I have always put 100% effort into every assignment given me. The police mission being: "To serve and Protect", it can easily be verified by my brother officers that I have always well performed my mission in service and protection and I venture to say that I have performed more positive police services, and made more "pinches" and of a better quality in any given week of my police career than Bob Warmington made in his entire tumultuous, conflict-dotted, police department experience.

Point #7 - My Law Degree had never been "on the shelf." I have an active private practice and my legal experiences have greatly benefited the Quincy Police Department in my assignments as Director of Planning and Research, Prosecutor of hundreds of criminal cases for the Commonwealth, Director of the Quincy Police Training Academy and very frequent consultant to the Quincy Police Drug Unit, one of the best in the nation (in spite of the wholesale dumping of their cases).

Point #8 - Like Warmington, I am distressed to be an example of the "squeaking wheel" getting the grease, though I view my protests; opinions reflecting those of countless policemen from every community, businesspeople and, most importantly, Victims, as considerably louder and more profound than "squeaks". Unfortunately, no one at a higher level had the "guts" (or "stupidity") to answer the call from "60 Minutes" to stand up and speak out. Steve Glauber and Brooke Janus, CBS producers, indicated to me that they had experienced massive "negative" reaction, not to Judge Al Kramer the man, but to his policies. Notwithstanding the negativism, no one "dared" go public, to give a name and face the camera. I am damn mad about what has happened to my community, my department and my cops and felt that if no one else would take up the challenge, then I would. Only in America could I exercise this constitutional right. Praise the Lord that the likes of Bob Warmington has allied with the other side, thus reinforcing my gut feelings that my views are in keeping with the majority of the community.

Why "squeak"? Had someone squeaked in Nazi-Germany in the 30's, World War II might have been averted. Had someone in the Nixon Cabinet "squeaked", the tragedy of Watergate might not have happened. If any of Judge Kramer's advisors "squeaked", we might not loose anymore kids to drug O.D.'s. If any of Chief Finn's "staff" would "squeak", the Chief might do the right thing: address our major community problems; making Victims whole (priority) and then making offenders shape up or face the consequences.

We have been taught that we must not, in a civilized society, take the law into our own hands; that legal machinery has been established to serve us and punish our trespassers. Look around... Listen... Get your heads out of the sand. There is more violence in our community in 1980 than in Dodge City in the 1880's. Why?? Because those who commit violent acts have not been deterred... not by social workers trying to understand them... not by fear of being held to account. Everyone should be responsible for his acts and accountable for foreseeable consequences. The vast majority of victims are left unsatisfied and far too many offenders are neither "helped" nor "punished."

Point #9 - Judge Kramer should continue his well-intended efforts but, all was not wrong with the "old system." It worked to this extent, at least, even without psychology: an offender was made acutely aware that every effort and expense would be made to assist him to "get into step" with society and should he continue to commit offenses, punishment, at least in the form of some inconvenience, would be swift and certain.

Point #10 - I agree with Warmington's high opinion of "Big Jim" Mulloy. Jim has been a friend, confidant, supporter and inspiration to me throughout my police career. If Bob Warmington had spent some time with Jim Mulloy as he so prescribes, he might have become a "cop" rather than a "member" and he might still be on the job, not "retired" while in the prime of life. In this vein and in the light of the present crisis in the Quincy Retirement Pension Fund, it might be appropriate to review Warmington's past efforts for reinstatement. Why?? Is Warmington's letter an effort to "apple polish" the Chief??

Many responsible people must assuredly must differ with me and I respect their rights, not only to differ, but to go to press with their differing opinions. Had Bob Warmington ever engaged in any positive police work and not spent his brief time working in "baiting" and antagonizing his superiors, brother officers, businessmen and citizenry, his viewpoints might be different and if not different, at least, informed enough to be valid.

'The Back Room At City Hall'

tapping someone on the shoulder to consult in "the Back Room".

One private citizen (proponent and past Hearing Board Chairman) was given the privilege of staying within the immediate council area while the opposition, of course, had to be seated in the area for spectators.

Two weeks later at the New Year's Eve meeting (Happy New Year Quincy) the same type of meeting was conducted with the "Back Room" the center of attraction. I must say the Back Room must be something special and the taxpayers of Quincy something less than special.

I have in the past attended School Committee meetings and never have they left their seats or been so rude, yet these are unpaid "public servants."

I would like to suggest that the Back Door policy of the City Council be stopped and the door be locked and kept locked throughout the meeting so that the residents of Quincy may have the same courtesy extended them that the Council expects from the residents.

Kelly Makes Changes In Council Committees

Kelly, in his first address as president of the Council, promised that a new emphasis will be placed on the Rules Committee.

"In the future," he said, "Rules should become the committee which is instrumental in molding the new Council.

"I will study and suggest the modifications that this Council must make to become both progressive and responsive to the needs of the constituency we serve."

Kelly said some of the early changes he will ask for include:

- Permanent places in the Council Chamber for the public works commissioner, the planning director and the city solicitor, who are required to attend meetings, so they can present information to the Council in an organized manner.
- Changes in the rules governing the agenda so that it will require a two-thirds vote of the Council in order to have a matter placed on the agenda later.

In total, Mrs. Condon, Lydon, McGrath and James A. Sheets have three committee chairs and three vice chairmanships each while LaRaia, McCauley, Quinn and Raymond have two chairs and two vice chairmanships apiece.

"I don't think I could break it down more fairly," said Kelly. "I don't think of any one committee as being more important than another. A committee is as important as its chairman makes it."

The committee assignments are:
Finance: Lydon, chairman; McCauley, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Ordinance: Condon, chairman; LaRaia, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Public Works: Quinn, chairman; Raymond, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Downtown and Economic Development: Raymond, chairman; Quinn, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Public Safety: McGrath, chairman; Lydon, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Oversight: Lydon, chairman; Sheets, vice chairman; the other seven members of the Council.

Rules: Condon, chairman; Lydon, vice chairman; McGrath, Raymond, Sheets.

Tourism: McGrath, chairman; Sheets, vice chairman; Condon, Lydon, Quinn.

Public Parks and Recreation: Raymond, chairman; Condon, vice chairman; Lydon, McGrath, Sheets.

Land Conveyance: Quinn, chairman; McCauley, vice chairman; Raymond, McGrath, Condon.

Beautification, Library and Historic Places: McCauley, chairman; Lydon, vice chairman; LaRaia, McGrath, Quinn.

Pensions: LaRaia, chairman; McGrath, vice chairman; McCauley, Quinn, Raymond.

Public Health and Hospital: Condon, chairman; McGrath, vice chairman; Lydon, McCauley, Sheets.

Federal Funds: Sheets, chairman; Condon, vice chairman; Lydon, McCauley, Quinn.

Public Transportation: McCauley, chairman; Raymond, vice chairman; Condon, Lydon, McGrath.

Senior Citizens Activities: Sheets, chairman; Condon, vice chairman; Lydon, McGrath, Quinn.

Youth: LaRaia, chairman; McGrath, vice chairman; Lydon, Raymond, Sheets.

Environmental Control: McGrath, chairman; Sheets, vice chairman; Condon, McCauley, Quinn.

Veterans Services: Lydon, chairman; LaRaia, vice chairman; McCauley, Quinn, Raymond.

Disposal and Sanitary Problems: Sheets, chairman; Quinn, vice chairman; LaRaia, Lydon, Raymond.

Deegan Resignation As City Manager Stuns Party Goers

William J. Deegan Jr. stunned a dinner party at the Neighborhood Club that included five city councillors by announcing his resignation from the $16,000 a year post of city manager.

Deegan, the first city manager appointed after Quincy adopted the Plan E form of government in 1950, had served five years and 11 days. His resignation would be effective Feb. 21.

Deegan said he planned to go to work for the Agnew Foundation for Municipal Research to develop the idea of building schools with private capital and leasing them to municipalities.

CITY UNIONS NEEDED

Kenneth J. Kelly, legislative agent for the State AFL, told the annual banquet of the Quincy Firefighters Association that unions are now a necessity for public employees.

"I only wish school teachers and other city workers would take a page from the Firefighters Association's book and attempt unionizing. It would help their economic lot," said Kelly.

"I have seen at the State House an effective organization of other groups, such as the taxpayers, selectmen, chambers of commerce, tending to stifle the legitimate aspirations of city workers."

QUINCY TAKES CITY CROWN

The line of Dave Wong, Ralph Younie and Ed Mattie accounted for four goals as the Quincy High School hockey team beat North Quincy, 5-3, for the city title.

The Quincy lineup included Wong, Younie, Mattie, Chella, Belanger, Krabich, Vient, Zanardelli, Burke and Gillis.

North Quincy: Moran, Hurley, McCarthy, Spooner, Harding, Gill, Cook, Cooban, Quintilliani, Noonan, Trudeau, O'Neil and Tegan.

RANGERETTES TOP TEAM

The nine-girl team of the Houghs Neck Rangerettes won first prize in the group competition for baton twirling in a contest sponsored by the Millbury Drum and Pipe Corps.

Members of the team were Judith Shelley, Patricia Cummings, Paula Jardine, Sheila Lane, Maureen Walsh, Margaret O'Neill, Joyce Cummings, Jane Griffin, Marcia Mitchell.

Points To Ponder

- Sign in an office—To err is human. To blame it on someone else is even more human.
- The American dream used to be: Work hard and persevere and success can be yours. Now it is: Get a lawyer, sue somebody and retire on the settlement.
- With so many new electronic gadgets and appliances on the market, there's much confusion about guarantees and warranties. Here's a simple rule to remember: In most cases, the warranty runs out the day before the appliance breaks.
- It is alleged that the Shah stole billions of dollars from Iran. To get some idea of how much that is—if you had spent $1,000 every day since the birth of Christ until now, you still wouldn't have spent a billion dollars.
- With petroleum drilling about to begin in the wealthy fishing area of George's Bank, the phrase on the side of the tuns can—packed in oil—takes on new meaning.

'ALE' Program Keeps Dropouts In School

it," he adds.

Nor is it specifically for slow students, Martin says.

"You hear things around, people saying, 'it's for the dummies,' things like that. It's not."

Academically, the 105 students are a pretty fair cross section of the school, including some bright, some average and some special needs students, Basiliere says. The only thing they have in common is problems which have affected their performance in school. For example, over half are from one-parent families.

About 25 percent are former dropouts who came back, Basiliere says. The others, because of their academic and attendance records, were identified as potential dropouts.

Once chosen, students are invited into the program.

"Kids are here only if they want to be," Basiliere says.

The system they learn in combines close teacher-student and "peer group" relationships with a structured, well-defined class schedule. "There is a constant check on these kids," Basiliere says.

Because of the constant close contact between students and their teachers and fellow students, problems in or out of school can be noticed more quickly and dealt with. If, for example, a student's attendance is dropping, Martin says, "we can pick that up immediately, and find out what the problem is."

The role of the homeroom teacher as a student advisor is an important one, Martin adds. "They have to be willing to listen, and they have to have a sincere and abiding interest in kids."

Teachers in "ALE" have to "know how to walk the line" with a kid's personal problems, he adds: to know when to work with a student to work out those problems, but also when to call in outside help, as in the case of a suicide threat.

The interaction between the students is also important, Martin adds. A troubled youth, placed in a class with 15 or 20 others with similar class and home problems will think, "hey, I'm not the only one," he says.

The program has had its failures.

"It doesn't work for everyone, admits Martin. About five percent of the students who enter "ALE" end up leaving with no apparent improvement."

But the successes are numerous, too. Of last year's 44 graduates, 15 are attending two- or four-year colleges, some of them at schools like Boston University or Boston State. One of this year's seniors was doing so well in class she is taking some courses this year at Quincy Junior College.

But Martin says, one of the bigger successes came on Nov. 1, when several hundred Quincy High and Vo-Tech students walked out of classes, claiming support of their teachers in the then-unsettled contract negotiations.

"Our kids didn't go," said Martin. They saw themselves as being in more control than those who did go, which made us feel good."

Goliath Crane Key To GD Tax Case

Comer explained the reasoning behind the "average of three years" law.

"What would happen if all of a sudden I raised the valuation on your home and property from $10,000 to $15,000?" he says. "You don't like it so you appeal."

"Why should you have to pay the tax on the extra $5,000 to me while the case is being decided? The state allows you three years in which to build up your resources to pay it."

"If my $15,000 proves right, then you have to pay the difference. If not, then you get it back. General Dynamics is no different than a home owner under the law as to paying taxes."

Comer sets no figure on what the city may win or lose on the General Dynamics case because the appellate tax board could set the valuation at any figure less than $20 million, even less $12 million, if it sees fit.

Much of the decision will revolve around the Goliath crane. "Sure, the crane is movable," says Comer, "but we're saying it is so allied to the base that it is real estate. If you took that crane and moved it from the yard there would be no yard."

"We're going to come in with our best experts and they're going to come in with theirs and the appellate tax board will decide."

Robert Gorrill Photography Exhibit At Main Library

Robert B. Gorrill, a Squantum photographer, is exhibiting his work in the Main Hall Gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center through January.

Gorrill is a member of ASMP (American Society of Magazine Photographers), IPNE (Industrial Photographers of New England), PSA (Photographic Society of America) and the South Shore Camera Club.

He operates the Robert B. Gorrill Photographic Workshops, a continuing series of workshops in various areas of photography which are offered throughout the year. He owns The Bob Barry Studio which is involved in school photography from Cape Cod to Vermont and specializes in pre-school through elementary school pictures and offers senior portrait services and prom pictures as well as team pictures, family portraits and groups, weddings and functions.

His exhibits have included three previous ones at the Thomas Crane Public Library and last year in the ASMP group show at Boston City Hall Gallery. Works have also been included in various PSA world wide exhibits in Hong Kong, Taiwan, Scotland, England and the USA.

The 54 photographs on display include color and black and white taken in 1978 and 1979. Gorrill's photos have appeared on the covers of the Globe Magazine, the Herald Magazine, in The Quincy Sun and the Patriot Ledger, and in various books published by Ginn & Co., Houghton-Mifflin Co., and to illustrate articles for Dynamic Years Magazine in recent months.

Pollard School Sixth Graders Celebrate 'Colonial Day'

Fifty students from the Thomas B. Pollard School's sixth grades, celebrated "Colonial Day" recently by dressing up in colonial costumes and participating in other day-long activities.

The day began with Bible readings in each classroom. Colonial chores such as silver polishing, wood chopping and floor scrubbing followed.

Students then prepared a colonial feast consisting of New England beef stew, homemade bread and butter, cranberry sauce, and apple crisp, and milk.

During the school day, students experienced life in a colonial school. They were addressed by their teachers as "masters" and "mistresses" and participated in a spelling bee.

They recited multiplication tables in rote fashion, and made their own "hornbook", the colonial equivalent of a textbook, which was worn around a child's neck like a necklace.

The students spent recess playing colonial games such as leap frog, hoop and stick, hop scotch, jump rope, and marbles.

The day ended with the construction of colonial paper dolls, dioramas and miniature villages which exemplified dress, furniture and architecture of the period.

Both students and teachers enjoyed the day, even those who were made to wear a dunce cap and sit in the corner. All were glad to return to the 20th century.

Sixth grade teachers supervising the Colonial Day activities were Marcia McCarthy and Stephen Cantelli.

Students participating were:

Cheryl Abbood, Sandra Benson, Jean Brandt, Roberta Burns, Janice Carroll, Lisa Chase, Maureen Doherty, Robert Ellis, Ann Erskine, Robert Fitzgerald, Steven Grant, Robert Hodges, Sandra Jones, Josephine Maher, James McNeil, Michael Minichello, Richard Norman, Michael Paolini, Steven Perdios, Alfred Perez, Michael Pugliese, Katherine Ryan, Kevin Wynn, Sang Chul Yoo, Renee McFadd, Paula White.

Presidents Defeat Weymouth N.

Quincy 8-1 Going Into North Game

The Quincy basketball team, rolling merrily along with an 8-1 record and just two points away from an unbeaten season, played North Quincy last night (Wednesday), will host Weymouth South Friday and Brookline Tuesday, all at 8 p.m.

The Presidents were home for only two of their first nine games but have three in a row at home, starting with last night's North Quincy game. They are unbeaten on the road.

Joe Amoroso's Presidents, led by Brian Donovan, who had one of his best games, defeated Weymouth North, 60-51, Friday night, rolling to a 23-9 first period lead and still holding a 38-24 advantage at halftime.

Quincy let down a bit after the intermission, but after Amoroso jumped on the Presidents for their defensive lapses, they came back and buckled down.

"I'm not too pleased, but at the same time, Weymouth North is a good team," said Amoroso.

"They played good defense and caused us to make many mistakes. We just didn't play all that well. We have to be more disciplined than we showed tonight. At halftime the players just sat around the locker room thinking they had already won the game. We can't do that against everyone."

It was the second win for Quincy over Weymouth, having defeated the Maroons, 54-50, to win the Christmas tournament at Hingham.

Donovan, one of the leading scorers in the Suburban League with a 16 a game average, scored 17 points and had a big night off the boards. Stan Benson had 11 points and nine of Quincy's 11 players scored.

Earlier in the week Quincy had defeated Waltham, 71-60, with Donovan having an outstanding second half and Ritch Finnegan, Andy Carrera and Scott McDonald turning in fine floor play.

The Presidents led, 30-25, at the hall, but Waltham cut the gap to 45-52 after three periods. Quincy then exploded for 26 last period points. Donovan scored 15 of his 19 points in the second half. Benson had 17 points.

Finnegan, Carrera and MacDonald had 11 assists and six steals and held Waltham's backcourt to only 11 points. Steve Priscella scored 11 points and had nine rebounds.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity defeated Weymouth North, 79-68, Friday to make its record 4-2.

Peter Papile scored 18 points and P. J. Fay and Shawn Burnes 10 each. Gary DiNardo, usually the high scorer, turned to playmaker and had numerous assists in addition to scoring six points.

Earlier in the week the jayvees had their worst night of the year and lost to Waltham, 53-29, as everything went wrong for them.

Papile was the only Quincy player to hit double figures with 10 points.

North 65, Waltham 49

Raiders With 6-3 Record

The North Quincy basketball team, with a 6-3 record, faced Quincy last night (Wednesday), will play at Brookline Friday and at Brockton next Tuesday, all games starting at 8 p.m.

Ed Miller's Raiders last Friday jumped out to a 32-25 halftime lead and went on to defeat Waltham, 65-49.

Mark Millane, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League with a 16 a game average, had another big night with 21 points and Rick Keenan added 19.

North exploded for 21 points in the second period after trailing, 13-11, after one period. Bill O'Connell scored 12 points and took down seven rebounds, while Millane also grabbed 10 rebounds in addition to his 21 points.

Earlier in the week North had lost to Newton North, 63-48, as Newton erupted for 24 points in the last period. The Raiders led at the half, 26-24.

Millane had 16 points, O'Connell added nine and Paul Gill scored eight.

Vic O'Leary's two foul shots with five seconds to play gave Paul Bregoli's North junior varsity a 54-52 win over Waltham Friday night. The win evened the Raiders' record at 4-4.

O'Leary, a 6-3 junior, had 24 points, hitting on nine of 11 shots from the floor and six of six from the foul line. Jack Brown had 15 points and big Chip Bunker had 15 rebounds and five blocked shots, giving him 11 blocks in the last two games.

Earlier in the week North rolled over Newton North, 62-44, with O'Leary scoring 19 points and having five steals. Brown and Steve Belcastro scored eight points apiece. The entire team played strong defense.

Bregoli has been getting every player into every game.

STEVE CONNOLLY of Quincy, a senior guard, is playing regularly for the Curry College basketball team (6-2), which plays in the Salem State College tournament Jan. 5 and 6. Connolly was a standout at Quincy High.

Relay Team Leads Quincy Swimmers

The Quincy swimming team's 400-yard freestyle relay team of Brian Burns, John Swanton, Bob Lavigne and Joe Lynch took first place to lead the Presidents to their first win of the season, 86-79, over Waltham last week.

Quincy's Bob Grant, Mike Rollins and Lynch swept the diving competition, Rollins won the 50-yard freestyle, and Lavigne won the 100 freestyle.

Coach Amy Chessia's Quincy team will swim at Apponequet Friday and Tuesday will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool, both meets starting at 3:30. Next Thursday the Presidents will host Blue Hills, also at 3:30.

Quincy, North Girls Square Off

The Quincy and North Quincy girls basketball teams met yesterday (Wednesday) for the first time this year, both teams hoping to rebound from losses last Friday.

Friday the Quincy girls will play at Weymouth South and Tuesday will be at Brookline. The North girls will host Brookline Friday and Brockton Tuesday. All games will start at 3:15.

Barbara Webster's Quincy team dropped a 57-40 decision to Weymouth North, dropping its record to 4-4, while Weymouth improved its record to 5-1.

The First Ladies trailed, 26-15, at the half and could not recover. Maureen Maher and Maureen Walsh scored eight points each.

Brian Tilley's North girls, who had been coming along well after a slow start, lost to Waltham, 52-48, last Friday.

The Raiderettes bowed despite 16 points by JoAnne Runge. Sophomore Mary Ellen Timmins scored seven points and had seven rebounds, and Cheryl Ayles had eight points.

Boys Bow To Brockton

Raiderettes Win 5th

The North Quincy girls' track team continued its surprising streak last Friday with a 57-29 win over Brookline to improve its record to 5-0.

The Raiderettes will face Weymouth North Friday at 5 p.m. at Northeastern University. Next Wednesday the North girls will meet Brockton at 7 at Newton North High School.

The Raiderettes won all but two events in romping over Brookline. Mary Kate Kennedy was a double winner, taking the 50-yard dash in 6.4 seconds, the best time in the Suburban League this year, and the high jump.

Robyn O'Donnell won the two-mile with Deirdre Corrigan second, Mary Crehan won the mile with Mary MacDonald second, Deirdre Donovan was second in the 300, her 40.1, equalling the best in the league until Brookline's Marie Underwood won in 38.7. North's Elaine Robertson was third.

Unbeaten Michelle Millane won the shot put with Donovan and Ann Gorczyca completing a sweep. Lisa Cavanaugh and Marguerite Ladas were 2-3 in the 600. Linda Kennedy won the 1000 with Gorczyca third. Loretta Garrigan won the hurdles and Kara Crehan placed second to M. K. Kennedy in the high jump.

The North Quincy boys lost to Brockton, 48-38, for their first loss in six meets. The Raiders will meet Weymouth South Friday at 7 at Northeastern and next Wednesday will meet Newton North at the Newton track at 5.

For the Raiders Jack Leone won the high jump at 6-2 1/2, a school record, Lou DiPietro won the shot put and Bob Biagini took the hurdles. The relay team of Kevin Wood, Mike Ellis, Steve Mastroilli and Joe McDonald also won.

Mike Ricciuti was third in the mile, McDonald second in the 1000, Ellis second in the 600, Wood second in the 300, and third in the high jump. Gary Morin second in the two-mile, Mastroilli second in the dash and Steve McEachern third in the hurdles.

Earlier in the week North had defeated Boston English and West Roxbury in a non-league tri meet, scoring 57 points to 30 for English and 21 for West Roxbury.

North winners were Morin in the two-mile, Ricciuti the mile, Walt McConaghy the 1000, Biagini the hurdles, Leone the high jump and DiPietro the shot put.

Wood had seconds in the 300 and high jump, Arif Shahabuddin took second in the mile, McDonald third in the 1000, Mastroilli second in the dash and Bob Poind third in the shot put.

Quincy doesn't have a boys' winter team and the Presidents' Roy Higgins, who works out with North coaches, won the 600 in the excellent time of 1:17.4 Higgins is allowed to run for North in non-league meets.

Higgins finished fourth in the 300 with a 3:27 timing in last week's State Coaches Meet at Harvard.

Papile Assistant Coach At B.U.

Quincy's Leo Papile is in his first season as an assistant basketball coach at Boston University.

Papile coached the O'Brien Club of Quincy for five years, winning the New England semi-pro championship twice, and was head coach and general manager of the Quincy Chiefs of the former Eastern Basketball Association.

A graduate of North Quincy High and U Mass-Boston, he also served as a consultant for the Continental Basketball Association while an assistant coach at Suffolk University.

In 1977 Papile started the Boston AAU basketball team for high school players and led it to the qualifying rounds of the AAU Junior National Championships every year. Last May his team hosted the Russian Junior National team.

Among his duties at B.U. will be recruiting players from the Boston and New England area.

North Swimmers Ahead Of Last Year's Pace

Coach Bill Walker's North Quincy swimming team had a 5-6 record last season and is ahead of that pace this season with a 4-2 slate going into last Tuesday's meet with Waltham.

The Raiders won't swim again until next Thursday, Jan. 24, when they host Don Bosco at 6 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

Senior Ed Melanson, who has broken numerous school records, and junior Billy Boudreau are the team's co-captains.

Walker has a young squad with eight seniors, nine juniors, 10 sophomores and nine ninth graders.

The other seniors are Brian Chamberlain, Richard Farmer, Robert Farmer, Joy Feeny, Steinar Forsthei, Steve Pike and Dennis Foley.

The other juniors are John Buckley, Tim Burke, Paul Chamberlain, Dave Dindy, Billy Feeny, Dave Riley, Paul Herrold and Mike O'Toole.

Jones, Paul Melanson, Jamie Pansullo, Sean O'Brien, Paul Phipps, Robert Stone, John Wallace and Jay Williams.

Ninth graders are Jimmy Adams, Ernie Bortolotto, Jim Boudreau, John Costello, Billy Dearing, Bob Dunn, Ed O'Reilly, Ralph Santosuosso and Frank Scanlan.

"This is the best team time-wise I've ever coached at North," said Walker. With the addition of Donald Stoughton as assistant coach, the team has progressed much faster than I could have possibly had hoped for at the start of the season."

The Raiders lost their opener to defending Suburban League champion Newton North in a close meet, then defeated Blue Hills, Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Brookline. The win over Brookline was the first since North started swimming five years ago.

Last week undefeated Brockton proved too strong and handed North a 97-7 setback.

Melanson broke his own school record in the 500-yard freestyle and also won the 200-yard individual medley.

Melanson bettered his year-old record by more than five seconds, with a time of 5:01.57.

Andrews won the diving competition, Riley took second in the 100 freestyle and third in the 200 freestyle and Boudreau took second in the 100 breaststroke and third in the 200 individual medley.

The Raiders bounced back Friday to defeat Newton South, 95-77, as Melanson, Bill Feeny and Buckley were double winners.

Melanson won the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly, Feeny won the 100 backstroke and 400 freestyle and Buckley took the 500 freestyle and swam the last leg for the swimming relay team. Pike won the one-meter diving.

"This is the best boys' team I have coached at North and I feel we are capable of beating any team I hope we can place at least 10 boys in the state tournament," Walker said.

Melanson To Compete In Moscow Meet

North Quincy's swimming team will be without the services of top swimmer, Co-Capt. Ed Melanson, for the Suburban League championships and the regional tournament, but Coach Will Walker is happy for his record-breaking star.

Melanson, along with two Randolph High girls, Lee Ferrante and Patti McNamara, are among 20 teenage swimmers and divers who will leave Feb. 9 for Moscow to swim in an international meet.

The three-day meet is scheduled to start Feb. 14 at Moscow's Swimming Palace and the trip will take 10 days, meaning Melanson should be back in time for the state and N.E. tournaments.

The South Shore trio are members of the New England Barracuda Swim Team, which was invited to take part in the international competition.

"As of now, despite the deterioration of relations between this country and Russia, the State Department says we're still clear to go," said Jay Mogavero, coach of the Barracudas.

Needless to say, Melanson, a North Quincy senior and holder of many school records, is eagerly looking forward to the trip.

"We're not too sure what to expect," he said. "We just want to do our best. They told us to expect to see some world record holders from East Germany. I've been told that those countries have a few really good swimmers in each event, but then they start to drop off. I'm just working very hard for it and I'm aiming to do well."

"Ed is a very good distance butterfly swimmer," North Coach Bill Walker said. "He's not a real good heavy sprinter, but at 200 yards or longer, he's very tough in those events."

"How well he will do depends upon the competition. If they are up against Russia's best, everybody on the team will get killed. But I would think they'll be up against another club of real good swimmers. These kids are some of the best swimmers in New England."

Quincy Wrestlers Run Record To 8-0

The undefeated Quincy wrestling team ran its record to 8-0 with two victories last week and will host Durlie of Fall River tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at the Vo-Tech gym.

The Presidents will be at Brockton Saturday at 6. Next Wednesday they will be at Plymouth-Carver at 6.

Carmen Mariano's Quincy grapplers raced over Weymouth

South, 42-6, in a meet postponed earlier, as Paul Orlando and Al DiVincents remained unbeaten. DiVincents is 8-0 and Orlando 7-0-1.

Also winning for the Presidents were Peter Connolly, Ed Ryan, Joe Souza, John O'Leary, Jim Silcox, Mark Picot and Jeff Heath. Dave Silcox and Greg Oriola were losers.

Quincy earlier topped Weymouth North, 31-14, bouncing back after losing the first three matches. The Presidents went on to win six and draw in another.

North Matmen Win 7th

host Newton North Saturday at 6 o'clock and next Wednesday will be at home to Weymouth South at 6.

The Waltham meet was tied at 21-21 going into the last two matches and John Gorczyca (188) and Steve Kallenberg (heavyweight) pinned their opponents to give North the victory.

Also winning for the Raiders were John Sweet, Steve Sweet, Gino Pillard, Dave Howley and John Coughlin. Greg Therrien, Glen Collins, Chris Butler, Jim O'Hare and John McNamara lost their matches.

It seems hard to believe, but the National Football League championship game one year was played on a field that was only 80 yards long instead of 100-and despite such a short field, there was hardly any scoring! ... The title game of 1932 was scheduled for Chicago, but a blizzard came, and officials moved the game inside to an arena where the longest they could make the field was 80 yards... The Bears won 9-0, with oddly enough, only one touchdown and one safety scored on that short field.

At Youth Arena

Quincy Seeks 7th Against Newton-North

The Quincy hockey team, sparked by the highest scoring line in the Suburban League, is still on top of the league and takes a 6-2 record into Saturday's 6:40 p.m. game against Newton North at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Next Wednesday the Presidents will meet North Quincy for the second time at 6:40 p.m. at the Youth Arena.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team, led by the all-senior line of Robbie Craig, Tom Brennan and Scott Richardson, which led the league in scoring last year, came from behind in the final minutes to edge Brookline, 5-4, last Friday.

The Craig-Brennan-Richardson line accounted for nine points and once again is far and away the league's top scoring line with 47 points. Last year it scored 89 points.

Craig, the league's number one scorer, scored his 11th and 12th goal and Paul Flynn had one. But it was Richardson's goal that tied the score at 4-4 with 2:13 left in the game and Bob Currier won it with 1:43 remaining.

Quincy had taken a 3-1 lead but Brookline scored three unanswered goals to take a 4-3 lead.

"We had to win this one," Sylvia said. "With Weymouth North, Brookton, Brookline and us all within a game of each other, we couldn't afford to lose. If we had lost it, it would have been devastating. In this league, one of the best balanced around. I don't know if we could have recovered. It would have meant we had to go 6-2 over the second half of the season to make the tournament."

Earlier in the week Quincy had bowed to Weymouth South, 4-2, with the big line accounting for both Quincy goals. Brennan the league's No. 2 scorer, and Craig scored in the second period to tie the score at 2-2, with John Baylis assisting on both. Weymouth scored twice in the final period.

"The credit had to go to Weymouth in the last couple of minutes," Sylvia said. "They just didn't give us a chance to get untracked and school was out after their fourth goal."

A bright spot for the Presidents was the return of defenseman Chick Milford for his first game of the season. "He's a very versatile player and it helps to get him back," Sylvia said.

PRESTON CARROLL of Quincy recently won his fourth varsity football letter at Northeastern University. He stood out in the Huskies' defensive backfield after being moved from the offensive backfield. "Preston will be missed," said Coach Bo Lyons, former North Quincy great, "as one of the finest all-around players we've had here in the last 10 years." Carroll, who will be the Huskies' starting centerfielder in baseball, led the team in interceptions last fall with four, returning them for 61 yards.

North Downs Waltham For First League Win

North Quincy's hockey team, which captured its first Suburban League win last Saturday, played Brookton yesterday (Wednesday) and next Wednesday will meet Quincy for the second time at 6:40 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Kevin Lewis' young Raiders, after five league losses in a row, defeated Waltham, 3-1, Saturday as goalie Bob Tierney turned in his best game of the season and this defense was outstanding. North is 3-6 overall.

Waltham took a 1-0 lead early in the second period but North's Mark Andrews tied it up later in the period with Rick Reinhardt assisting.

In the third period the Raiders' top scorer, Tom Gerry, scored his seventh goal in the league with Leo Graham, who played an outstanding game, having an assist. This goal came at two minutes of the last period and Bob McHugh scored into an open net with 42 seconds left. Gerry assisted.

"The defense did an excellent job," Lewis said. "Andrews, Bill Bradley, Bill Collins, Tom Hannon all played well. Mike McNeice also played a fine game and Paul O'Sullivan did an excellent job of killing penalties."

Kevin Jago's North junior varsity tied Waltham, 3-3, for its first point of the season.

David DiCarlo, a ninth grader, had a goal and an assist and sophomore Billy Nee and junior Jim McGuinness each had a goal. Shawn Cunningham, another ninth grader, played well in goal.

Koch Club Ends Men's, Women's Bowling Tournaments After 26 Years

The annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney and South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney will not be held this year, announces Richard J. Koch, executive director of the sponsoring Koch Club of Quincy.

Koch cited the increasing cost of bowling as the reason for discontinuing the annual events. The majority of the teams entered supported expense while a few highly competitive teams have dominated the championship matches in recent years, he said.

A sizeable entry fee would have been required this year to offset the additional expenses.

The Koch Club's concept of direct or indirectly sponsored activities emphasizes the participation and enjoyment factors first with the competition aspect secondary.

The Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney was sponsored by the Koch Club for the past 26 years, starting at the former Norfolk Downs Alleys in 1954 with eight leagues sending their top five bowlers to the competition.

As the tourney expanded, it moved to the Merrymount Daylight alleys in the 1960s and the Wollaston Boulevard Bowldrome in the 1970s where 42 teams competed last year.

The South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney originated in 1956 with eight teams entered and followed the same progress as the men's counterpart with continued expansion and 30 teams involved in last year's rolloff.

More than 3,000 men and 2,000 women participated in the winter recreation program sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy for the past two and a half decades.

The two programs were the oldest consecutive candlepin bowling competitions in the area preceding the surge of bowling interest in the 1960s and its TV popularity in the 1970s.

Central Throws Scare Into Sterling

By PETE ZOIA

Central came within a whisker of handing Sterling its first defeat of the season last week but fell short, 55-54, as Sterling improved its record to 8-0.

Sterling led, 55-50, late in the game but Central scored four points as time ran out.

The first quarter was even at five-all. Sterling went ahead, 21-15 at half time. Central still not blown out as previous Sterling opponents. This even pace continued during the third chapter with Central edging Sterling, 12-11.

Superb playing by John Purland, Tim Ryan and Bob Mudge in the last period almost pulled the game out for Central, outscoring the winners, 22-18. This was the finest competitive game played to date.

For Coach Jim Snodgrass' Sterling five, the highest scoring went as follows: Jeff Timberlake, 10 points; Andy Fames, nine; Paul Gilbody and Kevin Riggs eight each; and Mark Righini, seven. Purland topped everyone with 20 points for Central. Tim Ryan had 12 and Bob Mudge eight.

The Central Junior Varsity won over Sterling, 26-12, shutting out its rivals in the last quarter. Bob McLanely had eight and Nunzio Carboni six for Central. For Sterling, Brad Hart and Gary Mianassian managed four each.

Playing host to Atlantic, Sterling had a fairly easy time winning, 64-43, for its second win of the week.

A first quarter spurt of 23 points ruined Atlantic's chances as it only could muster eight on the scoreboard. Sterling made it a 25-point margin at halftime, 39-14, thanks to the sharp shooting of Mark Righini, Paul Gilbody, Jeff Timberlake and Kevin Riggs. Atlantic held its own the last two quarters but the damage had been done with Sterling remaining unbeaten with eight wins.

Top scorers for Sterling were Gilbody with 15, Righini and Timberlake, 14 points each and Riggs, 11. For Atlantic, Pete McGillicuddy was high with 11 points, and Mike O'Hare had eight.

The Atlantic Jayvees

continued their winning ways by a 37-18 score. Their eighth victory came through the scoring efforts of Jeff Stryker with nine, and Dennis Cronin and Steve Hogan with six points apiece. Paul Kenney scored nine points and Brad Hart five for Sterling.

Atlantic split for the week, defeating Broad Meadows, 59-43, B.M. led, 11-4, at the first period mark, but Atlantic's McGillicuddy and O'Hare held hot hands in knotting the count at 21-all. The third chapter saw Atlantic forge to a 39-29 lead, through the excellent shooting of O'Hare and Jim Whitehouse.

B.M. had a smooth attack until Mark Prescott got in foul trouble. Prescott had 12 points when taken out with four fouls in the second quarter. He managed six more before he committed his fifth foul partly into the last period. Atlantic sewed the game up with a 20-point final frame.

Chief scorers for Atlantic were McGillicuddy with 18, closely followed by O'Hare with 17. Prescott's 18, and Mike Williams' 11 featured B.M. scoring.

Atlantic Jayvees were on top with a 30-13 win. Chris Bunker plunked in eight points for the Northmen, while Tony Cascarano scored seven for B.M.

Central also played .500 ball for the week, taking Point in tow, 58-49. A healthy 27-16 half time lead for Central enabled it to play its opponents even for the remainder of the contest registering its sixth win against two losses.

The main scorers for Central were Bob Mudge with 19 points, Purland with 11, Tim Ryan, nine, and John Purland, eight. Topping all scorers, Sal Lorenzano had 21, Chris McCray 12, and Rick Coscia nine for Point.

In the highest scoring junior varsity game to date, Central bombed Point, 60-20. Both teams used their entire squads. For Central, high scorer was Jack Bolster with 10 points, aided by Mike Bates with nine, and Nunzio Carboni and Paul Ryan with eight each. Tommy Travers topped all scorers with 12 points for the losers.

Cheney Says Hospital Should Remain Municipal

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"We provide hospital care for a lot of senior citizens. In the past few years this community has built housing for senior citizens. We should provide the health care facilities to accommodate them."

"I wonder why we are the ones who seem to provide that sort of patient care for senior citizens when the surrounding communities do not. I'm concerned about that."

But Cheney said he welcomes the formation of the Blue Ribbon Commission.

"Any time you get citizen participation it is a step forward," he said.

"I think that perhaps this group will recognize that the Board of Managers does have a lot more authority than is currently recognized in the community."

"It has been decided that we are just an advisory group. I suggest to you that it's not true. We have a little bit more power and authority than Mr. Fleming will recognize."

City Solicitor Robert Fleming ruled last summer that the hospital is a city department under the Mayor and that "the capacity of the board is pretty much advisory."

"Mr. Fleming and I disagree on that wholeheartedly," said Cheney. "I intend to pursue that."

John J. Kane, an officer of the Shawmut Bank and a member of the board of the Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, was elected chairman of the Blue Ribbon Commission. He lives at 153 Atlantic St., North Quincy.

Daniel J. Driscoll of Dedham, who was once employed by the Quincy Planning Department and is now director of the Neponset Health Center, was named secretary.

Other members of the unpaid commission include Dr. John M. McGowan of 13 Presidents Lane, Dr. Gerard L. Gaughan of 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, John Nigro of 245 Winthrop St., Arnold Levine, 150 Plymouth Ave.

Atty. Thomas M. Barron of 48 Summit Ave., Wollaston, was named to the commission by Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. as a replacement for Robert L. Blair, who said he could not fit the job into his schedule.

The Commission decided that it will meet again Monday, Jan. 21, at a time and place to be announced later, and will attend the Board of Managers meeting at the Hospital Tuesday, Jan. 22.

Nigro was assigned to attend last Tuesday's meeting of the Corporation of Quincy City Hospital, mostly to discover the function of that little known body of hospital trustees.

DeFalco explained that when the city took over the hospital in 1919 the "corporate body was retained for the purpose of handling endowment funds that were invested at that time."

"That is its only function," he said.

Several members of the commission indicated some directions in which their studies may proceed.

Dr. Gaughan expressed a desire to look into trends in capital outlay at various community hospitals but Director DeFalco had the figures right at his finger tips.

"We have averaged $250,000 a year for the last 10 years," he said. "Other hospitals with a 400-bed capacity spent an average of $1.2 million a year in that time."

"In other words, we should have been spending $1.2 million per year which we have not been spending."

Kane read a long list of things he thought the commission should look for at the hospital and once again DeFalco told him that he would have that information for the commission on Tuesday morning.

The guidelines for the commission state that it should report its findings and recommendations back to the City Council three months after its appointment, or about April 1.

"That's a monumental task for such a short time," said Barron.

"All we can do is our best," said Kane.

months, including vandalism, trash problems, allegedly slow maintenance and a large number of vacant units.

"One common theme was that more cooperation was needed among tenants in taking care of rubbish and other problems," Rev. McCarthy said. Other responses said tenants should take more "personal responsibility" for the quality of their apartments, he added.

Many QHA tenants thought the level of maintenance provided by the authority was insufficient, Rev. McCarthy said. However, maintenance work is slowed down by the need to repair frequent acts of vandalism and an insufficient number of workers, Rev. McCarthy claimed.

Some tenants expressed the wish that their utility expenses be paid by the QHA.

"This cannot be done at the present time because of the lack of DCA funding," Rev. McCarthy said.

The authority was scheduled to discuss the results of the survey at its Wednesday night Jan. 16 meeting, scheduled for 5:30 p.m. at St. Boniface Church Hall, Shedd St., Germantown.

Teens Topic At Atlantic Center

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center announces the beginning of a discussion series presented by Pam Slater, a clinical psychologist from the South Shore Mental Health Center. The opening session "How to Talk and Listen to Teenagers," will be Thursday Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the center, 245 Atlantic St., North Quincy.

It is designed to provide the opportunity to learn about what works well in communicating with teens and what doesn't. All parents are invited. For further information on programs at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center contact Mary Travers or Carol Peterson, 773-1380.

'Good To Be Here'

LaRaia Pl Wishes He

New City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia pledged his full cooperation to the Council Monday night, even though he said he felt the Council was something less than cooperative with him during his turbulent two years as mayor.

"It's good to be here," he said in what appeared to be a policy statement by an elder statesman during a lull in the Council meeting.

"I intend fully to cooperate to lend my advice when you think my advice is going to be helpful, even if my advice may not be appreciated by you.

"Hopefully, we'll have a very successful two years."

LaRaia indicated that the city would not be facing the financial problems that beset it today if the Council, then headed by current Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, had been more helpful to him with his programs.

"Two weeks ago," he said, "the Mayor had his day and I concur with some of his thoughts because we entertained many of those proposals.

Those were hard decisions and I'm sorry to say that some of them were either scuttled or delayed."

One of the decisions, he said, was to cut back on city personnel with a "no-hire, no-fire" policy and another was to reduce some of the services provided by the city.

Cites 'Duty To Voters'

Anselmo Says He'll Stay On School Committee

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School Committee member Frank Anselmo has thought over his threat to resign and now says he won't.

"I will be at tomorrow night's (Wednesday) meeting," Anselmo said, "with a sense of duty and honor for the thousands of people who voted for me." He expects to remain on the committee, he added.

Anselmo, 81, walked out of the committee's Jan. 7 organizational meeting after being passed over in the vote for vice chairman—a post he has never held in his 18 years on the board.

Christopher Kennedy, beginning his second four-year term on the committee, was elected vice chairman on the second ballot with four votes, two for Mary Collins and one for Anselmo. Member John Sullivan, who had voted for Anselmo on the first ballot, switched on the second to give Kennedy the necessary majority.

Before that vote, Anselmo had sent letters to his fellow members saying he would resign unless elected vice chairman. The mayor, by law, serves as chairman of the committee but another member is chosen vice chairman to preside at most meetings.

The next day, Anselmo said he would take "a few days, maybe a few weeks" to decide whether to stay on the board. Since then, he said, "A lot of people told me they wanted me to remain on the school committee."

None of his fellow committee members have approached him to talk him into staying, Anselmo said, although after that Jan. 7 meeting Kennedy, Sullivan and Mayor Arthur Tobin said they would.

"I have accomplished what I set out to do," Anselmo said of his brief retirement. "It was the only way I could publicize that the (vice chairman's) position is awarded not on the basis of seniority or ability, but on the basis of political influence.

"It's all political trading and wheeling-dealing . . . and you might say I've been discriminated against," he said.

When asked to explain, he said "Use your imagination, put yourself in my shoes and analyze the makeup of the committee."

Anselmo also threatened to resign from the committee in January, 1976, when Sullivan was elected vice chairman.

Hearing Feb. 20

Upland Rd. Extension Seen Hotel Guarantee

By TOM HENSHAW

"Completion of the Burgin Parkway (Upland Rd.) Extension as outlined now," said the Rev. Bedros Baharian, "I think will guarantee a hotel with all that it means in downtown Quincy."

And what a hotel means to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin is a boost in tourism along with function rooms to bring people into downtown Quincy and "make things happen in this city."

Tobin announced Monday that a public hearing will be held Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock School on the proposed design of the Burgin Parkway Extension.

The extension will extend from Routes 3 and 128 to Granite St., giving people traveling north on the Southeast Expressway access to downtown Quincy for the first time.

"It is probably the most important thing that is happening in this city right now," said Tobin. The Mayor also announced he has decided to go through with construction of the parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St. despite the fact it is not fully covered by the federal grant.

He said he has not yet decided how the additional money, an estimated $280,000, will be obtained.

The Burgin Parkway Extension hearing is a key step in a project that Rev. Baharian, who is citywide development coordinator, says has been in the "dream stage for eight years, the planning stage for two."

The proposals that will be dealt with at the hearing include:

- "Construction of a North-South Arterial Street from existing Thomas St. Burgin Parkway (formerly Upland Rd.) at Granite St. to Center St. and to a proposed interchange with Route 3.

- "Also included is the proposed Granite Parkway Connector," which will extend from Granite St., intersect with the Extension and continue into the Ross Parkingway.

McCauley $10,908 For Council

Tobin Spent $23,143

To Win Second Term

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin spent $23,143.90 to win re-election to a second term last November, according to financial statements on file in the election office at City Hall.

He raised a total of $51,702.22 for the campaign against Abe M. Ikin, which, added to $5,057.22 left over from previous campaigns, gave him a balance of $28,558.32 when the campaigning was done.

Ikin spent only $400 of his own money on the printing of cards and handbills.

Tobin explained that most of the money was raised ($50,052.22) and spent ($17,557.22) early in the campaign when the names of a number of political heavyweights were being mentioned as possible opponents.

State law requires that election campaign financial statements be filed in three installments -- the first eight days before the preliminary election, the second eight days before the general election and the last on Jan. 10.

Francis X. McCauley, who topped the list for councillor at large, spent $10,908.43 and was left with a balance of $1,019.44.

Another big spender was Richard J. Koch Jr., who laid out

Fabrizio Appeal Decision Expected Next Month

A decision is expected in about a month on Hugo P. Fabrizio's appeal from his dismissal as a member of the Quincy Board of Assessors in October, 1978.

The case was heard in the State Appeals Court in Boston Wednesday, Jan. 16.

Fabrizio, who was appointed to the Board by former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, claimed that the reasons for his dismissal by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin were improper.

He also claimed that he was denied due process and that he was libeled by Tobin in newspaper articles written about his dismissal.

The case was later dismissed in Norfolk Superior Court and Fabrizio appealed.

Blue Ribbon Panel Questions QCH Hiring Practices

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Blue Ribbon Commission studying Quincy City Hospital took a look Monday at the board of manager's hiring practices - which one commission member called "100 percent political."

"My point is, it's a very political board," said Atty. Thomas Barron. He noted the mayor appoints the nine hospital managers, who are responsible for approving the appointment of the hospital administration.

"That's 100 percent political," he said.

Dr. Russell Irons, president of the QCH medical staff, said the hospital managers were not consulted on such appointments and served merely as a "rubber stamp."

"The (nominations) were picked downtown and sent to the board of managers to be OK'd," he said.

"When it comes to medical expertise, they have none," Irons said of the managers.

Commission member Dr. Gerald Gaughan said "the interviewing for these important positions was not done at the hospital, it was done at City Hall."

Daniel Driscoll administrator of the Neponset Health Center asked Irons whether advertisements are placed or applicants recruited for administrative posts.

When Irons said "No,"

THOMAS BARRON

'That's 100% political'

Driscoll said "I think that says something. Not even an organization the size of mine would do that."

Members noted there was confusion over who actually is in charge. City Solicitor Robert Fleming ruled last summer that the mayor has final legal responsibility for running the hospital and that the board of managers is merely an advisory board.

"I don't know if you've ever been on an advisory board," said commission chairman John Kane, "but it's like kissing your sister."

Kane said committee members have expressed interest in studying the following topics and questions:

- Structure and management - who does the hiring and firing?
- Personnel practices - are applicants sought through recruiting and advertisements?
- Cash flow - are the hospital's 'bad debts' written off or left on the 'accounts receivable'?
- Capital expenditures - is enough money allocated each year for hospital capital expenditures?
- Health care - who makes decisions on health care matters?

The committee will probably set up a schedule devoting a series of meetings to each topic and invite experts in the various areas, he said. The commission, formed earlier this month by the city council, has been directed to report back to the council by early April.

Driscoll wondered "how literally we want to take the city council's mandate to study 'any and all problems' relating to the hospital management."

"They pay people hundreds of thousands of dollars to do that," Driscoll said. "That's not a three-month project, that's a three-year project."

Gaughan agreed and said he thought the city council was expecting advice from the commission on whether the hospital should be kept a municipal facility, sold or leased.

"I think that's something that we could manage in a three-month period," he said.

Fore River Dredging Hearing Set

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will hold a public meeting Thursday, Feb. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Braintree High School on a proposal to dredge a channel in the Weymouth Fore River for recreational boating.

The channel would be six feet deep and 100 feet wide where it joins the main ship channel in Quincy, tapering to 60 feet wide at the Quincy Ave. bridge in East Braintree.

It is estimated that the 8,000-foot long channel past the Metropolitan and Braintree Yacht Clubs would cost $400,000, to be borne equally by federal and non-federal interests.

Possible Merger Study

Quincy YMCA To Manage Weymouth Y

The Quincy and Weymouth YMCA's have entered a three month cooperative "management agreement," with an eye towards a possible merger of the two facilities.

The Quincy Y's board of directors Monday unanimously approved the management agreement, which will result in Quincy staff members being assigned to the Weymouth Y to manage operations and activities until April 30, according to Quincy Y president Morris Hibbard.

The two organizations will study a merger during that time.

Hibbard said, "but that's quite a ways down the road."

The management agreement may be renewed by April 30, he said, "but what I'm not saying is that there will be a merger in April."

The Weymouth Y has no executive director and its last full-time employee left Jan. 14.

"They're a small Y and they had a study done that showed it might be best for them to join up with a larger Y," Hibbard said.

Services and activities at the Quincy Y will not be affected by the management agreement, he added.

City Council Moves To Streamline Its Rules

The City Council is moving to bring order and efficiency to -- the City Council.

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. brought in a resolution Monday night calling for the Council's Rules Committee to review and update the rules of the Council.

Then one by one some of the councillors rose to enunciate their pet peeves with the rules.

With Lydon, it was late receipt of the agenda, which does not allow the councillors time to look into its contents.

"Ordinance changes and financial orders should not be a last minute presentation," he said. "I feel a two-thirds vote of the Council should be required to bring in a late order."

"I consider it the City Council's agenda, not the Mayor's."

With Councillor Daniel G. Raymond it was the plethora of committees of the whole, that is, committees on which all nine councillors serve. There are seven of them.

"The Finance Committee, perhaps when it's dealing with the budget," he said. "The Public Works Committee, perhaps because ward councillors have problems they'd like to be involved in."

"But all the others would be more efficient if they were smaller, say limited to five members. We're spread too far across the field right now."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley seconded Lydon's frustration with late filed orders and added a twist of his own.

"Things not only come in at the last minute but they have the notation that midnight is the deadline for Federal funds and if we don't vote for it it is gone," he said.

"One rule we ought to take a good look at," he added, "is this 'point of information' business. It is used as a device to get the floor. When someone wants to interrupt a councillor he simply rises to a point of information."

Some Good News

Mild Winter Holds Down City's Snow, Ice Costs

Until freezing rain turned city streets into ice skating rinks one day last week, Quincy's bill for snow removal -- or "snow and ice" as it's called in the budget -- appeared to be heading for a new low.

As of Jan. 16, thanks to the almost negligible amount of snow that has fallen this season, the Public Works Department still had $95,000 left in the snow and ice account out of $127,461 that was appropriated in the budget.

The $127,461 is the token sum allowed by state law to be appropriated in anticipation of the coming winter. If there are severe snowfalls, the city spends as it needs to and charges the overspending to next year's budget.

"We overspent last year," said City Auditor Charles L. Shea, "but we had a surplus in other accounts to cover it so there was no carryover into this year's budget."

Last year, snow removal and kindred functions cost the city $394,804, not including $143,966 spent in capital outlay for sidewalk bombardiers, or $267,343 over the token appropriation.

In 1977-78, the year of the big January and February blizzards, the city spent $1,001,837, while the winter of 1976-77 cost Quincy only $98,686, the lowest in recent years.

The ice storm that had highway crews out sanding and salting for the better part of the day started as a freezing rain about 3 a.m. Thursday morning.

By the time commuters got out in large numbers the ice-covered streets were un navigable and for more than an hour the Southeast Expressway was shut down as minor accidents piled up.

A pregnant Newton woman, Mrs. Arlene Wieland, 24, was trapped for a time in a car after an accident on Route 3 near the Furnace Brook Parkway exit. She suffered minor back and leg injuries.

The MBTA buses couldn't get on the road until 7:30 a.m. and then only on runs from Germantown and Houghs Neck. Commuters from other sections had to wait even longer.

Rail service on the Red Line was unaffected, except that many MBTA employees had difficulty getting to their jobs because icy conditions made walking all but impossible.

City Hospital treated a number of injuries received in falls on the slippery pavement.

Some 1,600 homes in West Quincy went without electricity for an hour and 20 minutes early Thursday evening when the weight of the ice took down wires.

Quincy students, like most in surrounding communities, got the day off as schools were closed for the day.

State VFW Commander Thomas McDonald To Be Honored

Thomas McDonald of North Quincy, State Veterans of Foreign Wars commander, will be honored at a testimonial dinner and reception Saturday, at the Chateau DeVille, Randolph.

McDonald, who was elected state commander last June, is a resident of 24 Vershire St., a 32-year member of the George F. Bryan Post VFW of Quincy and a letter carrier in the Quincy Center area.

A 1941 graduate of Quincy High School, he joined the Navy in 1942 and spent 36 months in the South Pacific until a lung infection ended his part in World War II. He spent six months in Chelsea Naval Hospital before being discharged as a motor machinist mate in 1946.

A member of the Bryan Post board of directors, he is also a former commander and trustee. He was elected state junior vice commander in 1977 and senior vice commander in 1978, as well as holding numerous other posts.

He and his wife, the former

THOMAS M. McDONALD

Natalie Haley of Quincy, have three daughters.

Members of the testimonial committee are Chairman Henry Williams, Bryan Post Commander, Roy Lupino of Avon, District 5 senior vice commander, Gordon Crosby of Medway, past District 5 commander and Carl Iacello of Braintree, District 5 commander.

Brian Faherty On Dean's List

Brian P. Faherty of Quincy is on the dean's list at New Mexico Highlands University.

To qualify for the dean's list undergraduates must have taken at least 14 hours of classwork with a grade point average of 3.5 or higher. Graduate students must have carried 12 hours and maintained a GPA of 3.85 or better.

Msgr. John Mullarkey Honored At Mass On 80th Birthday

Monsignor John Mullarkey of West Quincy's St. Mary's Parish recently took part in a concelebrated Mass at the church marking his 80th birthday.

Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's and Bishop Daniel Hart of the Boston archdiocese also took part in the Mass with Msgr.

Mullarkey, now in his 55th year in the priesthood.

Born Jan. 16, 1900, Msgr. Mullarkey graduated from Quincy High School and received all sacraments at St. Mary's.

After graduating from St. John's Seminary in Brighton, he celebrated his first Mass on June 7, 1925. He was first assigned to St. Joseph's Church in the West End of Boston while also serving as professor at Emmanuel College.

He served for many years as head of the Charitable Bureau in Salem, and was assigned to parishes in North Plymouth and Lynn before retiring from full-time duties in 1975.

He now lives at his family's home, 98 Crescent St., West Quincy and frequently assists in ceremonies and duties at St. Mary's.

Shipyard Draftsmen End 16-Week Strike

Draftsmen at General Dynamic's Quincy shipyard overwhelmingly approved a new contract Monday night, ending a 16-week strike.

The 39-month contract includes a total 21 percent increase, spread over three years and increases in other benefits, according to Philip Wolfe, president of Local 151, International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers. The union represents 60 draftsmen and 10 technical workers at the shipyard hospital.

Draftsmen approved the contract 42-2, while the hospital workers voted 8-0 for the new deal, Wolfe said.

Most of those workers were back on the job Tuesday, although they have 15 work days to return to work. This is because many employees sought jobs elsewhere during the lengthy strike, Wolfe said.

"I think most of them will be back, too, he said.

"It certainly is a relief to have this thing settled," Wolfe said. "We think it is a decent package. The wages, we think, are good and the fringes are average."

The contract calls for raises of eight percent in the first year, seven percent in the second and six percent in the third.

Other features of the deal include a 50-percent increase in the company's payments to the pension fund, "decent" improvements in medical insurance and the addition of Good Friday to the list of full holidays, Wolfe said.

"It's the best we could have gotten under the circumstances, with this company," Wolfe said. "We would have liked to have gotten more, or we would have liked to have gotten this same contract before the strike. We think that should have been possible."

With sincere appreciation --

In a time of crisis such as we faced with a fire in our main banking office Tuesday, Jan. 15, it is amazing and comforting to see the magnificent work of professional services, city and private, to help get things back to normal as soon as possible.

As a fire, in terms of damage, it was relatively minor. It was a fire in a locked storage room where we had clerical supplies such as envelopes and paper. But the real damage from the fire was due to the fact that the telephone main line into the building ran through the storage room and a part of our electric service was in the area, too. And being a paper fire, the smoke was tremendous and venting a cellar without windows was most difficult. But with hard work all around we opened Wednesday morning on schedule.

We are truly grateful to many, many people and services to make this miracle possible.

To the Quincy Fire Department for a quick and efficient stop and then working so carefully to help clean up the mess caused by the fire. Just a small but important touch: the firemen put down pieces of canvas where hose couplings rested on carpeting. To Chief Barry, Deputy Rourke and their men for working under conditions that required oxygen masks to approach the fire area.

To the Quincy Police Department for its prompt and helpful service with officers to guard the bank when all doors had to be open—and then making it possible for us to hire officers for all night service.

To the New England Telephone Company whose service crews worked all night to get a basic service operational for Wednesday Morning—and then carrying out the difficult task of restoring full service.

To Irving Potter and his Potter Electric Company for getting electric service back before the stricken area had cooled down.

To Massachusetts Electric for its services.

To David Leitch, Vice President of Burgin Platner Insurance Co., his concern and help, particularly getting professional cleaning and deodorizing services in quickly.

To our good neighbor Paul Hurley and Hurley Insurance Company for giving our staff a warm place to stay when we had to close down the bank during the fire.

To another good neighbor, the Bargain Center, for allowing us to use their telephones.

To a third good neighbor, President Charles Pearce of Quincy Savings Bank, who came to us at the height of the fire offering us all possible service and help.

To those wonderful cleaning services: Servicemaster Company which worked far into the night to clean and remove the odor of fire from our main banking quarters; to Suburban Contract Cleaners who do our regular cleaning for their good work—and their boss man Glenn Pratt in his business suit wielding a shovel in the fire area to give a big assist to the cleaning; and to Suburban Disposal Service for getting a "Dooley" in place quickly for the disposal of the burned materials.

To Tom Barry, down our hallway, owner of Ship Haven Restaurant, for providing a continuous flow of food for the hard working crews.

To Randy Rucker, Maintenance Superintendent for The Faxon Trust, our landlord, for his hard work in the cleaning process.

To Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company for its help.

To all those we may have missed in this listing, our appreciation.

And to our own staff people who were nothing short of wonderful. They were cool and efficient and no one panicked. Some of our people remained on the job through the night to help with the restoration work. We owe a special thanks to Paul Ilacqua, a high school student, who works for us part time. He came to work Tuesday (Jan. 15) to operate our shredding machine, when he opened the storage room door where the shredder is located, and found the fire. He rushed to the nearest alarm box in the hall nearby and sounded the alarm. Vice President Ron McKee, Assistant Vice President Carl Abramson and Assistant Treasurer Robert E. Foy spent the night in the building with the service crews. Pat Jones, Director of Marketing, was in at the crack of dawn to tape messages at WJDA, reporting the restoration of services.

With all this great assistance we opened on time with regular services.

It is a truly moving experience to have so much help, so much concern and so much goodwill from those who could and did help us. We are sincerely grateful to all.

Jewels & Gems
by Stan Manin
For centuries, people have enjoyed draping themselves in all sorts of jewelry. Early jewelry was made from whatever was visible and happened to catch the eye. As a result, pretty stones, shells and leaves adorned many an early body. We really have not come too far from those days of being attracted by pretty objects. We still favor beautiful stones when it comes to wearing jewelry. We just dig deeper in the earth to find them and spend more time polishing them than people used to do. We'll spend whatever time you need to help you select a stone you'll like. Come to see us at GRONO & CURSTILL, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 for all your jewelry needs. For someone not familiar with jewelry, knowing and having confidence in your jeweler is of utmost importance. See us for Valentine's Day gifts. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

Koch Club To Plan Its Role For 1980s

An advisory committee of district directors, leaders and other officers of the Koch Club of Quincy will meet next month to discuss the organization's direction in the 1980s with an evaluation of existing programs.

The Koch Club, founded in May, 1948, by Executive Director Richard J. Koch, started as an intramural softball program of 30 young men. Its popularity peaked in the 50s and 60s with many youth activities providing wholesome recreation programs for thousands of boys and girls.

Unique in its philosophy of enjoyment first and competition second, the prime requisite was active participation by every member in all activities including the baseball, basketball, bowling and softball programs conducted throughout the year.

Koch said the purpose of next month's meeting is to insure continuity of those programs that serve the community in recreational, charitable and scholarship in a specific need and the possible elimination or consolidation of others.

The Koch club has discontinued its sponsorship of the Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Journey and South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Journey this year following 26 and 24 consecutive years of programming.

The Koch Club has four geographical locations with districts in North Quincy, Broadmeadows, Montclair and West Quincy providing baseball and softball for 1,000 boys and 700 girls during the spring and early summer each year.

Major events scheduled by the Koch Club for 1980 include the 29th annual Flag Day parade to be held on Saturday, July 14 and the 33rd annual family picnic will be held on Sunday, July 13, at Pageant Field, Merrymount Park.

BOILED MILK NOT FOR DIARRHEA

Three infants were rushed to a Massachusetts hospital in critical condition. Two of the children later died. The cause - feeding boiled milk to babies with diarrhea.

According to physicians, the danger in this common home remedy is that it upsets the body's water-salt ratio. Babies suffering from diarrhea normally lose large quantities of water. This cuts the ratio of water to sodium, and other salts in their bodies. Boiled milk, particularly boiled skim milk, pushes this ratio down even further, exposing the infant to the danger of high-salt dehydration. Milk has this potentially dangerous effect because it contains substantial quantities of sodium and other salts, which are further concentrated by boiling.

Milk is normally an excellent and healthy food for infants. But it should not be used boiled, as a treatment for diarrhea. Pediatric specialists recommend clear beverages, Jell-O water and cola or other carbonated beverages at room temperature.

Be Careful. Warns Dealer

Not All Glitters In Booming Gold, Silver Market

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Now may be the time to unload that gold or silver item that you don't need and don't really want.

But proceed carefully, advises Mark Bertman of Rogers Jewelry, Quincy Center, whether you're selling an old ring, a dented set of silver candlesticks or Aunt Minnie's old silver service.

The skyrocketing price of precious metals has sent many amateurs into the market. Some may make themselves a bundle, while others may be "taken" by less-than-scrupulous dealers, he says.

First of all, according to Bertman, people should consider selling only those items they don't want.

"We're talking about goods that have no use whatsoever; you haven't used it in 15 or 20 years, you're not planning to leave it to anybody, you can't be bothered polishing it."

"I don't think I would sell anything with sentimental value either, because people would be kicking themselves later," he adds.

Once they decide to sell an item, Bertman says, people should realize that the $700 to $800 per ounce gold prices quoted in the newspapers "has no relation to what they'll be getting."

Those prices are for 25-karat-pure gold. Someone selling a 14 karat piece might receive 58 percent of the pure gold price, less the expense of refining the piece back to pure gold, less the dealer's "markup", Bertman says.

So, the going rate for someone selling a 14-karat item might be closer to $200 per ounce than $800, he says.

"Someone will see in the papers that gold is going for $800 an ounce, bring in a ring that weighs maybe one gram and get mad when they find out it's worth $9 or $10."

Most jewelry dealers like Rogers are interested in gold and silver only for "melt" - selling them to dealers who will melt them down, refine them to pure gold or silver and sell them to manufacturers of other products.

If an item has any artistic or antique value, the seller should have it appraised by an antique shop, where the prices could be much higher.

"Someone came in the other day with a set of silver candlesticks. The 'melt value' was $140, but I told her that anyone selling antiques would pay three times that."

Bertman advises potential sellers to deal with a reputable, long-established business, rather than the type which tend to spring up during any sort of crisis or unusual economic situation.

"Some people are never satisfied with what's legitimate," he said, referring to a newspaper report of dealers in the New York area cheating customers with inaccurate scales.

Bertman stressed that the silver and gold situation is both confusing and "very, very volatile. The price could go up or down $50 an ounce by this afternoon," he said.

"I don't understand it myself," he admitted. "Traditionally, the price of gold has been about 15 times the price of a barrel of oil. Back when oil was $2 a barrel, gold was $30 an ounce. When oil was $4 a barrel, gold was $60 an ounce. Now oil is about $30 and you would expect gold to sell for about $450 an ounce, but it's about one and a half times that, ($700-$800)."

The cause of the recent run on gold and silver is a mystery, he admits, and industry talk blames it on anyone from the Ayatollah Khomeini to Texas oil barons to the Russians.

Whatever the cause, Bertman says, those who are both wary and lucky may be able to make a killing.

"A woman came in Friday with a sterling silver service for eight. She had paid $300 for it and she said she hadn't used it in 10 years. She walked out of here with $1,440. She says she's going to redo her bathroom with it."

Bertman addressed residents of 1000 Southern Artery on "Old Gold and Silver" Monday.

Ciampa, Donahue Re-elected At Huntington, Longwood Hospitals

Two Quincy residents were re-elected officers of the Huntington General and Longwood Hospitals at the annual meeting of the board of trustees.

Arthur Ciampa of 409 Adams St., was re-elected vice-president and Joseph A. Donahue, 82 Crabtree Rd., Squantum was re-elected treasurer of both hospitals.

Ciampa, who is executive director of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc., previously served as secretary of the board and is also chairman of the hospital's membership committee. He is also a member of the board of trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Donahue, who is chairman of the Funds & Investment Committee of the Hospital, is an architect with offices in Quincy. He is also assistant treasurer of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc.

The Huntington General Hospital complex which includes two hospitals provides medical and surgical care to patients in a community hospital setting.

QHA Members Split On Choosing New Plasterer

A vote on the appointment of a permanent plasterer for the Quincy Housing Authority has caused a minor rift among authority members.

Members Edward Graham, Lolita Harris and Rev. William McCarthy voted for Richard Ojala of Holbrook.

Ojala was appointed to the position over the objections of Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio and member Alfonso Papile, who supported Richard Ceriani of Braintree.

Ceriani had been filling the plasterer vacancy on a temporary basis for a year and a half. He was recommended for appointment to the permanent post by a unanimous vote of the Harborview Residents' Committee's screening committee, by superintendent of maintenance James D'Olimpio and QHA administrator Clement O'Brien.

"It is inconceivable to me that the board should outweigh all of these recommendations," said Carmine D'Olimpio.

Papile added, "I don't know how anyone can sit here and say Bob Ceriani is not the most qualified man."

According to Rev. McCarthy, the deciding factor was that of variety of qualifications.

"Both men are very qualified," he said. However, the post was advertised as involving plastering, masonry and ceramic tiling, he said.

While Ceriani was an "excellent" plasterer, Ojala was skilled in all three fields, Rev. McCarthy claimed.

Nine persons, none of them minorities, applied for the post.

Abatement Pleas Up On 4-Unit Apartments

The owners of some 50 apartment buildings of four-units or more whose assessments were raised recently have filed for abatements on their 1980 tax bills.

Chief Assessor John P. Comer said this is more than the usual number of abatement requests that are filed by the 800 to 900 owners of such buildings.

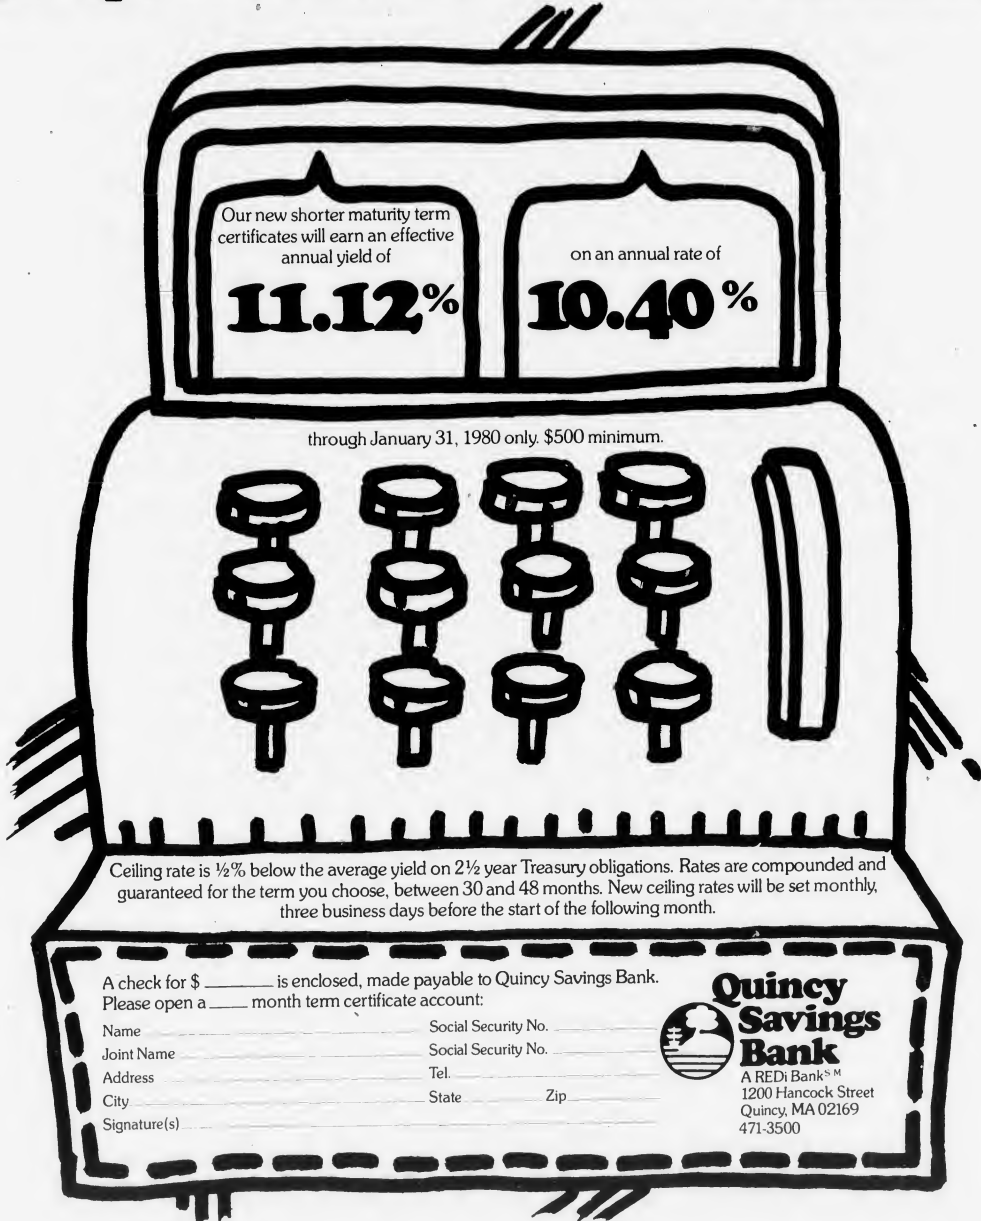

"It is income property so the income is the whole thing when we consider abatements," said Comer.

"If their income claims hold up, they will get the abatement. But sometimes when we run spot checks of tenants we find they are paying at a different rate than the owners claim."

Comer said requests for abatements on four-family buildings are being put in a special pile so that they can be reviewed immediately and gotten out of the way.

Other abatement filings are running about the same as in previous years, he said.

Kennedy's Quincy Supporters Plan To Organize Jan. 31

Supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for President will meet Thursday, Jan. 31, at 7:30 p.m. in Montello's, Quincy Point, to set up an organization for Quincy.

Democratic State Committee-woman Kathleen O'Donnell said the meeting is open to the public and representatives of the Kennedy campaign office in Boston will be present.

Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) is the Kennedy coordinator for the senatorial district plus the town of Randolph.

Miss O'Donnell said there will be a meeting Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Braintree Town Hall to explain the process of selecting delegates to the Democratic convention.

Supporters of each Democratic candidate for the presidency will hold caucuses for the 11th Congressional District on Sunday, Feb. 10, at places and times to be announced later.

Each candidate Kennedy, President Jimmy Carter, and California Gov. Jerry Brown is expected to have a slate of seven delegates plus alternates.

Letters of intent to serve as delegates if chosen are due to be filed with the Democratic State Committee by Monday, Feb. 4.

Harold Bill Seeks Prompt, More Detailed City Reports

A bill filed by Sen. Paul Harold would require cities to publish their annual reports within 90 days of the end of the fiscal year.

The bill also would include salaries of top city officials and property valuation lists in the annual reports.

A loophole in the present law requires towns to publish annual reports, but not cities, Harold said. As a result, many cities publish them so late they are of little use to citizens, he claimed.

Quincy's last annual report, covering the period from July, 1977 to June, 1978, was released in September, 1979.

Besides the traditional reports of city departments and agencies, Harold's bill would include the mayor's budget requests, actual appropriations and the salaries of elected and top appointed city officials.

Every third year, the owner, address and assessed value of real estate property in the city would also be included in the report.

"The taxpayers have a right to all of this information, and to have it reported to them promptly and accurately," Harold said. "The tendency in Quincy, and perhaps other cities, to be a year or two late with the annual report does a disservice to the people who are paying the bills and whose money is being spent."

Brownell Bill Would Repeal Income Surtax

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has filed legislation to repeal the state's 7.5 percent surtax on personal income.

"The time has arrived to make Massachusetts a more desirable and attractive state in which to live and work," he said. "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts expects a surplus of state funds this year and the continuance of a surtax on personal income would be regressive. We must make this state more competitive."

The surtax became law in 1975 when the state faced a fiscal crisis. There is a great deal of evidence to suggest that the surtax is no longer needed, Brownell said. He urged all citizens to contact their elected representatives for repeal.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

Dentists do not just take X-rays of teeth and jaws as an exercise in futility. X-rays are used in a responsible manner as a valuable diagnostic tool. They are especially useful in situations of major damage. For instance, the condition of root canal filled teeth and other deep restorations can be determined. X-rays can also determine if extra teeth are present, whether roots are fractured or solve a mystery about particular sensitivity to pressure. The best possible dental care means responsible use of X-rays.

When you need dental care, visit the office of Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square. Dr. Sweeney provides routine dental care for persons of all ages—from the very young to Golden Agers. He also fits, adjusts and repairs dentures. Keep your dental costs down by having regular dental checkups! Call our office at 698-3636 for an appointment. Dental insurance plans are honored.

DENTAL X-RAY: X-rays can be used to investigate root and sinus involvement.

Rose Ann Cunningham-Riley General Services Worker

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, for Mrs. Rose Ann (Sullivan) Cunningham-Riley of Quincy, an employee of the General Services Administration, who died Jan. 19 at Carney Hospital, Dorchester.

A native of Chelsea, she lived in Quincy for eight years.

She leaves her husband, John S. Riley; a stepson, Michael J. Riley of Dorchester; and brother, Patrick Sullivan of Quincy; and a sister, Mrs. Rita Rooney of Woburn.

Donations may be made to the Kidney Transplant Dialysis Association, Boston.

Lucy E. Dyer, Nova Scotia Native

Funeral services were held yesterday (Wednesday) for Mrs. Lucy E. (Poole) Dyer, 89, of Quincy, who died Sunday at City Hospital.

The services were conducted at the Mortimer N. Peck Funeral Home, Braintree, by Rev. John Banks of Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy.

A native of Nova Scotia, she had lived in Quincy for 15 years.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Margaret J. Perry of Quincy; a sister, Marjorie Barnes of Rockland; four grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandson.

Burial was in Maplewood Cemetery, Rockland.

Catherine Crowley, Retired Teacher

A funeral Mass was held Tuesday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount, for Mrs. Catherine (Brady) Crowley of Quincy, a retired Boston school teacher, who died Jan. 19 at her home.

A native of Sandwich, she was buried in St. Peter's Cemetery in that Cape Cod town.

She leaves her husband, James H. Crowley of Quincy; three sons, James H. Jr. of Annapolis, Md.; Robert T. of Milford; and John R. of Woburn; four daughters, Mrs. Louise Siteman of New York, Mrs. Aileen Kelly and Mary Crowley, both of Quincy and Sister Kathleen Crowley of the Sisters of Charity, Halifax.

Interfaith Vigil For Hostages At First Parish Church Feb. 10

An interfaith vigil for the American hostages in Iran will be held at United First Parish Church, Quincy, Sunday, Feb. 10 at 4 p.m.

The vigil would mark the eve of the 100th day of their captivity.

"The purpose is to provide an opportunity for the people of Quincy to come together to express our sympathy, empathy and concern over the plight of the hostages," said Rev. Keith Munson, minister of United First Parish Church.

The vigil is sponsored by interested clergy in Quincy at the request of Rev. Munson. All are welcome to take part.

A candlelighting ceremony will be conducted by Rev. John Foley of St. Ann's Church, representing the Roman Catholic community. A special choir is being formed from the Congregational churches.

Rev. William Underhill will present prayers as a representative of the Episcopal churches and Rev. Charles McEachern will lead the vigil in prayers as a representative of the Baptist churches.

Rabbi David Jacobs will represent the Jewish community and will read Old Testament scriptures. Mrs. Irene Larrington will read New Testament selections and represent the Christian Scientists. The Presbyterians, Lutherans, Evangelical Covenant and Unitarians will all be represented.

All clergy have been invited to assemble at 3:45 p.m. for a robed processional at the beginning of the service.

The purpose of the vigil is to provide an opportunity for the people of Quincy to come together and express their sympathy, empathy and concern over the plight of the hostages.

Pastoral Music Workshop At St. John's Church

The South (Brockton) Liturgy Committee and members of the Music Committee of the Archdiocesan Liturgy Committee will sponsor a pastoral music workshop Sunday, Jan. 27, in St. John's Church hall.

The workshop will be held 1:30-5 p.m., and will feature Rev. Paul Rouse, music committee chairman, and Ken Meltz, Paulist Center music director.

Schedule for the workshop will be: registration, 1:30-2 p.m.; opening songfest, 2-2:15 p.m.; ministry of the Pastoral Musician, 2:15-2:45 p.m.; discussion groups, 2:45-3:15 p.m.; coffee break, 3:15-3:30 p.m.; Setting Musical Priorities, 3:30-4:30 p.m. and vespers and closing 4:30-5 p.m.

Pre-registration is not required. For more information, contact Patricia O'Connor at 383-9361.

Goodwill Donation Trailer

On Granite St.

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries announces there is a donation trailer in the parking lot of the Star market supermarket, 130 Granite St., Quincy.

The bright yellow donation center is marked with the Goodwill name and symbol painted on the side.

An attendant is on duty Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to accept donations of clothing, housewares and small home furnishings. Every description of clothing is needed particularly suits, coats, dresses, handbags and usable shoes. Small electrical appliances, lamps, dishes, sporting goods, games, toys and small wooden furniture pieces are desired.

Goodwill emphasizes no materials should be left when the attendant is off duty. The attendant will give a receipt for tax education purposes, if requested. The trailer is locked when the attendant leaves, securing the merchandise from vandals and the weather.

'Christian Unity' Ecumenical Service At Bethel Beach Church

"Christian Unity" is the theme of an ecumenical service to be held Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at Bethel Beach Church of the Nazarene.

Three Roman Catholic and three Protestant churches of the peninsula district will participate.

The homily will be given by Rev. James Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck. Rev. Wayne Yerna of Bethel Beach Church will lead the call to worship. Rev. Daniel Allen of Adams Shore United Methodist Church and Rev. Richard Uffring of Most Blessed Sacrament Church will lead the responsive reading. The Bethel Beach choir will sing.

Rev. Gerald Osterman of St. Boniface Church, Germantown, will read the Scripture. Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church will also take part, along with Rev. George Carlson of St. Boniface, and Sister Carole Lombard, SSJ, representing Our Lady of Good Council Church, Merrymount.

An offering for Cambodian relief will be received.

January Is National Blood Donor Month

What good is a blood donor?

A blood donor is good for people who go through windshields and red lights. For somebody with leukemia. For people being operated on. For barfoot dialysis while waiting for a kidney transplant. For daredevils. For people undergoing poison. For little kids who manage to uncup a bottle full of something transfusion. For new babies who need a complete change of blood supply. For anybody any age with bleeding ulcers. For cancer patients. For people with a wrong time. For the very tired with severe anemia. For people who run into things. For people who are in a lot worse shape than most people you know.

Germantown Problems Aired Priests Criticize QHA, Tenants

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Quincy Housing Authority and some tenants got a stern critique from two priests invited to discuss problems in Germantown last week.

Rev. George Carlson and Rev. Gerald Osterman, both of Germantown's St. Boniface's Parish, delivered a mixed bag of observations to the authority and about 30 tenants and employees last week at the church. Not everybody liked what they heard.

"We observe that the maintenance in Germantown is under par," said Rev. Osterman. "The outside grounds—the streets, yards and doorways—are often horrendous."

The QHA's placement of dumpsters at various sites throughout Germantown "is not working," he added. Trash often overflows the dumpsters and blows about, he said.

Both the authority and tenants share the blame, the priests agreed.

"The tenants are not being held responsible in some situations," Rev. Osterman said.

Rev. Carlson said that, while tenants are supposed to pay for any vandalism or other damage they are responsible for, this often doesn't happen.

"On many occasions, when the tenant has caused the damage—no doubt about it, they admit it—and the repairs are done and they never are approached on paying for it," he said.

Rev. Carlson also posed questions on the QHA's eviction procedures.

"How often is it used, aside from nonpayment of rent? Why are some chronic troublemakers given new apartments?"

"Why are apartments often vacant for long periods of time, if housing is at a premium?" Rev. Osterman asked.

The Oceanview senior citizens residence was "drab," he added: "It needs a woman's touch."

"It's neat and clean, but it's just blah."

Summing up the complaints, he said, "We're not saying work is not being done. We're asking if the efforts can be directed more effectively."

Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio responded by saying many of the problems cited by the two priests are rooted in federal and state regulations and the authority's own lack of funds.

"There isn't a government agency or department anywhere that isn't looking for more money," D'Olimpio said. "Money is the name of the game and we don't have it."

As for some of the other complaints, he said, "They are all questions that could have been answered quite readily had you come to the authority, sat down with the administrator or myself and we could have shown you the regulations we are governed by."

Rev. Osterman responded, "It's not enough to say, 'Those are the rules, boys, what can we do about it?' Some of them need to be challenged and changed."

Vice chairman Edward Graham, a Shed St. neighbor of St. Boniface's Church, said he agreed with many of the priests' assessments of the problems in Germantown.

"I have seen some of the changes taking place and I'm not happy either," he said. Graham suggested a community committee, including representatives of St. Boniface's, tenants, the Housing Authority and, possibly, of Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, to study problems at the various Germantown QHA facilities.

On a related matter, authority member Rev. William McCarthy reported the early responses to a questionnaire sent to 550 families in the Germantown QHA housing.

Only 35 responses had been received so far, he noted.

Tenant James St. Angelis, representing the Harborview Residents Committee, noted that the questionnaires had been sent out in envelopes bearing the address of St. John's Church, of which Rev. McCarthy is pastor. This might have cut down the number of responses he said, since tenants may not have realized the survey was sponsored by the QHA.

This was done to save mailing expenses, Rev. McCarthy said. He reported the following responses to the survey questions:

Q—What do you expect from the Quincy Housing Authority?

A—Proper maintenance or upkeep, 26; That the QHA pay tenants' utility bills, 4; Proper security, 4; "Consideration of needs," 3; Control of dogs, 2; Control of litter, 1.

GERMANTOWN PRIESTS Rev. Gerald Osterman (center) and Rev. George Carlson of St. Boniface's Church discuss their "observations" of QHA Germantown housing with the authority last week.

Q—What should the QHA expect from tenants?

A—Respect for property, 25; Control own children, 3; Proper use of dumpsters, respect for each other, paying rent on time, one each.

Q—What do you like best about public housing?

A—Cost, 20; Convenience, 8; Maintenance, 5; "Tremendous view," 1.

Q—What do you like least about public housing?

A—Dumpster situation, 8; Public attitudes towards public housing, 5; Vandalism, 4; Poor maintenance, 3; "Illegal members" and cleanliness of fellow tenants, one each.

'Germantown Pride' Meeting Jan. 28

The Germantown Heritage Society invited friends and residents of the neighborhood to its next meeting to discuss ways to "turn Germantown around".

The meeting will be held at the Snug Harbor School at 7:30 p.m.

Monday, Jan. 28.

The society cites the general appearance of the area, vandalism and unfavorable publicity and hopes "priorities can be set and a plan of action for restoring Germantown pride can be set."

The election of the society's officers and the announcement of the Good Citizen Awards for 1980 will also take place. For further information, contact Harold Crowley at the Snug Harbor School, 471-0100.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Before The Sun

The big story was an attempted murder and suicide on Elm St. Joseph Massa, identified only as a French-Canadian just back from a visit to Marlboro and apparently deranged by unrequited love for Victoria LeFave, 18, shot her three times as she left church and then turned the gun on himself. She survived; he didn't.

The big ad was for Joseph S. Whall, apothecary, at 141 Hancock St.

He was pushing Whall's Compound Elixir Sarsaparilla, "the great blood purifier," at $1 a bottle.

Those little gems come from the March 18, 1893, edition of The Quincy Advertiser, a forerunner of The Quincy Sun, which recently took a place of honor on the wall of Planning Director James Lydon's office.

A friend of Lydon's mother spotted the 87-year-old newspaper at a flea market in Revere and, knowing Lydon's interest in the city, picked it up for a quarter. Lydon had it framed.

Another story tells of the fire in St. Mary's Hall on Willard St., West Quincy.

"Hose 3 responded to the alarm but the nearest hydrant at Hall Place was broken and was of no use," said the report.

The fire was doused by a bucket brigade.

The burning question of the day was where a new high school should be located.

The Advertiser was of the opinion that the issue should be postponed for two years since "by that time Quincy may be a little more out of debt and possibly flush in money."

The story is told with relish how Amy Robsart of the Boston Post journeyed all the way to Quincy to seek an interview with Dr. William Everett, the eccentric headmaster of Adams Academy. Of course, she failed because Dr. Everett never, never granted interviews.

Dr. G. R. England, the dentist at 14 Chestnut St., advertised that he was "connected by telephone" and Bussell's Photography Studio in the Adams Building offered a dozen fine cabinet photos for $3.

The Advertiser was one of a number of newspapers that have flourished in Quincy since 1837 when the first of them, the old weekly Patriot, was founded.

Fred F. Green edited The Advertiser from an office in Whicher's Block at 7-13 Temple St., which is where the Patriot Ledger stands today.

It was published from 1884 until 1914 when the last edition came off the press in January. It sold for a nickel.

There are undoubtedly a lot of people around Quincy who remember the Quincy Journal (1948-51) and the daily Quincy Evening News (1928-36).

But you're a real old timer if you can recall the weekly Quincy Enterprise (1920-22), the Quincy Transcript (1927) or the daily Evening Telegram (1909-27).

And hardly a man or woman is now alive who was a regular reader of the Quincy Merchants Bulletin (1911-15), the Quincy Leader (1903-04), the Quincy Monitor (1886-98) or the Quincy Aurora (1843-46).

And, if you don't remember or are new to the area, The Quincy Sun—now Quincy's only weekly—was founded in 1968.

WHEN QUINCY'S Eric Aronson scored 46 points to lead the Thayer Academy basketball team to an 84-66 win over St. Sebastian's, he shattered a record that had stood for 30 years. The previous high scoring mark of 38 points was shared by two: Robin Dixon, who did it last year and former Dist. Atty. George Burke who ran up 38 points against Lawrence Academy in 1950. Burke went on to become a Boston Celtics rookie.

Ironically, Aronson's father, Leon, an attorney and friend of Burke had invited the latter to an earlier game to see Eric in action. And, coincidentally, Art Valentin, now athletic director at Thayer, was a guard on the Thayer team with Burke and fed him the ball to help set up those 38 points 30 years ago.

TICKET REQUESTS for John Connally's scheduled appearance at a Chamber breakfast Jan. 28 were streaming in when Connally's Washington office suddenly pulled the plug without explanation. Over 400 tickets had been sold. The explanation was that Connally would be in Illinois that day. And, yes, he would be interested in appearing at a breakfast if he gets to Massachusetts.

SEN. PAUL HAROLD will be among those taking pledges over the phone during the "Five Hours For Life" telephone for leukemia research this Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Ch. 5. Harold will make his appearance on the telephone at 3 p.m.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: The IRS says, "the best flings in life are not free."

Council Resolve Asks Right Turn On Red In Wollaston

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. thinks it's ridiculous what's happened at the intersection of Beale and Adams Sts. in Wollaston.

"The last City Council," he said, "voted favorably to authorize a right turn on red."

"Then the state passes a law also authorizing the right turn on red. So what do they do? They make up put up a sign that says, 'No Right Turn on Red.'"

That's why he filed a resolve in the council Monday night to have the Traffic Commission study the feasibility of removing 19 "No Right Turn on Red" signs from intersections in Ward 3.

Lydon's resolve uncovered the information that the state put up the signs under emergency provisions without the authority of the city or town traffic commissions.

"Now," said Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington, "the state is seeking the approval of its actions from the local traffic commissions."

The state law permitting right turns on red was passed after the federal government threatened to shut off about $1 million in funds if the state refused to conform.

The state promptly spent some $400,000 to put signs at 90 percent of the intersections in the state banning the right turns.

"What has been done in this state is ridiculous," said Lydon.

"I think eventually throughout the commonwealth the signs are going to come down. This is just a start in Ward 3. It is time the city addressed the issue and started taking the signs down where they are not needed."

Councillor James A. Sheets said he was not sure that he could support a resolve that would "fracture the issue by having one ward so situated that we could make a right turn on red and the remainder of the city not so."

He suggested that Lydon withdraw his resolution and place the issue of removing signs all over the city in the Public Safety Committee for study.

"There's no hurry," he said. "All those signs do is tell us that we can't do what we could never do. I don't see where that creates a crisis anywhere."

Lydon said his resolve had already accomplished something in getting the Council to talk about the issue.

"I see the resolve as the instrument to start the traffic commission in addressing directly with the state to take down the signs where it is deemed proper," he said.

"Placing the issue in the Public Safety Committee is just a delaying tactic. I intend to start moving in Ward 3."

Lydon's resolution was sent to the traffic commission.

How Could Someone Do This?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Because of your paper's continuing concern for our community, we decided to write this letter.

For the past four years our family has assumed the task of raising and lowering the flag from the flagpole located on the top of Avalon Beach in Quincy Point. It is a responsibility we thoroughly enjoy - what a nice way to start and end the day by walking the beach and seeing the ducks and seagulls and sun dancing on the water. Of course, there are days through the winter when the East wind blows, when the walk to the flagpole is made very briskly. Seeing the flag wave on our beach gives a special joy to many people.

However, during these years, the rope has been cut and two years ago the flagpole, which had stood for 40 years, was toppled by kids swinging from it. Through the efforts of neighbors and officials in the City of Quincy, a new flagpole was erected and dedicated in November, 1978. But now another event has occurred. On Jan. 1, 1980, while the flag was being flown, someone again cut the rope and took the flag. The ironic fact is that we had not flown the flag in a few days because it was ripped.

We were waiting for a new flag, but in the meantime the old flag had been seen and repaired a few times. It has been so windy recently, we thought the flag would shred up. But New Year's Day was such a lovely, calm day, we decided to put the flag up to start our new decade. When we went to lower the flag - all that was left was the cut rope.

With all the concerns there are in the world today - this incident is a very small one - but it still hurts. How many times we have asked ourselves - How could someone do this? Why would they want to? We have no answers.

A Thank You To Those Who Aided In Emergency

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to express my thanks publicly to all who helped me through a recent emergency: the police, the fire department, the neighbors, who learned of my plight, and to my doctor, the doctors and nurses who staffed the emergency ward on Dec. 16, 1979, which happened to be a Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, and the hospital was the Quincy City.

Everyone who helped, in one way or another was superb, and because of their efforts my wife Al has another chance.

I called the police, 911, and then it seemed like minutes later, both the police and the fire department responded. The problem was that my wife could not breathe, and nothing I could do would relieve the situation. A nurse offered artificial respiration, but shortly the fire department gave her oxygen, and then moments later she was removed to the Quincy City Hospital in the ambulance. From then on the doctors and those in attendance took over, and gratefully she returned home in time for Christmas.

I cannot say enough for the police department, the fire department, the hospital staff and the doctors who acted so quickly and so efficiently. And to my neighbors, who responded so well and so quickly in my emergency. A simple thank you seems so inadequate, but I assure you all will be remembered in our prayers.

I would like Police Chief Furr and Fire Department Chief Barny to extend our thanks and gratitude to the men who performed their duties so well, and also our thanks for the comfort and the expertise shown to us by the Quincy City Hospital staff.

To all, we are extremely grateful.

Criticizes Sunbeams Column

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is amazing how your editorials continually hide how the "machine" in the City of Quincy works. I am referring to your "Kelly Blitkrieg" editorial. Everyone knows the "machine" has had control of the powerful council presidency for the past ten years! They were not about to lose control at this point. Knowing they could not put back their No. 1 yes man to the Presidency they settled for their No. 2 yes man, and handed him their 5 votes on the council. The rest was easy to round up, even for Mr. Kelly. This also keeps future Mayoral candidates from this powerful post and gives the present Machine Mayor a little edge ... lets give the credit to whom it belongs, instead of "ghost-writing" for the "machine"!!

Points To Ponder

- Albert Marks, the man who fired Bert Parks, had some other suggestions concerning the Miss America Pageant. He once suggested eliminating the swimsuit competition and the theme song which begins "There She Is, Miss America". It appears that Mr. Marks is 0 for 3 in the good idea department.

- The New England weather is doing its best to get the new decade off to a good start.

- The minimum wage was recently raised to $3.10; which means if you work every day for two months and save every penny, you can buy an ounce of gold.

- Western journalists have been ordered to leave both Iran and Afghanistan. With very little information coming to us, let's hope that old adage is true—No news is good news.

- If you want to put something away for safe keeping where no adult can get to it—try a medicine bottle with a childproof cap.

It takes 50 years to replace a forest destroyed by fire.

Bush Favors 3-Ocean Navy

"I like the concept of the three-ocean navy," said George Bush, the presidential candidate. "I think it's essential. I think we're going to have to turn around and work toward that concept."

It was just what his audience wanted to hear for they were members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, many of whom measure prosperity by the amount of work at General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

"I believe that one of the great mistakes of the Carter presidency was to delete most of the budget requests that President Ford had made for strengthening the United States Navy," said Bush.

"We face a difficult time in the defense business. People refer appropriately to a 'window of danger' in 1981 and 1982. Carter took out of the Ford budget many of the things that would keep us strong."

"As you look around the world today, the United States must be able to confidently project conventional force power, like a mobile three-ocean navy."

Bush, who was born in Milton and made his fortune in Texas oil, was the sixth in the series of presidential aspirants who have appeared at Chamber functions, this one a breakfast at Valle's in Braintree.

"I'm the only candidate on the Republican side that has a New England background," he reminded his audience, "and I know that we have regional problems here."

"The way to solve those problems is to encourage innovation, particularly in the energy field."

He said he favors tax credits to turn the region away from dependence on oil and to "low level hydro, wood burning, any kind of thing to encourage innovation and move away from the traditional sources."

Bush, who was once ambassador to the United Nations and envoy to Red China, said one of his prime foreign policy objectives would be to "turn around the decline in respect for the United States."

"A foreign policy must be based on keeping our word of honor," he said, noting foreign policy turnarounds in Korea, Panama, Africa and on neutron weapons that have embarrassed American allies.

"We don't have to threaten. We don't have to rattle the sabres. But the first point in regaining respect for America around the world is we've got to keep our commitments."

"And we've got to get off the back of the CIA and the FBI. We're in a tough world and we've got to protect sources and methods of intelligence."

"I am sick and tired of apologizing for the United States and making us feel we're an immoral country, wringing our hands about ourselves."

"Take a look at the fairness and decency and honor of this country compared to any other one."

There was one foreign policy question, however, that Bush refused to handle: What would he do if he became president and there were still 50 hostages held in the U.S. embassy in Teheran.

"I won't answer that question," said Bush.

"I was very critical of what Teddy Kennedy said about the Shah. I still feel it is proper to support the president of the United States as he tries to free the hostages."

Paint, Roofing, Insulation Program To Be Discussed

A meeting to promote participation in the Paint, Roofing and Insulation Program in the Southwest area of the city will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Southwest Community Center.

The program is funded through the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977, and enables eligible homeowners to have the exterior of their homes painted and provides assistance in roofing and insulation.

Owner occupants of one or two family homes are eligible if they meet income guidelines, and if their total assets (savings, bonds, etc) do not exceed $2,000 per family if under 60 years of age, and $5,000 if over 60 years old.

Councillor James A. Sheets recently appointed the following committee to promote participation in the program: Harry A. Johnson, Jean LaCoste, C. James Leone, Robert P. O'Leary and Belardino Pagnani.

For more information, contact program coordinator J. F. O'Brien, D.P.W. Building, 55 Sea St., Quincy, 773-1380, ext. 381.

Air Warden Posts Set Up In Wards

The Municipal Defense Council announced that air raid warden posts would be placed in operation in each of Quincy's six wards, with an extra one scheduled for the First Church in Squantum.

The other posts were set up in Central Junior High School, Ward 1; Daniel Webster School, Ward 2; Lincoln School, Ward 3; Willard School, Ward 4; Wollaston School, Ward 5; Montclair School, Ward 6.

Meanwhile, Harold M. Wilson, secretary of the Quincy Homeing Club, offered the services of 100 birds to the Municipal Defense Council as message carriers in time of emergency.

Wilson proposed that a message center be established in a loft in Quincy Square, from which point any place in the city could be reached by a bird in three minutes or less.

NO RAISES, SAYS MAYOR

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin told a delegation of teachers that he will not recommend a general pay increase for city employees in the 1942 budget, which was to go to the City Council in 10 days.

"Even at $100 a year that would be $150,000 a year or more than $1 added to the tax rate," said the Mayor. Teachers were seeking a 10 per cent wage hike with a pay plan based on 52 weeks instead of 40.

NORTH TOPS ABINGTON

Dick Gallagher had 14 points and Phil Conroy added 10 to lead the North Quincy High School basketball team to a 32-20 victory over Abington.

The Raider lineup included Conroy, Frizzell, Johnson, Seager, forwards; Gallagher, Reynolds, centers; Montgomery, Driscoll, Moodie, Creedon, Mansfield, guards.

DEMAND SIGN REMOVAL

Some city residents were demanding removal of the sign "QUINCY" that was painted on the roof of the Armory at the corner of Hancock St. and Furnace Brook Parkway, visible from thousands of feet in the air.

"Why should we point out our city to enemy aviators when the rule in this war is to mislead the enemy, not inform him?" asked one woman resident.

PARTY FOR SAILOR

Lawrence E. Babbitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Babbitt of 10 Braintree Ave., Adams Shore, was given a party by his sisters, Iram and Beulah, before he left for the Newport, R.I., Naval Training Station.

At the party were Claire, Ruth and Phyllis Sabean, Gloria McPhee, Joseph Fanning, Richard Walter, Robert Brothers, Lawrence DeCelle, Donald Babbitt, Mrs. Catherine Olsen, Mrs. Doris Andrews, Mrs. Hazel Snaith and William Rendle.

At Hancock-East Squantum Sts.

First Street Crossing Buzzer For Blind Installed

A little device, smaller than a transistor radio, can play a big role in making street crossings safer for blind persons.

That same little device, a street signal buzzer, is also capable of making a big racket.

The first such buzzer in the city was installed recently at Hancock and East Squantum Sts., North Quincy. The tiny speaker, placed atop one of the four signal poles, gives out a loud, 12-second buzz when the lights are in the red-and-yellow pedestrian phase.

The noise tells blind pedestrians it's OK to cross the intersections - one of the city's busiest.

Blind persons should still proceed carefully, said Edward Lynch, superintendent of the police general services division, which installed the buzzer.

"Someone could still run the light, just like before," he said. "They shouldn't take it for granted that it's safe now."

The buzzer was proposed by Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon, who was asked last spring by the family of a blind resident of the area what could be done to make the crossing safer.

Mrs. Condon, noting that six blind persons live within a few blocks of the intersection, proposed the buzzer system, already in use at some intersections in Watertown, Somerville and other communities.

Her idea first came before the city traffic commission last June and actually wended its way through the various city and state bureaucracies "quite expeditiously," she said.

The buzzer was finally installed early this year, Lynch said, at a cost of $100.

Already, Mrs. Condon said, she has gotten reactions from blind residents.

"They were very pleased," she said. "They want to know if we could place buzzers in other areas, like Quincy Center and Wollaston."

But the same loud buzzers may not be feasible in residential areas, she said.

"I imagine there might be some complaints," she said. "People tell me they can hear it down on the MBTA platform (about 100 yards away)," she said.

Because of this, Lynch said, the buzzer is timed to operate only between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Other safety signals, using softer tones instead of the loud buzzer, are available he said. However, they would probably cost more because installation would require the placing of different cables than those now used in city lights.

After a trial period, buzzers at other intersections might be considered, Mrs. Condon said.

Charles Pearce To Speak At Historical Society Meeting

Charles A. Pearce, president Quincy Savings Bank, will speak at the Quincy Historical Society meeting tonight.

His subject will be "The History of the Quincy Savings Bank".

Pearce's address will follow the regular monthly business meeting of the society which will start at 7:30 p.m. The meeting is open to the public. There is ample free parking at the rear of the Adams Academy building.

Pearce came to Quincy in 1967 when he was elected executive vice president of the bank. At the annual meeting in 1968 he was elected president. He has been active in local, state and national organizations. He is a past president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and is currently president of Progress Downtown Quincy, a non-profit organization structured to help improve conditions in the business community. He also serves as a director of many other organizations, including the Quincy Historical Society.

In the banking field he has

CHARLES PEARCE

served as president of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts and chairman of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Pearce will also discuss some of the changes that have occurred in the savings bank industry over the last few years.

St. John's Starts Rehearsals For Annual Musical Show

Rehearsals for St. John's Church annual parish musical show will begin in the school auditorium Sunday at 2 p.m.

All high school students and adults of the parish who feel they have some talent are invited to attend the rehearsals which will be held on a regular basis.

The popular Parish musical show will be presented March 28-29 at Archbishop Williams High School. This year's seventh annual edition is entitled "Showtime 1980 - a Musical Ride On A Train". The first half of the show will be in the style of an old fashion minstrel show. The second half will consist of appropriate song and dance routines on a make believe tour on a train. The show is under the direction of Frank Kelly.

Those interested in becoming show sponsors or patrons are asked to contact Mr. and Mrs. William Andrews, 87 Plymouth St., Quincy or by calling Fr. Joseph Connolly at the rectory 773-1021 before the Feb. 24 deadline.

The business and industrial community desirous of obtaining space in the program book may contact Fr. Connolly, Rose Kenney, Guido Calderara, Arthur Davidson, Richard Gentile or Duncan McLean.

Development Of American Film Course At QJC

"The Development of the American Film", an introduction to motion pictures, is a second-semester class at Quincy Junior College focusing on film making from the late 1940's to 1970's.

All students are welcome to take the second semester whether having taken the first part or not.

The course emphasizes different kinds of film: western, comedy, gangster, musical, social comment. Discussion will center on the significance of the film as a mirror of society, as well as an influence in changing customs. Also stressed will be the importance of film as an art form.

The Development of the American Film is a three-credit undergraduate course offered on Wednesday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m., beginning Jan. 28. There are no prerequisites.

For more information and an evening brochure, call 786-8741.

Open House At Quincy YMCA Jan. 27-Feb. 3

The Quincy YMCA is observing National YMCA Week Jan. 27 to Feb. 3, and residents are invited to tour the facilities and meet the professional staff during the week.

The week is set aside each year to recognize and pay tribute to the Young Men's Christian Association and its service to youth and adults.

The Quincy YMCA, dedicated to serving South Shore residents, was established in 1892 and is beginning its 88th year of service. YMCAs offer programs for men, women, children, families and service personnel. There are parent-child activities like Y Indian Guides that help build understanding between families, as well as cardiovascular fitness and exercise programs, swimming, camping, basketball, volleyball, soccer and other sports.

The YMCA is also an outlet for volunteer community service.

From humble beginnings in London in 1844, the YMCA has expanded to some 90 nations. There are nearly 2,000 YMCAs in the United States.

He and his wife, the former Barbara L. Lennon, have two sons and a daughter. They live in Weymouth.

Tait, a native of Quincy and a graduate of Quincy High School, is past president and trustee of 1000 Southern Artery, moderator and chairman of the executive committee of Quincy Point Congregational Church; and a member of Rural Lodge, Quincy.

He is a member of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks Committee on International Savings Banks Cooperation, and a member of the Legislative Committee of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts.

A graduate of Brown University's Graduate School of Banking and the American Institute of Banking, Tait lives in Braintree with his wife, Evelyn, and their sons, Ian and Bruce.

Roundtree, who was recently appointed to the White House Conference on Small Business, is a former local president and national director of the U.S. Jaycees.

He is on the board of the Small Business Development Center; the Unity Bank and Trust Co. of Boston; and the National Association of Black Manufacturers.

He and his wife, the former Camilla Camillo, live in Hingham, with their five sons and two daughters.

Conway Real Estate

Reports Record

$110 Million-Plus Sales

The Jack Conway & Company has recorded over $110 million in residential and commercial real estate sales in 1979, a company record.

Sales are up about 16 percent over 1978's total of $95 million, reported president Jack Conway at the annual corporate meeting in Hanover.

Conway credited the increase to buyers' desire for "a hedge against inflation" in a year that saw mortgage rates rise from 10-10½ percent to 13-13½ percent. New offices, opened in 1978 in Easton, Holbrook, Canton and Milton also helped boost the company's total, he added.

The Conway Company recently opened its 24th branch office in West Roxbury and plans others in Brockton and Needham.

"All in all, the year has been a good one for us," Conway said. "Sales have held up well, considering some of the unsettled items in the national scene. We look forward to a good year in 1980, with perhaps a decline of the present high mortgage rates."

A Step Toward City Title

Quincy Girls Roll By North, 51-33

The Quincy girls' basketball team took the first step toward the city championship last week when it defeated North Quincy, 51-33.

The First Ladies brought a 5-5 record into Tuesday's game at Brookline. Quincy will host Brookline Friday night at 8 and next Tuesday will play at Newton at 3:15.

The North girls, with a 3-6 mark, hosted Brockton Tuesday and Friday night at 8 will be home to defending state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

Sue Callahan, one of the Suburban League's top scorers, who is averaging 20 points a game, paced Barbara Webster's Quincy girls to their win over North with 15 points.

Ann McCarron added 10 points as the First Ladies went out to a 12-4 first period lead, still held a 21-15 halftime edge and took a 34-22 bulge into the final quarter.

For Brian Tilley's Raiderettes Julie Watts had a big day with 17 points, high for the game, and 16 rebounds. Kim Alberti had 10 points for the Raiderettes.

"This was a good team effort," Miss Webster said. "Sue Callahan has been our leading scorer but every girl played well with strong defense and a good passing game."

The North girls bounced back to defeat Brookline, 44-26, as Alberti scored 17 points and Watts had 12 points and 15 rebounds. Cheryl Ayles had nine points and 12 rebounds.

Quincy bowed to Weymouth South, 57-47 as Callahan was held to 10 points but still paced the First Ladies' scoring.

Drops To 2nd Place

QJC Hosts Webster

The Quincy Junior College basketball team lost to Mass. College of Pharmacy, 75-68, Monday night and fell into second place in the Greater Boston Small College Conference.

QJC, with an 11-3 overall record and 8-3 conference mark, hosts Daniel Webster tonight (Thursday) and will be home to Essex Agricultural next Wednesday. Both games will be at 7 o'clock at the Vo-Tech gym.

Paul Donoghue scored 24 points, 22 in the second half, Monday, but fouled out with two minutes to play. Ed Richard played an outstanding game on the boards but also fouled out, and Jim Holleran scored 14 points.

In their previous game the Jaguars edged Hellenic, 82-80, as Richard tied the game in the final minute of play and then won it with an inside shot with eight seconds remaining.

Holleran scored 18 points, Bob Evans had 17, Richard 16, Donoghue 15 and Jerry Ajamian 12.

Earlier ENC had defeated Emerson, 83-81, and lost to Northern Essex, 88-71.

Paul Donoghue was the hero in the win over Emerson, hitting on a 15-foot jump shot with two seconds left in the game for the hard-earned come-from-behind victory.

Emerson had tied the game with 44 seconds left on an 18-foot jumper by the game's leading scorer, Washington Brooker, who had 30 points. Quincy, which had trailed by as many as six points in the second half, decided to hold the ball for one shot and Donoghue hit.

The Jaguars played the last two games without starters 6-5 Kevin Penney and guard Paul Waters.

Bob Evans had 24 points against Emerson, Donoghue had 18, Ed Richard 16 and Tim Murphy 11.

"Murphy had a super game," Coach Brian Buckley said. "He had to come off the bench when Richard fouled out and he answered the call with seven points in the last eight minutes."

In the loss to Northern Essex, QJC fell behind by 27 points at the half, but rallied to cut the gap to nine points with five minutes to play.

"The players worked hard in the second half and didn't give up, and that's a good sign," Buckley said. "We played with only seven players (five were injured) and the guys hustled until the final buzzer."

Evans scored 28 points, Richard 19, Donoghue 14 and Jim Holleran 10.

Karen Rodgers and Tracy Coull were triple winners for the second meet in a row as the Quincy Track Club dominated the Greater Portland, Maine invitational meet.

Rodgers won the 40, 220 and 440, setting a 9-under record of 1:20.6 in the 440, and Coull won the 440, 600 in a record 1:43.6 and 1000 in 12-13 girls.

Kevin O'Brien won the 9-under 50, 220 and 440, Mark Lunnin won the 10-11 boys 50 and 220, and Kristine Picarski won the 50 and 220 and placed second in the shot put in 12-13 girls.

Other scorers were Deirdre Murphy and Sarah Edwards in 9-under girls, Don Hamilton and Bobby Wilson, 9-under boys; rookie Tracy Wilson.

Rookie Tracy Wilson, in her first indoor meet ever, won the 10-11 girls 40 and 220, and Coach Jeff Hennessy won the open men's 100.

Other scorers were Deirdre Murphy and Sarah Edwards, 9-under girls; Don Hamilton and Bobby Wilson, 9-under boys. Steve Picarski and Mike Flebotte ran well in 10-11 boys and Terry Rodgers ran well in 10-11 girls.

Quincy 78, North 64

Presidents Look Like Early Tourney Qualifier

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy basketball team has completed the first half of its schedule and, with a 10-1 record, the Presidents look certain to be an early qualifier for the state tournament.

Joe Amoroso's Presidents, who defeated North Quincy, 78-64, last week in the first game between the inter-city rivals, hosted Brookline Tuesday night, will host at Brockton Friday and will be home to Newton North next Tuesday, all games starting at 8 p.m.

"I'm very pleased with our season so far," said Amoroso, whose team is headed for its fourth tourney appearance in five years. "Every player has done well, we have well-balanced scoring, our rebounding has been excellent and the defense strong."

Quincy threatened to blow North Quincy out of the Vo-Tech gym last week, rolling up a 24-7 first period lead and going off the floor at halftime with a huge 43-21 advantage.

The Raiders came alive in the last period and cut the gap to eight but that was as close as they came.

"We didn't beat them by 50, but if we beat them by five it would have been enough," Amoroso said. "They took it right to us in the last period (North outscored Quincy 29-19). I think maybe they were a little way of us at the start."

Junior Steve Piscella paced the Presidents with 24 points, Brian Donovan, the leading scorer and one of the tops in the Suburban League, scored 21, Rich Finnegan had 12 and Stan Benson 10. Benson and Piscella each had 13 rebounds and Donovan had 11. Quincy had 48 rebounds. Andy Carrera and Scott McDonald continued to play outstanding games.

Quincy next bombed Weymouth South, 84-53, as a 16-point second period enabled the Presidents to lead, 44-22, at the half.

Carrera was the key man during this drive, scoring nine of his 11 points in that span. Finnegan, who has played well in every game, had his biggest scoring night with 21 points, taking up the slack as Donovan was held to five. Piscella added 18 points and Benson 16.

"One of our big assets has been our outstanding work on both boards," Amoroso said. "We had 48 rebounds in each of our last two games. We have been getting excellent performances from our bench and our foul shooting has been good."

"Finnegan has had an outstanding season. He is the Key man in our press and personally has caused numerous turnovers, which we've been able to convert. He has had a lot of steals. I knew it was only a matter of time before he had a big scoring night and he exploded against Weymouth."

"The work of our guards, Andy Carrera and Scott MacDonald, has been tremendous. They put an awful lot of pressure on the other teams. And Donovan, Piscella and Benson are outstanding game after game."

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity (6-2) defeated North Quincy, 52-42, leading at one time by 20 points.

Shawn Burnes had 10 points and Wesley Paul eight as the Presidents turned in an excellent team performance.

Quincy then breezed by Weymouth South, 78-47, as Burnes scored 15 points, Paul 13 and P. J. Fay 12.

Raiders Face Tough Job

The North Quincy basketball team faces a tough task in its quest for a state tournament berth.

But the Raiders, with a 7-4 record, were hopeful they can make it as they met Brockton Tuesday night. They will host Weymouth North Friday at 8 and Tuesday will be at Weymouth South at 8. North must win seven of its last nine games to qualify for the tournament.

North last week was outclassed by Quincy in the first half and, despite a gallant second half comeback, lost, 78-64, in the season's first meeting of the cross town rivals.

The high flying Presidents, who are two points away from an unbeaten season, roared to a 24-7 lead in the first period and were up, 43-21, at halftime.

Ed Miller's Raiders came back strong and cut Quincy's lead to eight points, 61-53, with 3:20 left, but that was as close as they came. North had a 29-19 edge in the last eight minutes.

"Defensively we broke down at the start," said Miller. "We turned the ball over too many times. I was pleased with the way they came back in the second half."

Trailing, 61-37, North started working the ball inside and Bill O'Connell hit on three straight layups to cut it to 61-45. Successive three-point plays by Bob Bolster and Rich Keenan made it 61-51 and O'Connell hit another from inside but that was it for the Raiders.

Mark Millane, the team's leading scorer and one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, was held to 15 points, low for him, while O'Connell had 14 and Keenan, who played an outstanding game, had 10.

North bounced back to defeat Brookline, 60-50, as Millane scored 27 points, 18 of them in the second half, when the Raiders exploded.

North trailed, 31-23, at the half but outscored Brookline, 19-12, in the third period and 18-7 in the finale.

O'Connell scored 13 points and Keenan had nine for North.

Paul Bregoli's North junior varsity fell behind early and lost to Quincy, 52-42, as the offense collapsed, especially in the first half.

Jack Brown played well and had 12 points, while John Keenan came off the bench and had six points.

North bounced back Friday to topple Brookline, 71-54, and make its record 5-5.

Like the varsity, the jayvees had a big second half as it led by only three at the half.

Brown had 19 points, Vic O'Leary had 14 points, going seven for 11 from the floor. Chip Banker had 12 points and grabbed 17 rebounds with an outstanding last period, and Brian McCarthy played well and had eight points.

KAREN HARDY, who scored 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds for the Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball team, grabs a rebound in recent 62-50 victory over Fitchburg State.

Crusaderettes At Boston State

The Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball team broke even in two games last week and took a 4-5 record into Tuesday's game against Lowell University.

The Crusaderettes will play at Boston State tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 and Saturday night will host Salem State at 6.

The ENC women bowed to Eastern Connecticut, 66-46, Saturday as the winners romped in the second half, 38-18, after the teams had been tied at 28 at halftime.

Earlier in the week ENC opened up a 14-point lead at the half and went on to defeat Fitchburg State, 62-50.

Karen Hardy paced the Crusaderettes with 18 points and 10 rebounds, while Janet Ransstrom had 14 points and Kristi Kottis 10.

Earlier ENC had crushed Barrington, 55-31, and lost to Bridgewater State, 59-43.

Against Barrington, Karen Hardy scored 17 rebounds, Quincy's Lois Malvesti and Kristi Kottis each had 10 points.

In the loss to Bridgewater, the Crusaderettes led by three at the half but Bridgewater's hot shooting was too much for ENC in the second half.

Hardy again led the way for ENC with 18 points.

Quincy Skates To 7th, North Blanked

Quincy's hockey team is perched at the top of the Suburban League with a 7-2 record following last Saturday's 4-0 win over Newton North.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents played North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), Saturday will face Weymouth North at 4:10 at Pilgrim Arena in Hingham and next Wednesday will play Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 4 at the Gore Street rink.

Tom Brennan had a hat trick and Robbie Craig had the other goal against Newton as the first line of Brennan, Craig and Scott Richardson continues to run away with league scoring honors.

Richardson had three assists, Craig three and Bill Flynn one.

Meanwhile, Kevin Lewis' young North Quincy team had a bad week as it was shut out by Brockton, 5-0, and by Weymouth South, 4-0. Goalie Bobby Tierney was outstanding in the Brockton loss, having 42 saves.

The Raiders, who faced Quincy yesterday, will host Newton North next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Or all the sports events ever held in America, which one drew the most requests for tickets?... It was the Notre Dame-Army football game of 1946... More than 1-MILLION ticket requests were received for that game to set the all-time record.

Somebody once told the great basketball coach Adolph Rupp that winning really wasn't that important, and Rupp came back with an answer that we thought you'd enjoy reading... Rupp said, "Well, it winning isn't so important, why do they keep score?"

Here's a tough question for you... Who's the only athlete in history to play on a championship team in BOTH the National Basketball Association and in major league baseball?... Answer is Gene Conley... He played basketball for the Boston Celtics when they won an NBA championship in 1959, '60 and '61 -- and he was a pitcher for the Braves when they won the World Series in 1957.

I bet you didn't know... That you can make big savings on skates at Colman's. From tots to adults you'll find them all at Colman's... and at savings that will amaze you. No real cold weather, therefore we are over stocked. Buy now and save!

ENC Wins 2 Big Ones

The Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team improved its record to 10-3 with two big wins last week.

ENC is ranked fifth in the NCAA N.E. Division III.

The Crusaders will host Gordon College tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m., Saturday will be home to UMass Boston at 8 and next Tuesday will play at Bridgewater State, also at 8.

Coach Ron Bradley's ENC team went to Nyack, N.Y., Saturday and defeated Nyack, 79-58.

Mark Carr, continued his outstanding play with 23 points and 11 rebounds, Jim Bryan added 14 points and Clay Halliday came off the bench to score 12. The Crusaders out-rebounded Nyack, 47-26.

Earlier in the week ENC captured one of its biggest wins of the year with a 74-59 decision over highly rated Rhode Island College as the Crusaders put together one of their best efforts of the season.

Quincy's Bob Dacey played his finest game, scoring 16 points, having seven rebounds and six assists and was brilliant on defense. Jim Bryan had 18 points and 11 rebounds and Rich Scaree had seven points and 10 rebounds.

The Crusaders earlier were edged at the buzzer, 63-62, when Barrington's Jay Anderson hit a 15-foot jump shot to snap a six-game ENC win streak.

Glenn Bryan scored 20 points and had 10 rebounds against Barrington. Mark Carr scored 19 points and Rich Scaree 11.

The heartbreaking loss was sandwiched between two big victories for the Crusaders.

ENC had little trouble defeating Roger Williams, 96-78, as the scoring punch of Carr and Glenn Bryan again paved the way. Carr had 25 points and Bryan added 24 and took down 13 rebounds. Jim Bryan had 13 points and Clay Halliday 10. This was the sixth win in a row for ENC.

Following the Barrington loss the Crusaders defeated, Suffolk University, 87-76, with Carr and Bryan again leading the way.

Carr scored 26 points, Bryan added 20 and Quincy's Bob Dacey had a big night with 19 points.

GLENN BRYAN, 6-5 junior, scores in the Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team's recent victory over Suffolk University. He had 20 points.

North Swimmers Seek 6th Against Don Bosco

The North Quincy swimming team, well on its way to its best season, takes a 5-2 record into the meet with Don Bosco tonight (Thursday) at 6 at the Lincoln Hancock School pool.

Monday North hosts Westwood at 3:30 p.m.

Bill Walker's Raiders won seven of 10 events last week to coast by Waltham, 109-61, in a Suburban League meet for their fifth victory.

North winners were Bill Boudreau in the 200 individual medley, Mike O'Toole in the diving, Bob Melanson in the 100 butterfly, Rich Framer in the 100 freestyle, John Buckley in the 500 freestyle, the 200 medley relay team of Bill Feeney, Buckley, Melanson and Boudreau, and the 400 freestyle relay team of Dave Riley, Boudreau, Buckley and Melanson.

Riley took second and Ed Melanson third in the 200 freestyle. Farmer was second and Paul Phipps third in the 50 freestyle. Dave Dindy second and John Wallace third in the 100 breaststroke. Wallace third in the 200 individual medley, Paul Chamberlain third in diving, and Feeney third in the 100 backstroke.

North Boosters Dinner Jan. 27

The North Quincy Football Boosters Club will hold its annual captains dinner for the entire football squad Sunday, Jan. 27 at 6:30 p.m. in the North Quincy High cafeteria. Festivities will begin at 6:30.

Seniors will be given to the captains, junior and sophomore players and the cheerleaders also will be honored.

Three major awards will be presented. The outstanding North player in the Quincy game will receive the Jack Donahue Award from the former long-time coach himself, the Boosters Club will present the sportsmanship award and the Quincy Fathers Club will present its annual award in memory of former North Booster president Bill Schaefer.

Letters with tickets have been mailed to parents of the squad members and returns should be made to Mary Furlong, 224A Quincy Shore Drive, North Quincy 02171.

Quincy Fathers Club Awards Banquet Jan. 26

Mark Buben, former Tufts' standout and now a N.E. Patriots' lineman, will be the guest speaker at the 27th annual Quincy Fathers Club football awards banquet Saturday, Jan. 26, at 7 p.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post home.

Harold Coose, club president, will be master of ceremonies.

The following awards will be presented following dinner: Granville Award, Munroe McLean Award, Matthew Ivi Award, Armando Moscardelli Award, the George Underwood Award, Robert Primavera Award, Frank and Elenor Osborne Award, donated by Harold McCarthy, and the Paul V. Grasso Award, donated by Bill Osborne.

Also to be presented are the Queen's Trophy, cheerleaders awards, senior, junior and sophomore awards, the Frank and Elenor Osborne scholarship award to be given to a senior in June, and the William Schaefer Award, to be given to a North Quincy player.

Kidney Foundation Bowllathon At Wollaston

Wollaston Bowladrome will be the scene of a bowllathon to benefit the programs of the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts.

The Koch Club Seniors will be rallying their scores Friday, Jan. 25, to help in the fight against kidney disease, and the Koch's Termites will join the effort Tuesday, Jan. 29.

Bowlers who participate will be contributing to the kidney cause through solicitation of pledges for each point scored in a three-string series. Any amount may be pledged by sponsors.

Bowlers will be eligible for prizes based upon the total of their returns. Each bowler who raises $25 or more in pledges will receive a Kidney Foundation T-shirt imprinted with the organ donor slogan, "Gift of Life".

Marilyn Nestor, director of the Koch League, emphasized that "It's been encouraging to see the response of the residents of Quincy over the past few years to this appeal to support the programs of the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts."

She urged continued support for this year's event.

Further information can be obtained by calling the foundation at 426-3366.

Sterling Breezes To 10th, Central Racks Up 7th

By PETE ZOIA

The Sterling Junior high basketball team improved its perfect record to 10-0 Monday when it breezed by winless Broad Meadows, 51-30.

Coach Jim Snodgrass' Sterling powerhouse rolled to a 26-6 first period lead and the reserves took over for both teams. Paul Gilbody and Jeff Timberlake each scored nine points in the opening period and then retired for the day.

The Sterling reserves outscored BM, 15-3, in the second quarter and the league leaders had an insurmountable 41-9 bulge at halftime.

BM came back in the second half and outpointed Sterling, 21-10.

Dennis Obert paced Sterling with 10 points and John Sullivan had eight for BM.

The junior varsity games was a throwback to the 1930's as Sterling won, 17-14. It was 3-2 for Sterling after one period and BM led, 6-4, at the half. BM held a squeaky 10-9 lead going into the finale.

With 26 seconds left in the game Rich, Ready of Sterling scored to put his team ahead, 15-14, and Joe Burke added two foul shots.

Ready paced Sterling with seven points and Tony Cascarano and Pat Lynch each had six for BM.

There were only two games played last week due to icy road conditions last Thursday.

Sterling conquered Point, 60-46, and second place Central outpointed Broad Meadows, 44-36, for its seventh win.

North Girls Roll

The surprising North Quincy girls' track team, winner of just one meet a year ago, is clicking merrily at the top of the Suburban League with a 6-0 record and yesterday (Wednesday) met Newton North at Newton.

The Raiderettes will compete in the state coaches meet Friday at Harvard and Saturday, Feb. 2, will face Quincy in a 9 a.m. meet at Northeastern in their final league meet.

North sailed over Weymouth North last week, 58-28, as Linda Kennedy, an outstanding ninth grader, won the 2-mile in 11:42, the second fastest time this year, with Robyn O'Donnell third, Mary Crehan won the mile with Nancy MacDonald completing a sweep, undefeated Michelle Millane won the shot put, Mary Kate Kennedy and Karen Crehan were 1-2 in the 300, Elaine Robertson won the 600 in 1:37.6, an excellent time for her first try at the distance, and Lisa Cavanaugh was third; Deirdre Donovan won the 1000 in 2:52, fastest time this year in her first try at this distance, and Ann Gorczyca Central's only two losses have been at the hands of powerhouse Sterling.

As usual, Sterling was flying from the opening period in the victory over Point. The scoreboard read 19-8 after the first period thanks to the stellar play of Timberlake, Gilbody, Kevin Riggs and Chris Drachio. Chris McCray scored six of Point's points on some fine shooting.

At the half Sterling enjoyed a 31-23 advantage.

The third quarter was a scoring duel between Timberlake, who scored 10 points against McCray's seven. The final period was Point's best as it outscored its foe, 12-6.

Four Sterling players hit for double figures. Timberlake with 18, Gilbody 15, Drachio 11, and Riggs, 10.

McCray paced Point with 17 points, followed by Sal Lorenzano with 12.

Point coach Bill Maver broke his foot at a previous practice session and his duties were taken over by Jerry Mulvey, the Point wrestling coach.

The Junior Varsity tussle belonged to Sterling, 43-31. Standouts for the winners were Paul Kenney with 14 points and Steve Ray with eight. Point's high scorers were Tommy Travers with eight and Jim Grassi with six.

The Central-Broad Meadows skirmish started badly for BM, which immediately put itself in a hole, outscored 12-3 at the quarter. This nine-point deficit proved to be its undoing as it outscored Central, 33-32, during the last three frames.

Coach Paul Picarski's BM boys deserve a better season than they have been having. Luck has passed them by so far this season.

For the victors, Jim Kelly scored 19 points, while Bob Mudge contributed 10, and Tim Ryan eight. The two shining lights for BM were Mark Prescott with 14 points and Mike Williams with five.

The Jayvee game was one of the best this season. Trailing, 22-14, at the end of the third quarter, the BM Junior Varsity played inspired ball to eke out a 28-27 victory.

High for the winners were Pete Flynn with eight points, Carl Freeman and Tony Cascarano six each. For Central, Bob McElaney topped the scoring with 12 points and Paul Ryan tallied six.

North Matmen

Bow To Newton N.

The North Quincy wrestling team, on its way to its finest season, lost some key matches by one point last week and bowed to Newton North, 26-19, to drop its record to 7-2.

Steve Joyce's Raiders met Weymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) and Saturday at noon will be home to Duxbury and Dedham in a tri meet.

Needs $900 First

N.Q. Swimmer Ed Melanson Moscow-Bound, Despite Crisis

It looks as though neither rain, snow nor an international crisis will keep Edward Melanson of Wollaston from a Feb. 14 date in Moscow - but $900 might.

While President Carter and Olympic officials must over a byscent of the 1980 Olympics in Moscow this summer, Melanson is preparing to take part in an international swim meet there next month. He is 17 and a senior at North Quincy High School.

"We got a positive final word from the State Department last week that we're going," he said Tuesday. "I don't think they'd cancel it now."

Melanson, captain of the North Quincy High swim team, will be travelling to Moscow as a member of the New England Barracudas. That Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) team was invited to take part in the meet along with youths from the Soviet Union and other countries.

The Barracudas must raise $900 per swimmer to finance the trip, Melanson said. Checks may be sent to the New England Barracudas, Inc., 12 Clinton Rd., West Peabody, MA 01960. Donations may be made in the name of a specific swimmer.

The gifts are tax-deductible and would be refunded if the trip were called off.

He and 19 other teenage swimmers and divers will leave Boston Feb. 9 and, after brief stopovers in New York and Helsinki, arrive in Moscow Feb. 10. The meet will be held at Moscow's Swimming Palace Feb. 14-16 and the team will return to Boston Feb. 18.

Melanson, who swims butterfly, freestyle and individual medley races, looks forward to the trip and doesn't force any trouble.

"The Soviet Union will have athletes over here for the Winter Olympics while the meet is going on," he said. "They wouldn't do anything to hurt us while their own athletes are in this country."

His own parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Melanson, Sr. of 71 North Central Ave. are "happy and proud" of his trip.

"They don't feel there's any danger of me going, and there isn't," he said.

His North Quincy High teammates have "mixed feelings," he admits - but for a different reason.

"I'll have to miss the Suburban League championship and the South Sectional tournament," he says. "My not being there might hurt the team. But, aside from that, they're glad for me."

The awards Melanson has won in his six-year swimming career would reach from end to end of an Olympic-sized pool. He has been selected a New England All-Star, been named a Suburban League Star in his first three years at North, been named one of the top ten swimmers in New England and last summer qualified and competed in the Junior Nationals in California.

Executive Hockey

Lewis Scores 4, Donovan Hat Trick

Previte's Applies For Package License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The request of Joseph J. Previte, of Previte's Market, Quincy Point, for the only available retail package goods store-alcoholic beverages license in the city was continued to Feb. 5, at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

City Clerk John Gillis said the license had been held by South Shore Creamery which went out of business last year. Gillis said that the Capitol Market, Quincy Sq., has also filed an application for the license, and that a market on East Squantum St. has expressed interest in the license.

Previte, a Quincy resident, has a retail package goods store-wine and malt beverage license for his store.

He told the License Board he didn't intend to go into the package store business on a large scale, and that he would maintain the store's grocery and meat departments. Previte said the alcoholic beverages would be stored in the back of the store.

Gillis noted that Previte has notified abutters of the proposal, and no one appeared in opposition to the license at Tuesday's meeting.

The matter was continued for two weeks to allow the other establishment's to appear before the License Board.

In another matter M. DeMatteo Construction Co., 200 Hancock St., was granted a permit to store 5,000 gallons of diesel fuel underground, in addition to present storage of 7,000 gallons of gasoline underground.

The request had been continued from the Jan. 8 meeting so that Philip Murphy, representing the company, could explain the increased fuel situation to Ward Six Councillor Joanne Condon.

The request was granted with the stipulations that trucks making diesel deliveries enter through the main gate of the company on Hancock St.; no diesel deliveries be made on Price St.; and that diesel deliveries be made between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday to Friday. The diesel tank must also be installed according to the requirements of the Quincy Fire Department.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a request from Patricia A. Murphy for a one day all alcoholic license for a benefit dance to aid the DiMarzio Fire Fund Saturday, Feb. 9, from 8 p.m. to midnight, at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Houghs Neck. Fire Chief Edward Barry said that he was in favor of any thing that would help the DiMarzio's. The license fee was waived.

- Granted a request from Joseph P. Salvati of Williams Auto Electric, 53 Intervale St., for a Motor II license restricted to no more than five cars. The cars must be kept at the rear of the building.

- Granted the Quincy Fathers Club a one day all-alcoholic license for a dance Saturday, Feb. 9 from 8 to midnight at the Fore River Clubhouse.

- Continued for one week a request from Mrs. Marion Melis and Mrs. Grace Travers for a second hand license for a shop, "Roaring Twenties" at 7 Brook St., Wollaston.

Matthews Bill Filed

QHA Opposes Private Management Of State Housing

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

There is a move afoot in Gov. Edward King's administration to get cities and towns out of the public housing business - which doesn't please Quincy Housing Authority officials.

A bill recently filed on behalf of Secretary of Communities and Development Byron Matthews would allow state-funded housing to be leased to private management firms, instead of public agencies like the QHA. Matthews feels private business can run the housing more efficiently than local government.

QHA administrator Clement O'Brien disagrees.

"We feel we can manage housing as effectively, as efficiently and as economically as anybody," O'Brien said. "Our organization is opposing this bill."

What problems the QHA does have, O'Brien said, are the effect of outside influences - like lack of funding and federal and state regulations that he feels ties the authority's hands in many problems.

Representatives of Matthews' office have not discussed the bill with the QHA, O'Brien said.

Tobin Spent $23,143 To Win Second Term

$9,595.31 in his unsuccessful first campaign for the City Council. He reported a balance of $1,201.69.

Joseph J. LaRaia, the former mayor who was taking his first step in a political comeback, spent $3,641.91 to win a Council seat. He had $340.34 left.

Michael E. Faherty, as of last week, had not filed a final statement but the first two showed him to have expended $3,829.40 with $316.21 left for the final days of the campaign.

John J. Quinn had not yet filed any of his statements.

The big spenders in the ward contests were Daniel G. Raymond and Kathleen O'Donnell, the rivals in the Ward 2 fight.

Raymond, the victor for re-election, spent $7,754.36 and retained a balance of $633.29 while Miss O'Donnell spent

$3,606.14 with $356.72 left in the balance. She also listed $462.50 as "received in kind."

In the closest of all the council races, Ward 6, Joanne Condon reported spending $5,656.43 to win re-election, with $111.40 in the balance.

Her opponent, Michael J. Kelly, reported $3,045.31 in expenditures, but he had not yet filed his final statement. His balance eight days before election was $179.04.

In Ward 1, neither Leo J. Kelly nor David MacMillan had filed final figures.

John J. Lydon Jr. spent $367.50 of his own money to get re-elected in Ward 3 while his opponent, Gerald V. Noble, spent $765, also of his own money, prior to the preliminary election. He did not file the last two statements.

Of the unopposed councillors, Stephen J. McGrath in Ward 5 laid out $1,954.55 and kept a balance of $1,443.85 for the future while James A. Sheets in Ward 4 raised and spent nothing at all.

Patricia Toland was the biggest spender among the candidates for School Committee, paying out $2,742.25 with a balance of $429.98. She topped the School ticket.

Christopher Kennedy reported spending $2,148.08 with nothing left over; John H. McDuff spent $324.46 with a balance of $45.54.

Frank Anselmo listed expenditures of $845.05 but he failed to file the Jan. 10 statement; and Patrick H. Conroy did not turn in any of the three required listings.

A group called the Quincy Citizens for Decent Government, which was organized to oppose the candidacy of Joseph J. LaRaia for City Council, reported contributions of $2,150 and expenditures of $2,039.67, all on advertisements in The Quincy Sun and Patriot Ledger.

Upland Rd. Extension Seen Hotel Guarantee

- Construction of two new bridges, one on Water St. and the other on the Granite-Parkway Connector "with passage over the MBTA tracks common to both."

- "Construction of a portion of the proposed Town Brook local flood control conduit," that is expected eventually to alleviate chronic flooding problems in South Quincy.

The extension will cost $8 million in state funds, with the Town Brook conduit costing $5 million more, and will require the taking of four homes on Marsh St., South Quincy.

"It is important that we have a positive hearing," said Tobin. "If we get any negative talk you're not going to have anything in downtown Quincy. When we get by this hearing, you'll see things start to happen."

Last June, Robert Sage, president of Sage Motor Hotels of Boston, was interested enough in building a 150 to 200 room Howard Johnson hotel in the Parkway to come to Quincy and talk publicly about it.

"He is looking for the contract to be signed to get the road under construction and then they're ready to go," said the Rev. Baharian. "They want to locate at the intersection of the extension and the connector."

Tobin said he decided over the weekend to go ahead with the parking garage.

The city has a $3.79 million urban development action grant (UDAG) to build it but when bids were opened last week the lowest was for $3.95 million by Moscone Corp. of Quincy.

The bid does not include some $400,000 in architects fees, auditing and contingency fees which would bring the total cost to about $4.35 million, if the low bid is accepted.

But Tobin said enough deletions could be made from the bid to bring the difference down to $280,000.

The bid was put out on the basis of a five-floor garage, but alternates were added that could build up to seven floors. The garage foundation is designed for seven.

The Rev. Baharian said it would cost $440,000 more to build a six floor garage and $900,000 more to build one of seven stories.

"We are not prepared right now to discuss the additional forms of funding," said Tobin.

"We definitely will be building a five story garage," said the Rev. Baharian. "Beyond that is up in the air at the moment."

New Tow Zones

Four new tow zones are about to be added to the parking woes of Quincy motorists.

The Traffic Commission has approved their locations at:

- The northeast side of Watson Rd. 90 feet in a southeasterly direction from Broadway, Quincy Point.

- Both sides of Broadway from the intersection of Watson Rd. to a point 90 feet from Watson Rd., Quincy Point.

- The easterly side of the Parkway 245 feet southwesterly from the extension of Cliven St. Five parking meters would be removed.

- The even side of Hughes St. from the intersection of Independence Ave. for a distance of 40 to 45 feet, in South Quincy.

The City Council forwarded the recommendations to its Ordinance Committee for advertising.

LaRaia Pledges Cooperation

"But to make things work in city government requires the cooperation of many people," he said. "It can't be accomplished by one individual."

"I can honestly say now that, if you want to use a comparison, cooperation was lacking when I served as Mayor, but in the last two years that cooperation was given to the Mayor so that he could accomplish some of the things he set out to do."

"I for one would not stand in the way of any progress for Quincy. I will try to support these programs but I will speak out on them if I feel that these proposals are not in the best interests of the city."

LaRaia said he supports Tobin's concept of downtown development, particularly the Campanelli-Stop and Shop project, "although there are some aspects of it that I have reservations about."

And the former Mayor, who was once roundly criticized for a $34.90 increase in the tax rate, couldn't resist a needle for Tobin on the city's latest rate boost.

"I'm the last person in the world to stand in the way of any development that would help the city of Quincy," he said, "particularly in this serious economic situation in the light of the $27.40 increase in taxes."

Squantum First Church Elects New Officers

The First Church of Squantum elected new officers at its annual meeting at the church.

Greens Damaged, Flag Burned, $1,250 In Liquor Stolen

Vandals On Rampage At Furnace Brook G.C.

By TOM HENSHAW

The future of the Furnace Brook Golf Club is threatened by vandals who congregate there in the early morning hours, drinking, stealing, destroying and tearing up the greens and fairways.

Last Friday, says club president Marty Healy, they broke down a solid steel door in the clubhouse and made off with 14 1/2 cases of liquor valued at $1,250 wholesale and $300 in cash.

The small building in which the club's 12 golf carts are stored at night resembles a fort, built at a cost of $6,000 which, says Healy, is more than the value of the carts it protects.

Five of the club's 10 greens, each of which has a replacement value of about $25,000, have been damaged extensively and, in one recent incident, a large swastika was carved into the grass surface.

The aluminum flagpole was torn down and destroyed and the vandals apparently celebrated a school holiday some three weeks ago by burning an American flag.

"Vandals burned down the Quincy Tennis Club not long ago," said Healy. "They ruined that organization. That's what I'm afraid of. Pretty soon we're going to have nothing left."

"The police have been called and they have responded but I don't think they have given us 100 per cent effort. If they do and that still doesn't solve the problem, I don't know what we'll do."

Healy said the vandals are mostly teen-agers 16 years old and up who can no longer drink in bars and thus congregate in out of the way places to drink, mostly beer.

The biggest problems at Furnace Brook, he said, started after the MDC police moved the young drinkers out of the Wollaston Beach area and inland to places like Faxon Park and the club.

A year ago, he said, a youth joy-riding in a four-wheel drive vehicle tore up one of the fairways to the tune of $4,000 damage. He was arrested and taken to court.

"I went through five continuances in the case," said Healy. "I gave up work on five days to see the case through court. We wound up settling for $2,000."

Healy gave this rundown of some ensuing incidents:

• March 20, 1979 - A picture window in the club was smashed and the bar broken into.

• April 23, 1979 - Another window was broken and the bar was entered a second time.

$901,240 In Interest

Delayed Tax Rate Costly To City In Bank Borrowing

By next May, the city of Quincy will have paid $901,240.44 in interest on money borrowed and reborrowed to keep the municipal government operating during the long delay in setting the 1980 tax rate.

Between July 6, at the start of the fiscal year, and Dec. 3, three weeks before the tax rate was set, the city borrowed $28 million on tax anticipation notes (TANs). The interest: $558,880.04.

In November, when most of the original TANs matured, the city was still without income from tax collections, so $20 million in notes had to be renewed. The interest:

$250,434.03.

In January, with money coming in from taxpayers but the deadline not until Monday, Feb. 4, the city was forced to renew $12 million in TANs that had already been renewed once. The interest: $91,926.37.

City Treasurer-Tax Collector Robert E. Foy III will present this picture of the city's borrowing in anticipation of taxes to the City Council Monday at the request of Councilor Joseph J. LaRaia.

At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1979, the city had no money in the till to start fiscal 1980 so Foy, as the city does each year, turned to borrowing money in anticipation of taxes.

Foy called the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., Quincy's certified bank, and ordered bids on $4 million in TANs, borrowed July 6 with a maturity date of Nov. 9, when Foy figured tax moneys would be coming in.

On July 31, the city borrowed another $4 million, this time with a maturity date of Nov. 7 because Foy thought the tax rate was about to be set. "I guessed wrong," he said.

Three times in the next seven weeks, Foy had to go to the banks

Defends Borrowing

Tobin Says LaRaia Borrowed $47.8 Million In Second Year

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has issued a ringing defense of his administration's borrowings in anticipation of taxes—even before they have been attacked.

Tobin's predecessor as mayor, City Councilor Joseph J. LaRaia, last week asked for a rundown of what was borrowed to keep the city operating during the long delay in setting the tax rate.

The Quincy Sun obtained the figures from City Treasurer Robert E. Foy III and is publishing them in this week's edition.

Borrowings total $28 million; renewals $32 million; interest $901,000.

Tobin pointed out that in fiscal 1977, the first year of the LaRaia administration, a total of $30.8 million was borrowed in tax anticipation notes (TANs), up $13.5 million from fiscal 1976.

A year later, the second year of LaRaia's term, TANs totalled $47.8 million.

The figures for the LaRaia administration reflect loans for the full fiscal years while the borrowings for fiscal 1980 were made in anticipation of only the first installment on real estate taxes.

Foy said the city probably will have to borrow between $8 and $12 million more in TANs in order to finish the year.

Borrowing in anticipation of tax receipts is not unusual in municipal government since the fiscal year starts on July 1 and the first of two installments is not due usually until around Nov. 1.

Foy said that in 1978, the second year of LaRaia's term, the city had to borrow $20.8 million in the first half of the year and $27 million in the second half.

Tobin said the borrowing was high in the second half under LaRaia because he did not have a fully funded budget and therefore ran out of money before the fiscal year ended.

"My administration presented a fully funded budget for the first time in 1979," he said.

In addition, said Foy, the LaRaia administration had to renew, that is, extend the maturity

In Superior Court Feb. 11 Hearing For Suit On Teachers' Raises

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

A Feb. 11 hearing date has been set in the teachers unions' suit seeking to order Mayor Arthur Tobin to fund raises negotiated with the teachers.

The raises, totalling about $1.1 million, were negotiated between the Quincy Education Association and the School Committee in December. A supplemental budget request for those raises, sent to Tobin by the committee, has never been passed on to the city council for appropriation.

The suit seeks "permanent relief from the mayor's refusal to submit the appropriation to the city council," according to QEA president Robert Garner.

Tobin, noting that the tax rate has been set, has claimed no further money can be appropriated by the council for this fiscal year.

The suit was filed Monday morning in Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham by Massachusetts Teachers Association attorney Brian Riley.

"I saw in the paper the other night that Mayor Tobin wants to spend $1 million for an extra 200 parking spaces (atop the proposed Campanelli office building in Quincy Center)" said Garner. "It would seem to me that his priorities are out of order."

Tanker With 180,000 Barrels Of Oil Due

The largest oil tanker ever received at Quinon's Town River terminal, containing about 180,000 barrels, was expected to dock on or about Wednesday, Jan. 30, the company announced.

This is the first of many large tankers expected to discharge foreign oil into the Town River storage tanks this year, according to Quinon. The oil is residual.

"This oil source will assure our continuing ability to provide an adequate supply of petroleum to hospitals, schools and many other customers in the New England area," the company reported.

Real Estate Tax Deadline Feb. 4

Due date for the first installment on 1980 real estate tax bills is 4:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 4, 30 days after the mailing of the last tax bill.

Bills paid after that date will be assessed 14 per cent interest under a new state law.

City Treasurer and Tax Collector Robert E. Foy III pointed out that those who pay their bills late will be assessed interest on the basis of 30 days, even if they pay on Feb. 5.

Tax bills for 1980 were late in going out due to the hassle with the state over the tax rate and later a breakdown in the computer that was turning out the bills.

Committee To Study Ambulance Service

Mayor Tobin has named a seven-member committee to study the ambulance service that is available to Quincy residents from the Police Department.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn was appointed to chair the committee.

Other members include City Solicitor Robert Fleming, Labor Negotiator Joseph McPartland, Purchasing Agent William Kelly, Auditor Charles L. Shea, John

Felci of the hospital staff, and City Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

Tobin said the first duty of the committee will be to see that a recent proposal to charge third parties (medical insurers) for services is carried out.

Then, he said, the committee will study the possibility of private operation of the ambulance service.

Loading Zone Okayed For Cottage Ave.

City Seeking Applicants For Cable TV License

Quincy is taking the first tentative step toward bringing cable television to the city.

Public notices were placed in local newspapers, including The Quincy Sun, and in one national magazine today (Thursday) soliciting applications for a license to serve the city.

Deadline for the applications is April 18.

And Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said he is putting together a committee, headed by George R. Riley, his former executive secretary, to screen and hold hearings on the applications.

Tobin said the ads do not mean that cable is coming to Quincy immediately but that he wants to explore the cable area to see what the various companies can offer in that field.

"We have been receiving a lot of mail and phone calls about Quincy's plans for the future in cable TV," he said.

"A number of companies have informed us that marketing research reports have shown that the South Shore area as a whole is very conducive to cable at this time.

"We have also received communications from the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission wanting to know what direction the city is going and offering assistance."

No community in the immediate South Shore area offers cable television to its resident viewers but the systems have been installed successfully on the North Shore.

"There were some studies done in the past in Quincy," said Tobin, "but nothing ever came of them."

"I thought this would be a good time to explore the whole situation. I can see a lot of potential good in it for the city. We want to see what the companies offer in community services."

He envisioned the possibilities of televising City Council and School Committee meetings as well as hearings in which civic organizations have a deep concern.

Tobin appointed to the committee:

George R. Riley, a real estate man, who "understands the workings of city government" as Tobin's former executive secretary.

Mrs. Regina Whalen, president of the Merrymount Association.

Paul Ricca, director of CETA, who headed earlier committee that studied cable television.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of pupil personnel in Quincy schools, who has a background in child psychology.

William Piche, assistant coordinator of library services in Quincy schools, whose training is in the communications field.

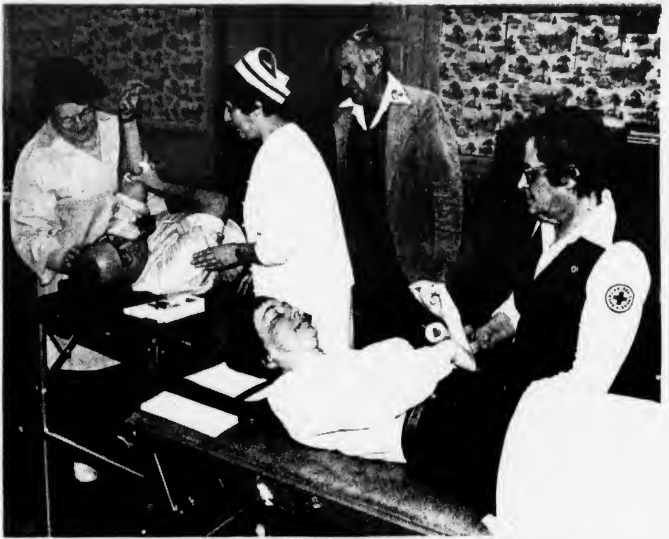

James Chandler Jr., a member of the board of trustees of 1000 Southern Artery and the Quincy Point Congregational Church, who also has a degree in civil engineering.

Henry April, an electrical engineer.

Tobin noted that each committee member brings a different expertise to the group—children, senior citizens, business, civic concern and technical know-how.

The Mayor said he has talked to all the members of the committee and the first meeting will be held after they receive written notification of their appointments.

"I felt we should explore the subject," said Tobin, "and if it's what the people want I want to make sure it's done right and that we get a reputable company that will work closely with the community to offer services that will benefit the city."

Quincy Man Pleads Innocent To Murder Charge

A Quincy Center man, pleaded innocent Tuesday in the apparent stabbing death of Robert Foley, 28, of Algonquin Rd. Merrymount.

Bail was set at $100,000 for Philip Smith, 51, of 77 Adams Place, Tuesday afternoon in Quincy District Court. Smith was arrested by police early Tuesday and charged with murder after Foley's body was found in Smith's apartment, according to detective Lt. James Fay. Foley's death was reported by a third person present at the apartment after 1 a.m., Tuesday, Fay said.

"Apparently there was an altercation," Fay said, adding that Smith and Foley knew each other. Foley's body had a puncture wound in the chest and a knife was recovered at the scene, Fay said. However, an autopsy was scheduled for late Tuesday to establish the exact cause of death, he said.

Fund Drive Topic At DOVE Meeting

Plans for an annual fund drive will be discussed at a meeting of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy District Courthouse.

DOVE is a non-profit agency providing services for battered women and their children from Norfolk county and surrounding areas.

The fund drive will help defray the costs of providing food and shelter for victims of domestic abuse; operating a 24 hour hotline; and providing support activities such as counseling and court and welfare advocacy.

Fund raising activities run by volunteers will include a drawing for prizes such as a microwave oven and television set; a "phone-a-thon" in late February, and a DOVE week in late April featuring a road race. Funds raised will compliment local, state, county and federal support which the agency receives.

"The success of our annual fund drive is crucial to the organization," said a DOVE spokeswoman. "Some of our grants are one-time programs scheduled to end in the next few months. We are the only agency in this area which provides a shelter and hotline for battered women and it is imperative that we continue to expand our services."

For more information on DOVE's activities, attend the monthly meeting or call 471-5087.

Women's Legal Rights To Be Discussed At Feb. 13 Workshop

Atty. Danielle deBenedictis and Atty. Edward Webby will discuss women's legal rights Wednesday, Feb. 13 at a workshop sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

It will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the new City Hall's conference room.

The attorneys will discuss such topics as how to select an attorney, legal rights during a divorce or separation and property ownership and rights.

Miss deBenedictis, a trial lawyer with the Boston-Washington firm of Nutter, McLennan & Fish, has long been active in the area of women's rights. She has been an assistant attorney general and counsel to the state Department of Public Utilities and ran for Congress in 1976.

Webby, a practicing attorney from Braintree, has been a public defender at Quincy District Court and an assistant city solicitor.

Attorney Paula Gold, head of the attorney general's office of public protection, will discuss consumer rights at the commission's March 12 workshop.

Theresa Forgeron Joins CETA Youth Council

Theresa Forgeron, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Forgeron of 108

Doane St., Germantown, has joined the Massachusetts Junior

Youth Council (JYC).

Theresa is a Quincy High School student and the statewide organization, the first of its kind in the nation, is comprised of youth from Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs.

The council is an advisory group to the Youth Council subcommittee of the State Employment and Training Council, an advisory board to Governor Edward J. King.

The JYC was proposed by the Department of Manpower Development and the State Youth Council as a grassroots advisor to both groups, providing information on solving youth unemployment problems.

CAN'T GET RING OFF?

Did you ever find your ring finger swollen and unable to get the ring off? This is more than just a discomfort. It can lead to severe pain and medical complications due to constriction of blood circulation.

Everyone has a pet solution for getting a ring off a swollen finger: scrubbing with soap and water, greasing the finger with Vaseline or plunging the finger into cold water before buttering liberally. Now there is a new and simpler way to get the ring off. It takes nothing more than a piece of string. Here's how:

First, pass the string under the ring. Then wind it tightly around the swollen part of the finger, making a half-dozen or more turns next to the ring. To remove the ring, unwind the string from the other side. Keeping the tension on the string, move the ring along slowly but gently. Two or three repeats are usually enough to free the ring.

McCauley Renews Bid For Tax Information

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley is making another try to have the board of assessors, the city treasurer and the city auditor appear before the Council annually to explain the tax rate before it is set.

For the second year in a row, McCauley introduced such a home rule petition into the Council. Last year, the petition received the blessing of the Council and the Mayor but it was rejected by the State House.

McCauley said the legislation is more important than ever "in view of what went on in the last few months in setting the 1980 tax rate when the Council was getting its information through the news media."

McCauley also introduced for the second time a home rule petition that would give property owners 30 days notice when a new valuation is placed on their property. His first bid also died in the State House last year.

"It's worthwhile legislation in the light of the spot reassessment of multi-family properties this year," he said, adding he hopes "the mayor will come down and talk about it at the committee hearing."

Both petitions were referred to the Council's Ordinance Committee.

Constitution Committee To Discuss Bicentennial Sculpture

Constitution Bicentennial Committee Chairman James R. McIntyre has called a meeting for Thursday, Feb. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chamber to tie up at least one loose string left over from last summer's celebration.

The committee will discuss the 60-ton sculpture that is being prepared by Ed Monti for placement on Constitution Common in front of the City Hall Annex.

The sculpture was to have been dedicated during the celebration in September but it was not ready in time.

The committee will take up the

Council Moves To Legalize Liberty St. Stop Sign

That stop sign on Liberty St. at the intersection of Water St. apparently has been illegal for 10 years.

"There has been a traffic sign there but for some reason there has never been an ordinance," City Clerk John Gillis informed the City Council recently.

The Council immediately moved to provide one.

Councillor James A. Sheets urged the Police Department to have an officer at the intersection during peak traffic hours until the sign could be legalized because of the high accident rate.

'Goal Setting' Topic For Parent Teacher Council

"Goal Setting" was scheduled as the topic for a Parent Teacher Communication Council meeting Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Gridley Bryant School communication center.

Scheduled speaker was to be Patricia A. Drew, Research Assistant of the Quincy Public Schools and a former Gridley Bryant teacher.

Joanne M. Johnson is president of the Parent Teacher Council.

Fashions are always changing, but there are some items that seem to stay in a woman's wardrobe constantly. One of these is chains. Most women in this country now have a chain somewhere in their jewelry wardrobe. The trend is away from silver to gold and away from base metals to more precious materials. Women seem to be more interested in real gold than before, partly because of its beauty, and partly because of its investment value. But whatever the material, a simple chain is in fashion with just about every thing.

Jewelry to go with all the latest fashions can easily be found with just a visit to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. ## Anselmo Questions Plan

Citizens' Panel On School Closings Tabled

A motion to appoint a "citizens' task force" to study proposed school closings was tabled by School Committee member Frank Anselmo last week.

Anselmo said a citizens panel would automatically be biased in favor of the school closings, ignoring educational issues involved.

Committee rules state that any item coming before the committee for the first time may be automatically tabled at the request of any member. The motion will be considered again by the committee at its next meeting, Feb. 13.

Member Patricia Toland, noting declining enrollments and increasing costs in the school system, asked the committee to appoint the citizens group to study the possibilities open to them. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon has presented the committee with a series of options, including closing up to 11 schools by the mid 1980's.

Committee members have predicted that at least one or two of the system's smaller schools could be closed this year.

Member John Sullivan added an amendment to Mrs. Toland's motion allowing each of the seven members to appoint two persons to the citizens task force.

At this point, Anselmo spoke against the motion:

"You're going to be inviting people here who, because of lack of information, will be thinking only of dollars," Anselmo said. Members of the public at large would tend to look at the school closing issue "more from a tax-saving viewpoint, than from an educational viewpoint," he claimed.

Anselmo asked the committee to take more time to think over the issue and meet with school administrators. The motion was automatically tabled at his request.

Mrs. Toland said she had hoped the citizens panel would be able to meet three or four times to make "an intensive study" of facts and figures supplied by the school system. She offered to serve as chairwoman of the committee until it was able to organize.

Federal Grant Sought

'Co-operative' Work Program Planned For QJC Next Year

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Some students at Quincy Junior College next year may be able to take part in co-operative education, working at a job in their field of study while also attending class.

Such a program is now in the works, says QJC Dean of Academic Affairs Dennis Bartow. The school committee last week unanimously approved Bartow's application for a $91,130 federal grant to fund planning and implementation of the program.

The co-op program grew out of planning for QJC's proposed hotel and restaurant management courses. These courses, if approved by the school committee this year, would start in September.

"In planning the hotel and restaurant program, we realized it would be a natural for cooperative education," Bartow said.

In its first year, the co-op program would probably concentrate on the 40 or so students expected to take part in the hotel and restaurant field, he said.

However, students in secretarial, business, criminal justice and childhood education programs, among others, may be placed in co-op jobs eventually, he said.

The program would have several advantages, said Bartow. It would help make the QJC curriculum "more practical," while helping students earn money to bear the cost of education, he said.

The co-op program will differ somewhat from that at Northeastern University in Boston, where students alternate three or six-month work periods with semesters of school work. The QJC program would probably have students attending class either during the afternoon or morning and working the other half of the day, Bartow told the committee.

Because the program would open up many classrooms, the program would increase QJC's enrollment and be "cost-effective," he predicted.

The Howard Johnson Company's New England branch has expressed an interest in hiring hotel-restaurant students through the program and has written a letter of endorsement for use in seeking other employers, Bartow added.

Word on the outcome of the competitive federal grant is not expected until this summer, Bartow said, but the co-op program is not dependent on QJC receiving the grant.

County Dog Fund Returns $4,508 To City

Quincy received a return of $4,508.87 in the Norfolk County annual canine refund, reports county treasurer James M. Collins.

According to Collins, each of the county's 28 communities got back 36 percent of the $155,350 in receipts from sales of dog tags originally turned over to the county. The 1979 salaries and expenses of the county's dog fund, which totalled $98,086, were deducted from that total and over $57,000 returned to the communities.

Quincy, which turned over $12,231.95 in receipts to the county, got the largest return among the 28 communities.

Committee Named To Study Dog Pound

A study committee has been named to look into the future operations of the Quincy dog pound.

The committee consists of Police Chief Francis N. Finn, City Solicitor Robert Fleming and Richard Mead of the Planning Department.

Mayor Tobin said one of the things the committee will study is the possibility of the dog pound having a budget of its own, something it has never had in 11 years.

Mead was named to research the operations of dog pounds in other communities.

Weight Control Course At Hospital

A course on weight control will begin Thursday, Jan. 31 at 7 p.m. at Quincy City Hospital.

The classes will teach participants to analyze eating habits, identify problem areas and take steps to change unwanted behavior.

While the main focus of the course is learning behavior modification for weight loss, nutritional needs of the body will also be discussed.

Diets will be individualized for each student based on age, weight, health and previous diet restrictions.

Capitol Applies For Package Store License

By NANCY MCLAUGHLIN
Capitol Liquors, Inc., 150 Parkway, Quincy Center, appeared before the Quincy License Board Tuesday as the second of three applicants for Quincy's only available retail package goods store—all alcoholic beverages license.

Also applying for the license are Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, which appeared before the board last week, and Don's Liquors, Atlantic and East Squantum St., scheduled for the Feb. 12 meeting.

According to Atty. Norman Ostroff, Capitol Liquors, located in the Capitol Market, has held a retail package goods store-wine and malt beverages license for more than 15 years without any incidents.

Stanley Slawsky, one of three brothers who run the liquor department of the family owned store, said that the additional liquor would be stored in the same general area as it is now.

City Clerk John Gillis told board members that the Capitol has notified abutters of the proposal, as required, and no opposition to the application was evidenced at this week's meeting.

Gillis also said that there has never been any trouble at the market, and that it is a well run organization.

The License Board will grant the license Feb. 12, when all three applications have been considered.

Also at the meeting, the board granted Marion E. Melis, of Milton St., Wollaston, a second-hand license for "Roaring Twenties" at 7 Brook St., Wollaston. The shop will have small furniture, dolls and glass items.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a one day, all-alcoholic license to Comeau's Softball Team for a social Saturday, Feb. 2, 7 p.m. to midnight, at Fore River Clubhouse.

- Continued to Feb. 5 a request from Presidential Pub, 29 Temple St., for a noon opening on Sunday so that Police Chief Francis X. Finn, who was not in attendance at this week's meeting, could be present.

Coalition For Human Rights To Meet Feb. 6

The Covenant of Justice, Equity and Harmony will be discussed at a meeting of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Centre United Methodist Church.

Other items on the agenda are discussion of the group's ongoing affirmative marketing work in housing, and plans to hire a part-time worker for 18 months to do housing counselling under a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

History Of Israel Sermon Topic At First Church Of Squantum

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor of the First Church of Squantum, preached on the conflict between king hezekiah of Judah and Sennacherib of Assyria Sunday morning.

It was the fourth in a series of seven sermons tracing the history of Israel from the death of Solomon to the end of the Old Testament.

Topics for succeeding weeks are: Feb. 3, King Josiah; Feb. 10, The Book of Deuteronomy; and Feb. 17, The Exile and Return (Nehemiah, Ezra).

Eva Martin gave the Call to Worship, Dianne Lindblad led the Opening Prayer, Barbara Frazer read the Scripture from the book of II Kings and Stewart Scott offered the Prayer of Dedication.

Ushers were Paul Paulson, Tore Wallin, Steven Williams, Bonnie Adams, Richard Williams, Susan Milder and Mark Paul. Greeters were Mr. and Mrs. Dana Olson and their children.

Dr. Langevin announced there would be a meeting of church members next Sunday to deal with church business including the possible change of some by-laws.

Houghs Neck Post To Observe 'Four Chaplains Sunday'

Houghs Neck Legion Post is planning a special observance of "Four Chaplains' Sunday," Feb. 3, as part of Americanism Month activities.

Commander D. Paul Shaw and all post officers wearing official uniforms, will attend a worship service at the church of their choice. They urge all members and veterans to do the same and pray for peace.

Four Chaplains' Sunday memorializes the deaths of the four chaplains of different faiths who went down with the USS Dorchester when it was sunk by the Japanese Feb. 3, 1943.

St. Ann's Open House For Catholic School Week Feb. 4-11

St. Ann's School, Wollaston, will hold an "Open House" Thursday, Feb. 7 as part of Catholic School Week activities Feb. 4 to 11.

The open house will feature project displays and a dessert buffet representing various nationalities.

Also scheduled is a special Mass celebrated by Bishop Daniel Hart Monday, Feb. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Ann's Church.

Catholic Schools Week Liturgy At St. Joseph's Sunday

St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point, will observe Catholic Schools Week Feb. 3-9, with a special liturgy Sunday, Feb. 3, at the 8:30 a.m. Mass.

A social in the school hall and open classrooms will follow.

'Bone-Dry,' Says Creedon

16-Percent Rise Seen
In School Budget

Early reports say the 1980-81 school budget may be a little over the four percent spending cap — about 12 percent over.

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon says labor negotiations, increased fuel costs, and state-mandated programs may add up to a 16 percent increase in the 1980-81 budget.

Expected increases in salaries (up $3.8 million), energy (up $1.4 million) and state programs (up $75,000 to $100,000), may drive the budget up about $5.3 million, from $32.9 million to $38.2 million, according to figures from the school system's business director, Stephen Moynihan.

The increase is about $4 million more than would be allowed under the state's four percent spending cap. An increase over four percent would require a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

But Creedon describes the budget as "bone dry — there's nothing in there except for what we have to do." The system's "instructional budget" — the basic expenses of running the schools — has been held at the same level for three years, he said. Spending on maintenance will also be down in the new budget, he said.

Creedon told the committee he thought the 20 to 30 hours of budget review it spent in previous years won't be necessary this year.

"There's just not that much in there this year," he said. On his advice, the committee scheduled two special sessions to review the budget on Feb. 6 and 11, and a public hearing on the budget Mar. 4. The final budget must be delivered to the mayor by Mar. 5 and by the mayor to the city council for final approval by Mar. 7.

Creedon explained the following budget increases:

- Salaries will increase 14 to 15 percent — a jump of $3.8 million over this year's $27.3 million salary budget.

"They're there, they've been negotiated, that's the way it is," he said. The salary increases include both raises negotiated for next year and about $1.43 million in raises scheduled for this year but not yet funded. Contracts agreed to by the school committee state that those raises would be "piggybacked" onto next year's.

- Energy costs — fuel, electricity and others — will increase $1.4 million, Creedon said. The fuel oil account, for example, will more than double, from $530,000 for this year to $1.1 million.

Since last year's budget was approved, Creedon noted, the price of heating oil has risen from about 40 cents to nearly a dollar.

- The cost of state-mandated programs, like Chapter 766 and other special need programs, will also increase said Moynihan. Last year's $697,000 is expected to jump $75,000 to $100,000, he said.

Eddie Moore Calls It A Career

Eddie Moore, who has never held an elective political office, is retiring from political life.

Moore, aide to two Congressmen—James Burke and Brian Donnelly—over two decades, is stepping down March 1.

But, don't take up a collection for a rocking chair. He's going to stay pretty active.

"I'm not going into retirement," he stresses. "I have private business plans but I just can't say anything more about that at this time."

Eddie, who lives in Milton, served 20 years as administrative assistant to Burke and has worked with Donnelly's staff during the past year transition period.

At 6-2, Edward J. Moore is a natural standout. He's easily noticed in any crowded room or strolling the sidewalks of downtown Quincy.

But he's a standout in other ways.

If you needed an "ambassador of good will," Eddie was it. There hasn't been anyone he couldn't get along with. He hasn't an enemy.

He's been one of the most capable top Congressional aides in the country—well informed in federal laws and procedures. And, a follow-through guy like both his bosses.

"I feel fortunate, indeed, to have had the opportunity over the past 21 years to serve two capable and respected U.S. Congressmen—Brian Donnelly and James Burke."

"As for myself, it was a most rewarding and educational experience that I would not have wanted to miss."

Well, Eddie is going to be missed.

What's his performance assessment of Burke and Donnelly?

"Jimmy was a great Congressman."

"Brian is already on his way to becoming a great Congressman."

There are a lot of people around town who think Eddie Moore himself would have been a pretty good Congressman.

MOORE

CARMELO MORREALE, who retires tomorrow (Friday) after 30 years as shellfish constable, got an unusual sendoff when his pension order came before the City Council recently.

MCCAULEY

One of his antagonists of long ago not only made the pension motion but wished him well in retirement.

"Twenty-five years ago," recalled Councillor Francis X. McCauley, "Carmelo spent most of his time chasing me around."

"Finally, one day he came to me and he said, 'Frank, I'm tired of chasing you and you must be tired of running.' He suggested I get a job in private enterprise which I did."

Reformed clam digger McCauley, now president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, recalled how Morreale saved the livelihood of many Quincy clammers.

"In the middle 50s when people from Newburyport and Ipswich were coming here and, in effect, raiding our clam beds, he brought a test case all the way to the State Supreme Court and he won," said McCauley.

"In effect, he saved the clam flats of Quincy solely for our own resident diggers."

Morreale, who is 63, retires on an annual pension of $11,567.28.

TURNOUTS AT THE Presidential Breakfast Series being sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce may be a pretty good barometer at that.

The sellout crowd of 630 at the breakfast at which George Bush spoke was a tipoff he was coming on strong and which was later proven in Iowa. The breakfast was at Valle's, Brantree and the Chamber had to shut off the tickets early because of space limitations.

Ronald Reagan is still the No. 1 crowd-puller in the Chamber series—drawing over 900 at the Lantana, Randolph a few months ago. Bush, however, might have come close to that—and possibly have topped it—if the breakfast he spoke at had been held at the larger Lantana.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: Brookline born Edward Kennedy right now needs a political miracle but if he and Milton born George Bush were to wind up with the nominations, what would have an all-Norfolk County duel for the Presidency next fall.

SMILE DEPT: Quincy Atty. Stephen Keefe is also a poet. He recently had one published in the Lawyers Weekly newspaper, poking poetic fun at the backlog of cases in the courts.

Keefe, a Republican, feels that Atty. Gen. Frank Bellotti is one of the hardest working office holders in the state and pays him this paraphrased tribute: "Ask not for whom the Bellotti toils, he toils for thee."

Commissioners Defend County Government

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Every year editors and some politicians check their calendars and note mentally that it's time to put the knock on county government and renew the same old phrases "abolition, state takeover, reform, invisibility, duplication of services" etc.

The counties are undoubtedly the most popular "whipping boys" in all of government today. And when you blast the counties you don't necessarily have to deal with realities.

In fact one editor of a Norfolk County newspaper in his indictment of county government went so far as to cite "constant conflict with another county agency, the Norfolk County Mosquito Control project over which it seems to have little control". The fact is that Mosquito Control is a state function, not a county function. One major reason for lack of a local control or voice in this state function is the inaccessibility and remoteness of the state which deals with all 351 cities and towns, and over 6 million people.

It is about time that the media and some politicians face the fact that the more remote government becomes, the less voice we all have.

Two horrendous examples of making government remote, unwieldy and expensive are the state welfare program and the state "reformed" court system.

Until July of 1968, Massachusetts welfare programs were run by individual communities and fraud and cheating were at a minimum and in addition, costs were under control.

After over 11 years of state control the state welfare program is a proven shambles and the costs have gone up an incredible 740%.

Readers Forum

So called "court reform" has become a farce since the state took over the court system. When the counties last had fiscal control over the courts in 1978-79 their collective budgets in the Commonwealth amounted to $88,000,000. In the first year under state control the final budget for the courts was $126,000,900, a 44% increase, or 11 times the 4% cap set by the governor. Yet there is no hue and cry from the towns because the towns have little or no voice at this distant state level.

In three out of four states in our country county government is the strong regional body, handling the many problems that are best controlled by a regional body including water supplies, sewers, engineering, schools, economic development, conservation, planning, solid waste and many other programs that single communities cannot cope with.

Perhaps we in county government have not been vocal enough about our positive record and innovative new programs. To cite a few: the Norfolk County computer program which is now on line with a pilot program to computerize water bills at no additional cost to the towns for the service. It is anticipated that this program can be expanded to include many other billings for the communities with savings to them in the hundreds of thousands of dollars; the Norfolk County Development Council with its advanced programs that have moved Norfolk County into 5th place in the commonwealth in tourism producing $73,000,000 per year; the Norfolk County Computerized Land Inventory, Developers Library and Job Fairs that have received national acclaim with three National Association of Counties (NACO) awards; the Chapter 18 economic development financial aid program that has pumped millions of dollars in new assessed valuations into Norfolk County.

The entire Norfolk County government annual costs for all these services is $47 for a family of three or 2.8% of an annual average $1,700 real estate tax in the towns of Norfolk County.

In the past 10 years, state government costs have gone up 182%, federal government 168%, towns 133% and a study of Norfolk County reveals only a 125% increase.

It is time to face the realities and forget the myths about county government. It's responsibilities should be expanded, not diminished or abolished. The track record of the County versus the State proves that county government is much less expensive and more responsive.

We have been going the wrong way too long!!!

Apartment Houses Revaluation Petition Drive

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Not having heard from the Mayor regarding repeated requests for a public hearing, we plan to ask the Superior Court to hear a request of apartment house owners affected by the discriminate revaluation of certain apartment houses in the City of Quincy, and ask that the spot assessing be rolled back.

All apartment house owners dissatisfied with the discriminatory revaluation are reminded to be sure to file for an abatement within 30 days of the mailing of their tax bills, and are invited to join in our petition to the court.

Possums And Paying Taxes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I never fully comprehended the severity of the city's economic situation until my mother told me of a recent incident involving a city department.

It seems that a large possum had the bad manners to begin dying in my mother's driveway in Wollaston. He lay there with just enough life left in him to roll around a bit and appear dangerous enough to keep my mother from getting to her car.

As most taxpayers would have done, she called the City to see what might be done about the poor animal. She wound up talking to the office of the City Dog Officer which informed her that it would cost her $10 to have the possum taken away, and $5 if the animal somehow managed to recover and walk away before they got there. Surprised as she was at having to pay a city department to provide a service which people supposedly pay taxes to receive in the first place, she agreed since the possum showed no signs of either getting well and leaving on his own accord, or having the decency to die so she might shovel him the few feet out into the street where he would presumably become officially the city's problem and be taken away without a surcharge.

A young man and young woman soon appeared - dying possums are evidently a two-person operation which might help account for the exorbitant cost of having them removed - in a city truck, took the possum and the $10 and quickly left.

When told about this, I became worried that the Dog Officer's policies might be carried over into other city departments. What if a taxpayer called to report a prowler and the Police Department responded that, "It will be $5 if the prowler is gone when we get there, and $10 if we catch the sunnagun." Or what if the Fire Department answered calls of "fire" with, "Okay, but it'll be $5 if the fire is out before we get there, and $10 if we actually have to do our job and put it out ourselves."

If taxpayers have to pay city departments to get them to do their jobs, what is the point of paying taxes in the first place?

Points To Ponder

- With certain oil companies making over 2 billion dollars last year, it doesn't seem that the phrase windfall profits is descriptive enough. Perhaps hurricane profits or tornado profits would be more appropriate.

- Saturday is Groundhog Day—when Mother Nature's personal meteorologist will tell us if we're going to have any real winter weather at all.

- After President Carter's recent speech, young adults have more to be concerned about than a cold breeze when they hear the word draft.

- If you're depressed and feeling as if you've been forgotten, you can take solace that there were other people worse off than you. How would you like to have been Whistler's father.

- Psychologists tell us that body language is going to be very important in the 1980's. If that's true, Bo Derek, the star of the movie "10" could become one of our greatest novelists.

The body is made up of about 60 percent water.

Vandals On Rampage At Furnace Brook Golf Club

• Aug. 15, 1979 - An attempted break was thwarted when an alarm went off. "One of them got cut pretty badly," said Healy. "There was blood all over the place."

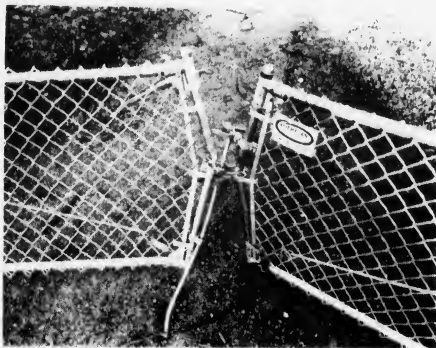

• Jan. 25, 1980 - A steel door was smashed and 14 1/2 cases of liquor valued at $1,250 was taken.

All the incidents, except a few on the far reaches of the course, have occurred after the club's closing time, 10 p.m. on most nights, midnight on Friday.

One of the options open to the club, said Healy, is hiring security guards to protect at least the clubhouse. But that could be prohibitively expensive.

"This is not a country club," he said. "The members of our club are just a bunch of working class people struggling to keep the place open because they like to play golf."

"Security guards could protect the clubhouse but I don't know what we'd do about the far greens and fairways. We'd need a

Delayed Tax Rate Costly In Borrowing

again, each time for $4 million on Aug. 23, Sept. 7 and Oct. 5 with the notes maturing on Nov. 16, Nov. 21 and Nov. 29.

By late October, it was apparent that the tax rate was not just around the corner, so on the next borrowings of $4 million each, on Oct. 26 and Dec. 3, Foy set the maturity dates ahead to May 5 and May 9.

The notes were purchased by 15 commercial banks, five of them in Quincy, at interest rates that ranged from a low of 4.70 per cent to a high of 8.10 per cent.

"As a rule of thumb," said Foy, "we get about one half the prime interest rate because municipal notes are tax exempt. Also the city does business steadily with those banks."

In November, the early TANs reached maturity and the city, still without a tax rate, was unable to pay. So the notes were renewed with new maturity dates set about two months ahead.

Notes due Nov. 7, 9, 16, 21 and 29 were now due Jan. 3, 4, 11, 16 and 18 respectively.

The tax rate was finally announced on Dec. 17 and the bills started running out of the computer the next day. Then there was trouble with the computer and tax receipts were delayed a few days more.

The note due Jan. 11 had to be renewed until Feb. 8 but the money that was taken in during the first weekend of tax collections was enough to pay the note that reached maturity Jan. 4.

The note due Jan. 11 was moved ahead to Feb. 15; the Jan. 16 note was paid on time; and the Jan. 18 note was renewed to Feb. 20.

The interest rates on the renewal notes ranged from a low of 7.10 per cent to a high of 8.59 per cent, higher than on the original borrowings because of a general rise in rates.

But there is a bright note.

"Normally," said Foy, "the city borrows in January and February in anticipation of taxes for the second half of the fiscal year.

"This year we have collected money in January and February that we don't usually have so we can invest it at 13 per cent interest and make up the difference in interest that has to be paid in May."

The five commercial Quincy banks that purchased TANs from the city are U.S. Trust Co. (Metropolitan), Hancock Bank and Trust, South Shore Bank, Baybank-Norfolk, and Old Colony-Norfolk.

Others include Boston Safe Deposit, the Shawmut Bank, State Street Bank, New England Merchants Bank, the Century Bank, First National Bank, Harbor National Bank, Capital Bank and Trust, U.S. Trust Co. (Milton), and Lincoln Trust Co.

date, on $13.6 million of its 1978 borrowing.

The city paid $438,208 in interest on the original TANs in 1978. Foy said, and $44,843 in interest on the renewals, for a total of $483,051. The 1980 interest will total $901,000.

Tobin pointed out that the interest rates on loans in 1978 ranged from 2.38 per cent to 4.25 percent while the rates in 1980 range from 4.75 percent to 8.57 percent due to inflation.

"We borrowed less money," said

Tobin, "but it cost us more to borrow it."

Tobin said the 1980 borrowing would have been less "if the previous administration had not placed us in the position of being sued for tax abatements by State Street South and General Dynamics."

Brockton Girl Crowned Queen Of St. Moritz Carnival

Prudence Swift of Brockton was crowned Queen of St. Moritz during the grand ball in the State Armory on Hancock St. that climaxed the third annual winter carnival.

Nearly 100,000 people jammed the highways and buslines to West Quincy to attend the three-day gala, directed by Arthur V. Drohan and sponsored by the Blue Hills Recreation Club.

The lone winner from Quincy in the sporting events was Torkel Wennesland, who was first finisher over the eight-mile cross-country ski race through the Blue Hills.

Traffic Commission Asked To Study Elm Ave. - Hancock St.

The Traffic Commission has been asked to study problems at the intersection of Elm Ave. and Hancock St. Wollaston, where five streets come together in a small distance.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath told the Council recently that the area is a bottleneck and may become worse when a vacant gasoline station is converted into a supermarket-type operation.

Other proposals being considered by the Traffic Commission are:

- * Stop signs at the intersection of East Squantum St. and Windsor Rd., Ocean St., Edgeworth Rd. and Williams St., Atlantic.

- * Study of problems at the corner of East Squantum St. and Bayfield Rd., Atlantic, where, says Councillor Joanne Condon, a number of serious accidents have occurred.

- * Installation of "buzzers for the blind" at traffic signals near the MBTA stations in Wollaston and Quincy Center and the new one that is being built in South Quincy.

- * Additional changes at the intersection of Quincy and Pleasant Sts., South Quincy, to make the intersection safer for pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

- * Establishment of a tow zone on the southern side of Hayden St., West Quincy, 100 feet up from the intersection with Willard St.

- * Study of the problems on Smith St., West Quincy, that have been created by the narrow street and the parking pattern.

- * Making Farrington St., Wollaston, one way from Beale to Brook St., with no parking on one side of Farrington.

Sign-Up Feb. 4 For Atlantic Trips

North Quincy residents may sign up Monday, Feb. 4, for February trips sponsored by the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

The center is sponsoring adult trips to the John F. Kennedy Library in Dorchester on Feb. 16 and Boston's Quincy Market, Feb. 28.

Children's trips, during school vacation, will visit the Burger King on Quincy Avenue, Quincy Point on Feb. 19 and the Children's Theater production of "Pinocchio" in Boston on Feb. 21.

The JFK Library trip will leave by bus at 12:30 p.m. and return about 4 p.m. Cost is 75 cents per person.

The Quincy Market bus will leave the center at 6 p.m. Fee for this trip is a contribution to the center's "Open Cupboard" emergency food center.

The Burger King trip will leave the center by bus at 2 p.m. and return around 4. The only fee is the price of what each child orders to go with their hamburger.

Tickets for "Pinocchio" are $2 per person. A bus will leave the center at 1:15 p.m. and return before 5.

Adult trips are limited to persons 18 and over. Parents may join children's trips by paying the same fee. Also, children under eight must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Sign-up for all trips will be held Monday, Feb. 4 at the center, 245 Atlantic St., North Quincy. Persons must register in person.

For further information, contact Mary Travers at 773-1380, ext. 328.

Morrissey Hails FAA Efforts To Move Air Departures To Sea

In a recent letter to Federal Aviation Administration Regional Director Robert Whittington, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) expressed support for a 160 or 140 degree initial heading during the data collecting process for Departure Alternative 6.

Alternative 6 directs departing aircraft further out to sea before initiating a turn and is being tested by Massport and FAA officials to relieve noise congested areas.

Morrissey told Whittington he "applauded Whittington's efforts to move the initial turn further out to sea," and that the "total success of a noise abatement procedure must be as far out over the ocean as possible."

Morrissey added that he opposed any move that would contribute to the increase of noise in Quincy.

Brownell Files Elderly Tax Bills

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has co-sponsored five bills in the State Legislature dealing with taxes and senior citizens.

The package includes bills that would:

- Lower from 70 to 67 the age requirement to qualify for senior citizen property tax abatement, at the same time increasing the income eligibility from $6,000 to $7,000 for single persons and $7,000 to $9,000 for married couples.

- Exclude the domicile of certain minor children and surviving spouses in computing the whole estate for abatement eligibility.

- Provide an additional income tax exemption of $100 from dividend income for each person age 65 or older.

- Provide an additional income tax exemption of $100 from interest income on savings accounts for each person 65 or older.

- Protect joint tenancy, such as an elderly brother and sister, in qualifying for a property tax abatement.

The bills were filed in conjunction with Frank J. Manning, president of the Legislative Council for Older Americans.

SENIOR CITIZENS were guests of the Quincy Elks at a recent dinner dance at Elks Hall, Quincy Center. Senior citizens [seated] Bert Griffin, Mrs. Henry Kilduff, Mrs. Bert Griffin, Clovis Casey, Mrs. Florence Marell and Louise Duffy are served by Elks [standing] Chaplain Lou Maggio, Trustee John Gorman, Leading Knight Joseph McArdle and dinner dance chairman Pasquale Vennezza.

Senior Citizens Committee To Meet On Fuel Crisis Feb. 4

City Councillor James A. Sheets has called a meeting of his Senior Citizens Activities Committee Monday, Feb. 4, at 6:30 p.m. in the Council chamber to discuss the heating fuel crisis.

Sheets said the meeting was requested by the Committee to keep people from freezing, which was formed to find fuel oil for senior citizens and low income people.

Members of the committee are Mary Breksford, Norma Barriere and Jane Ford, who represent the Quincy Community Action Organization's three areas in the city.

Sheets said the discussions will center around the depletion of funding sources to pay for fuel for the elderly and the poor, some of whom are facing the possibility of having heat cut off.

Sheets said the committee also wants to explore the possibility that Quincy will be able to take advantage of the cheap fuel oil that will be offered by Joseph P. Kennedy's newly formed non-profit company.

Seniors Screening Clinics In February

Two free denture screening clinics for Quincy's senior citizens have been scheduled for February, announces Mrs. Marion Andrews, executive director, Quincy Council on Aging.

The clinics will be held at the Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Feb. 11, and Feb. 25, both from 9 a.m. until noon.

The clinics are by appointment only and are staffed by members of the South District Dental Society. They are for Quincy senior citizen denture wearers only.

Appointments for future clinics may be made by calling the Council on Aging office.

County Brochures Promote Trailside Museum

Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald announces that 30,000 promotional brochures have been completed for the Blue Hills Trailside Museum in Milton.

The $1,900 cost for production of the brochures is being shared equally by the Museum and Norfolk County under a program designed to help non-profit attractions expand.

Approximately 5,000 brochures will be distributed by the Norfolk County Tourist Council to answer tourist inquiries, according to Director John C. Nourse.

"We consider the Blue Hills

Trailside Museum a major tourist attraction in Norfolk County," said Nourse.

The facility attracts almost 70,000 people each year and we will continue to help them grow because the programs that they offer to the public are innovative, professional and a delight to lovers of nature."

Openings Available In Competitive Swimming Program

Feb. 9 Dance To Benefit DiMarzio Fire Fund

A dance benefitting the owners of the recently destroyed DiMarzio Roller Rink will be held Feb. 9 at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Houghs Neck.

The dance, from 8 p.m. to midnight, will benefit the DiMarzio Fire Fund. The hall is located at Darrow St. and Manet Ave.

The rink, a Houghs Neck landmark for nearly 50 years, was destroyed by a Jan. 4 fire. Owner Jean DiMarzio and her sister, Helen Lynch, escaped from their adjacent apartment with only the clothes on their back and are now living in a Houghs Neck storefront.

Entertainment at the dance will be provided by disc jockey Paul O'Donnell. Tickets are $5 per person and available by calling Bob Brill, 471-7264, or Jeannie Keefe, 472-7597, and will also be available at the door.

Also qualifying for the semi-final rounds were:

Kathy Latus and Forest Truland of Quincy, a singing duet, second prize; singing guitar player Nando Chrisafulli of Quincy, third prize; roller skating duo Linda House and Christine Kranz, both 12, of Quincy, fourth prize; Irish step dancer Beth Nelson, 11, of Quincy, fifth prize; and tap dancing duo Michael McGonagle, 12, Douglas McLeod, 12, and Joe Murray, 11, of Hyde Park, sixth prize.

The next Amateur night will be held Sunday, Feb. 3 at 7:30 p.m. Anyone wishing to audition for this or the Feb. 10 quarter-final should contact Ed Bennett at 471-3725 or visit the Wollaston Theater any night between 7 and 9 p.m.

Semi-final competition begins Feb. 17.

Cookie Monster At PhotoQuick Friday

Parents and children are invited to the PhotoQuick Quincy Lab, 10 Granite St., to meet the Ice Follies' Cookie Monster and help raise money for United Cerebral Palsy (UCP) Friday, Feb. 1, 3 to 4 p.m.

PhotoQuick lab manager Ed Hohnowski will take color photos of children with the Cookie Monster for a small donation to UCP. Finished prints will be ready the following Monday at 4 p.m.

"We feel that this type of program is an effective way to raise much needed funds for UCP," Chris Savage, UCP's Director of Development said. "And, it will also help create a general awareness of UCP and the work we're trying to do."

Book And Bake Sale At Crane Library

RECEIVES AWARD—Barbara Leslie of Tullish & Clancy Real Estate, Quincy and Weymouth, recently received an award from the Greater Boston Council of the Homes For Living Network. Shown making the presentation is John J. Tullish, president of Tullish & Clancy.

Barbara Leslie Honored By Homes For Living Council

Barbara Leslie of Tullish & Clancy Real Estate, Inc., Quincy and Weymouth, was honored recently by the Greater Boston Council of the Homes For Living Network.

Present at the ceremonies were John J. Tullish, president of Tullish and Clancy, along with George P. Shafan, president and owner of Homes For Living Network, and Hal Bonaker, senior vice president.

"We are very proud of Barbara's accomplishments and of her high standards of professionalism and we wish her continued success in 1980," said Tullish.

Barbara and her husband live in Weymouth and they have three children.

Colonial's Lawrence Reports Best Year, Warns Of Future

Philip J. Lawrence, president of the Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, reports the best year for combined growth and earnings in the history of the institution.

But he warned that economic conditions for 1980 indicate a relaxed period of growth and earnings for the entire industry and a discouraging outlook for home buyers who are waiting for lower mortgage interest rates.

Lawrence also announced the following promotions of bank personnel:

Miss Mary L. Reilly, to senior vice president and treasurer, the No. 2 post to President Lawrence.

John H. Frederickson of Quincy, to vice president and senior loan officer.

Robert Guarnieri of Quincy, to vice president and controller.

Richard Coleman of Quincy, to assistant vice president and loan officer.

Mrs. Meredith Hudson of Raynham, to assistant vice president.

Lawrence, speaking to the annual meeting of the association, said there can be little expectancy that lower mortgage rates, moderate inflation and lower cost of living will ever return.

"Economic turmoil may be reduced," he said, "but the economy, particularly that portion involving the thrift industry, is in the throes of great change, not all of it for the better."

"The thrift industry, particularly because of its dependence upon long term mortgages as a principal source of earnings, is finding itself in a difficult position."

"It is forced to pay high rates of interest and to absorb much of the added cost with only a relatively small increased contribution from currently high rate mortgage lending."

"Most mortgage lenders who have been in business for a long period still have many millions of dollars tied up in mortgages yielding less than the lenders average cost of money."

"Until that factor can be substantially reduced or removed, there must be a compensatory higher rate charged for new mortgages, hence any likelihood of a substantial reduction of rates in the foreseeable future is bleak at best."

Lawrence said many new concepts are being developed, including variable rate mortgages indexed to a nationally published cost of money.

PHILIP LAWRENCE

MARY REILLY

JOHN FREDERICKSON

MEREDITH HUDSON

ROBERT GUARNIERI

RICHARD COLEMAN

"Currently under consideration in Washington is a short term mortgage to be written for three to five years, amortized over 20 to 30 years and renegotiated at the end of each note expiration date," he said.

He called the short note "a most reasonable approach."

"This allows rates to be more stable," he said, "and avoids the necessity of new mortgage holders paying higher rates to compensate for the low rates of mortgages written years ago."

"It also allows the mortgage holder to take advantage of any reduction in rates."

Miss Reilly was only the fourth woman in Massachusetts to become vice president of a federal loan association when she was named to that post in 1974. She has been treasurer since 1968. She joined the association as a teller in 1945.

Miss Reilly attended Bridge-water State Teachers College and Bentley College. She is a graduate of Weaver Course of Real Estate at Burdett College, the School of Executive Development of Savings and Loans at the University of Connecticut and the Graduate School of Savings and Loans at the University of Indiana.

Frederickson, a native of Chicago, attended Northeastern, the American Savings and Loan Institute, and the School of Executive Development at the University of Georgia. He joined the association in 1956.

He is a member of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors, the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, the Society of Real Estate Appraisers and the Old Colony Masonic Lodge of Hingham.

He is a director of the Quincy YMCA, assistant treasurer of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, and a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

Frederickson and his wife, Barbara, have a son, Peter.

Guarnieri joined the association in 1975 after a term of employment as a senior accountant with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. of Boston.

He is a graduate of Bentley College in 1969 and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Massachusetts Society of Public Accountants.

He and his wife, Brenda, have two children, Tara and Robert.

Coleman, a Weymouth native, was employed by the association in 1972 shortly after his graduation from Sale State College with a degree in business administration.

He also attended the Executive Development School at the University of Georgia, the Dale Carnegie Institute, the Management Growth Institute and the Society of Real Estate Appraisers Course 101.

He is chairman of the South Shore Banker-Realtor Committee and a member of the Wollaston Businessman's Association, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Coleman served on the committee that was named by the mayor to keep Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

He and his wife, Dona, have one child, Jeffrey.

Mrs. Hudson, who joined the association in 1969, attended Northeastern University and is a member of the Winstitutors, a professional organization.

She and her husband, John, live in Raynham, although she is a native of Quincy.

Drop In League But--

Quincy Edges North, 3-2 To Win City Title

Quincy's hockey team won another city championship last week when it edged fired-up North Quincy, 3-2, but Friday the Presidents were dumped into second place in the Suburban League after being defeated by new league leader Weymouth North, 7-3.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy icemen (8-3) played at Cambridge yesterday (Wednesday), will host Waltham Saturday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and next Wednesday will play Brockton at Brockton's Asiaf Arena at 7 o'clock.

Kevin Lewis' young North team (1-8 in the league and 4-9 overall) yesterday played Newton North, will play Brookline Saturday at 6:30 at the Watertown rink and next Wednesday will be home to Weymouth North at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

As usual, the records didn't mean a thing in the Quincy-North game as the Presidents were hard put to continue their hex over the Raiders. North hasn't defeated Quincy for several years.

As has been the case so many times, the young Raiders got the jump on the more experienced Presidents and led, 2-0, only to have Quincy bounce back to pull out a squeaker.

The rival goalies, Quincy's Jim Campbell and North's Bob Tierney, were brilliant, each making many unbelievable saves. North took the lead at 3:09 of the first period when Tom Gerry, its leading scorer, scored unassisted.

The Raiders made it 2-0 at 8:51 of the second period when Mark Andrews scored, taking a neat pass from Tom Hannan.

Tom Brennan, the league's number three scorer, tied it up with two goals later in the period. John Baylis, assisting on the first, and Robbie Craig, the league's number two scorer, and Baylis assisting on the second.

Quincy won it at 8:27 of the final period when Bob Currier scored on passes from Paul Flynn and John Furey.

"Nobody on our team thought this was going to be a blowout," said Sylvia, who coached Lewis in high school. "We all knew it was going to be a tough game. This is my 15th year coaching at Quincy and I can't remember the last time there was a blowout. North always plays well against us and the games are always close."

"This was a frustrating game to lose," said Lewis. "We came in thinking we could win it. This is always a very emotional game, and once we got up by two goals, I thought we had it. But we let it get away."

"We have a young team and Quincy's experience paid off. We have a lot of youngsters, while Bob (Sylvia) has a lot of seniors. Their senior line (Brennan, Craig and Scott Richardson) is just super."

That line, the highest scoring in the league last year, is leading the scoring race again this season.

At the start of the season both Sylvia and Lewis said Weymouth North would be the team to beat and the Maroons lived up to their top rating Saturday when they scored four unanswered goals in the third period to topple the Presidents from the league roof.

"What it came down to was our inability to make the big play," Sylvia said. "Even when we were down, 4-3, I honestly felt we had a solid chance of coming back. We were not thinking tie, we were thinking win. But when they went up by two, for all intents and purposes, that was it."

Paul Flynn scored at 6:09 of the first period to tie the game at 1-1, with Furey and Currier assisting. Weymouth made it 2-1 but Brennan scored at 13:37 to again tie it with Richardson having an assist.

Weymouth again went up, 3-2, midway in the second period and Craig tied it up at 13:37 with Richardson again assisting.

The third period was all Weymouth.

North Quincy played a fine game Saturday to edge Boston Latin, the Boston City League leader, 4-3, at Harvard's new rink.

Brian Ofria scored the winning goal with five minutes left in the game. Paul O'Sullivan scored two goals and Rich Reinhardt one. Lewis hailed the line of Mike McNeice, O'Sullivan and Rich Stevens for its performance.

North's junior varsity had defeated Quincy's jayvees, 4-0, with Dave DiCarlo scoring two goals and Tom Lester and Steve Igo one each.

NORTH QUINCY goalie Bobby Tierney makes one of his many saves in the Raiders' 3-2 loss to Quincy last week.

48 Teams Entered In Kiwanis Hockey Tourney

Forty-eight teams in four divisions. Mites, Squirts, Pee Wees and Bantams, will play in the week-long Quincy Kiwanis 7th annual Youth Hockey Tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena from Feb. 18 through the 24th.

The Class A, AHA-sanctioned event will feature teams from Ontario, Nova Scotia, Connecticut, Cape Cod, North Shore, Greater Boston and Quincy-South Shore.

A ticket good for all games is $3, otherwise single tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The four finals will be played on Sunday, the 24th.

For further information call the Quincy Youth Arena at 479-8371.

North Matmen Win, Bow

North Quincy's wrestling team, enjoying its finest season, met two teams Saturday it will face in the Division II south sectionals and the Raiders split, topping Duxbury, coached by former North Quincy football coach Ralph Frazier, 26-19, but losing to undefeated Dedham, 35-11, to make its record 9-3.

Steve Joyce's Raiders will wrestle at Brookline today at 2:15 and Friday will host Walpole at 4 o'clock. Next Wednesday North will be at Cohasset for a 6 o'clock meet.

In the win over Duxbury North got wins from Steve Dodd, Glen Collins, Gino Pillard, Dave Howley, John McNamara, John Coughlin, all by decision, and John Gorczyca by pin. Chris Butler and Steve Kallenberg went to draws.

The big match in the Dedham meet was between unbeaten Gorczyca and Dedham's Jay Gatto, unbeaten in two years. They were battling for the top seed in the sectionals and Gatto won it in a close bout.

North's Pillard remained unbeaten and was one of only two North winners. The other was Coughlin. Collins and Howley drew. Howley also is undefeated.

Earlier in the week North had defeated Suburban League rival Weymouth South, 44-15.

North's John Sweet, Butler, Chris Dunn, Pillard and Gorczyca all pinned their opponents. Howley, McNamara and Coughlin won by decision and Kallenberg went to a draw.

Overcome Brockton, 67-58

Presidents Gear For Cambridge Rindge

Quincy's awesome basketball team, only two wins away from a state tournament berth going into last Tuesday's game with Newton North, continues to roll merrily along with a 12-1 record.

The Presidents are aiming for next Tuesday's big game at Cambridge.

Joe Amoroso's Presidents, beaten only by Cambridge Rindge and Latin's defending state champions by two points, will clash with the unbeaten powerhouse Tuesday at 3:30 at the Rindge and Latin court. Quincy is idle Friday night.

The Presidents played two more strong games last week and Friday showed their ability to come from behind as they topped Brockton, 67-58.

Quincy trailed, 21-10, but scored the Quincy 13, and never trailed after that.

Ritch Finnegan turned in another outstanding performance against Brockton. Although scoring only seven points, he had seven steals and five assists and continually harassed the Braves on defense. Stan Benson had seven rebounds and seven assists and Andy Carrera had seven assists.

Save Priscella, junior forward, had his second 20-point game of the week and Brian Donovan also scored 20. Both are among the Suburban League scoring leaders.

"This was just another case of everyone doing his job and we prayed in this game we could come from behind," a happy Amoroso said. "Ritch Finnegan has been just tremendous and in our game Tuesday against Brookline he played the finest game ever. Everyone has been just great."

Quincy had defeated Brookline, 78-63, earlier in the week as Priscella and Finnegan had 20 points each and Donovan scored 10. Finnegan's floor play was superb as he sparked the defense in addition to scoring his 20 points. Priscella also had one of his finest games as he scored 20 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and had six assists.

Kurt MacDonald also played well and had 15 rebounds to give the Presidents a tremendous lift.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity also continued to click as it handed Brockton only its second loss of the season, 72-59, Friday to improve its record to 8-2.

Danny White had his best game as he scored 22 points, six coming in the final two minutes of the game when Brockton was coming on. Gary DiNardo had 14 points, 11 in the first half. Alvin Memmolo scored eight points and had a fine game and Mike Guidice scored a key basket to halt a Quincy drought and actually ice the game.

Earlier in the week the Quincy Jayvees topped Brookline, 88-69, as they turned in an outstanding all-around performance. DiNardo scored 25 points, 19 in the second half, Shawn Barnes scored 14, Jeff Morrison had 10 and Pete Papile had nine and turned in an excellent effort.

Boys Bow To Newton N.

North Girls Can Clinch Track Title Against Quincy

The North Quincy girls' track team is providing one of the year's best stories.

The Raiderettes, winners of only one meet a year ago, can clinch the Suburban League championship Saturday morning if they defeat winless Quincy when the rivals clash at 9 a.m. at Northeastern University.

The North girls, who have come along fast under boys' coaches Lou Tozzi and George Liset, had to come from behind last week to tie Brockton, 43-43, giving them a 6-0-1 mark with only Quincy to go.

The tie came about when the mile relay team of Mary Kate Kennedy, Deirdre Donovan, Mary Crehan and Elaine Robertson won the meet's final event. It marked the first time in two years a North relay team had defeated Brockton.

Several of the Raiderettes have benefited by experience gained while performing for the Quincy Track Club.

Individual winners against Brockton were Linda Kennedy in the mile, Donovan in the 300, undefeated Michelle Millane in the shot put and Mary Crehan in the 1000.

Second places were taken by Robertson in the 600, Donovan in the shot put, Eileen McKenna in the hurdles, Karen Crehan in the high jump and Mary Kate Kennedy in the 50.

Taking thirds were Robyn O'Donnell in the two-mile, Loretta Garrigan in the hurdles and Mary Kate Kennedy in the high jump.

Last Friday several of the North girls made good showings in the State Coaches Meet at Harvard.

Millane placed second in the shot put at 41'4". Karen Crehan was fourth in the high jump at 5-2. Donovan was fourth in the 600 at 1:29. Linda Kennedy was third in the two-mile at 11:26.3 and Mary Crehan took fifth in the 1000 at 2:46.5. All were new school records.

Meanwhile, the North boys dropped a 56-29 decision to Newton North, to drop their record to 5-3.

The Raiders will finish their league season Saturday at 11 o'clock against Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Northeastern.

Unbeaten Jack Leone won the high jump, Bob Biagini won the hurdles in 6.8 seconds, breaking his own school record of 6.9. Lou DiPietro won the shot put and Steve Mastorilli won the 300.

Mike Ricciuti was second in the two-mile, Gary Morin third in the mile, Joe McDonald third in the 1000, Mike Ellis third in the 600, and Sumpter third in the 300.

Here's one that's hard to believe... But it's true... Two of the greatest pro basketball players of all-time, Bob Cousy and Bill Russell FAILED to make their high school basketball teams... Both were unable to make their teams in their high school days... It seems incredible, but it's been confirmed by the National Basketball Association... And it proves again that truth is sometimes stranger than fiction.

Has any basketball player ever scored all his team's points in one game?... This amazing feat happened once in a high school game in Alabama... A player named Walter Garrett scored 97 points in one game a few seasons ago, and the final score in that game was 97-54!

Here's an oddity... There was once a heavyweight boxing champion of the world who was NOT a heavyweight... Boxing rules say a heavyweight is any fighter over 175 pounds... but the heavyweight champ in 1906 was Tommy Burns, who weighed only 168 pounds.

I bet you didn't know... That you can save as never before... On skis, ski needs, hockey equipment, skates, cold weather wear... Lack of snow, lack of traveling and lack of cold weather caused us to be overstocked. Come now, come buy and save!

half of the standings to play the most exciting game of the season last week as Point edged Broad Meadows, 47-46, in the Junior High basketball league.

With 27 seconds remaining Mark Prescott looped in a basket to tie the game at 46-46. Just as the buzzer sounded to end the game, Chris McGray fouled, shooting. He sank his second free throw to win the game. It was a heart-breaking defeat for Coach Paul Picarski's BM quintet, coming so close to its first win. Never ahead BM came up with its best effort of the year, in tying the game and almost pulling it out.

Prescott led all scorers with 23 points and Mike Williams scored 13 for BM. Point was led by McGray with 17 and Sal Lorenzano with 15.

The Point Junior Varsity made it a clean sweep with a 36-24 win. It was close at halftime: Point nursing an 18-17 lead. It forged ahead with an 18-7 second half. For Point, Jim Stasio had 10 points, with Sean Arruda tallying nine and Tommy Travers eight. Carl Freedman with 14 points and Tony Casarano with six were leaders for BM.

Undeclared at 11 wins, Sterling wasn't pressed this time as it defeated Central, 51-39.

Their last encounter was a one-point win for Sterling, but this time it was a different story. At the opening whistle, Coach Jim Snodgrass and his Sterling five took command by netting 29 points to 14 at halftime. This 15-point bulge was increased to 20 points by the end of the third period. Central's best quarter was the last as it out-scored Sterling, 18-10.

Jeff Timberlake again showed he should be a great high school player as he stole the ball repeatedly and registered 16 points for the league leaders. Mark Righini was close behind with 14. For Central, a great effort by Jim Kelly, with 12 points, drew praise.

The Central jayvees triumphed.

37-29. A strong second half enabled Central to win. A trio for Central, starred with Bob McElaney getting 10 points, Jack Bolster eight and Paul Ryan seven. For Sterling, Joe Burke with nine and Rich Ready with seven were the most productive.

Previous to the Sterling match, Central won its eighth game by beating Atlantic, 61-46. It was nip and tuck the first half as they went into the rest period tied at 18 to 18. Coach Mario Casali's Central Rams changed tactics for the second half, consequently Atlantic was blown out, 43-20, with a solid 26 point barrage in the last chapter.

Leading the Central charge, Tim Ryan played a superb game with 26 points, helped by Bob Mudge with 15 and John Purland with 10. For Atlantic, Peter McGillicuddy threw in 18 and Dave Cuevres nine.

The Atlantic jayvees continued on their winning streak, remaining undefeated, 34-23. Brian Gibbons and Jim Kennedy were high for Atlantic with six points each, while McElaney with six and Bolster with five stood out for Central.

In a hard fought game, especially at the end, Atlantic overpowered Broad Meadows 51 to 38. Meadows played tough, trying hard for a win, after its great game at Point.

The Bill Willoughby boys of Atlantic were not to be denied a win. They led from the beginning, holding a 22-14 halftime lead. BM played with tenacity during the latter part of the tussle, resulting in foul problems and the ejection of players on both sides. Atlantic chalked up its fourth win, hoping for an upset against Sterling in its last game.

For Atlantic, McGillicuddy led the way with 14 points. Vin Barry had 10 and Dave Cuevres popped in eight. High for BM were Prescott with 10 and Williams with nine points.

The Atlantic jayvee unit is still undefeated, snaring its 10th straight, 30-19. This group should do well next year as ninth graders, Dennis Cronin and Brian Gibbons each scored eight points for the unbeaten five while for the BM basketballers, Tony Casarano scored nine points.

Johnson, Burgin, BoCar Win

Johnson Motor continued to increase its Bantam House League lead and now holds a five-point edge over Baskin Robbins.

Johnson defeated Doran & Horrigan, 3-1, on goals by Bryan Provenzano, Bill Lawless and Matt O'Brien. Jeff Murphy had two assists and Jay Kustka, Provenzano and Jim Locke one each. Joey Engrassia scored for Doran.

Burgin Platner topped Baskin Robbins, 5-3, with John O'Connor, Bob Drury and Steve Golden scoring for Baskin. John Burn had two assists and Drury, Tom Ryan and Jim McSweeney one each.

BoCar surprised the Quincy Sun, 3-1, for its first win of the season as Pete Obshatkin, Mark Chambers and Dennis Shannon scored the goals and Shannon and Tim Barry had assists. Ed Boyle scored for the Sun with assists for Bob Forman and Paul McMillen.

Squirt A's Hold Top

Quincy's Squirt A team remained on top of the South Shore Conference with an 8-4 victory over Brockton and a 5-0 win over Canton.

In the Brockton game Mark Zimmerman and Matt Furtado had two goals each and Bobby Roche one. Zimmerman had two assists and Jay Rodriguez and Furtado one each.

Against Canton Mike Benson had the hat trick, Bobby Roche and Billy Connolly two goals each and Furtado one. Zimmerman had three assists, Rodriguez and Adam McGregor two apiece and John O'Connell, Furtado, Billy Roche and Bobby Furlan one each.

ED HANRATTY (15), Quincy Junior College freshman guard, has his shot blocked in game against Northern Essex. The Jaguars lost, 88-71.

Wins 2 More

QJC Moves Closer To Playoff Berth

The Quincy Junior College basketball team moved nearer a Greater Boston Small College Conference playoff berth with two victories last week, improving its conference record to 10-3 and overall mark to 13-3.

The Jaguars played their final home game last night (Wednesday), hosting Essex Agricultural. They will play Mass. College of Pharmacy, tied with QJC for second place. Friday night at 7 at Hellenic College in Brookline, will play Daniel Webster in Nashua, N.H., next Thursday at 7:30 and will finish the regular season on Tuesday, Feb. 12, at Blue Hills Technical in Canton.

The top four conference teams will play in the playoffs at Northern Essex College in Haverhill Feb. 29 and March 1.

Coach Brian Buckley's Jaguars defeated Daniel Webster, 77-55, last week as they rolled to a 16-0 lead, sparked by Ed Richard, who scored 22 points, and Jim Holleran, who scored 11, most of them coming early.

"Richard has been playing a superb ball for us in the past five games and Steve Jaehnig has played some fine all-around floor games," said Buckley. "All the guys were ready for the last two games. We passed the ball as well as we have all year."

Earlier in the week QJC rolled up its highest score of the year, including 67 second half points, to topple North Shore Community College, 108-93.

Trailing, 43-41, at halftime, Quincy employed full-court pressure with Holleran hitting his first six shots of the second half.

"This was a big win for us after losing a heartbreaker to Mass. College of Pharmacy," Buckley said. "Every player scored in the first half and we wore them down. It was an outstanding team effort."

Holleran paced the offense with 23 points. Bob Evans scored 22. Paul Donoghue 13, Paul Waters 12 and Richard 10.

Edge Weymouth N.

Raiders Keep Tourney Hopes Alive

The North Quincy basketball team kept its glimmering hopes for a state tournament berth alive last Friday when it edged Weymouth North, 57-55, to make its record 8-5.

Ed Miller's Raiders faced Weymouth South Tuesday and will meet undefeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin's defending state champions Friday at 3:30 at Cambridge.

North, involved to two thrillers last week, won over Weymouth thanks to clutch free throws by Bill O'Connell and Mark Millane down the stretch.

North had a 24-20 first period lead, still held on to a 36-34 edge at the half but Weymouth tied it at 44—all going into the hectic final period.

Bill Mallory and high scoring Millane, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, had 12 points apiece and Bob Bolster and Rick Anderson turned in outstanding defensive jobs as they held Weymouth's top scorer, Don McLeod, to 11 points.

Earlier in the week, North had dropped a 54-52 overtime decision to Brockton after O'Connell had tied it for the Raiders with four seconds left in regulation play.

Brockton held a 28-22 halftime edge but North came back strong with a big third period to cut the gap to 50-48 going into the fourth session. O'Connell stole an inbound pass, called a time out, then hit his jumper to force the extra period.

Millane had 22 points for the Raiders and O'Connell added 11.

Paul Bregoli's North junior varsity evened its record at 6-6 Friday with a 53-42 win over Weymouth North as Vic O'Leary had 16 points, hitting seven for 11 from the floor, grabbed 10 rebounds and had four assists.

Chip Bunker had seven points, took down 12 rebounds and blocked five shots, and Steve Sacchetti turned in an excellent defensive performance.

Earlier in the week North lost to Brockton, 57-41, as O'Leary again had 16 points.

Quincy Girls Edge Brockton At Buzzer

Sue Callahan, the team's top scorer and one of the leading scorers in the Suburban League, hit a jumper with one second left to give the Quincy girls' basketball team a 49-48 win over Brockton last week and the First Ladies took a 6-5 record into Tuesday's game with Newton North.

Barbara Webster's Quincy team will host defending state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Tuesday at 3:15.

The Brockton game was a seesaw battle all the way with Quincy's biggest lead of seven points coming in the fourth period.

Ann McCarron was high scorer for the First Ladies with 13 points. Nancy McDonald had 10 and Maureen Maher played a fine game with nine points and led the team in rebounding.

The North Quincy girls dropped a 49-37 decision to Weymouth North, falling behind, 23-16, at halftime.

Julie Watts had another big day for the Raiderettes with 18 points and Jackie Thayer had nine.

Earlier in the week North dropped a 40-38 heartbreaker to Brockton after taking a five-point lead into the final period. The Raiderettes' slide began when Watts, who had scored eight points, taken down 14 rebounds and blocked four shots, fouled out. Brockton was then able to control the boards and made its winning comeback.

Kim Alberti paced North with 10 points.

The Raiderettes faced Weymouth South Tuesday and Friday night will be home to Cambridge at 8 o'clock.

At Lincoln Hancock Pool

Quincy Swimmers Hope To Snap North Jinx

The North Quincy and Quincy swim teams will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool with the Raiders trying to remain undefeated against the Presidents in their five-year rivalry.

Although North, with its best record, 7-2, will be a solid favorite to continue its hex, Quincy has come along well and won its last two meets, its second and third wins of the year, and could give North a run for its money.

North has never lost a swim meet, boys or girls, to Quincy since the schools started the sport five years ago.

Bill Walker's North team raced past Don Bosco 114-61, last week with Moscow-bound Ed Melanson winning the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly and swimming with the winning 200 medley relay team along with Bill Feeney, who won the 100 backstroke; John Buckley and Bill Boudreau, who set a school record of 1:12.1 in winning the 100 breaststroke. The relay team's time of 1:54.202 was also a school record.

The Raiders won all but two events with Dave Riley taking the 200 freestyle and the 100 freestyle and Bob Farmer winning the 50 freestyle.

Steve Pike won the one-meter diving and Scott Andrews took second, both qualifying for the state sectionals with their point totals. The 400 freestyle relay team of Riley, Farmer, Buckley and Tim Burke also won.

Earlier in the week North had defeated Apponequet, 98-74, with Melanson again a double winner in the 100 butterfly and 200 individual medley. Boudreau won the 100 breaststroke and took third in the 200 individual medley. Both swam with the winning 200 medley relay team. Andrews won the diving, Riley took the 100 freestyle, Feeney the 100 backstroke and the 400 free style relay team again won.

Amy Chessia's Quincy team last week topped Blue Hills, 86-76, winning five events. Bob Lavigne won the 200 freestyle, John Swanton took the 100 butterfly, Bob Dullnig won the 100 backstroke, Bob Grant won the diving and the medley relay team also won.

Earlier in the week the Presidents easily topped Suburban League rival Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 99-55, with a number of seconds and thirds accounting for the sizeable advantage.

Lavigne won the 200 and 100 freestyles, Dullnig took the 100 backstroke and Swanton, Grant, Joe Lynch and Goslin all scored well for the Presidents. Quincy won both the 200 medley relay and the 400 freestyle relay.

Quincy Wrestlers Still Strong

With the season coming down the home stretch, Quincy's wrestling team has an impressive 13-2 record and a 5-0 mark in the Suburban League, of which it is the defending champion.

The Presidents, beaten only by western Massachusetts power Springfield Classical and Lowell, wrestled at Billerica last night (Wednesday), will host Waltham Saturday at 7 and will be at Millard Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Last Saturday, in a tri meet, Quincy rolled over Newton North, 45-6, in a league meet, but bowed to Lowell, one of the state's top teams, 32-27.

In the romp over Newton, Ed Ryan, Paul Orlando, John O'Leary, Jeff Heath and Geoff Caffisch won by pin, and Martin Doyle, Joe Irvine, John Herald, Jim Silcox and Mike Monahan won by decision. Pete Connolly and Dave Silcox were defeated.

Against Lowell Heath and Caffisch won by pin and Orlando, Herald, Glen Oriola and Monahan won by decision. Connolly, Ryan, Dave Silcox, Doyle, O'Leary and Jim Silcox lost.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Plymouth-Carver, 33-17, with John MacLelland, Orlando and O'Leary winning by pin and Doyle, Monahan, Heath and Caffisch winning by decision. Connolly, Ryan, Todd Veale, Herald and Jim Silcox lost.

In a previous meet Quincy rolled over league rival Brockton, 39-16, winning eight matches, four by pins, and earlier had topped Duffer of Fall River, 38-23, winning six matches, including four pins.

In the first loss to Springfield, each team won six matches but Springfield won by pins in the 100, 144 and 157-pound classes, making the difference. The Presidents easily defeated another Western power, Westfield, 45-11.

"Although we are unbeaten in the Suburban League, we have yet to meet Waltham and North Quincy, both strong teams, so we still have a way to go in defending our league championship," Coach Carmen Mariano said. "Also, we have state powers Millard and Billerica to face, so our work is definitely cut out for us.

"I can't say enough about the commitment and dedication which this team has shown me. Few of our people started the season with even one full year of varsity experience, but what we lacked in experience, we made up for in hard work. I'm very pleased with what we have accomplished so far."

Heath and Caffisch are undefeated and several others have outstanding records.

Heath (187) is 14-0-0, including nine pins; Caffisch (heavyweight) is 13-0-0, Doyle (128) 13-1-0, Herald (140) 11-1-1, Orlando (121) 13-1-1, A.D.Vincenzo (147) 9-2-0, Monahan (169) 11-1-0, Ryan (107) 10-3-1, and O'Leary (134) 8-2-0.

Steam Carpet Cleaning

HOW IT WORKS

Safe. Gentle hot water cleaning mixture is sprayed into the carpet which forces embedded soil particles into suspension, then a "Super Power" vacuum motor recovers the soiled solution from the depth of the carpet, thereby eliminating sub-surface wear. Soil build-up and carpet life is extended up to 40%.

ELI-45 MASTER recovers up to 85% of the moisture to minimize drying time.

"THANK YOU, GOD . . ." began Rebecca Chicino, 8, a Merrymount School third grader, Tuesday in one of the first prayers heard in Quincy public schools in 17 years. Principals reported that the first prayer sessions went "smoothly."

After 17 Years

First Day Of Prayers 'Smooth,' Say Principals

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

What may be a controversial issue to many parents was just part of another day in class Tuesday for Quincy's 13,000 schoolchildren.

The first day of prayers in public schools since 1963 went smoothly, according to several principals. Participation varied from school to school on the elementary level, but was almost nonexistent in the high schools.

Principals Lloyd Hill of Quincy High and Laurence Babin of Quincy Vo-Tech reported that one student at each school, out of over 2,400, volunteered to lead their classes in prayer.

On the other hand, Wollaston School principal Douglas MacDonald said students led prayers in each of the elementary school's 15 classes.

The new state law, which went into effect Tuesday, allows one student in each class to volunteer to lead the class in a prayer of his or her choosing. Students or teachers who wish not to take part may leave the room during the prayer.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1963 that mandatory prayers in public schools were unconstitutional. However, supporters of school prayers believe the voluntary aspects of the new law will make it constitutional.

Civil liberties groups in Massachusetts have said they'll file suits testing the constitutionality of the new prayer law.

"We realize it's being questioned across the state as to

'Another Chicago?'

Tobin Warns Of Teacher Walkout Next September

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin says he sees a Chicago-type walkout of public school teachers in Quincy in September unless the School Committee can find the money within the 4 per cent to fund negotiated raises.

And if the City Council permits the School Committee to go over the cap on its budget in order to fund the raises, the money will have to come out of the big budgets for public works, fire and police.

"I don't want to cause a panic," said the Mayor, "but I've got to get this message out.

"I don't want people coming home from vacation in September and saying, 'The schools aren't open! Why, mayor?'"

"I want the people who have children in the Quincy school system to understand.

"Teachers have walked out in the city of Chicago. I see it happening here. I see it coming just as sure as I'm talking to you right now.

"The time to address ourselves to it is now."

Tobin said he has heard figures banded about that the School Department will ask the School Committee to go over the 4 per cent budget cap by some $6 million.

He explained that the part of the school budget that comes within the tax cap is protected by fiscal autonomy but that anything over 4 per cent requires a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

If the Council were to permit the school budget to exceed the cap, he said, then it would have to trim other department budgets to stay within the 4 per cent cap on the tax levy.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea explained that there are three separate caps, one on the school budget, one on the general city budget, and one on the tax levy.

The first two can be exceeded by a two-thirds vote of the Council, he said, but the cap on the tax levy is inviolable.

"What I am saying," said Tobin, "is that I don't know where the money is going to come from if the school budget exceeds the cap. Something's got to give. Maybe public safety."

"I want to brace the city. I think it's going to come down to a crucial stand, depending on the direction that the action and understanding of the School Committee and the City Council take.

"There could be some serious action taken in this city in September that could forestall schools.

"If the budget comes to the Council and only that amount of the budget is accepted that is within the tax cap and the teachers aren't getting their salary increases, do you see them going to class every day?"

Meeting Scheduled On Upland Rd. Extension

The Planning Department will hold an informational meeting on the proposed Burgin Parkway (Upland Rd.) Extension at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 13, in the second floor conference room in the new City Hall.

The aim of the meeting is to provide information to those interested in the extension prior to a public hearing that is set for Wednesday, Feb. 20, at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

'Tough Bullet To Bite But . . .'

$1 Million Garage Bond Needed For City's Future, Says Raymondi

By TOM HENSHAW

"If we don't carry through on this particular project," said City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, "everything else we've been talking about in the past few years or in the future is going to be jeopardized.

"It's a tough bullet to bite because we're talking about an additional $1 million bond issue but to put in a garage that is not going to serve that project is doing a disservice to the city of Quincy."

It was as ringing a sendoff as possible for Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's proposal to float a $1 million bond to pay for the upper two levels on a seven-level parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St.

The city has a $3.79 million urban development action grant (UDAG) from the federal government to build the garage but that turned out to be not even enough to construct the first five floors.

The problem is that 115 parking spaces in the Della Chiesa parking area will be wiped out by the Campanelli-Stop and Shop office building that is to be built adjacent to the garage.

Since the city plans to lease up to 600 spaces in the garage to Campanelli and there are only 559 spaces on the bottom five floors, it is necessary to add two floors with 220 spaces to recoup those that were lost.

"Politically, I didn't want to bring in another bond request," said Tobin, "but with the federal grant we are getting basically a seven-story building for $1 million.

"If we built a five-story building and added two floors later on the cap would be astronomical. If we put an extra floor on the garage in the Ross parkingway now it would cost as much as it cost to build the garage itself."

Meanwhile, the Quincy Center Business and Professional

Association passed a resolution reminding the city that it is taking away 115 parking spaces and recommending an equal number in the garage.

"We endorse the garage," said Jason Feldman, vice president of the QCBPA. "Anything for the betterment of Quincy."

The City Council referred the bond issue to Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.'s Finance Committee after a brief tug of war with Raymondi, who wanted it for his Downtown and Economic Development Committee.

"It is a financial order," conceded Raymondi. "Every other piece of information coming from the mayor's office on this project has gone into the Downtown Committee. This one should for continuity."

The Council, with Councillors Joanne Condon, Lydon, Stephen J. McGrath and John J. Quinn

QHA Application Resubmitted

Safford St. Home Controversy Back To Building Inspector

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Housing Authority's proposed home for mentally retarded adults on Safford St., Wollaston, could be underway by this spring, says QHA administrator Clement O'Brien.

Or the plan could be destined for a lengthy detour through the Zoning Appeals Board and back to the courts, he said. Right now the ball is back in Building Inspector Allan MacDonald's court.

On Jan. 24, the QHA applied to MacDonald for the second time for a building permit for the home, in the works since October, 1977. The first application for such a permit last year was rejected by MacDonald.

A QHA suit seeking to order MacDonald to issue that permit was rejected in December, 1979 by Judge Andrew Meyer of Norfolk Superior Court. However, Meyer ruled MacDonald's reasons for denying the permit were "not pertinent."

MacDonald had claimed that a 1977 Zoning Appeals Board decision had restricted use of the former nursing home at 215 Safford St. to a two-family residence.

The proposed group residence would house six mentally handicapped adults and four full-time staff members, who would educate and train them.

Meyer noted that state laws exempt "educational" projects, such as the Safford St. home, from local zoning ordinances. Such uses may be subject only to "reasonable" regulations, regarding parking, size of buildings and other points.

Meyer directed the QHA to resubmit its application to MacDonald. If MacDonald chooses to once again deny the permit, he must state which of the "reasonable" regulations are violated by the QHA's plans.

If MacDonald approves the application, the contract for renovations for 215 Safford St. can be put out to bid, and the home could be in operation by this spring, O'Brien said.

MacDonald has 30 days after the Jan. 24 filing to make a decision on the permit application.

The QHA has the option of appealing MacDonald's decision to the Zoning Appeals Board and, if denied the permit again, file yet another suit in Superior Court.

O'Brien last week also denied Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon's claim that the QHA had entered into an open-ended contract, providing "no bottom line" for the cost of running the home.

Referring to an undated copy of the signed contract, Lydon noted that some sections—including the rent paid by the State Department of Mental Health and the portion of maintenance which the sponsor agency will be responsible for—were left blank.

"There are certainly a lot of unanswered questions," regarding the cost of the home to the city, he said. Lydon, who represents the Wollaston neighborhood in which the home would be placed, has opposed the project.

O'Brien said the blank spaces are standard procedure in contracts of that sort. Those rates are set later by the Department of Community Affairs, he said.

Low Income Pensions Sought For Census Work

The Census Bureau is looking for low-income people to work on the 1980 census in their neighborhoods.

They hope that low-income areas will be better represented if local residents do the counting work. Welfare recipients working as census takers will not have their earnings deducted from their checks.

Salary is $4 an hour, based on a 40-hour week. The job will begin April 1 and last about 6 weeks.

To make it easier for Germantown residents to apply for these positions, Quincy Community Action Organization, Inc. has arranged to have testing held at its office in the Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell Street (2nd floor) on Wednesday, Feb. 6 at 1:30 p.m.

Those interested in taking the test should call Norma Barriere or Fran Lupo at the Germantown Service Center, 471-1189.

City Moves To Aid Heatless Seniors

The Mayor's office spent the better part of Tuesday sending notices to about 400 chilled senior citizens telling them how and when and where to apply for a second round of emergency fuel oil.

The seniors apparently thought they already had applied and their confusion didn't really surface until Monday night at a meeting of the City Council's Senior Citizens Activities Committee. Kendall Kiely, a Council on Aging volunteer, showed the committee a bundle of 398 questionnaires that had been sent out to elderly homeowners with their tax bills and returned by those in need.

But the tax bills went out late and by the time the questionnaires had been filled out and returned the first round of $117,000 available through Quincy Community Action Organization was exhausted.

"Our idea was that we would have two or three months to work on these people," said Kiely. "Unfortunately, the questionnaires came back like flakes of snow early in January."

By this time, a new fuel allotment of $300,000 had been obtained for the elderly and the needy but, said Kiely, there was no way of notifying these needy homeowners that it was available.

"These are people who own real estate," he said. "These are people who pay real estate taxes to the city of Quincy. These are people who are crying for help."

Committee Chairman James A. Sheets said he found it "shocking to see so many people who live in owner-occupied dwellings who have such extensive needs which have not really been articulated."

Sheets and the committee members were even more shocked when Kiely told them the elderly seemed to feel that the questionnaire was an application and apparently were waiting patiently for fuel that was not going to come.

To compound matters, the second round deadline for making application for aid was Feb. 7, only three days away.

That galvanized the committee and Thomas Burke, the mayor's executive secretary, and the Community Action Organization into action immediately.

First, the CAO agreed to take applications on Feb. 19, 20 and 21 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at City Hall and Burke put the mayor's office to work putting the notices in the mail.

Earlier, the committee listened to the fuel problems of the elderly and the needy as spelled out by Mary Brelsford, Norma Barriere and Jane Ford of the Committee to Keep People from Freezing.

Miss Brelsford, who directs the South West Community Center, said her office receives up to 30 phone calls a day from people who are without heat, from "families that just can't make it through the winter."

"These are people," she said, "who have received federal funds and are not eligible any more or are not eligible because the guidelines are so very low or who do not qualify because they have small jobs."

She said Community Action people got together and compiled a "resource directory" of places where poor people might get aid in the fuel crisis.

No Damage From Smoky Broad Meadows Marsh Fire

Lots of smoke, but no real damage, was caused by a marsh fire Saturday in the Broad Meadows area.

The fire covered an area of about two football fields behind the Quincy Youth Hockey rink and kept firefighters busy for over two hours, according to Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti. Smoke was visible for several miles.

No property damage was reported, although windy conditions made firefighting "pretty hairy," said Valenti. At one point, firefighters feared the wind might blow sparks across a nearby creek in the direction of the Quincy Lumber Company and the Quincy Oil Terminal.

Much of the city-owned marsh consists of "elephant grass," ten to 12 feet high in spots. The area is a constant fire hazard, Valenti said.

"On a windy day, if something catches fire, it just whistles through," he said.

"Actually, we're kind of glad it happened," Valenti said. "We don't have to worry about that area for a while."

Because the area was inaccessible to firetrucks, firefighters used pump cans, carried on their backs, to douse the blaze.

The fire was reported at 3:22 p.m. and the last of the four engines involved left the scene at 5:39 p.m.

Breastfeeding Classes At City Hospital

A breastfeeding class will be held Monday, Feb. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in City Hospital for prospective parents and for mothers who are currently nursing their babies.

The classes are scheduled to be held every second Monday of the month.

Topics to be covered include: The decision whether or not to breastfeed, care of the breasts before and during breastfeeding, adapting breastfeeding to the hospital schedule.

Nutrition for the nursing mother, establishing a modified demand schedule, expressing and freezing breastmilk, and possible problems and how to deal with them.

Registration may be made by calling Ann Kurkjian at 848-8564 and Beth Rotondo at 337-8689.

Ann Mahoney Coordinator Prevocational Services At Rehabilitation Center

Ann Marie Mahoney has been promoted to coordinate the Prevocational Services at South Shore Rehabilitation Center, Quincy.

Miss Mahoney will be responsible for the development and implementation of goals for the prevocational program.

"A prevocational client is generally a long term institutionalized, multiply handicapped adult who is now being prepared to live in the community. We teach academic skills and ordinary skills of daily living...such as learning to recognize and respond to a cross-walk sign," she said.

Miss Mahoney, a graduate of Rivier College, Nashua, N.H., is currently a master's degree candidate at Boston University. She is studying special education.

South Shore Rehabilitation Center, located in Quincy, Massachusetts, operates vocational, residential and educational programs for multiply handicapped adults providing training in work, daily living and social skills.

License Board Grants Gasoline Storage Permit For New Apartment Building

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy License Board granted a permit Tuesday for storage of 300 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars garaged at a 28 unit apartment building to be constructed at 245 Seaside St.

Estimated cost of the apartment building is $420,000, not including plumbing and wiring costs.

The board granted the license to Joseph Iantosca of 186 Alida Rd., Braintree, a builder who has also constructed an apartment building on Quincy Ave.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald told board members that, according to architect's plans, most resident parking would be located in a partially enclosed area under the four story building.

MacDonald also said there would be some outdoor parking spaces to the rear of the lot which would have to be screened from the street.

The license stipulates that all screening of the area must be under the supervision of the Building Inspector.

During the meeting, City Clerk John M. Gillis suggested that the area residents Peter Martin and Richard Huntington, who had been listening to the discussion, look over the architect's plans to make sure they understood the plans for their neighborhood.

Martin, whose property abuts the land where the apartments will be constructed, said he had come to the meeting at the suggestion of Rev. Peter Martocchio of neighboring Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. Martin said Rev. Martocchio could not attend the meeting himself and was not in opposition to the apartment building.

No construction date for the apartments was mentioned.

In another matter, the board continued for two weeks a request from Paul Slattery of Presidential Pub, 29 Temple St., for a noon opening on Sundays.

Slattery said he was making the request to compete with other establishments that open at that hour. Gillis asked Slattery if he had discussed the matter with neighboring United First Parish and Central Baptist Churches, referring to a state law that an establishment within 500 feet of a church, hospital, or playground must have the approval of the church, hospital, etc. Slattery said that he had had no luck in soliciting an opinion from the churches. Gillis said he would talk to church leaders and the request was continued for two weeks.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said he was also going to investigate suspected gaming at the pub.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a request from Bob's Auto Top, 362 Washington St., for a Motor II license limited to two cars. The license does not include wrecked cars.

- Granted a request from the Quincy Auxiliary Police Association for a one day all alcoholic license for a Fifty's Night Dance, March 15, 7 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

The License Board is scheduled to vote on the city's one remaining retail package goods store all-alcoholic license at next week's meeting.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The English used to value native cut diamonds above all others until there were no more native diamond cutters in England. The cutting industry had moved to Amsterdam and the art of diamond cutting was not revived in England until the first decade of the twentieth century. At that time, once again, diamonds were cut and polished in England. At first the process was considered experimental, but within a short time, the experiment proved success. A diamond cutting industry was established in England and it produced stones that could rival those cut on the continent.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

THE DIABETIC DRIVER

As Tim M. drove along the Massachusetts Turnpike, his thoughts stayed ahead to his lazy weekend of swimming and relaxing at his cottage in the Berkshires. Tim never did get to enjoy that vacation weekend. Four hours later, a state trooper found him slumped against the door of his overturned car on a deserted country road. His accident - the result of a diabetic seizure.

Tim was lucky. He escaped with a few broken bones. But his experience underscores an important warning to diabetic drivers: Avoid long journeys unless another driver is able to come along on the trip to lend a hand.

Another bit of advice for the diabetic driver: Never skip a meal or be late for one. As an added precaution, be sure to carry a source of concentrated carbohydrate, just in case it proves impossible to get a meal while on the road.

City Ready To Take Bids For Street Cleaning Work

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti is preparing to put the city's street cleaning work out for bid next week, and operation of the city dump and snow removal may not be far behind.

The prospectus for the street cleaning work is currently being checked for legalities by City Solicitor Robert Fleming, said Ricciuti, and when he is finished the contract will be bid.

He said his department is also working on a prospectus for bidding on the disposal area.

"We will be putting out general bids to see who is interested," said Ricciuti. "We will be looking for someone who will operate the dump like we do but with his own equipment."

In the last two months, he said, the DPW has experienced a breakdown of three expensive pieces of earth-moving equipment, one more than 10 years old and another eight years old.

"It's getting expensive to replace and maintain this equipment," he said, adding that he hopes the bids for the dump will be out before July 1. The city will still supervise the operation, he said.

"We hope that next winter the snow plowing and snow removal also will be handled by private parties," said Ricciuti. "We just have no funding for the capital outlay we need so badly."

"We need to phase out five or six pieces of equipment because of age, but it's just not feasible for the city to pay $100,000 for sophisticated pieces of snow removal equipment that is used only a minimal time."

Private firms, he said, are more likely to find use for such heavy equipment during the summer months so they would be able to plow and remove snow more cheaply than the city.

"If we buy five trucks, we're looking at a $500,000 price tag," he said. "If we bond them we pay interest. Even when they're obsolete and ready for the junk pile we may still be paying interest."

Ricciuti said it is possible that the city may be divided into wards or into established snow routes, with a low bidder selected for each section.

"Our concern," he said, "is that we will not have to lay off any workers if we do this. We are in a no hire situation so attrition will automatically reduce the work force."

"We will always need a work force. We will save on the capital investment which we can't afford."

Mail Appeal For Heart Fund

William Souden, chairman of the Quincy 1980 Heart Fund Drive, announces a change in the traditional door-to-door campaign.

a letter can send a contribution to the Heart Fund in care of Charles Simpson Jr., Quincy Savings Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"This year we are trying to reach every household through a February Heart Fund mail appeal," he said. "I urge everyone who can, to contribute to this worthy cause," said Souden.

"The nation's No. 1 killer can be stopped, if the research is funded," said Souden.

IN THE BARRIOS of Caracas, thousands live in wooden, tin or cardboard dwellings without running water.

THE OLD AND NEW clash in Caracas, where standards of living differ greatly between the various social classes.

The Other Side

St. John's Deacon Finds Venezuela Ghettos Shocking

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Charles Sullivan and his wife, Barbara, recently returned from a trip to South America - but it wasn't the "eight days and seven nights in a luxury hotel" variety.

Visiting with Catholic missionaries in Venezuela, they spent 16 days observing close-up what missionary life is like in the ghettos of Caracas and a jungle village. What they saw shocked, saddened and amazed them.

"Before I left, somebody told me that I'd never be the same after that trip," said Sullivan, senior vice-president of the Hancock Bank in downtown Quincy. "That was kind of scary. But since I've come back, I've realized that I can't look at things the same way as before."

The Sullivans, Scituate residents, took part in the tour sponsored by Maryknoll Missions to give persons in religious life a taste of the work done by missionaries in Third World countries. Sullivan is a deacon at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

Their companions in the trip were seven priests, a nun and another woman involved in Catholic charitable work, all from New England.

First stop was the barrios, or ghettos, of Caracas.

They stayed with a priest in his home, featuring cement floors and a tin roof. Three of the walls were made of clay, the fourth was the side of a mountain.

Like all homes in that section of Caracas, it had no running water.

"People come from all over

CHARLES AND BARBARA SULLIVAN say 16 days of roughing it in Venezuela have changed their way of looking at things.

Venezuela to the city, looking for work," Sullivan said. "But there's not enough to go around." Those lucky enough to get work may earn the minimum wage - $7 a day.

"The government built a 10-story apartment building to house these people, but there was no running water in that, either. The corruption there is just incredible.

"So people had to carry water up 10 flights. Also, there was an elevator shaft, but no elevator. The shaft was just left open.

"The water is delivered to the barrios by truck. One time we saw a water truck passing through and about 40 kids running after it with pots and pans, screaming for it to stop. It didn't, of course.

"The gap between the rich and poor is just phenomenal. We spent one night in the rich section of Caracas. Driving down the street, it looked as though it had rained. We asked about that, and they told us that the streets had just been washed.

"There were automatic sprinklers everywhere, watering the lawns. And just two miles away, there were thousands and thousands of people without water."

From there, the group traveled to the jungle village of Cano Negro, where conditions were less crowded, but no better.

The chief source of income for residents of the village is collecting cacao beans - the source of chocolate. They earn about $3,000 per year per family.

"There was no running water there, either," Sullivan said. "The year before, everybody in the village had gotten parasites - everybody. Some people had seven types of parasites."

Not all was bleak, however.

"Right in the middle of this village there was a disco. That was a bit of a shock. An eight-year old boy asked my wife to dance - he was a terrific dancer."

The attitude of the Venezuelans they met was among the few bright spots of the trip, Sullivan said.

"They were very, very welcoming to us," he said, and had "no hostility at all" towards Americans.

"The people don't share what they have," he added. "They give you everything they have. It's amazing to compare them with us, who have everything. We share from our excess, they share from nothing.

"The biggest lesson I learned is how much we have, and how much we waste and how much we take for granted.

"Like water, for example. Even when you get it out of the fountain, you just can't drink it.

"And the cost of living there is astronomical. I don't think I could afford to live there.

"Three things are cheap there - bananas, bread and gas. I think gasoline was between 18 and 28 cents a gallon there. Everything else is incredible."

"My wife was looking at a blouse in a shop - and it wasn't a nice, fancy store, either. The blouse cost about $60."

The same electric can opener that the Sullivans had bought here as a Christmas present for $16 cost over $50 in Venezuela.

After seeing the condition of some children in Cano Negro, Sullivan said, "my wife spent the afternoon crying."

"With the great gap between the rich and poor down there," he said, "it's easy to point fingers. But my wife and I have decided we're going to examine our own lifestyles."

William J. Coleman, 63, Retired Radio, TV Personality

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday at St. Paul's Church, Hingham for William J. Coleman, formerly of Quincy, a retired broadcaster for Boston and Quincy radio stations, and brother of Red Sox radio voice Ken Coleman.

Mr. Coleman, 63, died Monday in Chelsea after a long illness.

Born in New Bedford, he grew up in North Quincy and lived the last 28 years in Hingham.

He began his radio career in New York before World War II and, after serving with the Marines during the war, joined station WFLI in Boston. He was host of "Uncle Bill's Merry-Go-Round", a popular children's show of the 1950's.

His voice also became well known for commercials for Atlantic Gas, broadcast during televised Red Sox games.

He also broadcast Boston College hockey and basketball games, was a sports broadcaster for Quincy's WJDA, produced educational films for the Joslin Diabetes Clinic and was a popular speaker at banquets.

He retired three years ago from the Barney and Carey Lumber Yard. He was a former manager of the Blacker and Holland Lumber Yard, South Quincy.

He is survived by his wife, Marion J. [Gifford] Coleman; two sons, Michael W. Coleman of North Quincy and Stephen F. Coleman of Boston; a brother, Kenneth R. Coleman of Cohasset and a sister, Ruth Pabst of Nokomis, Fla.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Alice Goodspeed, 86, Former Teacher, Principal

Funeral services were held in Dennis last Friday for Alice Lee Goodspeed, 86, a longtime teacher and principal in Quincy public schools.

Miss Goodspeed, who retired in 1952, died Tuesday, Jan. 29 in Centerville. Burial was in Dennis Cemetery.

Born in Dennis, she lived most of her life in Quincy. After graduating from Bridgewater State Teachers College, she taught for many years in several Quincy schools and was principal of the Squantum School. She was also principal of the Capen School in Dedham from 1931 until her retirement.

She had been a member of Kappa Delta Phi and a former president of the Massachusetts Elementary Principals Association. She is survived by three nieces and a nephew.

Burial was in Dennis Cemetery.

New Deacons Participate In First Church Of Squantum Service

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum observed the Lord's Supper Sunday with the newly elected deacons participating.

Seated with the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, around the Communion Table were deacons Ellen Ogilvie, Ralph Dougherty, Katherine Hansen, Leon MacIntyre, Jens Thornton Sr., and moderator Dorothy Abbe.

Fred MacMillan gave the Call to Worship, Don Frazer led the Opening Prayer, Dave Mildram read the Scripture from the book of II Kings and Gretchen Bumpus offered the Prayer of Dedication.

The Senior Choir sang "The Lord's Prayer" arranged by B. Cecil Gates.

Dr. Langevin preached on "Finding That Old Book" based on an incident in the life of King Josiah of Judah. It was the fifth in a series of seven sermons tracing the history of Israel from the death of Solomon to the end of the Old Testament.

Ushers were Tore Wallin.

'Living With Your Teenagers' Topic For St. John's Adult Committee

Dr. Luleen Anderson will discuss "Living with Your Teenagers" Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 8 p.m., in the lower hall at St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy Center.

Dr. Anderson is the co-ordinator of Psychological Services and Elementary Guidance for the Quincy Public Schools and has dealt extensively with adolescents and their parents. She will explore what happens to children during adolescence, what happens to their parents, and how communication can be improved between parents and their teenagers.

The event is being sponsored by the Adult Education Committee and will include time for questions and discussion. All interested parents are invited to attend.

QHS Open House

To Explain Program Planning

An Open House for parents and students of Quincy High School and ninth graders who will enroll in Quincy High next September will be held Tuesday, Feb. 12, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the school's Method Center. The open house will focus on program selection and content for the 1980-81 school year.

Head Counselor Edward Nankin said guidance counselors, department heads, and selected subject teachers including a member of the Alternative Learning Environment will be available to explain specific courses, scheduling procedures, graduation requirements, and college entrance requirements.

The evening is designed to help both parents and students obtain information so that the courses selected for next year's program of studies will meet and satisfy individual needs and goals.

MSPCC To Meet

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children will meet Thursday, Feb. 7 at 9:30 a.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Plans will be discussed for an all-day seminar on child abuse

City Moves To Aid Heatless Seniors

"We did such a good job of finding the resources that we also managed to use all those resources in about a week and now we have people calling us and we can't help any more," she said.

"I had a father call me this afternoon who is faced with the prospect of choosing whether to pay his rent or his fuel bill this month. He was asking enough money to get him through eight days."

"Some senior citizens," she added, "have to choose between heat and eating and some of them aren't doing either."

Miss Barriere, who is director of the Germantown Service Center, said that since last week her office has received 40 calls from families in need of oil in Germantown alone.

"We have used and exhausted all the resources in our resource directory," she said. "St. Boniface Church has helped 50 families this year with oil. They are now without funds."

Some families, she said, have neglected utility bills in order to pay their oil bills and they could possibly face a shut off of utilities on March 16.

"Many people will be faced with evictions because they can't pay their rent and buy oil," she said. "The oil men want cash on delivery and if you don't have the money there's no place to go."

Some people in Germantown set their thermostats at 62 degrees and have even shut off rooms in four-room apartments, she said.

"Our crisis food pantry is almost depleted," said Miss Barriere.

"Last year we responded to 300 requests. This year we have already answered 400 requests.

"There is a type of flu spreading in Quincy. What do we tell families with sick children and no heat?"

At Sheets' recommendation, the Council commissioned the Senior Citizens Activities Committee to:

- Call a meeting of the Communities Action Organization and agencies that deal in fuel to see if some arrangements could be made to supply the poor and the elderly.

- Host a conference of local service agencies and clubs and give them a presentation of the immediate financial need that is confronting heatless families in Quincy.

Free Tax Aid For Quincy Seniors

Free income tax assistance will be available for Quincy senior citizens beginning Feb. 11, announces Marion Andrews, executive director of the Council on Aging.

For an appointment, call Kenneth Kiely at 773-1380, ext. 387, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Almost 200 persons were helped with their returns last year by the council, Mrs. Andrews said.

First Day Of Prayers 'Smooth'

whether it's constitutional," said Hill. "We take the stand that, until it's declared unconstitutional, it's a law. It's the only stand we can take, legally."

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon said principals were sent copies of the new law and were instructed to implement it as best they could.

At the Merrymount School, Rebecca Chicino, 8, started the day by stepping to the front of Mrs. Kathryn Cotter's third grade class and saying:

"Thank you, God, for this very nice school, our very nice teachers and for all the nice things we have in our school."

She was one of four students in the elementary school's 13 classes to volunteer to lead prayers.

"I really don't see it as being a problem," said Merrymount principal Kay Norris.

"It went well—things went quite smoothly," Quincy School principal Daniel Malvesta said of the first day under the new law. Prayers were recited in about half the school's classes, he said, and only a few children asked to be excused from the prayers.

"I think, in time, it will become part of the daily routine," he said.

Several Wollaston students offered thoughts on behalf of the hostages in Iran, said MacDonald; others offered more routine prayers.

Although students were told they had the right to leave during the prayers, MacDonald said, "we didn't push the part about them leaving." Students were encouraged to show respect for each other's beliefs and prayers by remaining in the classroom, he added. None of the school's students asked to be excused from the prayers, he said.

One problem which had been feared in the high schools—students unsupervised in the corridors during the prayers—apparently never materialized, because so few classes had prayers.

"It was not a big issue here, as far as the kids were concerned," said Babin.

$1 Million Garage Bond

voting in opposition, refused to send it to Raymond's committee. It was 8-0 to go to Finance.

In all discussion and votes on the project Councillor Francis X. McCauley left the room since his bank occupies space in a building that would be taken by eminent domain to make way for the project.

In his endorsement of the bond issue and the seven-level garage Raymond noted that there was a necessity to keep downtown Quincy in an "upward spiral and not on a further downward trend."

"Some are concerned that if we add two more levels of spaces to the garage, the spaces will be empty," he said. "I suggest we do a little conscience searching at this particular time."

"If we don't have faith in downtown Quincy in 1980 to be sure that those two floors will be filled, then we ought not to even consider the Campanelli-Stop and Shop project.

"We can't afford to straitjacket downtown Quincy the way we have straitjacketed City Hospital due to the financial situation in the city."

"A lot of times we can't do things that physically have to be done in order to do a quality job. That's what's happening up at the hospital. To a certain extent it's happening in downtown Quincy."

"To construct an edifice and not have proper parking, to eliminate more than 100 spaces in a parking lot and not make that up, would be thinking shortsightedly."

"I think it's important to send a message to the people in downtown Quincy and to any developers who are thinking of investing in downtown Quincy that we are willing to be flexible and that we see the need for parking."

Sons Of Italy Gift Puts Massasoit Fund Over $21,000

A $500 contribution by the Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge, has brought the total raised by the Massasoit Development Committee to over $21,000.

This is over 70 percent of the $30,000 the committee hopes to raise for improvements and renovations at Camp Massasoit, the Plymouth Boy Scout Camp used by Quincy Scouts for over 50 years.

Also received in the past week was over 150 gallons of paint from Camp Squanto, a Plymouth neighbor of Camp Massasoit. Over $10,000 in material donations is included in the $21,000 total.

Money contributions have been received from the King Family Fund, the Quincy Cooperative Bank, the Quincy City Club, the Squantum Community Assn., the Quincy Citizen's Assn., the Quincy Lions Club and a number of memorial contributions made by individuals.

The committee is still soliciting donations and hopes to reach its $30,000 goal in the next few weeks, says Chairman

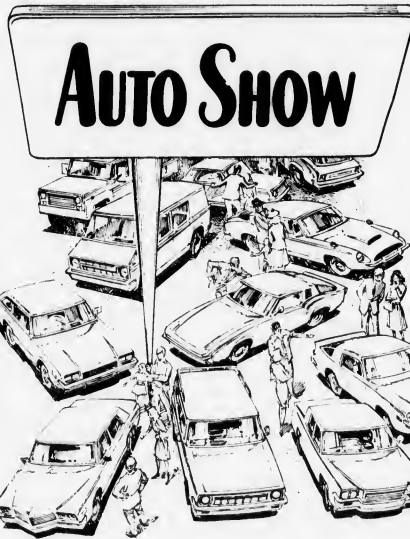

Richard J. Koch.

A souvenir booklet is being prepared. Anyone wishing to be included should contact Joe Gelsomini at 328-4411. Persons wishing to make material donations of building or camp equipment should contact Harold Crowley at 471-6881.

An Appreciation Brunch is being planned for Sunday, Feb. 10 at Granite Place to thank those who have helped the committee.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

Water fluoridation is supported by most of the major health organizations in the world. The American Dental Association, the American Medical Association and the World Health Organization all support adding fluoride to water as a public health measure. It has been proven that fluoride helps make teeth more resistant to decay. If the fluoride level in the water, whether naturally or with the addition of fluoride, is high enough, little supplementary fluoride treatment is necessary. Fluoride is available in most tooth pastes, in some mouthwashes and by treatment.

Preventive dentistry for the entire family is stressed at the office of Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., Last Milton Square. Dr. Sweeney urges parents to bring young children to the office so that they may become acquainted with dental procedures and learn good oral hygiene habits. He also recommends regular dental checkups so that small problems can be located and corrected before they become serious. Call Dr. Sweeney at 698-3636 for an appointment. Most dental insurance plans are honored.

DENTAL HINT:

Fluoride treatment is especially important for children whose final teeth are just coming in.

Bringing In The Tourists

Last September's successful Massachusetts Constitution Bicentennial celebration in Quincy may have longer reaching effects than anyone anticipated at the time.

It appears to have played a role in inspiring the city out of its long reluctance to dust off its attractions and jump wholeheartedly into the pursuit of the tourist dollar.

More visitors should be coming to the city, pausing to visit the Adams National Historic Site, or to swim at Wollaston Beach, or to fish for flounder in the Bay, or to browse the Squantum flea market.

Local restaurateurs or shopkeepers would in turn, hire extra help. It would help boost a sagging economy.

For too long visitors have been passing through without pausing on their way to enrich the lives of restaurateurs and shopkeepers in Plymouth and the Cape.

Now, for the first time in memory, the city appears to be making a serious effort to do something about it, to cut them off at the pass, as it were.

One of the first acts of new City Council President Leo J. Kelly was to create a Council Committee on Tourism, headed by Councillor Stephen J. McGrath. It held its first meeting Monday night.

And the Tobin administration, flushed with the success of the Constitution Bicentennial, has set up a Division of Tourism in the Planning Department, headed by Carol Pisano, who contributed to the success of the Bicentennial.

Modest steps, to be sure, but steps in the right direction.

Move over Lexington and Concord, Plymouth and Salem!

Let's hope so, anyway.

The Msing Ms.

The Times of London has kicked up a bit of a storm by banning the title Ms. from its pages.

The staid old newspaper cites among its reasons that the term is "artificial, ugly, silly, means nothing and is rotten English."

What is The Quincy Sun's policy some readers have asked.

Well, The Sun hasn't banned Ms. We just never use it. And, we seem to be in fairly good company on that. The New York Times, like us, still prefers Miss and Mrs.

We don't feel as strongly toward Ms. as the Times of London does. But we just haven't been able to get used to it as a legitimate word. It still sort of sounds like a buzzing mosquito.

But, forgetting that, we note that some of newspapers tooting their horn over the fact they do use Ms. also like to refer to women (second mention) by their last name. Like "Smith declined comment" or "Jones gave birth to a daughter."

We still prefer it as Miss Smith or Mrs. Jones. Sounds a little more dignified. Calling a woman by her last name, we think, is like referring to her as a broad regardless of equal rights, etc.

So, in The Sun you will continue to see it as Miss or Mrs. And, if that makes us old fashioned, then we are old fashioned.

Old fashioned enough to want to see more men opening a door for a woman or getting up to give her his seat on a crowded bus or MBTA train.

And, old fashioned enough to hope that most women still appreciate being treated like ladies.

Points To Ponder

- Economists tell us that there are two things that people continue to do despite inflation—drink and travel. Let's hope they're not done at the same time.
- After the events last week in Iran concerning the escape of American diplomats, an old song has become very popular on the radio—the Canadian national anthem.
- It makes it very difficult to want to conserve electricity; when you pay nearly the same amount no matter how much you use because of the fuel adjustment cost.
- There must be quite a few cars with broken speedometers, if we can judge by the number of automobiles that race by use while we're going 55.
- A number of current movie titles seem to aptly describe some recent events:

"Starting Over"—Senator Kennedy's campaign

"10"—The average temperature lately

"Going in Style"—Governor King's lunch

A rainfall of one inch over one acre is about 27,000 gallons of water.

John's Church, was in Washington D.C. early this week with fellow Quincy Housing Authority representatives Clement O'Brien and Lolita Harris to attend a conference on federal housing. And while there on Monday, he was given the special honor of saying the opening prayers at the House of Representatives session. The invitation came via Congressman Brian Donnelly, a long-time friend of Fr. McCarthy's.

WE NOTED HERE last week that if "Brookline born" Edward Kennedy and Milton born George Bush won the nominations, it would mean an all-Norfolk County duel for the Presidency. Not so, says John Nourse, director of the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council.

Kennedy, he says, was born in Boston. Our source was the 1980 edition of the World Almanac (Page 362). But Nourse says the Almanac goofed as a check with Kennedy's office confirms the birthplace as Boston.

Incidentally, notes Nourse, in addition to President John F. Kennedy, Senator Robert Kennedy and sisters Eunice and Patricia were also born in Brookline—the President on Beals St., the others on Naples Rd.

"HARD HAT AND LEGS," the first jointly written TV movie by Quincy's Ruth Gordon and her husband, Garson Kanin, will be shown Saturday, Feb. 9, at 9 p.m. on CBS, Channel 7, Boston.

The Kanins are currently in Europe, visiting London and Paris on a promotional tour publicizing Kanin's latest book, "Moviola."

THE CITY'S LATEST TV star is Frank Terranova, the Mayor's aide.

Frank appeared on "The Baxters," the often controversial issue-oriented program on Ch. 5 Sunday night to get in a plug for Quincy's summer four-day week in the Public Works Department.

The question asked was: What are the cities doing to help in energy conservation? Frank's answer was: The four-day week in Quincy cut fuel consumption drastically.

Recalls Rev. William Sloan Coffin, Jr. Performed With Quincy Symphony Orchestra

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On TV, The Rev. William Sloan Coffin, Jr. was shown playing Christmas carols on the piano at the American Embassy in Teheran. It reminded me that he was a teenage concert pianist, before he served as a soldier in WWII.

He made his professional debut here, by playing the Mozart D-Minor Piano Concerto with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra. He was a student at Phillips Academy, Andover, at the time.

His biography, Once to Every Man, has this amusing anecdote about it.

"Quincy is not one of Massachusetts' larger cities, but the occasion was formal and for the first time in my life I had to wear tails. After bowing to the audience I sat down on them and to my embarrassment had to get up again to flip them out. Several people in the hall—and the two flutists in the orchestra—tittered loudly. I have reason to remember them, for toward the end of the last movement they come in with a passage containing an important melody. Deciding that somebody had better play it I picked it up on the piano, which missed their cue and failed to lose his place. The orchestra continued to play, however, the conductor again found his place, and we all finished together. The audience was enthusiastic, and their applause persuaded the conductor to ask me to play a solo encore. What pleased me most was that I went back to Andover a professional musician with twenty-five dollars in my pocket."

Thought it might be interesting for your Yesteryear's Column to give us the date and place where this occurred in our fair city. He was at Andover for his junior and senior years, graduating in the spring of 1942.

Correcting The Omissions

Tourism Director Determined Quincy Won't Be Slighted

Carol Pisano of the Planning Department was thumbing through a brochure put out by the Plymouth County Tourist and Development Council the other day when she sensed that something was not right.

The brochure, entitled "Maritime Trail," listed the attractions of the Massachusetts coast from Newburyport to New Bedford, including glowing plays for such places as Cohasset, Duxbury and Mattapoisett.

But nowhere was there a mention of Quincy.

It was as if the Fore River Shipyard, with its 80 years of tradition; the Houghs Neck flounder fleet, which attracts fishermen for hundreds of miles; and Quincy Bay Race Week simply didn't exist.

Oh, there was a beautiful color photograph of the battleship USS Massachusetts, but it is attracting tourist dollars to Fall River with nary a note that it was built in Quincy at the outset of World War II.

Such omissions have been all too common in recent years as tourists bypass Quincy and flock to Plymouth, Salem, Lexington and Concord, historic places that actively solicit them.

Miss Pisano, the newly named tourism director in the Planning Department, is out to correct those deficiencies.

One of her first acts was to put Hobart Holly, historian of the Quincy Historical Society, to work on an article extolling the virtues of Quincy for the next printing of the Plymouth County brochure.

"And I'm going to take it down personally and give it to the director," she said.

CAROL PISANO

Also on Miss Pisano's drawing board is a walking tour of Quincy, designed particularly for visitors who come by way of the MBTA. Holly has volunteered to work that one out, too.

The tour is envisioned as starting at the Quincy Center MBTA station and continuing to the Adams Academy building, Freedom Park, the Adams National Historic Site, the Dorothy Quincy House and back to Quincy Square for the First Parish Church and other sites.

"We just don't want to give them a piece of paper and send them on their way," said Ms. Pisano.

So Holly is busy compiling a brochure and a map for those adventuresome souls who want to go it alone while others can request a tour guide. During the early experimental stages at least, the tour guide will be Miss Pisano herself.

Already Miss Pisano, whose first big chore with the Planning Department was promoting last September's Constitution Bicentennial Celebration, has one feeling of accomplishment.

She has, for the first time, compiled a list of events that will be going on in Quincy throughout the year for inclusion in the spring publication of the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development.

They range from such well known events as Quincy Bay Race Week and the Christmas Festival to the less publicized "Fiesta '80," the annual fair of the First Church of Squantum.

Any event is listed that might attract people to Quincy where they just might spend a few bob in a restaurant or store.

"We're inclined to think of the attractions in Quincy in terms of history," said Miss Pisano. "But there are a lot of cultural and recreational things that go on that aren't publicized."

"We plan to promote Quincy as a unit, including the attractions of the business community."

It is also planned to tie Quincy in with outside events that are scheduled, like Boston's "Jubilee 350," the Hub's 350th birthday celebration which will be kicked off by a visit from the Tall Ships on Memorial Day and continue through September.

And there will also be the official state celebration of the Constitution Bicentennial, which will commemorate the adoption of the state constitution just as Quincy commemorated its drafting in John Adams' law office in South Quincy last summer.

"We will be getting more than our share of people this summer, I'm sure of it," said Miss Pisano.

Students To Receive JWV Brotherhood Awards

Three Quincy students will be among seven honored at the Jewish War Veterans' annual "Classmates Today - Neighbors Tomorrow" breakfast, Sunday, Feb. 10.

The breakfast will be held at Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton St., Quincy Point at 9:30 a.m.

Elan Erickson of Quincy High School, Carolyn Schultz of North Quincy High and Kerry Kirk of Quincy Vo-Tech will be among the students chosen by their classmates as "best exemplifying brotherhood in their daily activities."

Mary Kate Donovan of Weymouth North High School, Joanne Sheridan of Weymouth South, Randall Hocking of Weymouth Vo-Tech and Jamie Rose of Hull High will also receive awards.

Members of the JWV program committee are Chairman and past commander David Freedman, past commanders Irving Isaacson, David Minkofsky, Ralph Paull, Ben Rudner and Commander Jason Stone.

Slumping Shipyard Awarded Contracts For Cargo Vessels

Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard was awarded contracts worth $41,480,000 to build five high speed cargo ships, the Yard's first new contracts since March, 1949.

Officials said the contracts would stabilize the work force at 7,000 for the next few years at the shipyard, which would have been barren of shipbuilding jobs by the end of 1952.

The slumping cargo vessel SS Constitution was scheduled to be delivered in a few months and the cruiser USS Northampton and two super destroyers were down for 1952 delivery.

Meanwhile, Shipbuilding Workers Local 5 was scheduled to hold a strike vote as negotiations for a new contract broke down. The walkout would be scheduled for March 1.

Local 5 rejected a management offer of an 11.5 per cent raise from $1.57 to $1.75 an hour. The union was seeking a flat $2 an hour in the top job brackets.

INCREASED BORROWING FAVORED

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin and City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. announced their support of legislation that would give the city a 100 per cent increase in borrowing power.

"The present borrowing capacity of Quincy inside the debt limit does not permit expansion and capital improvements required by a city of this size," said Burgin.

The bill, which was opposed by Rep. Alfred B. Keith (R-Quincy) would increase Quincy's borrowing power within the debt limit from a third of a million dollars to two thirds of a million.

SOMERVILLE UPSET

Pete Ramponi sank two free throws with 12 seconds remaining to send Quincy High School's basketball team on to an upset 58-54 win over Somerville and a tie for the Greater Boston League lead.

TV CRIME WAVE

Thieves with a strong sense of timing struck a Quincy television store for the fifth time in a little over a month with their loot totaling more than $10,000.

The latest break netted them six TV sets, a dozen radios and a photograph from the Austin Radio and Television store at 21 School St.

Sgt. John F. Denneen checked the door to the store at 4 a.m. and found everything okay. Fifteen minutes later, Patrolman Francis Connelly found the door jimmied and the store ransacked.

Presenting the program will be the Women and Friends of Christ Church, Hyde Park, who will be modeling period gowns from 1860 to 1930.

The show will include special music and a commentary on the clothes and times they represent.

The church group has been presenting the shows for 20 years, and its members include 100 year old Margaret Murphy of Milton.

Southern Artery residents are invited to wear their own "attic treasures" to the event.

7 Residents In McCole Fashion Show

Seven Quincy residents will be participating in the Carole McCole Modeling School's 10th semi-annual graduation and fashion show Sunday, Feb. 10, at 2 p.m. at Weymana, Rte. 18, South Weymouth.

The local girls are Dorothy Riggs, Toni Tenaglia, Laura O'Brien, Suzanne Edgar, Janice Martin, Debbie Church and Laura Brown.

Community Theatre's 'Gypsy' Opens Thursday

The Quincy Community Theatre's production of "Gypsy" premieres tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. and continues through Sunday evening at Broad Meadows Junior High School auditorium, 50 Calvin Rd., Merrimount.

The Steven Sondheim musical follows the rise of Gypsy Rose Lee from vaudeville to stardom as the "Queen of Burlesque".

George Stevens is directing the musical with Carolyn Curtis, musical director, and Maria D'Arcangelo and Diane Flanagan, choreographers.

Tickets are available at Baskin-Robbins and Sawyer's Campus Shop, Quincy Center; Colonial Bakery, Wollaston; Balducci's, North Quincy; and at the theatre.

Special rates are available for students, senior citizens and groups of 25 or more.

For more information, call 471-0109, ext. 349, or 479-4634.

Best Season Ever

North Swimmers Defeat Quincy For 9th Win

The North Quincy swimming team completed its best season ever last Saturday when it rolled over Quincy, 125-46, to finish with a 9-2 record and qualified its greatest number ever for the South sectionals Feb. 15-16 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

Saturday the Raiders and Presidents will compete in the Suburban League championships at Brockton at 9 a.m.

North will have its captain and top swimmer, Ed Melanson, for the league meet but will be without him in the sectionals, as he will be in an international meet in Florida.

Bill Walker's Raiders won every event against Amy Chessia's Presidents (3-9) and Melanson finished his dual meet career with another double win, taking the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly.

Dave Riley was another double winner, taking the 200 freestyle and the 100 freestyle. Bob Farmer won the 50 freestyle and John Buckley won the 500 freestyle in their final dual meets.

Bill Boudreau won the 100 breaststroke and Bill Feeney won the 100 backstroke.

Scott Andrews won the diving, leading a Raider sweep.

Both North relay teams won and the Raiders also placed second. Feeney, Buckley, Steinar, Forshei and Dave Dinty making up the winning 200 medley team and Joe Feeney, Jim Boudreau, Sean O'Brien and Scott Andrews placing second. In the 400 freestyle relay Dan Johnson, Brian Chamberlain, Bernie Botolotto and Steve Pike won and Rich Farmer, Dave Jones, Dennis Foley and Paul Melanson placed second.

For Quincy Bob Lavigne was second in the 200 freestyle and third in the 100 freestyle. Chris Hebert was third in the 200 individual medley and 500 freestyle and Bob Dulling was third in the 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke.

North's qualifiers for the South sectionals are Bill Feeney, Bill Boudreau, O'Brien, Buckley, Riley, Forshei and Bob Farmer in the 200 medley relay; Riley and Buckley, 200 freestyle; Buckley, 50 freestyle; Mike O'Toole, Andrews and Pike, diving; Riley, 100 freestyle; Buckley, 500 freestyle; Bill Feeney, 100 backstroke; Bill Boudreau, 100 breaststroke; and Bill Boudreau, Buckley, Tim Burke, Richard Farmer, Bill

Feeney and Riley, 400 freestyle relay.

Quincy's qualifiers are Tom O'Malley, Kevin Goslin, Chris Hebert, Dulling, Lavigne and Joe Lynch, with Dan Mallock, Kurt Johnson and Michael Rollins alternates.

Over 300 Attend

North Football Boosters Club Presents Awards

By PETE ZOIA

More than 300 attended the annual North Quincy Football Boosters Club captains' dinner recently in the high school cafeteria.

Awards were presented to senior, junior and sophomore members of the football squad and several special awards as 113 students were honored.

Among those at the head table were Mayor Arthur Tobin, Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, Principal Peter Chrisom and Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney.

Booster President Donald McNamara was the toastmaster.

Retired football coach Jack Donahue presented the watch in his name to Capt. Leo Graham as the most outstanding North player in the Quincy game.

Treasurer Mary Furlong gave the Sportsmanship trophy to Kevin Durkin.

Harold Coose, president of the Quincy Fathers Club, made a presentation of the "Unsung Hero Award" to Ricky Anderson, in memory of former North Booster President Bill Schaezel.

A special plaque to Jack Brown Sr. of the Quincy Lodge of the Sons of Italy was given by Betty Schaezel for its sizeable donation to the Boosters.

Father Cornelius Heery, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, received a special plaque from Pete Zoia, a former Booster president.

Two new trophies were presented, the Jack O'Leary Memorial Awards, for the outstanding offensive and defensive lineman. The top offensive lineman was Ed Miller and defensive John Gorczyca.

Coaches Dave Burke, Ken McPhee, Jack Raymer, George Liset and Ted Sadowski received desk sets.

The sophomores were awarded sweat suits, the juniors a jersey and jacket, and the seniors were given a coat sweater, golf shirt and a trophy from the Boosters.

Senior squad members also got jackets from the Quincy School Department, and 69 squad members received letters.

Cheerleader advisor Janet Piver honored 14 girl cheerleaders with trophies along with Mr. Yakoo, and Mrs. Yakoo, the traditional football team mascots.

It was announced that plans for the 1980 season will get underway at a Booster meeting, Friday night, Feb. 8 at 7:30 at the North cafeteria. Parents and friends are cordially invited.

Bow To Cambridge, 73-39

Raiders Eliminated From Tourney Contention

The North Quincy basketball team was knocked out of state tournament contention last week when it lost twice, but Coach Ed Miller feels things will be looking up for his young squad.

The Raiders (8-7) will play at Newton North Friday at 8 p.m. and at Waltham next Tuesday at 7.

Last Friday, defending state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin, on the day after being put on probation for a year because of recruiting charges, bombed North Quincy, 73-39.

"They came out flying and we never had a chance," Miller said. "They were just too much for us."

The lone bright spot for the Raiders was junior Mark Millane, one of the Suburban League's leading scorers, who had 16 points.

Cambridge [13-1] used 13 players and 12 of them scored.

"This is a young team and things should be looking up for us next year," Miller said. "We have a lot of good underclassmen and 6-9 Chip Bunker should be ready to step in and give us our biggest man in several years."

Earlier in the week North, playing without one starter and with two others seeing limited service, was upset by Weymouth South, 63-59, giving Weymouth its first win of the season.

This was one of many close losses suffered by the Raiders.

Millane had another big night with 22 points, Bill O'Connell had 11 and Paul Gill 10.

Weymouth's 6-5 Scott Bailey ruined the Raiders with 22 points and 19 rebounds. Sophomore Greg Frost hit on four clutch free throws in the last two minutes.

Paul Bregoli's North Quincy Junior varsity broke even to bring its record to 7-7.

Friday the young Raiders stayed with the strong Cambridge jayvees for three periods but the defense lapsed in the final period and Cambridge won, 77-57.

Steve Belcastro topped the Raider scoring with 16 points as he played his best game of the year. Steve Sacchetti had a good two-way game and scored nine points, while Doug Mallory and Billy Gray also played well.

Earlier North had edged Weymouth South, 54-53, in overtime, with Jack Brown's foul shot the winning point.

Brian O'Leary scored 16 points, Bunker had 10 blocks and Tom McFarland played well in the final period and the overtime session, scoring six points.

Executive Hockey

Hofbrau Defeats Darcy's

Jerry Fitzgerald scored twice and had an assist as The Hofbrau defeated Darcy's Pub, 4-3, Monday night in Quincy Executive Hockey League action at the Youth Arena.

Art Boyle and Jim Horner had the other goals for Hofbrau and Horner and Steve Marini had assists. For Darcy's, Dennis O'Connell had two goals and Bibby Lewis one, with assists for Kevin Glynn, Bob O'Connell, Tom Roberts and Alan Gullickson.

Washington Tap defeated Sundowner's Cafe, 7-4, with Jack Crowley having a hat trick, Chet Brunstrom two goals and Ed St. Joan and Marty Tolson one each. Charlie Duffy had two assists and Wayne Gauthier, Crowley, St. John, Bill Sweeney, Tolson and Paul Casey one each. Joe Ryan, Bob Bannister, Jack Valle and Dave Mullen scored for Sundowner's, with two assists for Mullen and one for Kevin Lewis.

Kevin Sullivan scored two goals and assisted on another to pace Sportlight Tavern to a 6-1 win over Al's Cafe. Also scoring for Sportlight were Don Costa, Charlie Chambers, Ralph Freeman and Rich Gibbs. Costa had three assists, Gibbs two and Sullivan and Ed Linehan one each. Dick McCabe scored for Al's with Terry Flannan having an assist.

In the previous set of games St. John scored four goals and Tolson had a hat trick to lead Washington Tap over Al's, 12-3.

Jack Crowley and Bill Sweeney had two goals apiece and Chet Brunstrom one. Crowley had five assists. St. John three, Marty Tolson and Ed Grogan two apiece and Bernie Toland, Bill Smith, Wayne Gauthier and Ed Hamon one each. For Al's Mike Haynes had all three goals, with two assists for Ralph Gibbs and Dick McCabe and one for Dave Hussey.

Darcy's Pub walloped Sundowner's, 7-0, with Paul O'Brien scoring two goals and assisting on another. Bob Donovan had two goals and Kevin Glynn, Alan Gullickson and Bibby Lewis a goal each. Glynn had two assists and Gullickson one. Joe Kamatso was in goal.

The Hofbrau topped Washington Tap, 5-1, with Art Boyle, Steve Marini, Joe Verlicco, Jim Horner and Jerry Fitzgerald having a goal each. Fitzgerald had two assists and Marini and Dave Edgren one each.

At New NQHS Gym

Quincy Wrestlers Can Clinch Title Against North

Quincy's wrestling team improved its Suburban League record to 6-0 last Saturday when it defeated Waltham, 31-12, and can clinch its second straight league championship Saturday when it faces cross-town rival North Quincy [5-1 in the league and 11-3 overall] at 6 p.m. at the new North Quincy gym.

The Presidents [14-3 overall] wrestled at Milford yesterday [Wednesday].

Coach Carmen Mariano's

Quincy team will seek its second straight South Sectional title on Feb. 15 and 16 at Brockton.

Jeff Heath improved his record to 15-0 with his 11th pin of the year in the romp over Waltham. Heavyweight Geoff Calish extended his record to 14-0 with a decision and Martin Doyle won by decision to improve his record to 14-1.

Quincy's other winners were Ed Ryan, John Madden, Paul Orlando, John O'Leary, Al

DiVincis and Mike Monahan. Peter Conolly, John Herald and Joe Callahan were defeated.

North Quincy's wrestling team, enjoying its best season ever [11-3 overall and 5-1 in the Suburban League], is pointing towards Saturday's meet with Quincy.

Quincy is 6-0 and the defending league champion, but North Coach Steve Joyce feels his Raiders have a good chance of upsetting the Presidents, who are 14-3 overall. The Raiders were at Cohasset yesterday [Wednesday].

North last Saturday rolled over Walpole, 44-15, in a non-league meet as Gino Pillard [134 pounds] and Dave Howley [147] remained unbeaten with victories.

Other winners for North were Steve Dodd, Liam Cataldo, Matt Keenan, John McNamara, John Gorczyca and Steve Kallenberg. Glenn Collins, Chris Butler, Jim O'Hare and John Coughlin were losers.

Earlier in the week the Raiders had breezed past undermanned Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 60-3, in a league meet as the Cantabs were forced to default in six classes.

Dodd, Cataldo, Butler, O'Hare, Howley and Kallenberg all won by default. Collins, McNamara, Coughlin and Gorczyca all won their matches, while Keenan lost.

Bomb Newton N., 67-42

Tourney Berth Certain For Presidents

The Quincy basketball team had two incentives Tuesday when it played unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Tech.

Not only were Joe Amoroso's high flying Presidents [13-1] out to avenge their lone defeat [a 57-55 squeaker], but they were trying to be an early qualifier for the state tournament.

If Quincy failed on Tuesday, it can clinch a tournament berth Friday night when it hosts Waltham. Next Tuesday the Presidents will be home to Weymouth North. Both games will start at 8 o'clock.

Idle last Friday, Quincy rolled to a tremendous 22-2 first period lead earlier in the week and blasted Newton North, 67-42.

Employing a press to perfection, the Presidents never gave Newton a chance in the opening period. By halftime it was 39-21 and it was 51-31 going into the final eight minutes.

"The boys did a tremendous job in that first period and gave themselves a good cushion," Amoroso said.

Junior Steve Priscella, who has been outstanding in recent games, scored eight of his 16 points in the first period. Ritch Finnegan had another fine all-around effort as he scored 14 points, had eight rebounds, four assists and four steals and was a key man in the Presidents' effective press. Stan Benson had a good night with 15 points and the entire team turned in another impressive performance.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity also turned in another stellar performance to romp, 66-40, and improve its record to 9-2.

Shawn Burnes had 17 points, P. J. Fay had 13, Alvin Memmolo eight and John Cascarano scored seven in addition to playing a fine all-around game.

QJC Qualifies For Conference Playoffs

The Quincy Junior College basketball team qualified for the Greater Boston Small College Conference playoffs by coming from behind to defeat Essex Agricultural, 75-70.

The Jaguars, 11-4 in the league, then lost to Mass. College of Pharmacy, 67-52, to drop them to fourth place. However, the top three teams all have three losses with four games to play, including games against each other.

QJC has one league game left at Daniel Webster in Nashua, N.H., tonight [Thursday] at 7 o'clock and one non-league Tuesday at Blue Hills Technical, and will have time to rest up for the league playoffs beginning Feb. 29 at Northern Essex in Haverhill.

In the win over Essex Agricultural Jim Holleran's basket put QJC ahead for the first time, 69-68, late in the game. Paul Donoghue then hit for the last six points, including four for four from the free throw line to put his team in the playoffs.

Donoghue [13 for 14 from the line] had 25 points and Holleran and Bob Evans had 15 apiece.

Mass College of Pharmacy jumped off to a 36-25 halftime lead and coasted over the Jaguars.

"This is the only team we haven't beaten in the conference and our players are eager to meet them in the playoffs," QJC Coach Brian Buckley said.

Holleran and Waters, both guards, were the only Jaguars in double figures. Holleran scoring 14 and Waters 10.

The defeat could be costly as the team lost freshman forward Steve Jaehning with a knee injury and he is questionable for the playoffs.

Recreation Dept. Tourney

Central, Point, Atlantic 'A', Montclair Advance

In second round action of the Quincy Recreation Department's Boys Junior High Basketball Tournament, Central, Point, Atlantic "A" and Montclair each advanced to Saturday's semi-final round.

Central, behind 16 points from Robert McLaney and 14 points from Paul Ryan, defeated Beechwood Knoll, 50-43. Other Central scorers were Bill Foley with seven points, Dave Maloney, six points and Chuck Jaehning with four. Beechi was led by Mike Conlon's 24 points. Robert O'Brien added 11 points while Nick Poppopetrios chipped in with four.

Point with seven different players scoring, defeated Sterling, 42-34. Billy Shaughnessy led the Point attack with 14 points while Tom Travers scored 11. Other scorers for Point were Chris Shaughnessy with seven, Gerry Britt with four, Billy Chason, Jeff Burn and Dean Maroney with two each. David Hall's 15 points led the Sterling scorers while Austin O'Malley added 11. Other Sterling scorers were Joe Burke with four, Morgan O'Shea and Mark Stewart with two each.

The day's third game saw Atlantic "A" defeat Snug Harbor, 50-27. Wayne Ham topped the Atlantic scorers with 15 points while Paul Cahill chipped in with 10. Other Atlantic scorers were Andy Curtis with nine, Joe Callahan with eight and Sean McAleney six. Snug Harbor was led by Tony Cascarano with 15 points. Pat Lynch added seven points while Ed Boyle played an outstanding defensive game.

The day's final game saw Montclair, behind 10 points each from Dan Baker and John Grenier, defeat Atlantic "B", 31-20. Other Montclair scorers were Jim Kennedy with five, John Comeau and Billy Bilton with two each. Atlantic was led by Tom Connolly's four points. Ed Kennedy and Colin Powers stood out on defense.

Saturday's semi-final games will see Central tap off against Point at 8:30 while Atlantic "A" will meet Montclair at 10 a.m. Both games will be played at Broad Meadows Junior High.

Beechwood Knoll, Point, Atlantic "A" and Atlantic "B" advanced to last week's quarter-finals with victories.

Beechwood Knoll defeated Merrymount, 39-21, in the day's first game. Robert O'Brien and Mike Conlon each scored 13 points for Beechi, while teammates Nick Pappopetrios added six and Mike Kerns chipped in with five. Merrymount was led by Mike Molloy and Mark Campbell with six points each, while Mike Connelly added five points.

Point, behind 18 points from Tom Travers, defeated Atherton Hough, 42-25. Other scorers for Point were Chris Shaughnessy and Billy Chason with seven points while Rich Pettinelli and Gerry Britt added four each. Billy Shaughnessy stood out on defense and added six rebounds. Atherton Hough was led by Steve Baylis with nine points and Darrin DeCoste with eight. Teammates Al Carpenter and Mike Miller chipped in with four points each.

Atlantic "B" saw nine different players score in its 34-30 win over Broad Meadows. Ed Kennedy led the scorers with seven while Ken Runge added six, while Peter Murphy, Billy Heffernan, Mike Ainsley and Craig Eaton each scored four points. Broad Meadows was led by six points each from John Kennedy and John Lennen.

The day's most exciting game saw Atlantic "A" defeat Wollaston, 58-46. Steve Hogan and Jeff Strzyk led the Atlantic attack with 15 points each. Denis Cronin added 12 points while Joe Callahan and Wayne Ham chipped in with four each.

Wollaston was led by Jack Bolster's 19 points. John Doherty's 15, Kevin Greene and Jeff Bownick added six points each.

Next Saturday's game will feature Beechwood Knoll and Central at 8:15 a.m., Point and Sterling at 9:15 a.m., Atlantic "A" and Snug Harbor 10:15 and Montclair vs. Atlantic "B" 11:15. All games will be played at Broad Meadows with the public invited to attend free of charge.

Track Club Members Shine At Yale

Several Quincy Track Club members made fine showings in last Sunday's Yale University women's invitational relays.

New member Tara Downes placed fourth in the dash and Sheila Barrett took second in the two-mile in 11:51.1.

The spring medley relay team of Ellen Regan, Downes, Linda Mancini and Caroline Mitchell sped to a club record 4:27.9, the mile relay team of Mitchell, Karen McCarthy, Margaret Osterman and Lois Guglielmi won in 4:16.0 and the 4 x 220 relay team placed third.

Earlier the QTC had some excellent efforts as it placed fourth in the New England AAU championships at Harvard with 28 points, the club's highest ever.

McCarthy leaped 17-6, a club record, to place second in the long jump.

Mitchell placed fourth in the 600 in 1:28.4, only one tenth of a second off Linda Cellini's club record.

Donna Reardon set a club mile record of 5:20.0 and Barrett, only 14, did 5:21.5, although neither scored.

Michelle Millane took fourth in the shot put.

The mile relay team of Mitchell, McCarthy, Osterman and Guglielmi set a club record of 4:10.4, breaking the old mark of 4:16.6, in placing second.

Here's a basketball oddity... Only once in the last 25 years has the team that had the scoring leader in the National Basketball Association... won the championship of the NBA... The only time it's happened in the last 25 years was the 1970-71 season when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar won the scoring title and his team won the NBA championship... You'd think having the scoring champ would help a team win the league title, but it hasn't worked out that way.

Has any basketball team ever gone through an entire game and not scored a point?... It seems hard to believe, but there was once a shutout in college basketball when Dartmouth in 1900 beat Boston College, 44-0.

What are the most games in a row any basketball team ever won?... The all-time record for any team in high school, college or pro ball was the amazing streak by Passaic [N.J.] High School... Between 1919 and 1925, they won - not just 100 straight or 150 straight - but the unbelievable total of 159 consecutive games... No other team - in any organized sport - has ever come close to winning that many games in a row.

Undefeated Sterling Wins Junior Crown

By PETE ZOLA

Coach Jim Snodgrass' Sterling basketball team finished its season undefeated [12-0] last week with a 76-61 win over Atlantic to win the Quincy Junior High championship. Sterling also won the football title last fall with an 8-0 mark.

The first quarter saw Paul Gilbody, Jeff Timberlake and Mark Righini tally all of the 24 points for Sterling while Pete McGillicuddy and Mike Costa scored the 14 points for Atlantic.

The seven-point lead held by Sterling was increased to 21 points as Timberlake and Kevin Riggs went on a rampage to make it 48-29 for the winners at halftime.

There was no stopping this Sterling quintet, which could be one of the finest junior high basketball teams to play in the city for the past 10 years. The last period was played by reserves on both sides, where upon Atlantic outscored its opponent, 16-8.

This was the highest scoring game of the year. Atlantic having the consolation of garnering the most points against its undefeated foe.

The big scorers for Sterling were Timberlake with 23 points, Riggs with 18, and Gilbody with 15.

McGillicuddy with 22 and Mike Costa with 12 were the top scorers for Atlantic.

The Atlantic Junior Varsity finished undefeated as it triumphed 32-19. A dead locked first quarter at seven all was eventually changed with Atlantic starting to hit. Pouring in 14 points to assure its 11th win. Atlantic held Sterling to four points in the final frame.

Leading the way for the victors were Chris Bunker, chalking up eight points and Jeff Stryker with six. Gary Minassian proved to be the high scorer for Sterling, getting six.

Central ended its season with a 9-3 record by defeating improved Point 58-52. A rapid start put Central in the lead, 23-12, after one quarter of play. This 11-point advantage was too much to overcome by Bill Mayer's Point five, as it only gained one point at half time, being in arrears, 35-25.

The consistent scoring by Central's John Purland, Bob Mudge and Tim Ryan enabled it to counteract the steady baskets by Chris McCray and Sal Lorenzano. The last half saw a 27-23 edge by Point which fell short at the game's end.

Central was runner-up to undefeated Sterling, losing only to the champions from the south end of the city. Three Centralites were in double figures. Purland 16, Mudge 12 and Ryan 11.

Again McCray led the way with a game high of 28 points and Lorenzano came up with a good effort of 16 points.

The Central Jayvees also completed its season as runner-up to the undefeated Atlantic team by winning, 37-20. Never trailing in this game, Central forged to a 13-2 first period lead. Point just couldn't get going as its opponent really pulled ahead to a 22-0 half time score. Point played Central even the remainder of the contest, but the first half proved too much to overcome.

It was a team effort for Central as Bob McElaney had eight points, Paul Ryan six, and Jamie Paz, Steve Warren and Bob Nicols four points each. For Point Jim Stasio was high with eight, and Sean Flaherty threw in four points.

Coach Snodgrass of the undefeated Sterling unit, and Coach Bill Willoughby who molded an unbeaten Atlantic Junior Varsity five, are to be congratulated.

KEVIN RIGGS goes up for a shot for Sterling's undefeated basketball team in the season's finale against Atlantic. Trying to stop him are Him Whitehouse (15), Peter McGillicuddy (51), Bob Lenard (41) and Vin Barry (43). Sterling won the city championship.

Bantam A's Win Cape Tourney

Quincy's Bantam A team won the recent Cape Cod tournament, winning three out of four games with Shawn Cunningham and Timmy O'Connell shining in goal.

Quincy won its opener, 10-1, over Falmouth with Mike McGrath scoring four goals, Dean Phillips two and Keith Smith, Bob Lynch, Tom Benson and Dennis Croke one each. Danny Shea had four assists. Tom Benson and Croke three apiece, Frankie Reynolds two and Phillips, Kevin White, Steve Denselbeck and McGrath one each.

Quincy then bombed Hyannis, 9-0, with Danny Shea having a hat trick, Reynolds two goals and Lynch, McGrath, Scott Messina and Phillips one each. Denselbeck and Benson had two assists each and Reynolds, Messina and McGrath one apiece.

McGrath bowed to Lexington, 3-1, with Reynolds having the goal, but bounced back to top Lexington, 5-2, for the tourney crown. McGrath had two goals and Lynch, Messina and Phillips one each. Benson had three assists.

In the South Shore Conference the Bantam A's rolled over Milton, 8-0, in a qualifying game for the state tournament, with McGrath having a hat trick, Smith two goals and Reynolds, Shea and Messina one goal each. Smith had three assists, Croke, McGrath and Shea two apiece and Benson, Lynch and White one each.

The team tied Brockton, 2-2, with Lynch having both goals and Shea and Smith having assists.

Hingham, 3-1, on goals by John Reinhardt, Reidy and Haynes. Ted Hohman, Horrigan and Pugliese had assists.

Timmy Collins and Robbie Flannery played well in goal and the defense of Mark Abboud, Hohman, David Cooke, Greg McGlame, Peter Furtado and McGrath was outstanding.

Quincy Icemen Move Toward Tourney Berth

Quincy's hockey team moved to within three points of qualifying for the state tournament last Saturday with a 5-2 win over Waltham.

The Presidents (10-3) played at Brockton last night (Wednesday) and will play Weymouth South Saturday at 3 p.m. at Pilgrim Arena in Hingham. They will host Brookline next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Presidents' brilliant line of Tom Brennan, Robby Craig and Scott Richardson accounted for four goals and 10 points against Waltham as it continues to lead the Suburban league in scoring. The trio made up the league's top scoring line a year ago.

Richardson had a hat trick, scoring the first three goals of the game and Brennan and Craig assisted on each. Craig also scored the final goal. Bobby Currier had the other Quincy goal and Chick Milford had an assist.

"The big reason for our success this season has been that high scoring line and the play of Jim Campbell in goal," Coach Bob Sylvia said. "Everyone has played well, but these four boys have put us where we are."

Earlier in the week Quincy had to come from behind with three last period goals to edge much improved Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-5.

Currier scored the winning goal for the second time in three games.

Cambridge, which had shocked league-leading Weymouth North, 5-2, in its previous game, took an early lead but Bill Flynn and Brennan scored to put the Presidents ahead, 2-1, after a period.

Cambridge moved ahead, 3-2, but Craig tied it up, only to have Cambridge go ahead again, 4-3, going into the final period.

Here Milford, Paul Flynn and Currier scored before Cambridge threw a scare into the Presidents with a late goal.

scored the second unassisted.

In its previous game North had turned in one of its better performances to edge a vastly improved Cambridge team, 5-4.

Goalie Bob Tierney was outstanding, turning in many fine saves, including two breakaway attempts in the third period.

Gerry scored the winning goal, Ofria had two goals and two assists and Rick Reinhardt and Mike McNeice each had a goal.

and 2-10 in the league.

North, hit by illness and injuries, got two goals from top scorer Tom Gerry in the game against Brookline and Brian Ofria scored the other goal. These were the only bright spots for the Raiders.

Earlier in the week the short-handed Raiders dropped a 5-2 decision to Newton North, with sophomore Tom Lester scoring the first goal with assists for Don Reidy and Kevin Duff, and Gerry Kramt scored for BoCar with Mike Novak assisting.

Burgin Platter defeated the Quincy Sun, 5-3, with Dave Edgren and Mike Molloy scoring two goals apiece and Mark Lamie one. Lamie had two assists and John Gleba, Jeff Murphy and Molloy one each. For the Sun John Griffin, Mark Pece and Ed

Doyle had the goals and Bill Glavin had two assists and Tom Bille and Bob Forman one each.

Baskin Robbins and Doran & Horrigan tied, 1-1, with Doug Concannon scoring for Baskin and Jim McSweeney and Jamie Seamans having assists. Frank McGinn scored for Doran with John DiPietro and Doug Loud assisting.

City Junior High Basketball Championships At Boston Garden

The Quincy Recreation Department all City Junior High School basketball championships will again this year be held at the Boston Garden.

With the co-operation of the Boston Celtic Basketball Club the Recreation Department has arranged to play its Championship Game before the Boston Celtics-New Jersey Nets game, Sunday, March 23.

This double header game will repeat the highly successful format established last year when over 500 person's traveled to Boston in buses to see Central defeat Montclair in a well played game.

The Junior High division is one of three divisions of tournament play conducted for over 20 years by the Recreation Department.

The tournament is conducted each year at the conclusion of the Departments Winter Recreation Program, in various Recreation Centers throughout the winter season.

St. Joseph's Daniel A's Win

St. Joseph's Daniel A basketball team held its YMCA-Church Basketball League lead with a 28-27 win over Wollaston Nazarene Church to improve its record to 7-1.

Dave Britt was again outstanding, playing excellent ball both ways, scoring 14 points, grabbing nine rebounds, having seven assists and five steals.

Chris Doyle played his best game and scored 10 points and took down 14 rebounds. Dan Memmolo and Jack Kilrain each scored two points.

St. Joseph's will play St. John's A on Feb. 16 at 4 o'clock at Broad Meadows Junior High.

Mite A's Win, 6-2

Russia Swim Meet Off, Melanson Disappointed, But 'Sort Of Relieved'

"I'm disappointed, but I'm also sort of relieved."

So said 17-year-old Ed Melanson, North Quincy swimming captain, when he received word last week that his trip to compete in an international meet in Moscow had been canceled.

"Naturally, I'm disappointed, but I'm also relieved, because I was wondering how we would be treated over there," the Raider senior said. "I think most of the other kids feel the same way."

"My mother and father feel the same way I do. They were looking forward to me going over there, but they are relieved, having been a bit leery about our treatment there."

Melanson and 19 other Greater Boston teen swimmers were due to leave Saturday for a three-day international meet and would have returned 10 days later. The trip had been sanctioned by the AAU.

In place of the Moscow meet, the 20 members of the N. E. Barracuda Swim Club will compete in an international meet in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., on the same dates.

The group will leave Sunday and return Feb. 19. The young swimmers will meet teams from several countries.

The trip to Moscow was canceled by Barracuda coach Jay Mogavero after he had talked with an aide to President Carter.

"I talked with a woman who identified herself as a Carter aide," he said. "She told me the administration is strongly discouraging any participation in the Soviet Union but not demanding it. She said they couldn't prevent us from going, but recommended we cancel the trip."

Mogavero took full responsibility for making the decision and said the group took the decision well, remaining calm and patiently listening as he "continued groping for the proper words to tell them."

"I felt that as a member of the AAU, I should respect the wishes of President Carter because of the present political situation. It is one of the biggest letdowns I've ever experienced."

Bill Walker, Melanson's coach at North Quincy, felt the decision to cancel the trip was justified.

"I feel sorry for Ed and all the other kids, because they had been eagerly looking forward to the trip," he said. "But, how do we know how they would have been treated over there? Several Russian skaters are working out around here in preparation for the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, and I don't think there are going to be any incidents, but it could be a lot different in Moscow. The Russians look at things differently than we do.

"Also, the kids are still going to swim in an international meet and that was the purpose of the Moscow trip."

Walker now will have his captain, the team's top swimmer, available for Saturday's Suburban League championship meet in Brockton. However, he will miss the South Sectional meet and Walker admits this will weaken the Raiders.

Ray Essick, a former Harvard swim coach and now swimming director of the National AAU, defended his group's sanction by pointing out that "we were simply following protocol by conforming to the athletic code that says we can't deny any independent team, such as the Barracudas, from going to Moscow without any restrictions being placed on them. If the State Department does come up with a formal policy, I would hope they would notify the National AAU body so we can determine how we should govern ourselves in the future."

The Quincy Elks gave Melanson a check for the $900 he needed to make the trip and the swimmer, expressing his gratitude to the lodge, said he was returning the check.

SPEND THIS WINTER IN CALIFORNIA

You'll love the climate in California. It's cool and quiet during the day, with a refreshing breeze of a menu that includes soups, salads, burgers and quiche, served from 11:30 to 3:00. Things start to warm up around 4:00, when complimentary hot hors d'oeuvres are served at your table 'til 7:00. Then it really gets hot in California with music and dancing. But if things get too hot for you on the dance floor, you can step into the lounge and recharge your energy. Watch the waterfall, or do a little California dreamin' with the driftwood. Then get back out and get down with the best music around.

Throw a party in California. We'll help you in every aspect of planning a party for your business or friends. Our expert staff, kitchen and cocktail facilities, dynamic sound system, dance floor and California decor will contribute to a memorable affair.

$4.5 Million Approved

No Cuts In School Budget, Despite Tobin's Protests

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The School Committee approached its proposed $38.5 million budget with not an axe, but a scalpel Monday night.

Despite Mayor Arthur Tobin's warning that "I don't know where the money's going to come from," board members made no cuts while approving over $4.5 million in the system's expenses.

The budget prepared by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon shows a $5.5 million, 17 percent increase over last year. While Creedon calls the budget "bone-dry," Tobin describes it as unrealistic, dangerous and maybe even illegal.

According to Tobin, the state tax cap law prevents the total city tax levy from increasing by more than four percent over last year's. Any school budget increase over that would have to be absorbed by cuts in other city departments—most likely the large police, fire, public works and hospital budgets, he claimed.

Furthermore, that $5.5 million hike would mean about a $20 tax rate increase, Tobin said.

"I can't buy it," he told the committee. "If you think the city council is going to approve this, you're kidding yourself."

Creedon, on the other hand, told the committee how inflation had cut into the school system's buying power and said the budget contained major savings in energy, materials and maintenance costs.

All but $157,000 of the increase was caused by collective bargaining, utility increases and state-mandated programs, Creedon said.

Tobin warned the committee to begin cutting each account with an

Tobin Naming New Study Group

Millions Needed To Retain City Hospital

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy is faced with the need to float a multi-million dollar bond issue if it wants to retain City Hospital as a municipal facility, warns Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

The Mayor said he is preparing to name a seven-member committee, including three doctors from the Hospital staff, to make a three-prong study of the future of the Hospital, whether to retain it or sell it or lease it to private management.

He said he is also planning "to make some changes in the Hospital Board of Managers," but he refused to say if that meant firing any of the current members of the nine-member board.

And he lashed out at "those individuals and groups who are making statements in the press which are giving City Hospital bad publicity. It is scaring people away from the Hospital."

One of the groups that he criticized was the Blue Ribbon Commission named by the City Council to study the Hospital, but he hastened to add that he was not criticizing the individuals on the Commission.

"They're fine people," he said. "What I criticize is the way they're going about their task. I can't blame them totally because I don't know what authority they've been given."

Tobin said his own Commission will include Dr. Russell Irons, president of the City Hospital medical staff; Dr. William Frates, past president; and Dr. William Helfrich.

Other members, whom he declined to name at present, will be two Quincy attorneys, a certified public accountant, and a Quincy mother who has served as a nurse at the Hospital.

He indicated that "several" of the members of his commission also will be named to the Hospital Board of Managers.

Tobin said the constant talk about politics at City Hospital is not only scaring people away from the Hospital but it is diverting attention from the real issue that is facing the city.

"We are determined to give the people of Quincy the best possible health care service for the next 10 to 50 years," he said. "The question is: Can it be done as a municipal hospital?"

"It can if there is a major capital outlay for hospital equipment and for new plant facilities, a modernization. It's going to require millions of dollars in outlay."

"The only way I can get this money is to float a bond."

"But are the people ready for me to go in and request a multi-million dollar bond issue to do this? I have very serious reservations that this is the direction."

"That is the real crux of the

Died In Quincy A Spinster

Creator Of Modern Valentine Lived Unromantic Life

The woman who made valentines what they are today may never have received one herself.

Miss Esther A. Howland died in Quincy 76 years ago, unmarried, after a lifetime of caring for an ailing father and turning out missives of affection to be sent to other women.

Miss Howland didn't invent the valentine but she is credited with making the first fancy ones in America, the frilly, lacy kind with warm verses like darts aimed at HER heart.

She did all this around 1849 in Worcester, where her father kept a book shop and bindery and, as a sideline, imported valentines from Europe.

Miss Howland, fresh out of Mount Holyoke College and thus ready to conquer at least a small part of the world, thought she could make better ones. Turned out she could.

She took paste pot and scissors, a few lithographed pictures, some sheets of colored paper and bits of paper lace and, presto!, the first modern valentine.

One of her brothers, a penman of some note, added the verses and another brother, a traveling salesman, took them around to show his various retail outlets.

The result was several thousands of dollars in orders, an unexpected development that nearly swamped the fledgling enterprise at the start.

In a few years, the business was grossing between $50,000 and $75,000 annually. General Motors should have it that good in that 1850s.

Unfortunately, prosperity was short lived for Miss Howland.

She slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk during a business trip to Boston and broke her kneecap. She had to supervise her business from a wheel chair.

Then her father suffered an accident and was forced to take to his bed. Her mother having died, Miss Howland gave up her beloved valentines to nurse him for the rest of his life.

The business was sold in 1866 to a young Civil War veteran named George C. Whitney, who managed it into one of the largest greeting card companies in the United States.

When her father died, Miss Howland moved in with her brother, E. P. Howland of 9 Adams St., Quincy, where she in turn died on March 15, 1904, at the age of 75, her valentines a thing of the past.

By TOM HENSHAW

YOU ARE NOT QUITE SO PRETTY AS THIS. VULGAR VALENTINES, bearing insults in rhyme, were popular in the mid-Nineteenth Century when Esther A. Howland devised the first modern ones. Rhyme at the bottom of this gross example reads:

Your portrait here you see, my dear:
'Twill make you rather vain, I fear;
For though in some respects quite true,
In others it greatly flatters you.

$291,154 In January Construction Work

The City Building Department issued 86 permits during January, for work costing an estimated $291,154, according to its monthly report.

During January, 1979, the department issued 55 permits for work costing an estimated $254,065.

Permits were issued last month in the following categories:

Residential alterations - 36 permits, for work costing $101,261.

Other alterations - 15 permits, work costing $152,900.

Removals - eight permits, work costing $15,989.

Signs - 12 permits, work costing $12,500.

Miscellaneous - 15 permits, work costing $8,504.

The department's receipts for the month totalled $3,924 and $907 was received for public safety inspections.

$30,000 GRANT is presented to Lincoln Hancock Community School Council president Ron Iacobucci by Mayor Arthur Tobin and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets. ## $30,000 Federal Grant For Lincoln Hancock Programs

The Lincoln Hancock Community School Council has received a $30,000 federal grant to fund several new programs at the school.

The Community Development Block Grant was announced Monday night by Mayor Arthur Tobin and Ward 4 Councillor

James Sheets at the council's monthly meeting. Also present were council member Carol Pisano and Gerry Kavanaugh, both of the city's planning department, who assisted in arranging the grant.

The grant will fund five programs that include a community needs resource assessment, an after school math and reading enrichment program, a parents' effectiveness training program, a citizens training workshop, and a conference for community agencies and service organizations.

According to council president Ron Iacobucci, "The block grant award to the community council means new partnerships and responsibilities for community education in Quincy. Community Education will combine with Community Development to meet the human service needs of residents in the Southwest area. The Community School Council has taken an active role in assuming the responsibility for identifying and delivering these services and programs."

"Successful community education programs are those which address themselves to real community needs. Therefore, the citywide survey will be part of an effort to identify the needs and interests of the community. It will enable us to develop a comprehensive community education program and will serve as the basis of future funding plans," Iacobucci said.

A significant portion of the block grant money will be designated for parent and children programs. The after school math and reading enrichment classes will provide about 100 elementary school-age children with reading, language arts and math instruction.

The Parents Effectiveness Training (P.E.T.) Program is a nationally lauded eight-week methods course in adult-child communications and problem-solving.

The third part of the grant will be a series of workshops and conferences on volunteerism in the community. Citizen training workshops designed to provide communication and organizational skills will be offered to residents. Also, a conference of community agencies and service organizations will be offered to encourage greater exchange and sharing of resources among community, education, and service providers in the Quincy area.

The Community School Council is scheduled to begin these programs around March 1. Residents interested in participating should contact the community education office, 786-8717.

Finn May Decide

Board Deadlocked 2-2 On Package Store License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Owners of Previte's Market, Quincy Point, and Capitol Liquors, Quincy Square, will have to wait an additional two weeks for a License Board decision on which will get the city's only available retail package goods store - all alcoholic beverages license.

City Clerk John M. Gillis and Fire Chief Edward Barry voted to grant the license to Previte's at Tuesday's meeting, and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert F. McKeogh and Building Inspector Allen MacDonald voted in favor of the Capitol resulting in a stalemate. Police Chief Francis X. Finn was not present at the meeting, and the requests were continued for two weeks. Finn apparently will cast the deciding vote.

The matter has been before the board since Jan. 22, when Previte's first applied for the license. The request was continued to give other stores with wine and malt beverage licenses a chance to apply for the license.

Board members did agree at this week's meeting to eliminate a third applicant, Don's Market, 247 Atlantic St., from contention. McDonald made the motion to deny the license because of opposition to the license by Ward Councilor Joanne Condon, and local residents such as Benjamin L. Landy and Mrs. Patricia Merrigan, who saw no need for an additional liquor store in the area. McDonald also mentioned neighborhood problems with teenagers drinking, and the close vicinity of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center to the store.

The Board then considered Previte's application for the license. Chief Barry made a motion to grant the license saying consideration should be given to this small business man. The motion died when no second was made.

McDonald said he visited Previte's Monday and that it was an old wood frame building on a narrow street where parking is a nightmare. He said the beer and wine inventory was light, and while he would like to help the small businessman, he thought the license should go to the business that employed the most people, paid the most taxes, and would give the city the most prestige. He said he didn't feel Previte's warranted the license at this time.

Gillis disagreed saying the small businessman is trying to make ends meet, and pays his fair percentage of taxes. Gillis said his vote would go to Previte's.

McDonald said he visited all three applicants, and weighed what would be best for the city in the long range. "The Capitol has good off street parking, good inventory and storage cases and would do the most justice to the license," said McDonald.

McDonald also said the Capitol pays $12,000 in taxes. He made a motion to grant the license, which was seconded by Dr. McKeogh. The vote was split with McDonald and Dr. McKeogh in favor, Gillis and Barry opposed, and the motion died.

The two week continuance was approved by the Alcoholic Beverages Commission, which must OK continuing liquor license applications beyond the 30 day limit.

In other action, the License Board:

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Friends of Quincy High School Hockey for a Las Vegas Night Friday, Feb. 15, 8 p.m. to midnight, at the North Quincy Nights of Columbus Hall. Proceeds will benefit the group's scholarship and banquet fund.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to St. Boniface Church for an adult St. Patrick's Day dance Friday, March 14, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the church hall.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Quincy Historical Society for a reception Saturday, March 1, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the society headquarters.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Committee to Elect Robert A. Cerasoli for a dance and reception Friday, March 14, 7 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Club House.

TYING RIBBONS for the hostages in Iran are Diane Acorn of Quincy Point Congregational Church (seated) and Quincy High students Linda Thornhill, Cindy Cameron, Sherri Pitts and Maureen Moline. The over 300 ribbons were then worn by participants in the "Vigil of Concern" at United First Parish Church Sunday.

Remick Recovering From Curling Injuries

Frank Remick, former owner of Remick's of Quincy, was due to return to his Beacon St., Boston home yesterday (Wednesday) after nearly a week in the hospital with injuries suffered while curling.

"He's getting along just fine," Mrs. Remick told The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "He would have been home today but one of his doctors didn't show up and the other one didn't want to release him alone."

Remick reportedly slipped and fell while in a game of curling and struck his head on ice.

While in the hospital, Remick had to pass up the Quincy Red Cross' annual Blizzard Ball Saturday when he was to receive the Outstanding Neighbor of the Year award for his involvement in community affairs.

The award was accepted on this behalf by Mrs. Edna Gilmore. Executive Director Dan Pritchard told some 300 people at the ball that the Blizzard Ball raised more than $6,100 to keep the Red Cross available in Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook. Ticket returns are still coming in.

The proceeds of last year's ball were used to buy a disaster vehicle for the chapter.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to Helen Shea and Robert Quinn, co-chairmen of the ball.

Police Raid Home, Seize Prescription Drugs

Quincy police are seeking a warrant for the arrest of a Quincy man whose home they raided last week and seized "hundreds and hundreds" of prescription drugs. Police said he will be charged with two counts of possessing with intent to distribute a controlled substances.

He will also face charges in connection with a Thanksgiving Day jewel theft in Braintree.

Quincy LWV To Meet With Local Legislators

The League of Women Voters of Quincy will meet with Quincy legislators tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sumner Hirschberg, 156 Monroe Rd., Quincy Center.

Reps. Michael Morrissey, Thomas Brownell and Robert Cerasoli and Sen. Paul Harold will attend or send their legislative aides.

Topics to be discussed will be the league's legislative priorities in education, corrections, transportation, water quality, waste disposal and judicial reorganization in the 1980 session.

League president Constance Burns said, "The League of Women Voters encourages all citizens of Quincy to come and join the discussion of legislative priorities. Public participation is essential in helping our legislators determine constituent concern about critical issues in the upcoming session."

Louise Forsyth Elected APGA President For 1981-82

Louise B. Forsyth, Coordinator of Testing for the Quincy Public Schools, has been elected the president of the American Personnel and Guidance Association (APGA) for 1981-1982.

Her three-year presidential term will begin July 1, 1980 as president-elect and will end as past president in 1983.

The office is the highest honor given to one in the guidance and counseling profession. APGA is a professional organization with 13 national divisions for those in many work settings including school counseling, vocational counseling, tests and measurements, employment counseling, rehabilitation counseling, specialists in group work, counselor educators, and supervisors, mental health counseling and others with special interests.

Miss Forsyth was president of the American School Counselor Association (ASCA), APGA's largest division, during 1977-1978. In addition to the ASCA three year presidential term, she coordinated ASCA Public Relations activities and chaired the State Divisions Committee from 1974 to 1980.

For three years she was a member of the APGA Board of Directors and Senate. She developed a public relations program for APGA during 1978-1979.

Her work in development of the ASCA public relations program and her leadership throughout the nation caused the 1978 ASCA delegate Assembly to establish the "Louise B. Forsyth Award for Outstanding Public Relations" given annually to a state division.

Miss Forsyth has also served as president of the Massachusetts School Counselor Association and the South Shore Guidance Association. For five years she was the MSCA Executive Secretary.

Speaking engagements have taken her to forty states.

Locally, she has served as moderator of Bethany Congregational Church and is currently chairing the Capital Fund Drive for the Protestant Social Service Bureau. For more than thirty years she has been active in the American Red Cross in youth work and as a Director.

Her work has brought her many honors including the ASCA School Counselor of the year, Guidance Administrator of the Year and Professional Writer Award in 1973; MSCA Distinguished Leadership Award in 1973 and 1978; the Bridgewater State College Nicholas Trilling Award for Outstanding Service to Public Education in 1976; American National Red Cross Certificate of Appreciation in 1964 and 1978; and Louise B. Forsyth Day in the city of Quincy in 1978.

Miss Forsyth received her education in Quincy, Philippine Islands, Virginia and California. Her B.S. was earned at Bridgewater State College and an M.A. at the College of William and Mary. Additional graduate study has been at Boston University.

Initial candidates for the APGA presidency included the director of pupil personnel services for the state of North Carolina, and professors from George Washington, Pennsylvania, Auburn, and Boston Universities.

Pistorino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Pistorino, 51 Hovey St.; Charlotte A. O'Malley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William V. O'Malley, 78 Andrews Rd.; Jayna Ellen Lee, daughter of Mrs. Robert H. Lee, 48 Prospect St.; Elizabeth A. Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donovan, 116 Russell St.; Mary Ellen McKenna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. McKenna, 62 Hodges Ave.; Catherine M. Foley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Foley, 8 Stoney Brae Rd.; and Paula M. Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Riley, 23 Richfield St.

Mary Cantell Job Placement Counselor At Rehabilitation Center

Mary Beth Cantell, formerly of Westfield, recently joined South

Shore Rehabilitation Center as job placement coun. clor.

"Most of the clients at the Center have never held a job which paid a minimum wage or taxes," she notes. "Usually these clients are recipients of some form of public assistance. Our goal at the Center is to help clients become responsible adults in the workforce."

Miss Cantell is a degree candidate in Business Administration at Northeastern University. She was previously employed at Project HIRE in Norwood and lives in that community.

South Shore Rehabilitation Center, located in North Quincy, operates vocational, residential, and educational programs for multiply handicapped adults providing training in work, daily living and social skills. Working with the handicapped since 1965, South Shore Rehabilitation Center provided services to more than 700 clients during 1979.

Brett To Be Honored As Beth Israel 'Man Of The Year'

Former City Councillor and state Rep. Joseph Brett will be honored as "Man of the Year," by the Beth Israel Brotherhood Sunday.

The Brotherhood Sunday ceremonies will include an 8:30 a.m. service at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point and a breakfast and citation ceremony at Morris Silverman Social Hall, adjacent to the synagogue, at 9:30.

Brett, who served as state representative from 1959 to 1976, recently retired from the city council. He is past president of the Massachusetts Legislators Association, past exalted ruler of the Elks Quincy Lodge and past president of the State Elks Association.

Congressman Brian Donnelly will be guest speaker.

Connally To Speak At Chamber Luncheon Feb. 20

John Connally, the onetime Democratic governor of Texas who is now a Republican candidate for president, will be the speaker Wednesday, Feb. 20, at noon at a South Shore Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Lantana, Randolph.

Due to space limitations and security, the luncheon will be open only to members of the Chamber.

Last month, Connally was to have spoken at a Chamber breakfast but the appearance had to be cancelled. The new date was arranged through Connally's chief Massachusetts supporter, former Gov. John A. Volpe, who will appear with Connally.

Connally will be the seventh presidential candidate to have spoken at a Chamber function prior to the March 4 state primary. The others were Ronald Reagan, Howard Baker, John Anderson, Edmund Brown Jr., Philip Crane and George Bush.

Republican Candidates Night At The Hollow, Feb. 19

The Quincy Women's Republican Club and the Republican City Committee will sponsor a Presidential Candidates Night Tuesday, Feb. 19 at The Hollow restaurant.

A social hour from 6:30 to 7 p.m. will be followed by dinner. After dinner, a speaker representing each candidate will have five minutes to speak and five minutes to answer. A straw poll will be taken at 9:15.

Reservations are limited. For information, contact John McGowan or Kathryn Roberts.

Most valuable gems grow in crystal formation. This means that they grow along particular planes. If a cutter is able to cut a stone along one of its growth planes, the true shine and color of the gem will be revealed. The point in cutting is to expose a crystal's beauty to the light. As a result, there is much talk about the cut of any gem. Especially diamonds. Just as careful cutting can release the beauty of a gem, bad cutting can destroy it, breaking the stone. Ask your jeweler to explain the technique. More than half the weight of the rough diamond is lost when an ideal cut diamond is produced. A diamond cut to make it look bigger lets some of the light "leak out" through the bottom, cut too deep light "leaks" through the sides and can appear black. To be sure you have quality diamonds, to choose from, come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

Benefit Dance Raises $2,360 For DiMarzio Fire Fund

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"I felt like the most important person in the world," said an emotional Jean DiMarzio after a benefit dance Saturday which raised $2,360 for the owners of the recently destroyed DiMarzio Roller Rink in Houghs Neck.

Miss DiMarzio and her sister, Mrs. Helen Lynch, lost the landmark rink and adjacent apartment to a fire Jan. 4, barely escaping with the clothes on their backs. Since then, Houghs Neck neighbors have rallied around the sisters and the benefit dance was the culmination of their efforts.

Nearly 300 people attended the dance at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, donated for the evening by Rev. James P. Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament Church.

The sisters were presented orchid corsages from a local florist and said Mrs. Lynch, "It was a fantastic time. We saw people from all walks of life who skated at the rink 10, 20 and 25 years ago. The evening was all we had hoped for and more."

Those attending ranged from Houghs Neck neighbors and friends, and DiMarzio family members, to firemen who responded to the fire call at the rink, and hockey players who had frequented the rink.

Rep. Thomas Brownell and Senator Paul D. Harold stopped by during the festivities.

Edith Nigro, a Houghs Neck neighbor who awakened the sisters the morning of the fire enabling them to escape safely, was presented a citation by City Councillor Leo Kelly.

Master of ceremonies for the benefit dance was Paul O'Donnell. Entertainment was by Vinnie Perry who played records and tapes.

A drawing was also held for items donated by local merchants.

Dance committee members included Jeanne and Michael Keefe, Patricia Murphy, Marcia Golden, Robert and John Brill, Jack and Pat Nigro and Dave MacMillan, who were assisted by 15 untiring ticket sellers.

In time, the sisters, who are living in a Houghs Neck storefront, plan to rebuild the rink out of concrete or metal. They are also working on a cookbook, "The Reluctant Cook Book—or Please Buy This Book So We Can Eat Out".

Whatever the future holds, said Mrs. Lynch, "We feel that Houghs Neck is 100 percent behind us."

Morrisette Memorial Mass At St. Mary's Feb. 18

The Morrisette Post of West Quincy will celebrate its 51st annual Washington's Birthday memorial Mass Monday, Feb. 18. All deceased members of the post will be honored during the ceremonies, which include a parade from the post to St. Mary's Church and mass celebrated by Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's.

After a 9 a.m. flag-raising ceremony at the post and the placing of wreaths, a parade will form at the post grounds.

Marshall for the parade is past commander Paul O'Neill. Also taking part will be a Quincy police detail and colors, American Legion state and county color guards, representatives and color guards for all Quincy veterans groups, the Waltham American Legion Band and the Morrisette post color detail, led by Sergeant at Arms Joseph Sheehan, the drill team, led by past commander Mario Ghilardi, and members of the post, led by Commander E. Visco.

At 9:30 a.m., Visco and Mayor Arthur Tobin will place a wreath on the West Quincy Veterans monument. The parade will then proceeded to St. Mary's Church on Crescent St.

FR. JOHN MCMAHON

Lectors for the Mass will be Visco and past commander Joseph Green. Past commanders Francis Mullen and Gino Giorgio will serve as readers.

Past commanders Florentino Campitelli, Lawrence Doyle and Richard Walter will light candles in memory of the deceased members.

Past commander Paul Hunt will serve as head usher and past commanders Lawrence Doyle, James Lynch, Francis Mullen and Mario Ghilardi, Vice Commander Robert Lafleur, First Vice Commander George Nicholson, Historian Mario DeLuca and members George McDonald, John Gillis, Phil Perkins, Lawrence Butler and Maurice Daly will also serve as ushers.

Music will be provided by St. Mary's Choir, directed by Gay Sullivan, Jean Greene and Edwin Boland.

Members of St. Mary's Boy Scout Troop 32 will serve communion during the Mass.

The post's firing squad will fire a salute to the dead and a bugler will play taps.

After the Mass, the parade will reform outside the church and return to the post, where the post staff and the Women's Auxiliary will host an open house and reception.

Bible Study Series At Sacred Heart

Dorothy A. (Auger) Welch, 67, Navy Nurse In 3 Wars

Funeral services will be held today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. for Dorothy A. (Auger) Welch of Quincy, a Navy nurse in three wars, at the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy Center.

Mrs. Welch, a retired Naval Lt. Commander, served in World War II and the Korean and Vietnam conflicts. She died Monday at Quincy City Hospital.

Born in Saugus, she lived in Quincy for 20 years. She was a member of Christ Church Guild and the Quincy Women's Club.

She is survived by her husband, Edward G. Welch; three brothers, Claude Auger of Ohio, John Auger of Lynn; and William Auger of New Hampshire; five sisters, Mrs. Blanche Rumson of Wells, Maine, Mrs. Mary Barrow of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Eleanor Boud of Danvers and Mrs. Enma Sears and Mrs. June Pheulpin of Saugus and several nieces and nephews.

Rev. Steele Martin of Christ Episcopal Church will officiate at the funeral services. Burial will be in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Thomas F. Burke, 51, North Quincy Taxi Dispatcher

A funeral Mass was celebrated Saturday at St. Ann's Church for Thomas F. Burke, 51, dispatcher for North Quincy Taxi.

Mr. Burke, a lifelong Quincy resident, died Feb. 6 at Quincy City Hospital.

A World War II Marine Corps Veteran, he was a member of the Wollaston American Legion Post.

He is survived by a son, Thomas F. Burke III of Quincy; three daughters, Linda Maglio of Milton, Donna Quilici of Rockland and Cheryl Walsh of North Quincy; three sisters, Mary Lints of Weymouth and Rita Burke and Dorothy Mullen of Quincy and six grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery, West Quincy. Funeral arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, Wollaston.

William J. Mitchell, 86, Former Park-Recreation Chairman

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday for William J. Mitchell, 86, former chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Commission.

Mr. Mitchell died Feb. 8 in John Scott Nursing Home, Braintree after a long illness. Born in Boston, he lived over 50 years in Quincy.

He retired from the Park and Recreation Commission in 1974 after 31 years on the Park Board, the Recreation Commission and the present combined board.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board, had the following tribute to Mr. Mitchell:

"Mr. Mitchell was always a progressive member of the Park and Recreation Boards and Commissions with a dedicated foresight and interest in expanding recreation programs and providing improved and additional park facilities for Quincy residents of all ages.

"Upon his resignation, the Park and Recreation Board awarded Mr. Mitchell a citation of service to the people of Quincy and presented him with the only honorary membership ever awarded to the Park and Recreation Board."

The original ballfield on the Southern Artery, across from

WILLIAM J. MITCHELL

Veterans Memorial Stadium, was named the William J. Mitchell Field in honor of his service to the city.

"Mr. Mitchell was originally appointed a member of the Park Board in 1943 by the late Mayor Charles I. Ross and was appointed to the first municipal Recreation Commission in 1948. He continued on both and, in 1962, when the two agencies were merged, was appointed to the newly established Park and Recreation Board by the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and continued until his resignation on January 29, 1974.

"Mr. Mitchell devoted 31 consecutive years of volunteer service to the city, the longest continual tenure of any municipal board member.

"Mr. Mitchell served the administrations of Mayors Ross, Thomas Burgin, David S. McIntosh, Della Chiesa, James R. McIntyre and Walter J. Hannon. He served during both the Plan F and Plan A terms of government in Quincy."

He was also retired printing supervisor for John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., Boston.

He was a past Grand Knight of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and past president of the Montclair Improvement Society, later the Montclair Men's Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary (Tracey) Mitchell; two sons, George of North Quincy and Albert of Braintree; a daughter, Mrs. Mary West of Westwood; a brother, George Mitchell of Newton; ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery and funeral arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, Wollaston.

Couples To Renew Vows At St. John's Valentine Liturgy

The priests of St. John's Parish are inviting married couples of the parish to renew their marriage vows at a special ceremony at the regular 7 p.m. mass Saturday.

The service is intended to stress the importance of good strong family life.

During the ceremony all couples will be asked to sit at the center aisle of the church. Following the homily, the couples will renew their marriage vows collectively. Special prayers will be offered to ask God's blessing upon their marriage, the home and the families represented.

Following the Mass, the couples will be invited to a social in the church hall. There will be refreshments, music and dancing until 11 p.m. Although there is no charge for this reception, a free-will offering will be appreciated to help defray expenses of the evening.

The ceremony will not match the original ceremony of marriage. However, it is an opportunity to thank God for the many blessings associated with this sacrament.

The event is being sponsored by the spiritual development commission of the parish council.

Boy Scout Troop Participates In Squantum Service

The morning worship service at the First Church of Squantum Sunday began with the church sponsored Boy Scout troop conducting a flag ceremony and reciting the Boy Scout promise and law.

The ceremony was in observance of "Boy Scout Sunday" and also commemorated the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America Feb. 8, 1910 in Washington, D.C.

The 12 boys that took part in the program were accompanied to the service by troop leaders Donald Pound, scoutmaster, and Marjorie Petrosius, troop coordinator.

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin welcomed the boys saying he was glad the church had a part in sponsoring such a fine character building organization as the Boy Scout troop.

The sermon during the service was "The Love in the Law" based on a text from the book of Deuteronomy. It was the sixth in a series on the history of Israel from the death of King Solomon to the end of the Old Testament.

The Senior Choir sang "Teach Me, O Lord" by Thomas Attwood. Ushers were Sandra Ahearn, Tore Wallin, Susan Midram, Steven Williams, Paul Paulson, Bonnie Adams and Mark Paul. Greeters were Paul and Mary Gifford.

Following the service, a reception was held for the troop and their leaders hosted by Shirley Mason, Pat Olson, Richard Williams and Katherine Hansen.

Fr. McCarthy Serves As Guest Chaplain In U.S. House

Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy, served as guest chaplain for the U.S. House of Representatives.

Fr. McCarthy was introduced by Rep. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Mass) as "truly a man for all seasons... for his tremendous work in the church coupled with a tireless dedication to the local community."

"Presently," said Donnelly, "in addition to his busy clerical duties, he is chaplain to the Quincy Fire Department and serves on the board of housing for the city of Quincy."

"His work in behalf of the entire community has made him a figure of affection and inspiration to all."

The Congressman noted that before Fr. McCarthy came to Quincy in 1977 he served St. Gregory's Parish in Dorchester, where he officiated at the wedding of Donnelly and his wife, Virginia.

"For me, my family, and my friends, he has always been a source of inspiration, learned counsel, good humor, and spiritual direction," said Donnelly.

Rep. Nicholas Mavroules (D-Mass) observed that Fr.

McCarthy was born in his district, in Haverhill.

"Since leaving his hometown after high school graduation," said Mavroules, "Fr. McCarthy has never had the opportunity to return to Haverhill in his official capacity, nor is that really important."

"What is important is that wherever he goes, he brings with him what he has taken from Haverhill, which is a commendation both to himself and to the home of his early years."

Fr. McCarthy, 53, was ordained in 1952 by the late Richard Cardinal Cushing.

Cites Accident 'Carnage'

Brownell Seeks Traffic Study On Quincy Shore Drive

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) is seeking a comprehensive MDC traffic study aimed at eliminating frequent accidents on Quincy Shore Drive in Merry Mount and Wollaston.

Brownell testified recently before the Committee on Urban Affairs in support of his bill requiring the study, calling the section of road "one of the most hazardous roadways in the state." "Cars on a regular basis run off the roadway striking homes, traffic lights, light poles, walls, fences and anything else in their paths," he said. "In the recent past there have been a number of fatal and near-fatal accidents.

"Something must be done to halt this ongoing carnage and damage to property before any further losses occur."

Brownell said an MDC study might show the need for improved lighting conditions, installation of sequential traffic signals and road guards or an increase in the police patrol.

"In this day and age the MDC should have the engineering capability to solve this unacceptable traffic condition," he said.

Stephen Danckert Awarded 4-Year ROTC Scholarship

North Quincy High senior Stephen Danckert has been awarded a four-year ROTC scholarship under the "early cycle" competition.

The national scholarships are awarded on the basis of College Board exam scores, class rank, extracurricular activities and a personal interview with a board of Army officers. They may be redeemed at any of 376 colleges which feature ROTC programs.

Danckert is the information officer for the local Air Force Junior ROTC unit, where he holds the rank of Cadet-Captain. He is a member of the Foreign Language Honor Society, editor of the ROTC newspaper "Falcon", and ranked in the top ten percent of his class. He lives at 98 Deerfield St., Squantum.

He is also active in politics, being a member of the pro-defense lobby American Security Council's National Advisory Board and a registered Upon graduation from college, he will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army, where he hopes to pursue a career.

QCA Votes Support Of Montclair Drainage

Members of the Quincy Citizens Association have voted their support to residents of Montclair in their efforts to secure a satisfactory plan to drain the marshes and protect their homes from flooding.

The Association wrote to the State Secretary of Environmental Affairs asking that deadline for comments on a plan to dig a 1000-foot drainage ditch around State Street South property be delayed until the residents had a chance to study it.

The deadline was set for last Monday, Feb. 11, but residents said they did not learn of it until they read it in a newspaper Feb. 4. They asked that the deadline be extended until some time in mid-March.

Members of the association also voted to oppose a $1 million bond the city has been seeking to build two additional floors on the parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St.

And, after listening to a talk by Chip Faulkner of Citizens for Limited Taxation, they voted to support Proposition 2 1/2, a proposal to limit property assessments to 2 1/2 per cent of fair market value that will appear on the ballot in November.

Federal Paperwork Costs Us $100 Billion A Year

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association

of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays

8-7:30 Thursdays

Startling revelations published last October following a two-year study authorized by Congress produced surprisingly little public reaction. A Commission on Federal Paperwork revealed that Federal red tape is costing the country $100 billion a year. The commission proposed 770 ways to cut it.

We knew without the commission's report that the Federal Government has been inundating us with paperwork. The startling part was the discovery of how immense the sea of paper really is. And the fact that it threatens to get more so.

"The ability to create paperwork far exceeds the ability to get rid of it," was the dispirited conclusion of Warren Buhler, chairman of the commission.

In its report the commission charged that the Federal bureaucrats were indifferent to the problems their paperwork causes: "Techniques to estimate costs both in and out of government are very crude."

It demonstrated that overlapping organizations duplicate paperwork: "Seventeen agencies write equal opportunity regulations."

It noted that "the trucker's daily log, required by the Department of Transportation to ensure that drivers do not drive more than ten hours a day, results in 1.2 billion sheets of paper annually. Unfortunately, the log...neither identifies possible violators nor helps in their prosecution."

Eli Lilly and Co., one of the largest pharmaceutical firms, claims it expends $15 million a year for government paper work. Its application to the Food and Drug Administration for an arthritis drug consisted of 120,000 pages - not including multiple copies. At General Motors, more than 20,000 fulltime employees work solely on government regulations. Hospitals in New York State have to change one-fourth of a patient's bill for the cost of fulfilling regulations of 164 agencies.

There are at least 46 Federal laws and regulations that apply to the savings and loan industry. Most of them are "a waste of money, an unfair burden on lending institutions, and a failure in accomplishing any documentable results," as the president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, Joseph T. Benedict, said recently of the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act of 1975.

A New York State S&L demonstrated the paper expenditure involved in processing home mortgage loans by festooning across its main entrance 136 separate forms required for application, appraisal, credit, commitment, and closing reports.

Press FAA On Over Water Departures, Morrissey Urges

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) has urged Quincy residents to get in touch with the Federal Aviation Administration with their comments on proposed take-off procedures from Logan Airport, particularly Alternative Six.

Alternative Six is the over-the-water departure pattern that has been proposed by the FAA in an effort to solve the air noise problem that has plagued residents of the North End of the city since May, 1978.

"The FAA proposed that Alternative Six must have an initial departure heading of less than 180 degrees," said Morrissey.

"If the public does not force the issue of an initial departure heading farther out to sea then some sections of the city may still feel the affect of the noise."

"The FAA has come a long way in developing an over-the-ocean take off procedure but it will not be a complete success unless the initial heading forces the planes farther out to sea."

Morrissey urged Quincy residents to write to Robert Whittington, FAA regional director, 12 New England Executive Park, Burlington, Mass. 02108, and suggest an initial departure heading between 140 and 160 degrees.

Time For City To Get Out Of Hospital Business?

Mayor Tobin has warned that the city will have to face a multi-million bond issue if Quincy City Hospital is to continue to deliver high quality medical care and remain a municipal facility.

He is naming a special committee to help him decide whether to sell the hospital, lease it to private management or retain it as a function of the city government.

The City Council, which will have to approve the final decision, already has a blue ribbon commission studying the subject.

By the time the two studies are completed, a lot of good people will have devoted a lot of time and talent to the effort.

It would be a shame if it all turns out to be an exercise in futility. That is just what it would be if the recommendations wind up in a dusty folder on someone's office shelf to be ignored and eventually forgotten.

Maybe it is time the city went out of the hospital business. City Hospital has been studied too much. Retention of the Hospital by the city will only preserve the problems of the past. They are legion.

There are many dedicated staffers and employees at Quincy City Hospital efficiently going about their duties, taking pride in their work, doing an excellent job under sometimes difficult situations.

But the hospital has been a political football since 1919 when the city took it over. It has been a "payoff" station for political debts and favors—the hiring (and promotions) of relatives, friends and campaign workers of politicians.

That doesn't do anything for morale and makes for an unhappy place to work. And sometimes, the patient suffers as a result.

But there have also been cases of patients demanding special treatment because of political connections. And, getting it.

And there have been instances of hospital administrators going before the City Council seeking appropriations and using "a matter of life and death tactics" to whip the council into line.

"You wouldn't want to be responsible for someone's death because you refused this needed money, would you?"

Atty. Thomas Barron, a member of the blue ribbon commission appropriated by the City Council, thinks the hospital Board of Managers' hiring procedures is "100 per cent political". He notes the Mayor appoints the nine hospital managers who are responsible for approving the appointments of the hospital administration.

Dr. Russell Irons, president of the QCH medical staff, thinks the board is nothing more than "a rubber stamp."

And: "When it comes to medical expertise, they (board members) have none," he said.

There seems to be confusion as to who really is responsible for running the hospital under the present setup.

City Solicitor Robert Fleming last year ruled that the Mayor has final responsibility. The board of managers is an advisory board, he said.

To which Commission Chairman John Kane reacts: "I don't know if you've ever been on an advisory board, but it's like kissing your sister."

Most of the members of the medical staff seem to favor private management.

Mayor Tobin has taken no public position but he appears to lean in the direction of leasing or selling it.

"Are the people ready for me to go in and request a multi-million dollar bond issue?" he asks. And then he answers his own question: "I have very serious reservations that this is the direction."

Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco says he is 100 percent in favor of private, non-profit operation of the hospital. He is so emphatic about it that he calls private operation the only issue that need be addressed.

"It is a good hospital," he says, "but the total lack of capital outlay in the last 15 years and the political debate that goes on place the odds heavily against it."

John J. Cheney, chairman of the Hospital Board of Managers, on the other hand, wants the hospital to continue as a municipal facility. He says the hospital has identified its problems and made dramatic changes over the past three years.

The big question seems to be: Can the city afford to stay in the hospital business?

We hope that if it is shown that a private operation is the better route that city officials have the courage to stand up and say so and act accordingly in the best interests of the city of Quincy, its residents and, especially, its taxpayers.

JFK, Jr. Has The Old Magic

If Senator Edward Kennedy doesn't make it to the White House this year it won't mean the magic has completely gone out of the name.

At least not the last name.

Young John F. Kennedy, Jr. could be a hot political item sometime in the future.

He's quite a crowd attraction as State Senator Paul Harold discovered campaigning for Kennedy's Uncle Ted a few days ago in Maine.

Harold got the assignment of lining up—on 90 minutes notice—a schedule of appearances for young Kennedy who was in Lewiston stumping for his uncle.

Harold quickly put together a schedule of afternoon stops in Lewiston's "Little Canada," the city's French quarter.

Young Kennedy, now a Brown University freshman, visited the usual neighborhood landmarks—grocery store, nursing home, church, fire station, etc.—meeting or pumping hands with about 1,500 persons that afternoon.

"Just the word that John F. Kennedy, Jr. was going to be there was enough to draw a crowd," said Harold.

"We passed by a hockey game going on and decided to stop. The game was halted and both teams skated over to meet him.

"We stopped at a barber school but that was almost a mistake. They wanted to give him a haircut."

Kennedy, according to Harold, got his warmest reception from the older folks who called him "John John", remembering him fondly as the little boy who stood there that mournful day in November, 1963 saluting during his father's funeral.

"They talked to him like he was their grandson," says Harold.

"They asked him how school was going, how he was doing and told him how much he had grown."

Young Kennedy, during his stops, gave a brief talk, shook hands and asked Democrats to vote for his uncle in the Feb. 10 caucuses.

The memory of his father seemed to be everywhere. Many recalled a visit by President Kennedy and noted the park where he spoke is now Kennedy Park.

"Everybody had a story about meeting President Kennedy and how they waited four hours in the cold to see him," Harold said.

John F. Kennedy, Jr. seems to have that old political magic.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice Chairman

Chris Kennedy is being kidded about his "hot car".

His 1975 Ford Torino wagon was used by bandits in the recent $132,000 robbery of a Brink's truck outside the Dedham Institution for Savings.

His son, Richard, had taken the car to the Dedham Cinema. When he came out, the car was gone.

After the Kennedys reported the car stolen, they got a call from the police the following morning informing them the car had been used in the holdup.

Bank cameras recorded it being used in the getaway. The film, shown that night on TV, made the car a "neighborhood celebrity," says Kennedy.

Police told Mrs. Kennedy they found "an awful lot of fingerprints" in the car. She laughed. "We have eight children," she explained.

And for Mrs. Kennedy, the story didn't end there.

She had to pay a $53 towing fee to get the car back. And, on the way home, State Police stopped her on Rte. 1. They stopped her to tell her she was driving a stolen car.

Donnelly Charges

Kevin White 'Power Play' Stalls 11th District Caucuses

Democrats caucused in the 11th District Sunday to choose delegates to their national convention in New York in August—and came up with virtually nothing except a lot of confusion.

Supporters of California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. managed to pick two delegates but caucuses for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and President Jimmy Carter adjourned empty handed after bitter debates.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, chairman of the Kennedy caucus, charged that Boston Mayor Kevin H. White staged a "political power play" to seize control of the Kennedy and Carter delegations. "It was part of a bid by Kevin White to push himself back into national prominence," said Donnelly. "The White people rolled over everyone in the Ninth District but they stymied them."

A spokesman for White in Boston City Hall denied it. The caucuses were held to select delegates committed to the various candidates—five delegates and three alternates—with the slate that wins the March 4 primary going to the convention.

The delegation is committed to the candidate only on the first ballot in New York and then is free to support any candidate—which, said Donnelly, is where Kevin White comes in.

If the national convention could not select a presidential candidate on the first ballot then White would be able to wheel and deal with a good part of the delegation on ensuing ballots.

"It's obviously unfair to the real line Democrats," said Donnelly, who gavelled the Kennedy caucus into adjournment after some five hours of fruitless discussion and balloting.

He said the caucus was able to work out a compromise so that women delegates could be chosen but he added that there is some question whether their election was legitimately carried out. Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) called the Kennedy caucus "a mess."

"The meeting at the Lantana was disrupted by the Kevin White organization," he said. "White was trying to pack the caucuses in three districts, the 11th, the ninth and the eighth."

"He wanted to make sure that if there was a stalemate on the first ballot in New York he will have the delegates for the second ballot. "And don't forget that the delegates also elect the Democratic national committee man and woman from Massachusetts."

Harold said that about 6 p.m. Chairman Donnelly announced that Kennedy was doing better than expected in the Maine caucuses "and everybody but the White people applauded."

"It shows that they have no commitment to Kennedy," he added.

By coincidence, one of the "White people" at the caucus was Sen. Harold's uncle, John Harold of Boston.

Indications are that similar things happened at the Carter caucus in the Little Theater in Brockton High School.

The Rev. Robert Daley of Brockton's St. Patrick's Church, the district coordinator for Carter, said he was not present at the caucus and Atty. Leon Drysdale, the Carter Quincy coordinator, could not be reached for comment.

Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy, the chairman of the Compliance and Review Committee of the Democratic State Committee, said it had not yet been decided how the 11th District delegates will be chosen.

Meanwhile, the Brown caucus met sedately at Sherry's Restaurant in Quincy and chose two delegates. For the record, they are George Papas of Brockton and Michael Katin of Randolph.

Nurses March On City Council For Wage Hikes

Nurses from City Hospital marched on the City Council meeting at City Hall in support of two petitions seeking readjustments in their wages and vacation pay.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said he would recommend the nurses receive a flat $250 increase, a salary schedule that had been rejected by the City Council in December.

Hospital Director Dr. Joseph P. Leone said nurses wages were so low at City Hospital that he was having difficulty competing with other hospitals in the labor market.

"It doesn't look good to get nurses to staff the new hospital addition unless something is done," he said.

The nurses, led by Mary O'Gara, director of nursing, and Ann Marin, her assistant, also were seeking restoration of three weeks vacation, which had been cut to two seven years ago.

She Likes 'The Msing Ms' Editorial But No Pat For 'Missing' Pat

I ditor, The Quincy Sun:

I have some "Good News" and I have some "Bad News" regarding my reactions to the Feb. 7 issue of The Quincy Sun.

First, the "Good News":

Your editorial on "The Msing Ms." was excellent. You are to be complimented on the handling of a tired, tacky topic with tenacity. Yes, Henry, it is indeed refreshing to see old fashioned and gentlemanly practices maintained. There is a certain standard of excellence that goes hand in hand with this type of attitude. I have observed, however, that there are as few of us women around who enjoy being treated as ladies as there are gentlemen who extend these basic courtesies. But, we do exist and appreciate your support and participation.

Now, the "Bad News":

It wasn't your headline of "17 Elected To Q.C.B.P.A. Board of Directors" that I find disturbing. In fact, I feel honored to have been the only woman elected to that prestigious Board. It was your opening sentence wherein the error lies "Seventeen businessmen have been elected to as a reaction to being referred to as a businessman is not based on a "Ms. Attitude" as is evidenced by the approval of my Seasonal Title of Chairman of the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant. To take this one step further, I sought out a higher authority in this matter and would like to present the following documentation from Mr. Webster (Noah):

busi-ness-man (-man') n. pl. -men' (-men') a man in business, esp. as an owner or executive - busi-ness-woman n. fem. pl. -women.

I do realize that his could have been merely an oversight on your part, since my first name could be either male or female. In case this is the problem, I have enclosed a photograph to clear up this matter.

Remember, Henry, if we clear up these little inconsistencies of life as they occur—then we can concentrate on the big ones.

Thank you for your attention and gratitude, I'm sure.

St. Boniface Parish To Present "Razzle-Dazzle" Feb. 16-19

A salute to Las Vegas is the theme of St. Boniface Parish's 12th annual theatrical production, "Razzle-Dazzle," premiering Saturday and continuing through Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Broad Meadows Junior High School Auditorium.

The show, featuring 145 Quincy residents, will open with a visit to Circus-Circus and end with the great San Francisco earthquake as is presented at MGM Grand's "Hallelujah Hollywood".

Each year the church's sell-out productions feature elaborate costumes and special effects. In past years, the shows have included the burning of Chicago, a rainstorm and a fireworks display.

Ed Rooney is directing the show, assisted by Mary Flynn Murphy as choreographer. Rev. George Carlson and Rev. Gerald Osterman are show producers.

For ticket information call the parish house at 479-9200. Tickets will also be available at the box office before each performance.

Boy Scouts In 'Dogsled' Klondike Derby Saturday

Teamwork and scouting skills will be put to the test Saturday as over 100 Scouts from Quincy and Milton haul their "dogsleds" through the wilds at the Blue Granite District Klondike Derby at Camp Sayre in the Blue Hills.

Scouts, working in patrols, will demonstrate their knowledge of orienteering, knotsmanship, first aid, and survival skills as they make their way from Frostbite Falls, to Cocoa Puff Junction, and on to Captain Ed's Treasure collecting "golden nuggets" in proportion to the degree of skill shown at each station. Winning patrols will be awarded trophies at the conclusion of the competition.

The derby will be under the direction of Scoutmaster Martin Gordon of Troop 6, Houghs Neck. Assisting Gordon will be Ted Jeffrey, Adele Gormley, Charles Morgan, Nick Cortese, and members of the District Service Post.

The Scouts are hopeful that a snow storm will add that extra touch of realism before the opening gun is fired at 9:30 a.m., Saturday morning. The competition is expected to conclude by 3:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to pay a visit to Camp Sayre off Unquity Road in the Blue Hills to watch some of the action.

Anyone wishing additional details or directions should call Charlie Morgan (471-8232).

Wollaston Theater Talent Semi-Finals Start Sunday

The first semi-final competition in the Wollaston Theater's annual talent contest will be held Sunday, Feb. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

The show will feature 11 winners from the qualifying shows held during the last two months. All are invited to vote for their favorites.

Featured in Sunday's show will be the following acts:

Rock bands "No Exit" and "Dead Presidents", both of Quincy.

Singers Judy Morris, 19; Paul Priestley, 17, and Sheila McIntyre, 12; all of Quincy; Andy Jackson, 35 of Rockland and Bobby Zuckerman of Brockton.

Dancers Timothy Marshalsea, 14 of Hyde Park; Monique Powers of Quincy and Tracey Wahlberg of Dorchester.

Magician Mike Mahoney, 25, of Quincy.

Drumming duo Robert Kinsharf and Steven Cardinale, both 13, of Quincy.

Winners of the Feb. 10 semi-final show are:

Singing-guitar duo Ricky Drew and Jim Peters of Quincy; singer Marie Kelly of Quincy; singer-dancer Joanne Regan of Dorchester; dancer Cheryl Collins of Quincy; dancers Denise Bartkus and Cathy Taylor of Quincy, and dancer Michael Iverson of Hyde Park.

Former Renegades Return As 'The Phoenix'

The former Renegades Drum and Bugle Corps has changed its name.

The famed musical congregation will now be known as "The Phoenix".

"It was the general feeling that the name 'Renegade' was more synonymous with such brandings as 'renegade Indian', punks and hoodlums, indicating that the name carried a stigma and was associated with rough kids," said public relations director Frank Evis.

The Phoenix was the mythical creature said to be consumed by fire only to arise with new youth and beauty - hence, a symbol of immortality, Davis said.

The Corps has also rearranged all of its music, hoping the new music will be unique and exciting and pleasing to a more varied audience," he added.

Larry LeCours In Cast Of Curtain Call's 'Cheaters'

Larry LeCours of Quincy is in the Curtain Call Theatre's production of "Cheaters" Feb. 15 - 16 at 8 p.m. at the former Central Junior High School, Washington St., Braintree.

Pat Edge and Nan Guernsey, also of Quincy, are heading the production staff for the adult comedy written by Michael Jacob.

North Finishes Second

Quincy Wrestlers Win Second Title In Row

Quincy's wrestling team won its second Suburban League championship in a row last Saturday, defeating North Quincy, 31-18, and this Friday and Saturday will seek its second successive Division 1 South Sectional title at Brockton.

Carmen Mariano's Presidents finished with a 16-3 overall record and was 8-0 in the league.

Steve Joyce's North team, which had its best season, finished at 13-4 overall and 6-2 in the league to finish second.

The Raiders will try for the Division 2 South Sectional crown Friday and Saturday at Dedham.

The Quincy-North meet was just as exciting as expected with three draws and four other matches decided by four points or less.

Quincy's winners were Ed Ryan, who defeated North's Glenn Collins, 12-6; Paul Orlando, 14-1 winner over North's Chris Butler; Martin Doyle, 15-0 over Chris Dunn; John Herald, 19-1 over Jim O'Hare; Jim Silcox, 3-1 over John McNamara, and Geoff Callich, who pinned Steve Kallenberg.

Winners for North Quincy were Steve Dodd, who topped Peter Connolly; John Sweet, 9-4 over John Madden; and John Gorczyca, who defeated Jeff Heath, 4-0.

The draws were between North's Gino Pillard and Quincy's John O'Leary, North's Dave Howley and Quincy's Al DeVincentis and North's John Coughlin and Quincy's Mark Picot.

Earlier in the week Quincy had edged a strong Milford team, 23-21, with Dave Silcox winning by a pin, Orlando by decision, O'Leary by decision, Joe Irvine by decision, Herald by decision and Callich by decision.

Connolly lost by decision, Ryan by decision, Doyle by decision, Jim Silcox by decision, Picot by decision and Heath by decision.

North rolled over Cohasset, 53-6, winning five of the first seven matches by pins. Dodd, Collins, Dunn, Pillard and O'Hare pinned their opponents, unbeaten Howley, McNamara and Gorczyca won by decision and Coughlin and Kallenberg won by default.

Snodgrass's Viewpoint

Many Keys For Sterling's Perfect Season

Coach Jim Snodgrass cited several keys to the success of his Sterling Junior High school basketball team, which won the city championship with a perfect 12-0 record.

"Big reasons for our success were team defense, unselfishness, team passing, team spirit, a group of enthusiastic, easy to coach kids, a good bench and hard work in practice," Snodgrass said.

He further mentioned intelligence and good floor sense, fine floor leadership on the part of Jeff Timberlake, the rebounding of Kevin Riggs, Paul Gilbody and Andy Eames, and the offensive efforts of Timberlake, Mark Righini and Chris Draicchio.

Timberlake led Sterling in scoring with 150 points and 12.5 points a game average.

Riggs had 120 points and a 10 point average, Gilbody scored 119 points and had a 10 game average, and Righini scored 87 points.

Rounding out the scoring were Draicchio, 61 points; Eames, 37; Dennis Obert, 33; Justin Obert, 30; Bill Thomas, 12; Ray Maddock, eight; Al Cheney, six; Pete Kearney, five; Chris Plant, and Dave Bowness, four; Mike Rossini, three, and Angelo Sodano, one. Although Jim Leonard, Bryan Myatt and Dan DeLuca didn't score, each did his part toward the team's success.

Gilbody was the top foul shooter with a 63 percentage, Timberlake was a 65 percent shooter, Eames a 60 percent shooter and Justin Obert and Draicchio 50 percent shooters.

Sterling scored 699 points, an average of 58.5 a game, while holding the opposition to 454 points, a 37.5 average.

Season Record 12-4

QJC Looks Ahead To Playoffs

The Quincy Junior College basketball team finished its Greater Boston Small College Conference regular season schedule last week with an 80-65 victory over Daniel Webster of Nashua, N.H., to wind up with a 12-4 league mark.

The Jaguars now look forward to the league playoffs which will be held Friday night, Feb. 29, and Saturday afternoon, March 1, at Northern Essex in Haverhill.

QJC, coached by Brian Buckley and assistant Steve Mele, will have its hands full in the playoffs. The team lost both regular season games to Mass. College of Pharmacy and broke even with Wentworth and Northern Essex, the other playoff teams.

Four players hit double figures against Daniel Webster, Paul Donoghue having 22 points, Paul Waters 16, Bob Evans 16 and Ed Richard 15. Trailing, 33-32, at the half, the Jaguars went to a man-to-man defense and they won going away.

"We had this balanced scoring all season and we have had a great team effort in all our wins," Buckley said. "The players passed beautifully and six different players wound up as high scorers during the year."

"No matter what happens in the playoffs, the players should be proud of the season they have had."

Melanson Leads North Swimmers To 3rd Place

Capt. Ed Melanson was again a double winner, taking the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly last Saturday to lead North Quincy's swimming team to a third place finish in the Suburban League championship meet at Brockton.

The Raiders, with 216 points, finished behind Newton North, 299, and Brockton, 253. Quincy finished seventh with 43 points.

North Quincy's John Buckley qualified for this weekend's South Sectionals with a third in the 500 freestyle. Bill Feeney finished third in the 100 backstroke and divers Scott Andrews (third), Steve Pike (fourth), and Mike O'Toole (fifth) and Paul Chamberlain (sixth) all scored for North. Quincy's Bob Grant was seventh in diving.

The South Sectionals will be held Friday and Saturday at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool. North Quincy will be weakened by the absence of Melanson, its captain and top swimmer, who is competing in an international meet in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Quincy, North Girls Meet Friday

The Quincy girls' basketball team rebounded from a disappointing 53-50 loss to Cambridge Rindge and Latin to defeat Waltham, 63-46, Friday.

The First Ladies took an 8-7 record into Tuesday's game at Weymouth North.

They will host North Quincy Friday night at 8 p.m. and next Tuesday will be home to Weymouth South, also at 8.

The Quincy girls received 18 points from Sue Callahan and Sue McCarren in the romp over Waltham and Nancy McDonald added 12.

McDonald and Maureen Maher (eight points) controlled the boards as the First Ladies used their height advantage.

Quincy had jumped off to a 17-10 first period lead at Cambridge and led most of the way, falling for the first time, 51-50, in the final minute. The First Ladies had the ball with 10 seconds left but lost it on a steal.

Callahan had 12 points and Maher, McDonald and McCarren 10 each. Maher had 12 rebounds, tops on the team.

The luckless North Quincy girls lost two games last week to drop their record to 3-11 and took different routes in each game.

Friday the Raiderettes were bombed by Newton North, 71-24, and earlier in the week dropped a 49-48 squeaker to Brookline.

North played Waltham Tuesday and winds up the year against Quincy Friday at Quincy.

Laracy Shines For Quincy Swim Club

Bob Laracy, 10-year old Quincy Swim Club swimmer, returned to AAU swimming competition last weekend.

For the past month and a half, he has been swimming in dual meets for the Quincy YMCA team in Eastern Massachusetts. In the last dual meet last Saturday in Andover, Quincy easily defeated Andover and Laracy won the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles and anchored the winning freestyle and medley relay teams.

Sunday the young swimmer went to Fall River for an AAU Specialty meet in which he placed first in the 50 freestyle, 50 breaststroke and 100 individual medley (butterfly, backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle). He took second in the 50 backstroke and fourth in the 50 butterfly. There were swimmers from 20 AAU teams from Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Quincy also entered two other promising youngsters in the Fall River meet and they made good showings in the shorter courses. They were 7-year old Tim Nubar and 9-year old Melissa Givens.

Swimming is on the rise in Quincy with the strong showings by the two high school teams.

The Quincy Y has entered a strong 10-year old medley relay team in the Eastern Massachusetts District Championships at Brockton High School March 1 and 2.

The Quincy team is undefeated in dual competition this season with excellent times and is made up of swimmers from Quincy and surrounding towns.

The team is made up of Guy Nubar, Canton, backstroke; Greg Doyle, Canton, butterfly; Andy Hall, Norwell, breaststroke and Laracy, Quincy, freestyle.

Girls Bombardment Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department's annual Girls Elementary Bombardment Tournament will be played at Broad Meadows Junior High School during the February school vacation.

First round action will take place Wednesday, Feb. 20 with Merrymount facing Atherton Hough at 9 a.m., Gridley Bryant meeting Adams at 9:30 a.m., Quincy taking on Squantum at 10 a.m. and Wollaston squaring off against Montclair at 10:30 a.m.

Second round action will continue Thursday, Feb. 21 with the finals scheduled for Friday, Feb. 22, beginning at 9 a.m.

Bomb Waltham 83-53

Presidents Qualify For Tourney The Hard Way

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's basketball team (14-2) bounced back last Friday after a loss to Suburban League leader Cambridge Rindge and Latin to bomb Waltham, 83-53, and qualify for the state tournament for the fourth time in five years.

Coach Joe Amoroso's Presidents, losers only to Cambridge, played Weymouth North Tuesday. They will be at North Quincy Friday at 8 p.m. and will take on at Weymouth South Tuesday, also at 8 at Weymouth.

Quincy qualified for the tournament the hard way, as two starters, high scoring Brian Donovan and Ritch Finnegan, and the sixth man, Scott MacDonald, were missing.

However, Amoroso brought up three junior varsity players and all performed well, especially P. J. Fay, who scored 13 points, nine in the big final period when the Presidents exploded for 39 points. He also had steals. Shawn Burnes and Gary DiNardo also were brought up from the jayvees.

"I'm very happy for the kids, they certainly deserve to be in the tournament again," Amoroso said. "Now that we have qualified, I can give our three casualties some rest. I want them back 100 percent, not 75 percent well. Our bench has proved itself and Fay certainly did a great job for us against Waltham."

"I wasn't surprised, because I knew what he could do. If he didn't have a couple of seniors ahead of him, he would be playing for me. He is a junior and he will be one of my key players next season."

"Our performance in the Waltham game proved again that the kids are really team-oriented. They are all for each other and we don't have any one particular star. It is an excellent group of players with no individuals. Every game has been a real team effort."

Steve Priscella and Andy Carrera continued their consistently fine play and each scored 18 points. Stan Benson had 15 points and 12 rebounds and Priscella had 11 rebounds.

Donovan is out with a factured sternum, which has proved very painful, and Finnegan and MacDonald were out with the flu. Donovan played despite the injury and Finnegan and MacDonald played, though feeling under par, in the 66-52 loss at Cambridge earlier in the week.

Quincy stayed with Rindge and Latin for a half, trailing, only 40-35, but suffered from several costly turnovers and missed shots in the last two periods.

Cambridge started fast in the second half and built up a good lead and Quincy hit a new low with just 17 second half points.

"Their overall quickness made the big difference," Amoroso said. "There were times, there must have been seven of them, when we deflected the ball but their quickness allowed them to get it back."

Cambridge won despite the fact 6-11 Pat Ewing played only in spurts but had five slam dunks. Kevin Hobbs and Kevin Headley took up the slack and were largely responsible for the win.

Priscella had a cold shooting day with 12 points and the injured Donovan could score only four points, well below his 15 a game average.

Carrera played a superb game, running the offense and scoring 15 points, high for the team. "Andy was just super and played until he couldn't run anymore," said Amoroso.

Quincy and Cambridge could meet again in the Eastern Mass. tournament finals. Quincy is in the Southern Division and Cambridge in the Northern Division.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy junior varsity improved its record to 11-2 with two wins last week and is the only team to defeat Cambridge twice.

The Presidents topped Cambridge, 76-71, jumping off to an early 14-2 lead, only to be caught in the third period but then scoring 10 unassisted points to clutch the win. Alvin Memmolo, called "the iceman" by his teammates, coolly sank four foul shots in the final minutes to assure the victory.

DiNardo scored 18 points, Fay and Burnes 15 apiece and Danny Whyte 10.

MacFarlane was left short-handed Friday with his three stars up with the varsity but still defeated Waltham, 59-54, being up by as many as 15 points at one time.

Whyte scored 16 points, Pete Papile had 12 and Mike Mattson had a fine game and scored 11 points.

Raiders Defeat Newton N. But Out Of Contention

they defeated Newton North, 49-41, last Friday to improve their record to 9-7.

Ed Miller's North team played at Waltham Tuesday, will host Quincy Friday at 8 p.m. and will be home to Brookline next Tuesday, also at 8.

The Raiders were cold in the first half, trailing Newton, 10-8 after a period and leading only 14-12, at the half but increased their margin to 36-26 at the end of three periods.

Mark Millane, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, paced the scoring with 15 points and Rich Keenan and Bill O'Connell added 10 each.

The North junior varsity, playing what Coach Paul Bregoli called "our worst game of the year," dropped a 38-37 overtime squeaker to the Newton jayvees.

North led with 20 seconds to go in regulation time but the defense fell down and Newton tied it up with a layup. The Raiders had the ball again after grabbing a rebound but a shot missed at the buzzer.

Vic O'Leary again led the scorers with 12 points and Steve Belcastro had eight. Pat King turned in an excellent two-way performance.

Mite A's Roll, 8-2

The Mite A team walloped Neponset, 8-2, with Ralph Richardson and Timmy Mann having hat tricks.

Joe Fasano and Kevin Daly had the other goals. Mike Toland had four assists and Daly, Richardson, Terry Hack, Brian Zimmerman and Mann one each. Scott Cunningham played well in goal.

Bad Week For Quincy Hockey

It was a lost week for the Quincy hockey team as the Presidents lost both their games and were all but eliminated from the state tournament.

Quincy dropped to 10-5 in the Suburban League and it would take a series of major upsets to enable Bob Sylvia's team to move into second place and automatic qualification for the tournament.

The Presidents, who two weeks ago, looked like very good bets to make the tournament, finished its regular season yesterday (Wednesday) against Brookline.

Quincy saw its tourney hopes dim to a flicker Saturday when it lost to Weymouth South for the second time, 4-2.

"We have been in a slump and in high school hockey, a slump is tragic," said Sylvia. "We just can't score. We are not taking advantage of our offensive opportunities. Tonight we failed to capitalize on 12 power play opportunities and that, in itself, says a lot. In our loss to Brockton we stunk the place out, but this was a good game and we just didn't score when we had the chances."

Quincy's first line of Robby

Craig, Tom Brennan and Scott Richardson, the league's top scoring line a year ago and one of the top scoring lines again this season, accounted for both goals.

Trailing, 3-0, the Presidents made it 3-2 with goals by Richardson and Craig in the third period but Weymouth then scored an insurance goal, Craig assisted on Richardson's goal and John Baylis had an assist on Craig's goal.

"Actually, we lack depth this year," Sylvia said. "Our first line is probably the best in the league and Jim Campbell has been outstanding in goal, but aside from those boys, we are not that strong."

Earlier in the week Quincy played probably its poorest game of the year and lost to Brockton, 7-2.

It was the first line again which accounted for the first goal and set up the second by defenseman Baylis. Craig scored the first with assists for Brennan and Richardson and Craig and Brennan assisted on the Baylis goal.

Backup goalie Chuck Dooley came up with several outstanding saves late in the game.

Quincy Elks Host State 'Shoot' Finals At Vo-Tech

Over 350 persons from across the state attended the State Elks "Hoop Shoot" finals hosted by the Quincy Elks recently at the Quincy Vo-Tech gym.

No local youths were among the six winners - one boy and one girl each in the eight to nine, ten to 11 and 12 to 13 age categories. In all, 48 finalists took part.

After the Hoop Shoot, almost 300 people were treated to a chicken dinner by the Elks. After dinner, certificates, trophies and T-shirts were awarded to the participating youths.

The winners of the Quincy competition will take part in the New England finals and, possibly, the national finals in Indianapolis. All participants' expenses are paid by the Elks.

It Was The Week That Was For North Ice Team

Last week was the best of the season for the North Quincy hockey team as it rolled to its easiest win and just missed the upset of the year.

Kevin Lewis' Raiders (6-11-1 overall and 3-10-1 in the Suburban League) played yesterday at Waltham and Saturday will wind up the season against Brockton at 6 p.m. at Brockton's Asaf Rink.

Last Saturday North defeated a good Cambridge Rindge and Latin team by a surprising 8-3 score as Tom Gerry had a great night with two goals and three assists. Brian Ofria scored two goals and Mike McNeice, Robby McHugh and Bobby Collins had a goal each. It was the first in two years for Collins.

It was Senior Night at the Youth Arena as North played its final home game and the seniors, Co-Capt. Gerry and Collins, Asst. Capts. Leo Graham and Bob Tierney, Ofria, Billy Cooke and Tom Hannon, were presented tie clasps and the senior managers, Paul Romano and Bob Neal, were given pens.

Earlier in the week the Raiders came within 22 seconds of upsetting league-leading Weymouth North, salvaging a 3-3 tie.

The Raiders led, 3-1, with 2:12 to play but Weymouth scored on a power play, then pulled its goalie and scored the tying goal with 22 seconds to after North had missed a shot into the open net.

Weymouth then had another chance on a breakaway with 10 seconds left but Tierney made a superb game-saving stop.

Gerry had two goals and an assist and Ofria had the other goal.

"We played fine hockey in those games and only for one mental mistake by one of our players, we would have beaten Weymouth," Lewis said. "I was very pleased with our performance in that game, as they had defeated us earlier, 9-1, and was also tickled at the way we handled Cambridge. I am optimistic about our last two games and, with so many underclassmen, I am eagerly looking forward to next season." —TOM SULLIVAN

ALCOHOLICS AND MALNUTRITION

Have you ever wondered why you seldom see fat alcoholics? According to medical authorities, most alcoholics suffer from malnutrition. The calories from alcohol replace those that should be obtained from foods which also supply important nutrients. Also, appetite for normal foods may be quite poor, they say, because of frequent gastritis.

As the alcoholism progresses, the small intestine's ability to absorb nutrients decreases. Thus fats, fat-soluble vitamins, B vitamins, and proteins may not be effectively used. Also, alcohol increases the urinary loss of some minerals and amino acids.

Serious liver impairments, such as cirrhosis, are thought to be produced through a combination of poor diet and excessive alcohol consumption. Persons with less severe damage may recover completely after a few weeks on a good diet and no alcohol.

Quincy Savings Bank Donates 75 Lb. Granite Logo To Historical Society

The Quincy Savings Bank has presented the Quincy Historical Society with a granite carving of the bank's logo and nine framed photographs for an exhibit of the city's granite industry.

The granite "cut" and the photographs were recently presented to Lawrence Yerdon, executive director and curator of the historical society, by Quincy Savings Bank president Charles Pearce.

The bank logo, a contemporary adaptation of the city seal, was carved in a 75-pound granite stone, six inches deep and 18 in diameter.

The framed photographs depict the complete stone-cutting process and will be part of the permanent exhibit.

Although almost nonexistent now the granite industry provided the economic foundation for the city during the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Brownell Testifies For Home Repair Bill

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has testified in support of his bill to exclude ordinary and necessary repairs from consideration in determining the fair cash value of residential property.

Brownell told the Joint Committee on Taxation his bill is designed to serve neighborhoods and encourage necessary home improvements without the fear of higher property taxes.

Some of the repairs that would be protected by the legislation are masonry, wiring, plumbing, roofing, porches, painting, insulation, plastering and other redecorating.

Under the law, no increased assessment would take place until the property is sold.

"Unless the bill is adopted," said Brownell, "people will have no incentive to maintain their property, especially in the light of revaluation.

"Those homeowners who have maintained and improved their property will in effect be penalized and experience a higher assessment than those who have allowed their property to deteriorate."

The Brownell Home Improvement Act has been endorsed by both the Quincy Citizens Association and the Wollaston Park Association.

Board Of Bar Overseers Topic For Legal Secretaries

Millions Needed To Retain Hospital As Municipal Facility

problem.

"What is giving me tremendous concern at this time are those individuals and groups who are making statements in the press which are giving City Hospital bad publicity.

"People are asking me, 'What's going on at the Hospital?' They're insinuating something that isn't there. It's a terrible disservice.

"The publicity given to the meetings (of the Blue Ribbon Commission) is not enhancing and neither is the publicity given by Mrs. Pauline Kennedy (head of the nurses union).

"Here public statements have not been in the best interests of the Hospital.

"One of the things that bothers me is that people say, 'There's a lot of politics at City Hospital.' City Hospital is a municipal hospital. It's been under the jurisdiction of the mayor since 1919.

"Have there been political appointments at City Hospital since 1919? The answer is, 'Yes'.

"I have a copy of a Quincy paper which reports that the Mayor fired the Hospital Board of Managers and the director. The date is Feb. 10, 1923. Politics at City Hospital? That was seven years before Mayor Tobin was born!

"Many of the doctors on the medical staff worked their way through school with political summer appointments at the Hospital. Many nurses have too. And many of the city's business people.

"Do nurses play politics at City

Hospital? Yes, they do. Do doctors play politics at City Hospital? Yes, they do. Does City hall play politics at City Hospital? yes, it has and, yes, it does.

"But that's not the issue."

Tobin said his administration has been working "long and very hard and quietly" on the future of the Hospital and he has set no time limit on the deliberations of his study committee.

"It will be very time consuming," he said. "It won't happen overnight. I'm not going to involve myself or the city in any Mickey Mouse operation.

"Then I'll put the whole package before the City Council. If they have an advisory commission to help them with it, then I think this is commendable."

SERVING with the U.S. Army in Germany is John Contrino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincibishop Contrino, of 180 Franklin St., South Quincy. A graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Contrino finished second in his job training class of combat radar repair. Recently rated P.F.C., he will be in Germany for another year and is a Quincy Sun subscriber.

QCH Medical Staff Head Wants Private, Non-Profit Facility

Dr. Russell Irons, president of the medical staff at City Hospital, says he and his general executive committee agree that the hospital should be operated as a private, non-profit facility.

And he said he agrees with Mayor Tobin that recent publicity about politics at the hospital has hurt it. "There have been a lot of vicious things said," he told The Sun.

"This is a fine hospital," he said. "It's given fine care. The thing we're worried about mostly is the plant. It's been let go for so long.

"The tax base should not be used to take care of the structure of the hospital. The equipment and the plant should be something that is taken care of by the private sector.

"It's one thing to say that a hospital needs to have its plant rejuvenated but to come out and imply that it's not up to par isn't true. It is up to par. It's giving excellent health care.

"When we talk of upgrading the hospital, it isn't for now; it's for the future. At present, we do fine."

Educational Development Tests At Central Junior

Central Junior High School was scheduled to administer the National Educational Development Tests [NEDT] to ninth graders Wednesday, Feb. 13.

No Cuts In School Budget

eye towards coming in under the four percent cap.

"I cannot tell you what the council will do, of course," he said. "But I just can't believe they will allow a budget $4.2 million over the cap to be passed," he said.

Echoing Crendon's remarks, member Joan Picard said "The increase is almost purely salary increases. It makes no sense to cut our regular budget. I don't think that's possible."

The committee then approved the following line items virtually as recommended by Crendon:

- Administration expenses, a 70 percent increase, from $47,000 to $76,100.

- Instructional expenses, a 7 percent increase, from $843,601 to $900,964.

- "Other services" (health, food services, transportation) expenses, a 25 percent increase, from $168,350 to $210,698.

- "Operations" expenses (fuel, utilities), an 85 percent increase, from $1,113,500 to $2,066,950.

- Maintenance, a 10 percent drop, from $1,132,852 to $1,022,780.

- "Fixed charges" (rent, insurance), up nine percent, from $76,632 to $83,620.

- Special needs (Chapter 766), expenses up 21 percent, from $795,135 to $962,646.

Tobin voted against all increases except those in the special needs expenses. The other five members approved all increases. Member Francis Anselmo was not present.

The committee expected to proceed further in the budget review at its Wednesday night (Feb. 13) meeting.

Traffic Commission Pushes Widening Of Sea St.

The Traffic Commission has agreed to recommend the widening of a portion of Sea St. opposite the police station to eliminate a traffic bottleneck in the area.

The change was proposed by City Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

The Traffic Commission also approved McCauley's request for additional all-day parking spaces in the John Hancock Parking Area for people who work in downtown Quincy.

And the Commission agreed to study McCauley's request for installation of audible traffic signals on the lights in front of City Hall and First Parish Church.

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

February 14, 1980

ORDER NO. 73
ORDERED:

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy as follows:

That the Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy, Chapter 24, as amended, be further amended as follows:

1. ARTICLE VII PARKING AND LOADING REQUIREMENTS
Section 73 Location and Layout of Parking Facilities

Subsection (2) be amended by striking said subsection (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following new subsection (2):

Off-street parking facilities shall be under the same ownership as the building or buildings which they serve; or if the parking facility is under separate ownership, the owner (s) of the building or buildings must show that there is adequate parking to their building or buildings and that they have contractual agreements with the owner (s) of the parking facility to provide the building or buildings with adequate parking and said agreement is for a period of not less than 50 years.

2. ARTICLE VII PARKING AND LOADING REQUIREMENTS
Section 73 Location and Layout of Parking Facilities

Paragraph 1 (d)

In paragraph 1 (d) after the words "Business B" delete the words "and C" and add the following sentence:

In a Business C district, the required parking facilities may be provided on lots any part of which is five hundred (500) feet away from the building to be served.

so that the new paragraph 1 (d) reads as follows:

(d) In a Business B district, the required parking facilities may be provided on lots any part of which is three hundred (300) feet away from the building to be served. Lt. Lynch: 'If we don't put some of the heavy dealers away, then God help us!'

'No One Seems To Go To Prison For Drug Offenses'

By TOM HENSHAW

LT. WALTER LYNCH—"Everyone is getting into the business, from the little kid in school to the big dealer."

Lt. Walter Lynch has been transferred out of his post as head of the Quincy Police drug unit. It was done at his request. Last week he sat in his new office on the third floor of the Police Station and explained why. It was a litany of frustrations.

"I've had it," he said. "I've been in it much longer than I should. I'm discouraged. It's time for new blood. I would have been in it for nine years in August and it's not getting any better. It's only getting worse."

"The drug business is rolling, rolling, rolling. It's so big now that it seems like there is no stopping it. If people knew how much drugs there are on the street, especially in the schools, they would be very upset."

"Go down to one of the schools some morning and park your car and sit and watch the kids smoking marijuana."

Lynch, whose new job is head of the federally funded Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program (ICAP), blames most of his frustrations on the fact that no one ever seems to go to prison for hustling drugs, even to school kids.

"We have been very successful," he said. "We have been getting convictions in nine

Drugs are everywhere. And so are the people who deal in them. On the streets, in the parking lots, in all public places, and, shockingly, in the school yards and the classrooms. This is the first in a series of articles about the drug problem in Quincy, as seen through the eyes of those who are in the front lines in the battle against it.

out of 10 cases. When an undercover officer buys drugs that's a good case. The only way to lose it is by making a mistake. That seldom happens."

"But we see the same people back out on the street selling again. We have them plus the new people. The dealers are beginning to pile up on us. No one seems to go to prison for drug offenses. There probably are exceptions but I can only go by what I see.

"In my nine years we have had only two investigations in which somebody went to jail. There is only one case in my memory of someone going to state prison for drug dealing. That was in 1973 when he got five to eight years for selling heroin."

"All the others got suspended sentences or probation, usually through plea bargaining."

Lynch cited the recent case of a drug dealer who was so attuned to police surveillance that he would slow to 20 miles an hour on the Expressway or make sudden turns up one way streets or drive two or three times around a rotary just to see who was following.

"We had been gathering intelligence on him for six years," said Lynch. "Finally we got him in a real nice circumstantial case. We had nine charges of selling cocaine."

Closed Meetings Planned

Tobin Names 2 New Hospital Managers, Study Commission

Mayor Tobin has moved to fill two of three vacancies on the City Hospital Board of Managers, a nine-member group that has been at odds with the mayor for the past few months.

The two newly appointed managers also were named to a special seven-member commission that will study the hospital and recommend a future course of operation to the Mayor.

Atty. Lawrence F. O'Donnell, chairman of the commission, said its meetings probably will be held behind closed doors and City Solicitor Robert Fleming concurred that it was not subject to the state's open meeting law.

O'Donnell and Richard W. Corner, an accountant, were named to the Board of Managers succeeding Joseph M. Aristide, whose appointment expired in January, 1979, and Mrs. Syria L. Mayo, whose appointment expired last month.

Tobin said he has not yet decided whether or not to reappoint Leslie M. Brierley, whose term also expired in January, 1979.

Tobin said he plans to get in touch with the other members of the Board of managers "and if they agree with the direction we're going and can put in the time and energy to work with this commission I'm going to ask them to stay on."

"Anyone who criticizes or questions our sense of direction and cannot put the time and energy

$175,755 In Wiring Work

Thomas E. Purpura, assistant wire inspector, announces that 99 wiring permits were issued in January for work estimated to cost $175,755.
Fees collected totalled $3,641.

There were 184 inspections made,
and 21 defects noted.

Major project for the month was a 151-unit apartment building at 45 Brackett St., Quincy Center.

License Board To Rule

Gasoline Storage Permits For Condo Garage-Under Cars?

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy License Board will rule by Friday on whether or not condominiums built in Quincy will need gasoline storage permits for resident's cars garaged underground, as do apartment buildings.

Architect Michael Ross spoke to board members before Tuesday's meeting of plans for an eight-unit complex to be built at 470 Adams St. Each unit will be sold as a condominium and will have a two car private garage underground. The units will be separated by a masonry wall.

In response to whether gas storage permits would be necessary, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said that under the Building Code, if the units are sold as condominiums they would be considered attached single dwellings and gasoline storage permits wouldn't be needed, as they aren't needed in the case of private homes.

However, Fire Chief Edward Barry said, "This is the first time such a case has come down the line and I think we should consider it. I am not in favor of making a decision now."

MacDonald said that construction of the English Tudor style condominiums would start any time. No estimate was available from the Building Department on the cost of building the condominiums.

10% Hike Asked For QJC Tuition

A 10 percent increase in all tuitions and fees at Quincy Junior college has been proposed for next fall.

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon has asked the school committee's approval of the increase in the 1980-81 budget.

Full-time students who are residents of Quincy now pay $600 a year; non-residents pay $700.

Tuition in most summer and Division of Continuing Education courses is $19 per credit for residents, $22 for nonresidents.

Most courses are three credits.

According to Creedon's proposal, tuition at QJC has stayed the same since 1971. The 140,000 raised by the proposed tuition increase would eliminate about half of the school's deficit, he added.

Fore River Bridge Traffic Gate Bids

To Be Opened Feb. 26

Bids for $7,000 worth of repairs and new lighting on the traffic gates on the Fore River Bridge will be opened Feb. 26, State Sen. Paul D. Harold announces.

The work will include repairs to one gate, which has been damaged by traffic, and installation of three new lights on each of the two gates.

The traffic gates are used to keep traffic from traveling over the span connecting Quincy and Weymouth while ships are passing through.

Harold said the contract specifications call for the work to be performed with a minimum of interference with traffic, with priority to be given to the free flow of navigation through the bridge.

He said the contract could be awarded as soon as March.

There are some pearls that are cultivated not to be round. Some are called blistered pearls and grow against the shell of the oyster to quite large sizes without killing the oyster. They are not useful in making necklaces but are perfectly suitable for rings, usually grown in Okinawa, the MINI-MALL planned by Daniel Salvatore and James Cattaneo stretches along Scammell St. from Martensen St. (left) to Quincy Ave. Remodelled Danny's Diner is building at right.

Parking area will be partially screened by trees.

$1.5 Million, 7-Store Project

Mini-Mall Planned At Quincy Ave-Scammell St.

A mini-mall to serve, among others, residents of the Martensen St. Senior Citizens Housing project is planned for Scammell St. between Martensen and Quincy Ave.

The $1.5 million development will include a drug store, a convenience market, a candy store, an optical office, a shoe shop, a jewelry store and a laundromat.

The owners are James

Cattaneo and Daniel Salvatore, who operates Danny's Diner on the corner of Scammell and Quincy Ave., and the Winfield House Coffee Shop in Wollaston.

The only hurdle remaining before a hoped-for April 1 construction start is a March 5 hearing before the Zoning Board of Appeals on parking and setback variances.

Mini-mall plans call for 68 parking spaces while the zoning requirements are for 90 and the owners are seeking a 10-foot setback while the zoning laws demand 15 feet.

If everything goes according to plan, said Salvatore, the building will be ready for occupancy in November.

Plans also call for enlarging Danny's Diner and adding a second floor for office space.

The new building will cover 25,000 square feet; the whole project 1.3 acres.

It is to be named Pilgrim Shopping Plaza.

Architect Brian G. Novak said trees will be used to partially screen the parking area from Scammell St.

Builder Norris McSweeney said it will take as long as seven weeks to prepare the site for construction due to a large ledge that will have to be blasted out.

"We have to be careful," he said. "We have to move much more slowly in this kind of area because of the houses. We will have to more or less chip away the ledge."

Salvatore said studies have shown that there is "a great need for a neighborhood mall at this location with all the senior citizen housing around there."

MacDonald Presents Restrictions

QHA's Safford St. Home Hits New Snag

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald has told the Quincy Housing Authority it can have the long-disputed permit for its home for handicapped adults on Safford St., Wollaston if...

It's those "ifs" that have QHA administrator Clement O'Brien upset.

MacDonald, in replying to the QHA's Jan. 24 reapplication for the permit, listed two restrictions for the proposed home, according to O'Brien. The QHA must observe the 25-foot "setback" requirement for single-family homes and provide off-street parking for seven cars.

MacDonald ruled.

Judge Andrew Meyer of

Norfolk Superior Court last December ruled that MacDonald had to issue the permit for the home regardless of the zoning laws affecting the property, but that he may list certain "reasonable" requirements the QHA must meet.

O'Brien said the "setback" - the distance between the back of the building and the back property line - is now less than 25 feet, but that that situation was allowed by a 1977 Zoning Appeals Board decision that subdivided property there.

"Now he's coming in and changing the zoning," O'Brien said.

Since the building is intended to house six mentally and physically handicapped adults and four staff persons who will educate and train them, O'Brien sees no need for the seven-car restriction.

"These people are handicapped; they're not going to be driving," he said.

"I don't see how they [the restrictions] could be reasonable when the Zoning Appeals Board has allowed these conditions," O'Brien said, referring to the 25-foot requirement. "How the hell can the building inspector say that this has to be changed?"

The QHA would take up the issue at its Wednesday, Feb. 20 meeting and probably vote to petition the Zoning Appeals Board, O'Brien said.

MacDonald, who has refused for almost a year to issue the permit for the 216 Safford St. site, was not available for comment Tuesday.

DOVE Plans Phon-o-thon With $5,000 Goal

A three night "phon-o-thon" will be conducted Feb. 26 to 28 as DOVE [Domestic Violence Ended] kicks off its first annual fund drive for the battered women and their children served by the program.

Over 1,200 residents of Quincy and other communities served by DOVE will be contacted by 90 volunteers and asked to make a pledge to realize the $5,000 goal. Information on DOVE's programs will be mailed to potential contributors prior to the phon-o-thon.

Since DOVE was established in 1978, it has relied primarily on federal, state, local and county support. Some of the grants, such as C-T-A, are one time programs which expire in the next few months. DOVE hopes to offset the loss with the fund drive.

The funds will be used to purchase food, provide rent for the shelter, laundry and other services.

Said a DOVE spokesman, "The need for our services is tremendous. We are the only agency in the area which has a temporary shelter and a 24 hour hot line for battered women. It is vitally important that we be able to continue and to increase our service. The phon-o-thon will give people the opportunity to participate in our efforts to combat domestic violence."

For more information on DOVE, write P.O. Box 287, Quincy, or call 471-5087.

Elizabeth Breau Evaluation At Rehabilitation Center

Elizabeth Platt Breau, of Wollaston resident, recently joined South Shore Rehabilitation Center as a vocational evaluator at the Center.

In her new position, she will be responsible for helping clients establish realistic vocational goals. "Based on vocational testing, our observations and the client's participation during the evaluation process, we help the client select appropriate occupational goals. My responsibility is to plan an occupational program best suited to individual client needs", she said.

Miss Breau is a graduate of the University of Lowell and is a master's degree candidate at Assumption College in Worcester. She was previously employed at the Gardner Athol Area Mental Health Association's Beech Hill Workshop. Ms. Breau and her husband live in Wollaston, Massachusetts.

Mr., Mrs. John Hawes Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Hawes of 41 Bell Rd., Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with a reception at Fort Square United Presbyterian Church, South Quincy.

The reception was given by the couple's friends and their children. Rev. John B. Hawes of New Jersey; Dorothy Kipp, Cleveland, Ohio; Eleanor Gale, Spokane, Wash.; and Marie Clingerman, Fort Worth, Texas.

Among the 100 guests at the party were the Hawes' bridesmaid, Mrs. Helen Chase of Foxboro, and best man, Alan Walker, of New Hampshire, formerly of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawes were married Feb. 8, 1930 at 145 Evans St., North Weymouth, by Rev. William Nicholl of Fort Square United Presbyterian Church. They have 12 grandchildren.

Mrs. Hawes is the former Eva W. MacCall of Berwick, Nova Scotia. Mr. Hawes, born in Rochester, is a retired draftsman and ship designer at Fore River Shipyard.

Quincy residents when they were first married, the Hawes have lived in Weymouth most of their married life.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S.

Bored with hearing how bad foods with refined sugar are for you? Tired of hearing one more time how they contribute to overweight problems which in turn contribute to heart disease? You might not want to hear how they rot away at the stomach and eat away at tooth enamel. After all, many foods with refined sugar taste pretty good. In addition, they often give an extra burst of energy just when needed. However, that extra energy can turn against you in the long run. Try natural sugars for the sake of your whole body, heart and teeth. Good oral hygiene habits are encouraged at the office of Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square. Dr. Sweeney stresses preventive dentistry. As a family dentist, he points out that regular dental checkups make it possible to locate and correct small developing problems before they become serious. Call Dr. Sweeney at 698-3636 for an appointment. Most dental insurance plans are honored.

After Church Opposition

Pub Withdraws Request For Sunday Noon Opening

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A request from Paul Slattery of Presidential Pub, 29 Temple St., for a noon opening of the establishment on Sundays was withdrawn without prejudice at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The Board received a letter from Kenneth M. Brown, chairman of the board of deacons of Central Baptist Church, 65 Washington St., stating the church's opposition to the earlier opening.

A state law specifies that an establishment within 500 feet of a church, hospital or playground must have the approval of the church, hospital, etc., and the request was withdrawn.

Also at the meeting, the License Board

Placed on file a request from Auto Sales of Quincy, 353 Washington St., for a Motor II license. City Clerk John M. Gillis referred Joseph Montello, of Auto Sales, to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a ruling on zoning problems.

Granted a request from the Bryan VFW Post for a permit to conduct a flea market Sunday, March 2, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the post home, 24 Broad St. Proceeds from the sale of tables at the flea market will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy

Association.

Granted a request from the Houghs Neck Community Council, for a one-day all-alcoholic license for a dance Saturday, March 22, 8 p.m. to midnight at Aquinas Hall.

Granted a request from Mrs. Verona Stevens for a one-day all-alcoholic license for a football banquet for the Quincy Bull Dogs Friday, March 21, 6 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

Granted a request from the North Quincy Red Raiders Hockey Boosters Club for a one-day all-alcoholic license for a dance Friday, Feb. 29, at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

Granted a one-day all-alcoholic license to the North Quincy Boosters Club for a Las Vegas Night Friday evening, Feb. 22, at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

Granted a one-day all-alcoholic license to Barry F. Marquis of Quincy for a wedding reception Saturday, Feb. 23, 4 p.m. to 9 p.m., at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Agreed to notify owners of Ace Auto, 381 Quincy Ave., to appear before the board March 4, for violation of extension of their Motor III license.

DR. LAWRENCE CREEDON, school superintendent since 1969, was recently named one of the top 100 educators in North America by The Executive Educator magazine.

Dr. Creedon Named Among North America's 'Top 100 Educators'

Yet another honor came to the Quincy school system and Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon recently when an education magazine listed him among "100 of North America's Top School Executives."

Creedon is listed in the February issue of "The Executive Educator" along with 99 others, most of them also superintendents.

Creedon, 47, was named National Superintendent of the Year in 1976 by the American School Counsellors Association and was chosen State Superintendent of the Year, also in 1976. But he says he's equally proud of the awards, honors and attention earned by Quincy schools during his 11-year tenure as superintendent. They include:

- A 1970 Ford Foundation report listing the Quincy Vocational-Technical School as among the five best in the country.

- A 1978 article in the Boston Herald-American reporting that a blue ribbon committee had chosen Quincy schools as being among the eight best in the state.

- A 1978 award by the President's Council on Physical Fitness to the physical education program at Broad Meadows Jr. High. It was cited as an "exemplary" example of an individualized fitness program.

- The city's leadership in implementing state-mandated basic skills and Chapter "20b" programs.

Creedon says he's also proud of the school system's energy-cutting measures (heating oil use cut from 1.9 million to 1.1 million in five years) and the fact that basic skills, as measured by the California tests, have been increasing since 1973.

Veterans Council Meeting

On Toland Motion

School Closings Task Force Will Recommend 'Which Ones And When'

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

"I think the question is no longer 'should we close any schools?' but 'which ones and when?'" said School Committee member Patricia Toland.

The School Committee last week took one step closer to the actual closing of schools by approving Mrs. Toland's motion to appoint a citizens' panel to study the subject.

The committee's members are expected to appoint two persons each to the citizens' task force at the Feb. 27 meeting.

The task force will be directed to study the various options on school closings open to the School Committee and give its recommendations to the committee, probably by late March.

The School Committee is not bound by the task force's recommendations.

In related business, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon reported to the committee that closing the city's six smallest schools would save about $260,828, or 85 cents on the tax rate.

That figure includes projected savings from the closings of the Great Hill, Myles Standish, Nathaniel Hunting, Cranch, Beechwood Knoll and Gridley Bryant Schools. Those savings include salaries, school equipment, plant operation and other supplies, with the cost of shutting down the building and transporting the students to a new school subtracted from it.

Not included in the projected savings are the number of teachers jobs to be eliminated by the closing of each school. Last year, Creedon reported to the committee that the closing of the system's four smallest schools in 1979 would mean the elimination of between six and 17 teachers' jobs, an additional saving of $113,000 to $297,000 or 40 cents to $1 on the tax rate.

The number of teachers to be eliminated varies from school to school, depending on which school the displaced students are transferred to, said Wilfred Nolan, director of elementary education.

Mrs. Toland's motion to establish the citizens task force was opposed by member Francis Anselmo.

"This can only serve to delay the decision which only the School Committee can make," he said. "We have all the facts, we have all the figures."

"I don't need a committee to tell me what to do. I take it as an insult to my intelligence. I say full speed ahead, damn the torpedoes and let's do what we have to do," Anselmo said.

Member Mary Collins, who voted in favor of establishing the committee, said, "I think everyone realizes that we should close schools and we should have closed schools a long time ago."

Member John Sullivan also voted in favor of the task force and immediately announced his two choices: Quincy Jewish War Veterans Commander Jason Stone, employed by a Boston delicatessen and William F. Hurley, a Boston teacher. Both men are Quincy residents.

Sitemans Adopt 2 More, Seek Another

Stephanie Helping Her New Brother And Sister Become U. S. Citizens

By BERNIE O'DONNELL.

Stephanie Siteman has come a long way in a short time in a lot of ways.

Less than three years after being found in a basket near a river in South Korea, she is an American citizen.

Now, she's helping her recently adopted brother and sister, Rebecca and Michael, also Korean orphans, to become citizens, too.

Their new parents, John and Virginia Siteman of 66 Federal Ave., South Quincy, hope to someday adopt a fourth child, Rebecca and Michael's younger sister, who is somewhere in South Korea.

After living with Stephanie for a year and Rebecca and Michael for four months, Virginia Siteman reports "the only Korean left in them is when they sing-and they do a lot of singing."

Both girls attend dancing school, while Rebecca and Michael will enter the first grade and kindergarten, respectively, next year. All three are beginning to enjoy American television, with "Sesame Street" an apparent favorite.

The story began in January of 1977 when John Siteman, operating room supervisor at Massachusetts General Hospital, and his wife applied to International Adoptions of Newton.

The Sitemans, who have no children of their own, had been trying to adopt a child for some time, said Mrs. Siteman.

"We had tried state agencies for 14 months and gotten nothing but promises," she said. "Finally I said to my husband, 'how about an international child?' I wasn't sure if he'd like the idea, but I found out he was thrilled. We applied the next day."

Some months later, International Adoptions told them about a child who was found near the Hun River in Korea in a basket. Her real name wasn't known. Social workers called her "Long Nam"-after a nearby village.

One week before Christmas, 1977 the Sitemans traveled to New York to meet the child's flight from Korea and Long Nam became Stephanie Ann.

Stephanie, now 3, became a citizen last April, along with over 200 adults and children in a mass ceremony at Boston's Faneuil Hall.

When presented with a small flag lapel pin, as emblem of her citizenship, she was disappointed. She thought she would be getting "a big flag."

Congressman Brian Donnelly saw an article in The Quincy Sun describing how Stephanie had become a citizen and presented her with a flag which had flown over the U. S. Capitol in Washington.

Stephanie had one other wish-for a brother and sister. It was a wish shared by the Sitemans.

Last July, International Adoptions told them about a brother and sister whose mother had died the previous Christmas.

"They told us we could have them, but the two of them had to go together, we said, 'fine,'" said Mrs. Siteman.

So, on Sept. 5, Eun Young Yoo became Rebecca Julie and Young Woon became Michael Anthony.

Rebecca, 5, and Michael, 4, will enter school next September. They'll probably become citizens sometime in late winter or early spring.

"Stephanie's really looking forward to that, too," said Mrs. Siteman. "She's been telling them all about it and getting them ready."

The Siteman's Korean connection isn't finished yet, either. Social workers are now searching for Michael and Rebecca's younger sister, born just before their mother died. She's believed to be in a South Korean orphanage.

"They've promised us we can have her if they locate her," says Mrs. Siteman. "That's the one thing the kids have talked about most."

After losing her natural mother, Rebecca cared for her younger brother and sister in the orphanage for several months, which apparently turned her into a responsible young woman.

"The biggest problem with Becky is just getting her to be a little girl again," said Mrs. Siteman. "She could clean the whole house and make beds and everything else if you let her. She asked Santa for a cleaning set."

ENJOYING A NEW LIFE are Michael, Rebecca and Stephanie Siteman.

JOINING IN SONG are Becky, Stephanie, Michael, John and Virginia Siteman at their Federal Ave., South Quincy home.

St. Ann's Cubs Celebrate 50th Anniversary Of Cub Scouting

St. Ann's Cub Scouts of Wollaston celebrated the golden anniversary of Cub Scouting recently at their annual Blue and Gold Dinner at St. Ann's School auditorium.

About 175 scouts, their families and district scout leaders attended the dinner which was preceded by remarks by Rev. Joseph P. McDonough of St. Ann's Church, who stressed the importance of the scouting program.

Among the guests introduced by cubmaster Frank Levesque was Kenneth Southwick of Wollaston who served as a scoutmaster in Germantown in 1914.

Levesque, aided by assistant cubmaster Brian Timberlake and Webelos leader James Blyth, presented rank and achievement awards to eligible scouts.

Local historian Harold Crowley, Jr., concluded the evening with a film and slide presentation on the enjoyment boys can find in the scouting program.

NQHS Counseling Program Feb. 27

At Dependable Cleaners

Until Hostages Freed, They'll Clean Flags Free

"Most businesses have a sort of unwritten law—keep out of politics," said Fred Fawcett, manager of Dependable Cleaners' 581 Adams St. branch.

"But I think this is what we feel and I'm glad we did it," he added.

Fawcett's store, like the company's other seven branches, is making an unusual offer to help rally support for the American hostages in Iran:

Until the hostages are freed, the company will clean any American flag free. Customers are encouraged to fly those flags, although Fawcett admits, "There's no way we can follow up on that."

"We're all very interested in this Iranian thing, as I think all Americans are," said Fawcett, a Weymouth resident. "And we were very interested in the Canadian movement to help free some of the hostages—we've seen a number of billboards thanking Canada.

"We just wanted to do something to help people show their support of the United States," he said.

Since the policy was announced late last week, his own store has cleaned three flags and the others in the chain about a dozen.

"We weren't sure what kind of a response to expect," he said. "Everybody has a pair of pants, but how many people have flags?"

He thinks response to the offer will increase when more people become aware of it and when the release of the hostages draws near.

Dependable Cleaners' other Quincy branches are at 27 Adams St., Quincy Center, and 624 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Morrisette Post Hosts Oratorical Contest Sunday

The Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post of West Quincy will host the Legion's Zone Three Oratorical Contest on Sunday, Feb. 24 at 2 p.m.

Contestants are winners of district contests conducted in Norfolk, Essex and Suffolk Counties.

Contestants will be asked to deliver both an eight-to-ten minute prepared speech, on some aspect of the U.S. Constitution, and a three-to-five minute "extemporaneous" (impromptu) talk on a specific article or amendment. The subject of the extemporaneous talk will be made known to the contestant five minutes before delivery.

Dan Shea of the Morrisette Post, a member of the Legion's Oratorical Committee and Zone Three chairman, will conduct the event.

Post Commander Lawrence Visco and the members invite all to attend. The post is at 54 Miller St., West Quincy.

Burgin Pkway Ext: A Second Chance

It isn't often that a city gets a second chance in the same generation to correct a mistake that threatens to hogtie its future. But that is what Quincy is getting in the Burgin Parkway (formerly Upland Rd.) Extension.

The mistake was made 25 years ago when the Southeast Expressway was permitted—in some ways forced—to bypass Quincy without access from the south, long a primary source of shoppers who helped downtown Quincy to prosper.

The result has been boom times for the South Shore Plaza in Braintree and the shopping malls farther south.

The Burgin Parkway Extension would go a long way toward reversing this trend and restoring Quincy to its historic place as the Shopping Hub of the South Shore.

The Extension is a 1.2-mile roadway proceeding from ramps off the Southeast Expressway at Capen's Circle in Braintree to Granite St. in Quincy Center with a cross road connecting Granite St. with the Ross Parking Area.

Earlier plans called for the cross road to go under Hancock St. and connect with Revere Rd. and McGrath Highway but those plans were placed on hold when they ran into opposition from merchants at the south end of the square.

Mayor Tobin and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, say the Burgin Parkway Extension is absolutely necessary to the development of downtown Quincy. Developers, they say, are waiting for the Extension to become a reality before committing themselves.

Completion of the Extension would guarantee construction of a long-needed hotel in downtown Quincy, says Baharian.

"When the Upland Rd. Extension (Burgin Parkway) is done, Quincy Square should bloom," says William B. Austin Jr., president of the South Shore Bank.

Years ago, there were people in Quincy who opposed ramps and a direct road into Quincy from Capens Bridge in Braintree, contending it would be a one-way street to Braintree for shoppers.

They were dead wrong, because, as it turned out Braintree didn't need the connection. And, Quincy would have benefited. Some of these people also opposed an extension of the then MTA as a one-way ride to Boston stores.

The Burgin Parkway Extension had already been given initial approval before last night's (Wednesday's) design hearing at the Lincoln Hancock Community School. Some 17 months ago at another hearing the proposal drew the enthusiastic support of businessmen, residents and city officials alike.

For the immediate future of Quincy Center and eventually all of Quincy, we hope that the enthusiasm has not waned and that the project gets the final green-light without a problem.

The extension is a must and a chance to make up for some bad thinking on the part of some shortsighted people some years ago.

Points To Ponder

- Punctuation is so important! Consider the following:
Woman without her man is a beast.
Woman—without her, man is a beast.
- The U.S. government spends $17,000 per soldier each year, but only $270 per student. Maybe if we invested more money in the students, some of them could come up with an idea so we wouldn't even need soldiers.
- Although the price of gasoline is skyrocketing, it should be noted that a gallon of gas is still substantially cheaper than a gallon of milk.
- Making ends meet is difficult for everybody these days, but the Chrysler Corporation's situation is hard to imagine. Last year it lost 3 million dollars each day.
- It's census time again. That's when the government hires people and spends millions to count us all, so that they can properly tax us and raise the millions to pay for counting us.

Love And Marriage

Love and marriage, the song says, go together like a horse and carriage.

Fr. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy, said it a little differently—and better—the other night at the parish's annual Valentine liturgy during which the many married couples attending renewed their vows.

A few excerpts from his homily:
On true love:

"There is more genuine love in the offhand suggestion of a gray-haired wife 30 years married to her husband on a slushy February day: 'Darling, it is sloppy out there. You ought to wear your rubbers'.

"There is more basic love in that, than in any line from Romeo and Juliet. She is not thinking of herself. All her concern is for her loved one."

On physical attraction:

"The story is told of a beautiful woman married to a dull, colorless, awkward man. Everyone is asking the question: 'How did this homely man get such a beautiful wife?'"

"For this she has one pat answer: 'He has one tremendous quality. He never hurts my feelings.'"

On understanding:

"To understand, to overlook, be patient with the faults of others as we would have others be patient with our faults. This attitude will solve so many problems in and out of marriage."

On bearing burdens:

"Does the husband expect to come home to find his wife neatly groomed, smiling, alert, genial, eager to greet him and the children lined up in a straight formation ready to intone, 'Hail To The Chief?'"

"Does he stop and think that perhaps his wife had a hectic day too, between cooking, cleaning, the chores and children."

"We may recall the story about the mother who on a wintry Sunday morning as they were about to leave for church, quietly thrust into her husband's hands three snowsuits, caps, six assorted mittens and then started for the door. 'What's this?' he asked.

"Oh", she replied, "I thought this morning we would switch. You dress them and I will sit in the car and honk the horn."

Sometimes, Fr. McCarthy noted, it seems a miracle is needed to help or save a marriage.

"But usually," he concluded, "a miracle is not needed. Just a little more consideration, thoughtfulness for the other party—a little more unselfish love."

IT'S ALWAYS mayoral—candidate guessing time. Quite a few names have been bounced around as potential contenders in 1981.

RILEY

But one overlooked so far, but one who could be a very serious candidate if talked into running: George Riley.

Riley certainly knows the mayor's office. He served as executive secretary to both Mayors James McIntyre and Arthur Tobin. He's a businessman. And despite his years at City Hall, he's a fresh political face.

HES A TRUE Democrat, but former

Congressman James Burke wouldn't feel too badly if Republican George Bush is the next president. He has a high regard for his Milton townsman. And, besides that, Bush told Burke that if he is elected he's going to invite him and his wife to stay overnight in the White House. And, sleep in the Abraham Lincoln bedroom.

□

IT MAY ALREADY be decided before you see this, but Mrs. Jean Reardon of Merrymount seems to have the inside track on the City Council's clerk of committees post. She's a former secretary. The job opened when Mrs. Josephine Carnali resigned to become acting Assistant City Clerk after Thomas Burke was named Mayor Tobin's executive secretary.

Supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for President will hold a birthday party for their candidate tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Susan Martin Hayes, 456 Adams St., Quincy. The senator's sister, Mrs. Patricia Lawford, will act as her brother's ambassador.

The party will be one of 60 that are planned throughout the state in observance of Kennedy's 48th birthday, which falls on Friday. Anyone interested in attending the party should contact Mrs. Hayes at 471-8224.

'Josiah's Journal' Brings Back Many Fond Memories

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I wish to congratulate The Quincy Sun and The Quincy Cooperative Bank for the interesting and informative "Josiah's Journal" which appeared as a supplement to the December 27, 1979 edition of your paper.

I was pleasantly surprised when I turned to page 6 of the Journal and saw the picture of my grandfather Michael Canavan. I have one of the originals of this picture of the Quincy Police Department of ninety years ago, and I have tried unsuccessfully several times to identify the other members of "Quincy's Finest" of so many years ago.

A few little lights of Quincy of that era that have come to me through my dad, Charles J. Canavan, who passed away 30 years ago, may be of interest to you. The numbers on the Bobby helmets worn by the officers designate the ward to which they were assigned. My grandfather and Officer Daniel R. McKay, were the long arm of the law in Ward 4, West Quincy. My grandfather's beat was from the East Milton line to the West Quincy Railroad Station on Willard Street opposite the intersection of I believe Pleasant Street, now a part of the Southeast Expressway, plus all the adjacent area. Officer McKay's beat was from the Quincy Adams Railroad Station on Water Street to the West Quincy Railroad Station, plus all the adjacent area.

The police officers at that time were on 24 hour duty, seven days a week. Their patrolling was done at night, however if a need for their services arose during the day, a messenger to their home would get them out of bed or away from a meal to answer the emergency.

Saturday night was always a busy time. After a long hard week in the quarries or stone sheds many of the workers after being paid on Saturday, repaired to Boston to relax with a small cup of cheer, as Quincy was a dry desert. The last train out of Boston on Saturday night, going south was the Brockton local. It left the main line of the Old Colony Railroad at the Atlantic Railroad Station on the Quincy side of the bridge over the Neponset River, and took the single track loop over the marsh land to East Milton and West Quincy, and then joined the main line again at Braintree.

Most of the passengers on this late train were Quincy stone cutters and Brockton shoe cutters, who after spending their evening in Boston were feeling no pain. Discussions many times grew into arguments and sometimes to a test of strength.

The conductor on the train was a big burly Irishman, who was well equipped to maintain peace on his train. When trouble erupted he would pick out the trouble makers, or those who were the worse for wear, and hold them apart until the train reached West Quincy. There he would hand his problem passengers over to my grandfather and Officer McKay.

who made it a point to be at station when the train was due.

There was no patrol wagon in West Quincy so the arrestees were loaded on or laid out on a stone wagon, used for hauling granite, and taken downtown to the lock-up, which at that time was in the basement of City Hall.

According to my dad, West Quincy at that time had one fire wagon but no regular firemen, all were volunteers. The highway department had an employee, who was in charge of keeping the streets clean with a broom, a shovel and a two wheel dump cart pulled by a horse. When the horn on the firehouse blew alerting the volunteers, the highway employee unhitched his horse from the dump cart and trotted him to the firehouse, hitched him to the fire-wagon, and off they were to the fire.

My father was born in 1886 in a small house across from the Willard School and the house is still standing. He served as a clerk in the Quincy Post Office for over 40 years and practiced law in Quincy for a number of years, with offices in the Adams Building, the Savings Bank Building and the old Alhambra Building, at various times. His brother, Frank Canavan, followed in his fathers footsteps and was a member of the Quincy Police Department for many years. He was a Lieutenant on the force when he died.

DiMarzio Family Grateful To Friends For 'Their Love'

Editor, To Quincy Sun:

May we use your paper to publicly thank all our friends who so generously attended the Benefit dance held for us on Feb. 9, 1980 at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall in Hough's Neck?

Their love and support helped alleviate some of the painful loss we experienced when our home and roller rink burned to the ground on Jan. 4, 1980.

Our spirits soared when we saw so many friends of all ages come to help us re-establish our lives again. Too often people express their love and respect for a person after he dies.

Appeals To 'Younger Scouts' To Aid Camp Massasoit Fund

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I have recently been asked to serve on a committee called the Massasoit Development Committee. This committee came into being through the desires of a handful of Boy Scout professionals who wish to see Camp Massasoit continue to offer the adventures of overnight camping to generations of young men in the future.

During the more than 50 years that Camp Massasoit has served the Scouts of Quincy, thousands of boys have enjoyed its advantages and have been influenced by the programs provided there. Originally designed as a summer camp with little thought being given to the prospect that it might someday provide a more vital role in the Scouting program as a year round camp, many of the buildings and facilities comprising the 250 acre camp on Elbow Pond require conversions and improvements to meet an expanded role now and in the future.

To that end, a master plan has been drawn up by volunteers in the Scouting program and an effort is now underway to raise $30,000 to purchase needed materials and equipment to convert Camp Massasoit into a first class year-round camping facility.

I am appealing to any of you "younger" scouts who enjoyed the thrill of camping at Massasoit over the years to either drop in and see me at the main office of The Quincy Co-operative Bank at 1259 Hancock Street, Quincy, or mail a check, payable to the "Massasoit Development Fund" to my attention. If you are handy and would like to offer your skills at helping to rebuild the camp, please contact Dick Koch or Harold S. Crowley, Jr.

City Seeks Use Of Meadow Land As Parking Area

The city was attempting to arrange with Rep. Joseph Grossman, the owner, for continued use of Edwards Meadow between Hancock St. and the New Haven Railroad tracks as a parking area.

The current agreement was due to expire July 1.

"It has served a good purpose," said Mayor Thomas J. McGrath. "A parking space was needed, parking has to be provided." He suggested building a road through the meadow to aid parking.

Meanwhile, 85 downtown merchants said the use of the meadow as a parking area for shoppers' cars was a benefit to them while 45 said it had been no use at all.

AUTO SHOW AT ARMORY

Quincy's first automobile show opened at the State's Armory on Hancock St. with 53 of the latest models placed on display by 16 local dealers.

Pompeo Motor Sales Inc. showed Pontiacs and Oaklands; Sylvester and Carson had Essex and Hudsons; Hancock Square Motor Co. brought Whippets and Willys Knights.

PRO TITLE GAME SET

The North Quincy Checkers and the Quincy Trojans were preparing for their rubber game for the professional basketball championship of Quincy in the Central Junior High School gym. The Checkers were expected to start Norm Dorey and Joe Mahoney at forwards, Bill Riley at center, and Cy Topham and Ibbey Jacobson at guards.

The Trojans' starters would be Gub Anderson and Bob Barry at forwards, Normie Pierce at center, and Capt. Joe Zanowski and Huck Listman at guards.

TESTIMONIAL FOR DeWOLFE

A monster midnight testimonial was held at the Strand Theater for Billy DeWolfe, Quincy's best known theatrical man, who was ill at his home, 30 Chickatabot Rd., Merrymount.

Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, the mayor of Newburyport, was master of ceremonies and the 20 all star acts were headed by Georgette Cohan, daughter of George M. Cohan.

PROHIBITION FAILS

'No One Seems To Go To Prison For Drug Offenses'

We spent $2,500 buying the cocaine from him. He got five years, suspended.

"We spent a lot of money on him, money from the city and from the district attorney's office. We didn't even get the money back. There is no return. Now we get the same intelligence coming back to us on the guy. He's still in business."

Recently the Drug Unit arrested a 16-year-old juvenile after an undercover officer had made nine or 10 buys from him. His sentence was commitment to the Department of Youth Services (DYS).

"We weren't sure what the DHS was any more since they closed the detention houses, so we checked up," said Lynch. "The kid got a CFI A job for the summer on Thompson's Island. He was sentenced to a week's pay plus daily transportation to the island."

One of Lynch's last acts as head of the Quincy Police Drug Unit was to compile a report of the judicial results of several large investigations. The report was given to Edward J. King. It is currently drawing some attention on Beacon Hill.

Lynch calls the report "the most important I ever did."

One of the investigations, referred to as "Phase 12," was concluded in April, 1978. It involved 31 street dealers in drugs, 18 of them classified as small and 13 classified as medium to heavy, depending upon their selling capacities and their sources.

The charges against the 18 small dealers included 22 for conspiracy, five for sale of PCP (the so-called "angel dust"), four for sale of marijuana, four for sale of cocaine, three for sale of Class B substances (pills), and two to accessories to the sale of cocaine.

The results: One defaulted, two were never arrested, six were dismissed, three got suspended sentences, three got probation, two got probation and a fine, and one was fined $250.

The charges against the 13 medium to heavy dealers included 22 for conspiracy, 20 for sale of cocaine, 11 for sale of marijuana, six for sale of LSD, five for sale of hashish, four for sale of PCP, three for sale of Class B substances, three for accessory to the sale of cocaine, and two for possession with the intent to distribute marijuana and PCP.

The results: Four received probation, one got probation and a fine, five got suspended sentences, two were committed and one juvenile was committed to the DHS.

All of the cases, said Lynch, were disposed of without trial; they were settled as a result of plea bargaining, "obviously to the benefit of the defendant."

"There have been other phases," said Lynch, "and hundreds of street cases which involve heavy and light dealers that have gone through my office over the years and more or less have been disposed of in the same manner."

"Intelligence from officers in my unit and from other police agencies will verify the fact that most drug dealers who are unfortunate enough to get caught go right back into business again after their court cases are disposed of."

"I cannot establish the validity of the following statement, but it is my opinion that this report on punishment for drug offenders is a fair assessment of one of the main reasons for the drug problems that most communities in our state are facing today."

Lynch is pushing legislation, Senate Bill 950, which would prohibit a negotiated reduction in charges (plea bargaining) in drug cases without the written approval of the arresting authority, the district attorney, the presiding judge and the defendant's counsel.

Hearing on the bill is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 25, at 1 p.m. in Room 136 of the State House.

"I'm not knocking the courts," said Lynch. "We have a lot of fine judges. Every court has its liberal, a judge that not everyone is entirely happy with. In general, the judges are very concerned. But no one knows exactly what to do when it comes time to sentence people."

"From what I hear there is very little room to put people in prison, but if we don't put some of the heavy dealers away, then God help us."

"Everyone is getting into the business, from the little kid in school to the big dealer. There is heavy money in drugs. Grammar school kids roll joints and steal pills from their parents to sell. PCP, which causes irreversible brain damage, is everywhere."

"A lot of people are afraid to say it, but this is the way it is."

Tobin Names 2 Hospital Managers, Study Commission

into it, I'm going to ask for their resignations," he said.

"The time has come when the hospital board can no longer be a political appointment for status purposes. The issue is just too important to us."

Mrs. Mayo, who has been a member of the board for more than 10 years, has agreed to stay on as an associate member, said the Mayor.

Also named to the Mayor's commission were Drs. Russell Irons, William Frates and William Heltrich, as well as Mrs. Mildred Trout, a nurse, and Atty. Matthew McDonnell.

The appointments of Drs. Irons,

Frates and Heltrich to the Committee were reported in last week's Quincy Sun as was the fact that Tobin planned changes in the Hospital Board of Managers.

Dr. Irons is president of the City Hospital medical staff and Dr. Frates is immediate past president.

O'Donnell said he hopes to call the first meeting of the commission within a week and he and the Mayor agreed that it would be best if the meetings were closed to the public.

The City Council has a blue ribbon commission studying the operation of the hospital and some officials have been unhappy with a few of the statements that have been made before it in operation.

"The medical staff is very concerned with statements that are being made in the press that don't speak well for the hospital," said Tobin. "They claim those statements are very degrading to the staff."

"You can't air dirty linen on a 24-hour basis and expect someone who has a serious medical problem to be asking 'What the heck is going on at the hospital?' It really isn't that bad."

"We're very much disturbed," said Dr. Irons, "that it looks sometimes in the newspapers like excellent medical care isn't being delivered in Quincy when in fact it is."

"We are looking to the future. A walk around the plant shows that this plant is slowly going downhill and needs upgrading immediately.

We just don't want it to go any further."

"I don't think the open meeting law applies," said City Solicitor Fleming. "Because it's strictly advisory. It's not a decision-making process. The decision will ultimately be made by the Mayor."

Fleming said he pointed out to the Council's blue ribbon commission "that they had the option either to abide by the open meeting law or go into closed session. They felt they wanted to keep it open."

"Speaking for myself," said Chairman O'Donnell, "I'd be inclined towards closed meetings."

"As chairman, I'm very sensitive to the doctors' profession where they have patients in the hospital and they have to deal with the confidentiality regarding these patients and it's the patients' well-being that's paramount."

O'Donnell said the commission probably will meet weekly and address itself chiefly to the finances of the hospital. He may consult with the City Council's commission once the groundwork is laid, he said.

Probably the big decision facing the commission is whether to recommend continued municipal operation of the hospital or turn it over to private management, either by lease or sale.

The medical staff has already indicated that it favors private management but, said Dr. Irons, "doctors are always looking for other possibilities. If there is a better approach we want to look at it."

Park Dept. Clearing Pine Island, Other Areas

The Quincy Park Department is taking advantage of the lack of snow this winter by having its personnel cut and clear public areas such as the Pine Island site for spring and summer recreation use.

The eight acre Pine Island, between Black's Creek municipal boating location and Quincy Shore Drive, has been abandoned for the past 40 years except for vandals littering and disturbing the spot.

Access to the area had been provided by a wooden footbridge from Meadowbrook Road that has since deteriorated, leaving the area accessible only at low tide.

With the water and ground around the area frozen solid, a work force has been able to reach the area and cut up dead trees into fireplace logs for sale for use during the summer recreation overnight programs. Heavy underbrush and vegetation is also being cut, and litter and debris removed.

Meetings have been held with Mrs. Clara Yeomans of the Conservation Commission and Richard Meads of the Planning Department on the possibility of funding from the Coastal Zone Management Program for a new footbridge.

If the funding comes through, the area could then be outfitted with picnic tables, charcoal fireplaces and a small tent site for the spring.

The clearing of underbrush at Pine Island will help control brush fires, and a bridge would allow Police and Fire Departments access to the site for periodic inspection.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board, noted that the shortage and high price of gas will curtail pleasure driving and result in a greater dependence on municipal park, playground and beach facilities.

Rock 'n' Rock Jamboree Raises $200 For Heart Fund

Residents of Crestview Nursing Home raised nearly $200 for the Heart Fund by holding a "Rock 'n' Roll Jamboree" on Valentine's Day. The jamboree wasn't of the musical variety but involved 17 residents rocking back and forth in wheel chairs, rolling in wheel chairs, and walking short distances.

The participants were sponsored by relatives, friends and community members, who pledged money according to the distance walked, etc. Students from the Woodward School for Girls assisted the residents in obtaining sponsors.

A raffle and bake sale were also held during the day to raise funds.

Said Jenny Raffa, director of activities at the nursing home, "Residents enjoyed the activities, especially since they were able to help others this time."

Presidents Win Talent Contest First Semi Final

The Dead Presidents, a band from Quincy, won first place Sunday in the first semi-final of the amateur talent contest at the Wollaston Theatre.

Band members are Jazz Abbott, Steven-Jeffrey Cobble, Steve Metcalfe, Joe Galvin, Mike Galvin and Don Hicks.

Other winners in the semi-final were: Michael Mahoney, a magician from Quincy, second place; "No Exit", a Quincy band, third place; Bobby Zuckerman, a Brockton singer, fourth place; Sheila McIntyre, a Quincy singer, fifth place; Paul Priestley, a Quincy singer, sixth place. All are eligible to compete in the finals.

The second semi-final will be held Sunday, Feb. 24.

SPEND THIS WINTER IN CALIFORNIA

You'll love the climate in California. It's cool and quiet during the day, with a refreshing breeze of a menu that includes soups, salads, burgers and quiche, served from 11:30 to 3:00. Things start to warm up around 4:00, when complimentary hot hors d'oeuvres are served at your table 'til 7:00. Then it really gets hot in California with music and dancing. But if things get too hot for you on the dance floor, you can step into the lounge and recharge your energy. Watch the waterfall, or do a little California dreamin' with the driftwood. Then get back out and get down with the best music around.

Throw a party in California. We'll help you in every aspect of planning a party for your business or friends. Our expert staff, kitchen and cocktail facilities, dynamic sound system, dance floor and California decor will contribute to a memorable affair.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church To Hold Lenten Services

Houghs Neck Congregational Church will hold a series of Lenten Services on five successive Tuesdays, beginning Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m.

The Lenten programs are on the theme, "Praise to the Lord Who Gives Life to All: Our Lenten Journey."

Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea will lead the first worship service and guest speaker will be Mrs. Linda Roberts, Assistant Minister at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy. Mrs. Roberts, a senior at Harvard Divinity School, expects to be ordained into the Christian ministry next June.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin will lead the worship March 4, with Kevin Duolittle and Tim Shetler of Eastern Nazarene College providing special music. Rev. Charles L. McEachern of the First Baptist Church of Wollaston will be guest speaker March 11, with Joan Kirby, soloist.

Rev. M. Alicia Corea will lead the March 18 worship service, and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church Choir, under the direction of Arden Schofield, organist and choir director, will present a program of sacred music.

Rev. William D. Underhill of St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston, will be special guest speaker March 25 with Mrs. Carol Johnston as soloist.

Maundy Thursday Service of Church Membership and Holy Communion will be held April 3.

The Lenten Journey Services are sponsored by the Boards of Deacons and Deaconesses who invite everyone to attend. Refreshments will be served in Fellowship Hall after each service.

A romance language and literature major at Boston University College of Liberal Arts, Mrs. Roberts taught school for nine years before serving as church organist and secretary at First Parish Church, Quincy.

There will be a special dedication to the memory of Mrs. Clara Schuerch by her daughter and family.

St. John's To Hold Meeting On Religious Instruction Sunday

Spiritual Renewal Week At Our Lady Of Good Counsel Church

Rev. Peter J. Martocchio, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, announced that a spiritual renewal week will be held at the church March 9-13.

The week will feature a combination mission and retreat.

Co-chairing the planning committee are Margaret Fay, Lou Mazzini and Ann Abbruzzese.

The committee hopes that changes within the church in the past will bring about a strengthening of faith during the five nights of renewal.

Deborah Nigro and Gloria Garity chair the publicity committee, Mary Blaney, the hospitality committee, and Father Martocchio, the liturgy committee.

Parishioners are encouraged to support the activity.

81 Church Officers Installed At First Church Of Squantum Service

Eighty-one newly elected church officers were installed Sunday during the morning worship service at the First Church of Squantum.

The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, chairmen of the four principal church boards and president of one of the church youth groups.

Barbara Walter, chairwoman of the Board of Benevolences, gave the call to worship. Barbara Colwell, cochairwoman of the Board of Christian Education, led the opening prayer. Steve A. Williams, president of Orange Crush, prayed in behalf of the young people of the church.

Stewart Scott, chairman of the Board of Trustees, read the Scripture from the book of Nehemiah. Donald Frazer, Chairman of the Board of Deacons, gave the prayer of dedication.

Also participating were Tom Williamson, superintendent of Sunday School; Gretchen Bumpus, Board of Christian Education; Janet Williamson, Board of Christian Education; Barbara Anderson, Board of Trustees; John Malmgren, Board of Trustees; Richard Williams, Orange Crush; Ellen Ogilvie, Board of Deacons, and David Mildram, Board of Benevolences. Dr. Langevin preached on "Building Up the Church."

concluding a series tracing the history of Israel from the death of King Solomon to the end of the Old Testament.

The Senior Choir sang, "Come, All Ye Saints," by Georg Philipp Telemann. Ushers were Susan Mildram, Tore Wallin, Bonnie Adams, Paul Paulson, Tom Adams, Billy Cogswell and Steven E. Williams. Greeters were Edward and Marie Reister and their children, Karin and Kristen. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Fred MacMillan, Barbara Anderson, David Stohlberg, Marsha Anderson and Isabelle Preston.

Next Sunday at 10:15 a.m., the pastor will begin a series of Lenten sermons, "Jesus Christ, Son of God and Savior." Both the Senior Choir and the Boys' Choir will sing.

Sacred Heart Celebrates National Catholic Schools Week

Sacred Heart School, North Quincy, celebrated the opening of National Catholic Schools Week with a special Sunday morning Mass.

Bishop Daniel Hart was chief celebrant and homilist, assisted by Rev. Cornelius Heery, pastor, and John Salenius, deacon. P.T.O. officers Betty McSweeney, Andrea Cobban, Robert McCarthy and Joan Barnes participated in the Offertory Procession. Sister Mary Romula, principal, read the Communion Meditation. Christopher Kennedy was Lector.

The theme was The Catholic School - One of the Family.

The families of the school children and other parishioners filled the church.

Following the Mass, refreshments were served in the school cafeteria.

The students' work and special projects were on display throughout the school.

At Morrisette Memorial Mass

Strong America Needed, Warns Fr. McMahon

Rev. John McMahon, citing the "enmity of Russia to America," warned a strong America is needed now more than ever before, during the annual Morrisette Legion Post memorial Mass Monday at St. Mary's Church.

Fr. McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church, West Quincey, addressed members of the post and representatives of other Quincey veterans groups during the annual Washington's Birthday service in memory of deceased members of the Morrisette Post.

The ceremonies included the laying of wreaths at the graves of deceased members, a flag-raising, a parade from the post to St. Mary's, and the Mass.

The text of his homily follows:

"We live in one of the most dangerous periods in history. It is a period in which power of devastation beyond the previous imagination of man can be wreaked within minutes on any portion of the earth.

"We have the power ourselves, one believes, and Russia has it beyond a shadow of doubt. What is more, there is sound reason to believe that the enmity of Russia to America, put it if you will in terms of the enmity of communism to personal freedom, is unremitting, undeviating, resolute, and implacable.

"It existed from the hour that communism was born. It existed in the midst of the Second World War, when we were technically allies in a common cause. It has existed every hour since. At times it has assumed disguises: it may be the Salt treaties, it may be cultural exchanges, it may be detente. It is well always to remember that the national game of Russia is chess.

"Russia thinks of the world as a massive chessboard. She moves a piece here, withdraws a pawn there, captures this piece, sometimes sacrifices a piece that she may later capture two pawns. Never does she lose sight of the object of the game, to checkmate the opponent's king, to capture world domination.

"Today the opponent to Russia's goal of world domination is the free world, but the king of the free world is the United States. We must take the lead, and if we take the lead firmly, courageously, and untiringly, then the free world can checkmate Russia and not the other way around.

"My own belief, which is nothing more than the belief of a parish priest, is that Russia has built its tremendous armament, not to win a world war except as a last resort, but to win world domination without having to fight. And let us make no mistake about it. Russia has made enormous strides toward that goal.

"There is no question in my mind that the foundation of the struggle to keep world domination out of Russian hands has to be a military strong America. It is certainly not within my power to suggest the specific steps necessary to reach that end.

"Much of the loss of power and prestige the United States has suffered in the last 10 years has come from fuzzy minded, arrogant, doctrinaire liberals in a position to hamstring efforts to build America's armament at a rate to match the remorseless growth of Russian power. It is for the military experts to tell us the specific steps we must take, and it is our responsibility to give them the financial support and the political support necessary to reach the necessary goals.

"Two events of recent weeks have heartened me mightily that we can once more harness our national strength and fortify our national will for the task that lies ahead. One is the fact that the partial grain embargo imposed on Russia had no effect whatever in the voting in Iowa, the state most adversely affected by the embargo.

"The people of Iowa put country ahead of personal profit, and did so in the true spirit of patriotic Americans. The other has not turned out as I had hoped. I had hoped that unanimous support would be given the President in his determination that Americans would not go to the Olympics in Moscow, to play games with the Russians as if nothing had happened in Afghanistan. It is my fervent hope that other nations, the English speaking countries, the nations of western Europe, the Moslem powers, the Third World countries which are new to the arena of global strife would follow the American example.

"A worldwide expression of outrage at the brutal and unprincipled invasion of a small, relatively defenseless country totally unaligned where the major powers are concerned will be a grievous blow to Russian prestige and may well be a focal point around which the world may rally in a determination that Russian aggrandizement shall go no farther. Here is an opportunity for the civilians of the world to speak, not in terms of war but in terms of peace.

"I say in terms of peace. It is certainly not the will of the United States to wage war. It is not the desire of mankind anywhere to wage war. Speaking as a clergyman and in terms applicable to whatever creeds may be represented in this audience, I and you as well do not worship a god of war but a Prince of Peace. This much, however, can be said with certainty: Peace will never come through weakness.

The world cannot buy peace. It cannot successfully beg for peace. It cannot hope that peace somehow will come of its own accord. It must work for peace, pay for peace, sacrifice for peace, and do so always with the fervent hope and the heartfelt prayer that the world may never again have to fight for peace.

"I find something very appropriate in the fact that we are meeting on Washington's Birthday. Washington was not always the serene victor, the respected President, the revered Father of his Country. After Washington left Boston and the theater of war shifted to New York and New Jersey, Washington suffered defeat after defeat. His army was poorly equipped, riddled with disease, constantly plagued by enlistment terms expiring and soldiers leaving to tend their

North's Upset Over Quincy Makes Up For Season's Disappointments

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy basketball team won't be playing in the state tournament, but the Raiders made up for a lot of disappointments last Friday when they upset Quincy, 63-52, to share the city championship.

Ed Miller's Raiders, now 11-7 and winner of three games in a row, played Brookline Tuesday and will finish their season Friday when they host Revere at 7 p.m.

Joe Amoroso's Quincy team, which already had clinched a tournament berth, saw its record drop to 15-3, as North became the only team outside of Suburban League leader and state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin to defeat the Presidents this season.

Quincy played at Weymouth South Tuesday and will wind up the regular campaign Friday at 8 at Brockton. The tournament will get under way next Tuesday with Quincy sure to be one of the top seeds.

The big man in North's big win over Quincy before a capacity crowd at the new Raider gym was junior forward Mark Millane, one of the top scorers in the league.

Millane scored 27 points, grabbed 23 rebounds, had four assists and two steals, in one of his best efforts of the year.

"Mark was just superb," said a happy Miller. "He played in the middle of our press, broke their press, passed off and did everything but sell tickets."

For Quincy, high scoring Brian Donovan, Ritch Finnegan and Scott McDonald, who had been sidelined, returned to action but none were in top shape. Donovan, playing with a fractured sternum, was "about 50 percent healthy" in Amoroso's words, while the other two were still fighting off the flu.

Quincy received a tough break when high scoring junior Steve Priscella, who had nine first half points, suffered elbow contusions and missed the entire second half.

"We took him to the hospital for X-rays, praying it wasn't broken," the Quincy coach said. "Thank goodness it wasn't and he should be ready for the tournament. It might have been different if we had him in the second half, but I'm not trying to take anything away from North Quincy.

"They played a great game and Millane was outstanding. But he wasn't a one-man team by any means, they all did a great job."

Quincy Girls City Champs

The Quincy girls' basketball team wound up a disappointing season Tuesday but the first ladies last week clinched another city championship with their second win of the year over North Quincy, 44-32.

The game was the final one for the Raiderettes. Quincy finished up Tuesday against Weymouth South.

Anne McCarron scored 11 points and Nancy McDonald and Maureen Maher had nine apiece to spark Barbara Webster's Quincy girls, who opened up a 19-8 halftime lead. Sue Callahan had eight.

Kim Alberti was the top scorer for Brian Tilley's Raiderettes with 13 points.

Earlier in the week the North girls had turned in their finest two-way performance to bomb Waltham, 73-37.

Five Raiderettes scored in double figures, Alberti with 16 points, Julie Watts with 15, Joanne Rundge with 12, Cheryl Ayles with 11 and Pat Micelli with 10.

The Quincy girls, following a 23-23 first half, were held to 16 points in the second half and lost to Weymouth North, 51-39, as Weymouth qualified for the state tournament.

Callahan was the only First Lady in double figures with 16 points.

North Upsets Quincy

(it could from Page 27)

"This is the first time we've played Quincy in our new gym and it was a great crowd. They have a great team and was a typical Quincy-North game," Miller said.

The first shot of the game set the tempo for the night. Priscella drove in for a shot and North's Paul Malloray made a great block, knocking the ball into the stands. North's Rick Keenan then made the game's first basket.

North led, 18-12, after a period but Quincy came back to take the lead and had a 27-25 edge when North's Paul Gill tipped in a rebound at the buzzer to tie it up.

The Raiders then came out flying and took a 42-32 lead into the final period.

O'Connell, Keenan and Gill each had 10 points and O'Connell was the team's quarterback, running the team well.

For Quincy, Donovan had 15 points, Priscella nine and Carrera and Stan Benson eight each.

Quincy's junior varsity pulled out a 71-65 overtime win to improve its record to 12-3 and drop North's mark to 8-9.

Jack Brown, a standout for North, threw in a 15-foot jumper with two seconds left to send the game into overtime but in the extra period Wes Paul and P. J. Fay scored three points each and Gary DiNardo two to wrap it up the Presidents. Quincy had led by 15 points in the third period.

DiNardo had 18 points, Pete Papile 12 and Paul 11 for Quincy.

For North Brown had 20 points, including 10 of 12 from the line as the Raiders went to the line 48 times but missed 17 free throws. Vic O'Leary had 14 points and eight rebounds, big Chip Bunker, troubled by fouls, played only two periods but had nine rebounds and Rico McFaggart had his best game with eight points and four rebounds.

Earlier in the week, with Donovan still out and several others suffering from the flu, Quincy's bench came through again as the Presidents defeated Weymouth North, 63-53.

Priscella scored 19 points, Benson had 12 points and 17 rebounds, Carrera had eight points and eight assists, Scott McDonald 11 points and Kurt McDonald 10.

Quincy's jayvees lost, 55-51, having a bad night, according to Coach Doug MacFarlane.

Danny White had 14 points, Papile 13 and Bob Reeds played a fine game and added seven points.

North edged Waltham, 60-59, on Gill's foul shot with 10 seconds left.

Millane had 24 points, including 13 in a big third period, and Gill had 11.

Paul Bregoli's North jayvees won, 59-45, with its finest all-around game of the season.

Brown was again outstanding both ways and scored 14 points. O'Leary had 12 points and Tom McFarland played an outstanding defensive game. The young Raiders held Waltham to 12 points in the first half.

QJC In Conference Playoffs Friday

The Quincy Junior College basketball team will take a 16-4 record into the Greater Boston Small College Conference playoffs Friday night, Feb. 29 and Saturday afternoon, March 1, at North Essex in Haverhill.

Brian Buckley's Jaguars wrapped up their regular season last week with an easy 78-33 non-league win over Blue Hills Technical.

Tim Murphy and Ed Hanratty scored 17 points each for QJC.

The Jaguars will face Mass. College of Pharmacy, Wentworth and Northern Essex in the playoffs. They lost both regular season games to Mass. College of Pharmacy and broke even with the other two teams.

Won Over 40 Years Ago

Anderson Tennis Trophies Given To Historical Society

By TOM HENSHAW

Tennis trophies won more than 40 years ago by the late Eleanor Anderson, one of Squantum's premier women athletes, have been presented to the Quincy Historical Society by her husband.

Miss Anderson, who was Mrs. Vincent E. Larkin, died in 1975 at the age of 68.

The trophies, which were donated by Henry M. Faxon to signify city championships, were won in the middle 1930s on the old Faxon courts on Woodward Ave., where the Vo Tech School parking lot is today.

Miss Anderson was one of a small band of Squantum athletes who dominated the Faxon tournaments.

"The Squantum kids had a headstart on everyone else because Squantum had a private tennis club," recalls John R. Herbert, president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank and a Squantum kid himself.

"They would learn to play the game at the club and come down to the Faxon courts and win all the trophies."

There are four championship trophies and three second prize plates and a pitcher among those turned over to the Historical Society.

A large bowl is for the women's singles title she won from Phyllis O'Brien in 1933.

A medium bowl represents the mixed doubles crown she and Chester Young captured in 1932.

A small bowl is for the mixed doubles championship she and George C. Young took in 1935.

A large pitcher is the memento of the women's doubles crown she shared with Doris Folger in 1933.

Miss Anderson teamed with

Chester Young to win second prize in 1931, with Frank Gould to take second prize in 1934, and with Doris Folger for another second prize the same year.

The tennis courts were turned over to the city by Henry M. Faxon in 1929 and the championships were inaugurated the same year. They were ended shortly after Faxon's death in 1949.

Miss Anderson, who married Larkin in 1943, is remembered as a rangy athlete with a soft but baffling serve.

Along with the trophies, Larkin presented to the Historical Society a horse shoe from the stable of Lotta Crabtree, the actress who once had large Squantum land holdings; and a Coast Guard sword handed down from Miss Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Anderson.

Bantam A's Defeat Weymouth

Quincy's Bantam A team defeated Weymouth, 6-3, with Bob Lynch and Mike McGrath scoring two goals apiece and Danny Shea and Scott Messina one each. Shea had four assists. Tommy Benson two and Lynch and McCarthy one each. Shawn Cunningham and Timmy O'Connell played well in goal.

HOUSE FLY-MORE THAN A NUISANCE

The pesky house fly is more than a nuisance. A notorious carrier of disease, the common fly is capable of transmitting such conditions as typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera, diarrhea, tuberculosis, and food poisoning.

As the fly feeds on contaminated food and water, some of the matter clings to its hairs. Thereafter, the creature leaves bacteria-infected deposits - the familiar "fly specks" - wherever it lights.

Fighten off fly-control measures in your home by first tightening up all screens. Wrap garbage and other refuse in newspapers and place in disposal containers. Then cover the containers tightly so that flies cannot work themselves inside to feed. After the garbage is collected, wash the can. Be certain not to leave food uncovered or dishes unwashed and lying about. This is a sure-fire way to attract flies.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

One of the most amazing teams in sports history was the Arvada, Wyoming High School basketball team a few years ago... No players ever sat on their bench during the playing of any game that season because they had only five boys on the whole squad with no substitutes... And despite going the whole year without any substitutes, they still won their way into the Wyoming state high school championship tournament.

Here's an oddity about NBA basketball player Bailey Howell... He made 1,621 points in the NBA in the 1966-67 season, and then, unbelievably, he made exactly 1,621 points again in the NBA in the 1967-68 season... What are the odds on that happening?

Here's an oddity from auto racing... Everybody thinks that having the pole position in an auto race is an advantage - but oddly enough, in all the years that the Indianapolis 500-mile race has been run, drivers who had the pole position have won only eight times, or less than 15% of the time!

Tullish & Clancy To Host WJDA Talk Show On Real Estate

Jack Scott, sales manager for Tullish & Clancy Real Estate of Quincy, will host a monthly talk show on real estate on WJDA beginning Thursday Feb. 21.

Scott and at least one guest will answer questions from listeners during the show, from 12:30 to 1 p.m. Guest specialists will include bank mortgage officers, lawyers, builders, real estate experts and others knowledgeable in the field. Listeners may either call in questions or submit them in advance, in writing.

JACK SCOTT

The once-a-month program may be presented more frequently, depending on audience response, Scott said.

"I feel the public has a deep interest in real estate, especially at a time when economic conditions are as chaotic as they are today," said Scott, a 28-year veteran of the business. "And we're going to give people a chance to find out what they always wanted to know about real estate and its multi-faceted problems."

John R. Herbert Appointed To U.S. Savings Association Committee

John R. Herbert, president and chairman of the board of The Quincy Co-operative Bank, Quincy, has been appointed to the 1980 Public Relations and Consumer Affairs Committee of the United States League of Savings Associations.

The appointment was announced by Edwin B. Brooks, Jr., president of the League and president of Security Federal Savings and Loan Association of Richmond, Virginia.

The U.S. League is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business and represents over 4,400 associations throughout the country.

Savings and loan associations are the second largest type of financial institutions in America and specialize in attracting savings accounts for investment primarily in mortgage loans on residential property. Currently, savings associations provide approximately twice the amount of funds for home mortgage financing as all other lenders combined.

3 Residents Named To CHRB

Three Quincy residents have been elected to key positions on the newly-formed Quincy-South Shore Community Housing Resources Board (CHRB).

Robert Gibbons, representing State Rep. Thomas Brownell, was elected chairman of the CHRB. Quincy's Equal Opportunity Administrator Albert Schechman was elected vice-chairman and Mrs. Blanche Wellman, representing Rev.

Bedros Baharian, was elected secretary.

The CHRB was organized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to implement an Affirmative Fair Housing Marketing Agreement between HUD and local Realtors.

Under the Agreement, the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors has committed itself to a program which will insure that minorities are not discriminated against in the local housing market.

Other members of the CHRB include:

Mr. Philip Greenspan, assistant treasurer of the Quincy Savings Bank, Ronald Zooleck, executive vice-president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce; Abraham Cohen of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights; Edward Flavin, Flavin & Flavin Real Estate and Equal Opportunity chairman of the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors.

The CHRB will meet periodically with the Equal Opportunity Committee of the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors to review progress in carrying out the Agreement.

Union President Complains No Pay Raises, Hiring Practices Draw Custodians Ire

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
The school custodians union president says that the School Committee's failure to carry out the union's contract has "eroded" its credibility.

Local 206 President William LaForest told the school committee last week that the board has not agreed upon pay raises and has failed to hire employees from the civil service lists, as stated in the contract.

The custodians, like all school employees, have received no raises for the 1979-80 school year. A $3 million supplemental budget request by the committee has not been submitted by Mayor Arthur Tobin for approval by the City Council.

Members of the school committee said they were investigating various legal avenues to force Tobin to fund the raises. But member Mary Collins said, "Short of printing it over at the Waite, there's just no way we could come up with the money right now."

The 1980-81 school budget includes the still-undecided raises for 1979-80 "piggy-backed" onto those scheduled for the following year.

But, referring to the rate of inflation, LaForest said, "if we get that money a year from now, we'll be losing 18 cents on every dollar. We can't afford to do that."

The custodian's contract calls for a four-percent raise effective July 1, 1979, a three-percent raise effective Jan. 1, 1980 and similar raises in the second year of the contract.

LaForest said that, although he realizes Tobin has refused to submit the funding for the raises, "it is incumbent on the school committee to obtain the requisite money through whatever channels and alternatives necessary."

LaForest then moved on to his union's second complaint.

The School Committee, instead of hiring permanent custodians from the civil service list, as stated in the union contract, has been hiring others as "provisional" employees.

These provisional custodians number seven or eight, according to assistant superintendent John Osterman.

The committee has discussed in recent months a proposed residency requirement for school custodians. A bill allowing committees to implement such requirements, circumventing the state civil service system, is now in the state legislature.

Until the issue is settled, the committee has been reluctant to hire permanent custodians from the civil service list.

"The committee must stand by their word and honor the contract," LaForest said.

"Whatever impetus lies behind the attempt to remove civil service hiring procedures from the civil service lists, it must be eliminated. Committee member Joan Picard, a supporter of the residency requirement, said it was aimed at keeping tax money in the city. Studies show that 70 percent of a person's paycheck is spent in his or her neighborhood, she said.

"I think that's a good way to look at the reasoning behind my motion," said Mrs. Picard.

LaForest replied that if every city followed Quincy's lead and passed residency requirements for its employees, the result would be an economic disaster for the city.

"We have more City of Boston residents in Quincy than you would want to shake a stick at," he said.

farms. The Continental Army had become a laughing stock to the British, who were waiting merely for the spring to mop it up, unless it melted away of its own accord before the spring.

And then, on Christmas night, 1776, this ragtag and hobtail army came from nowhere, crossed the Delaware, routed and captured the Hessian force at Trenton, and nine days later inflicted a major defeat on the British at Princeton.

"At the last moment, when every national hope was gone, George Washington turned the tide. It was many a weary month before the final victory was his, but Washington took the first great stride toward final victory when every indication pointed to a final slinking away into the shadows of defeat.

"I certainly hope that America never again is in so sorry a pass as it was that winter of 1776. What I do hope and pray for is that the courage, resolution, determination, and inspiration that George Washington embodied is still alive in the America of today.

"It is a magnificent heritage that Washington first brought into being and generations of patriotic Americans have handed down to us. Every generation has had to make its sacrifice to preserve it. Our generation has been no different from the others.

"If you consider the oldest among us, this generation has made it in more battlefields than any other in American history. Our hope this time is both different and higher. It is that we can mould an irresistible will for peace throughout the world, for be assured that no nation on earth, not even Russia, is as strong as the rest of the world put together.

"But the foundation of that irresistible will for peace can be only one: a militarily strong, spiritually resolute, unalterably determined United States of America.

Committee Meetings

The Legislature is in full swing. Each committee is meeting two and three times a week. There is a big push on to hear most legislative bills by the end of March. I serve as Vice Chairman of the Committee on Urban Affairs and a member of the Committee on Education. Any person who is interested or has filed legislation who wishes a status report should call my office in the State House.

The Committee on Urban Affairs heard two petitions of particular interest to Quincy residents this past week. There is a bill, filed by myself, to allow City School buses to use a portion of Quincy Shore Drive. The second bill pertains to granting a lease to residents of Redlocks Island, some of whose families have lived on the island for 5 generations.

The Committee on Transportation is considering legislation which I cosponsored to provide state money and incentives for the construction of off-street parking facilities in commercial areas. The bill is designed to provide communities with additional sources of funding other than the private sector or city and federal monies. If you have any questions, please feel free to call me at 328-0900 or in the State House at 727-7035.

16 Pills—Who Had Them? How Deadly 'Angel Di

By TOM HENSHAW

The boy was 13 years old, a junior high school student. When he collapsed in class one day he was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. His ailment was diagnosed as an overdose of drugs.

Another youngster told the school nurse that a girl in the class, also 13, had sold the boy, some pills. The nurse called her to the office. Petrified with fright, the girl admitted she sold the boy two pills for $2 each.

The nurse called John W. (Butch) Mahoney, the coordinator of social health in the Quincy schools. A major part of his job is dealing with the mounting problem of drugs in the schools, which he regards as "an ongoing battle, like World War II, an 'us vs. they' thing."

Mahoney questioned the girl.

The Quincy school system has a set of guidelines, called 'social health procedures,' to combat drugs problems in the classroom. But it also requires cooperation between parents and schools and the other influences that touch the child—and even then you can't be sure. This is the second in a series of articles about the drug problem in Quincy, as seen through the eyes of those who are in the front lines in the battle against it.

How many more pills did she have? She had eight. She gave them to Mahoney. He identified them as PCP, a powerful animal tranquilizer known cause irreversible brain damage.

How many pills did she have to begin with? She had 16. Counting the two the boy had taken and the eight in Mahoney's hand, that meant there were six unaccounted for around the school. The girl gave him the names of five other girls who had bought them.

Mahoney looked at his watch. There was less than a half hour before school was dismissed for the day and the students would disperse to their homes.

Mahoney got the girls' schedules and, accompanied by an assistant principal, he went to their rooms to make sure that they did not have a chance to discard the pills.

Garage Bond Faces Struggle

By TOM HENSHAW

The $1 million bond issue sought by Mayor Tobin to add two floors to a downtown parking garage faced tough sledding last night (Wednesday) at a special meeting of the City Council.

The proposal required a two-thirds vote of the Council, or six votes, to pass and a Quincy Sun survey prior to the meetings showed two councillors against it, one not voting, one undecided and one unavailable for comment.

"I can't see bonding city money for construction of the garage," said Council President Leo J. Kelly, who said he planned to vote against the bond. "It just opens ourselves up to other problems."

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath also said he planned to vote "no" on the bond proposal.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who is president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank,

Presidential Primaries Next Tuesday

35% To 40% Voter Turnout Forecast Here

By TOM HENSHAW

A high voter turnout of 35 per cent is expected for next Tuesday's presidential primary that features contests on every ballot, including rival slates for the Democratic committee in Ward 2.

City Clerk John Gillis predicted the 35 per cent turnout and he added that it could go much higher if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy were to make a good showing against President Carter in New Hampshire.

"The committee fight in Ward 2 plus the active campaigns that Republican and Democratic presidential candidates have been waging should bring out more people than usual," said Gillis.

Guy S. Faiella, chairman of the Board of Registrars, is even more optimistic than that, figuring a turnout of 40 per cent.

Four years ago, when the Democrats had 12 candidates for the presidential nomination on their ballot and the Republicans had two, there was a turnout of 38.3 per cent.

Then there were 49,872 registered voters, including 28,963 Democrats and 8,015 Republicans. Now there are 50,438, including 31,303 Democrats and 7,095 Republicans.

Nine names are in the presidential preference column of the Republican ballot, including Benjamin Fernandez, a little known California businessman, and Harold Stassen, a perennial hopeful.

More publicized GOP candidates on the ballot are John B. Anderson, Howard H. Baker, George H. Bush, John B. Connally, Ronald W. Reagan, Robert J. Dole and Philip M. Crane.

Voters are also permitted to write in the name of an unlisted candidate of their choice or check the "no preference" box, which would send uncommitted delegates to the convention.

The Democratic ballot contains the names of President Jimmy Carter, Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Kennedy.

Four years ago, Quincy voters indicated their preference for Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who got 24 per cent of the vote for the Democratic nomination; and

Some Home Oil Prices Over $1, Reports Survey

The first $1 per gallon prices for home heating oil were recorded this month in a statewide survey of oil dealers.

In addition, the average price climbed 2.4 cents, to 96.9 cents per gallon, reports the State Office of Energy Resources.

The 125 dealers contacted in the bi-weekly survey report that, while the recent cold weather has increased the demand for heating oil, supplies are still at sufficient levels. Moderate temperatures this winter and conservation measures have combined to cut demand by 20 to 25 percent since last year, the dealers said.

Homeowners in greater Boston were paying an average of 96.3 cents per gallon, with individual prices ranging from 92.2 to 98.9.

The highest prices, including the first prices over $1, were recorded in the Berkshires and on Cape Cod, according to the survey.

Joseph Fitzpatrick, secretary of the office of energy resources, urged residents to use the toll-free energy phone, 1-800-922-8265, for advice on cutting fuel bills.

ONE OF THE first snowmen of the winter, created by Allison Sage, 10; O'Gara, 10; Rebecca Sage, 13 and Kathy O'Donnell, 12, was at 150 Samoset Ave., Merrymount.

Final Results Awaited

Shipyard Asbestos Study Stirs Concern Among Workers

Concern has been stirred up among past and present employees of the General Dynamics shipyard by published reports that they have an 80 percent chance of contracting lung cancer or related diseases.

"We've had a lot of phone calls," said Earl Christian, executive secretary of Local 5 Shipbuilders Union, which represents most of the industrial employees at the yard.

The furor stems from a Feb. 20 Patriot Ledger article reporting that a doctor who had examined workers at the yard had cited an 80-to-85 percent chance that workers exposed to asbestos might contract lung cancer, asbestosis or other diseases.

The doctor, Irving Selikoff of Mt. Sinai School of Medicine, New York, had taken part in a study testing over 300 workers at General Dynamics last November. He reportedly told the Harvard School of Public Health that anyone exposed to asbestos shouldn't smoke, since the combination would increase the chances of getting lung cancer.

According to Christian, Selikoff later said that the 80-to-85 percent figure he cited was derived from a similar study completed on workers at a Baltimore shipyard. Final results on the Quincy study are not yet available, he claimed.

Asbestos has not been used in the Fore River shipyard since 1972, Christian said. But, he noted, symptoms from asbestos-related diseases can take from a dozen to 30 years to develop.

Christian says he's been advising callers, "If they think they have it, get a workman's compensation lawyer. The company hasn't been paying these things without a fight."

Medical proof that the disease is indeed work-related is also needed, Christian said.

"In some cases, survivors have gone to an attorney and they've been told they don't have a case. There must be proof that asbestos was the cause of the death," Christian said.

Finn Breaks Stalemate Capitol Gets Package Store License On 3-2 Vote

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Capitol Liquors, Inc., 150 Parkingway, Quincy Center, was awarded the city's only available retail package goods store - all alcoholic license by a 3-2 vote at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn made the deciding motion in favor of the Capitol, which was seconded by Building Inspector Allan MacDonald. Health
Commissioner Dr. Robert P.
McKeogh also voted in favor of the Capitol. City Clerk John M.
Gillis and Fire Chief Edward
Barry were opposed.

The board had reached a stalemate at the Feb. 12 meeting on whether to award the license to the Capitol or Preville's Market,
Summer St., Quincy Point. Chief Barry and Gillis had argued in favor of the license going to Preville's, described by Gillis as "a small business trying to make ends meet."

MacDonald and Dr. McKeogh had been in favor of the license going to the Capitol. "The license should go to the business that employs the most people, pays the most taxes and would give the city the most prestige," said MacDonald.

Chief Finn, was not present at that meeting. The board agreed at that meeting, however, to deny the license to a third applicant,
Don's Market, 247 Atlantic St.,
North Quincy.

In commenting on his vote in favor of the Capitol, Finn said, "I made this decision after weighing both sides of the issue. I feel we have to help the downtown area, and the Capitol has been in the city for a number of years and has proven to be a good merchant.
The merchants need some help at that location."

Creedon To Ask School Closings Study Begin Next Week

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon will recommend that the task force studying school closings meet first on March 3 and report back to the school committee April 9, he said this week.

The committee members were scheduled to appoint two persons each to the task force last night
(Wednesday) and vote on Creedon's suggested timetable for the group's study.

Creedon said Monday he would suggest a briefing session and organizational meeting for next Monday, March 3 and that the task force report back to the school committee at its April 9 meeting.

In between, Creedon said he would recommend twice-weekly meetings for the citizens' task force. The group will be directed to study the information available at the committee and make recommendations on which schools, if any, should be closed this year.

The school committee is not bound by the task force's recommendations.

Already named to the task force are John Sullivan's two choices,
Jewish War Veterans Commander
Jason Stone and Boston teacher
William F. Hurley. Both men are Quincy residents.

Sterling Parents To Discuss Public Schools Poll Results

The results and implications of a mini-poll based on the 11th annual Gallup Poll of the Public's Attitude Toward the Public Schools will be the topic for the Sterling Junior High Parents meeting March 4, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the school cafeteria, and all Sterling parents are invited to attend whether or not they participated in the mini poll.

Historic Districts Handbook Has Guidelines For Changes

A Quincy Historic Districts
Handbook is now available containing guidelines for those who wish to make exterior changes in their property within the districts.

The city's two historic districts are Quincy Center and the Adams Birthplaces, set up by the City Council in 1974 to protect the architectural and historic nature of the neighborhoods.

All exterior changes and new construction within the bounds of specified areas require the approval of the Quincy Historic District Commission.

The handbook, prepared by the Department of Planning and Community Development in conjunction with the commission, spells out what can and cannot be done within the districts.

There are sections on lighting, landscaping, new construction and outside rehabilitation.

It is suggested that the guidelines can also be applied voluntarily in other neighborhoods where residents would like to preserve the distinct character of the buildings and landscape.

Copies of the handbooks may be obtained from the Planning Department on the third floor of City Hall or by calling Bob Luongo
at 773-1380.

Police Survey Aimed At Boosting Parking Revenue

The Police Department has been surveying municipal parking areas, trying to find a way to stem a recent drop in meter revenues.

According to Acting Police Chief Paul Lahive, crews from the police General Services Department accompanied the city's meter maids last week, noting the number of spaces, empty spaces and violations, and the turnover in the lots.

Although Lahive could not say what actions might be taken as a result of the survey, he indicated better methods of enforcing the parking laws were being sought.

Revenue from parking meters has been on the decline lately, with income from some weeks off as much as a third, he said. One possible reason is the number of MBTA commuters using the parking lots, he said.

Although the survey appeared to be accompanied by an increase in the number of tickets issued in the Hancock Parking area in Quincy Center, Lahive said there was no connection between the two events.

Edward Lynch, superintendent of police general services, confirmed that such a survey was taking place but directed all questions to the chief's office.

Seniors Committee Meeting Rescheduled

The City Council's Senior Citizens Activities Committee will meet Thursday, Feb. 28, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber to continue its discussion of fuel problems of the elderly and the poor.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Feb. 19 and Feb. 21 but the date was changed by Chairman James A. Sheets because of conflicts with other scheduled events.

Thirteen women were awarded certificates as home health aides at an in-service meeting of Homemakers Services for the South Shore, Inc., held at 80 Clay St., Wollaston, recently.

They were also presented pins from the Massachusetts Council of Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services, Inc. for 300 hours of service.

Awards were presented to Joy Ellis, Rhoda Roman and Grace Dunn of Quincy; Frances Leminen and Geraldine Lyons, Braintree; Sally Burke, June Elwood, Marjorie Clain and Ruth Grazioso, Weymouth; Christine Parker, Cohasset; Gwendolyn Maynard, Hingham; Elizabeth Lucier, Randolph, and Patricia Leavitt, East Bridgewater.

In addition, pins for five years of service were presented to Josephine Brooks, Virginia Brownell, Edna Tobin, Clara Daru, Ruth Carter and Mary Ouellette of Quincy; Ethel O'Connor, Weymouth; and Philomena Toye, Braintree.

After the presentations, Barbara Walsh, executive director of the South Shore District of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, addressed the group on "The Homemaker's Role in Working With Abusing and Neglecting Families".

Memorial Gavel Presented To Legal Secretaries

Gladys M. Johnson of Canton, charter member of the Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association, recently presented a gavel to the local chapter in memory of the late Miss Alice C. MacFarlane.

Miss MacFarlane, a long time member of the association, died last spring. The gavel, engraved in Miss MacFarlane's memory, was purchased with donations made to the chapter in her name.

Accepting the gavel was chapter president Mrs. Audrey M. Watts of Weymouth, who will pass the gavel on to a new president at the chapter's installation in May.

Combined Jewish Philanthropies To Hold CJP Day March 9

The Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston will conduct a widespread fundraising effort CJP Day, March 9, in Quincy and three other local communities.

CJP Metropolitan Division campaigns will combine in a day long phoning session, seeking pledges for the 1980 CJP campaign from constituents.

The day will highlight a program of education, publicity and solicitation in the South Area in March.

Arthur Pearlstein, an associate chairman of the Metropolitan Division said: "When we contact families in the South Area, we hope they will already have begun to consider the tremendous accomplishments our community has achieved. CJP's human care agencies have developed efficient programs and services as needs become apparent, and we must increase our efforts to continue meeting those needs."

To volunteer for the telephoning effort, call CJP at 542-8080, ext. 319.

Ruth Johnson Girl Scout Cookie Manager For Quincy

Ruth Johnson, Girl Scout service unit cookie manager for Quincy, is coordinating the cookie stations, cookie distribution and reorders for troop cookie managers of the city's 38 Girl Scout troops.

Girl Scout cookies and nuts will be delivered to local cookie stations between March 3 and 7, and scouts will be delivering the cookies between then and March 21.

Girl Scouts are to turn in their money to troop cookie managers between March 15 and 28, and they will receive camp credit receipts and doodle art when last payments are made.

Local troops or the public can order extra cookies by calling the Cookie Cupboards located in Patriot's Trail Girl Scout Council Service Centers in Braintree, 848-1965; or Boston, 482-1078.

Proceeds from the sale will assist local troops in financing special activities, camping trips and service projects, as well as provide income for the Patriot's Trail Council operations and improved camp facilities.

IRON DEFICIENCY

According to world-famous nutritionist, Dr. Jean Mayer, iron deficiency is the most common deficiency disease in the U.S. It is a frequent problem for today's women and may be responsible for the common "washed-out" and chronically tired, pep-less feeling.

It's potentially a problem for every woman, a special one for dieters and teen-agers, and almost inescapable for menstruating women and nearly all pregnant ones.

So seriously does the National Research Council in Washington view this iron drain that it has upped the recommended daily iron intake from 15 milligrams to 18 for women between the ages of 10 and 55. Iron is needed to make hemoglobin, the pigment in red blood cells that carries oxygen through the body. Too little can result in a run-down, dead-tired feeling.

MDC Construction May Affect Water Taste, Color

It's OK to drink the water, announces MDC Commissioner Guy Carbone, even though it may taste or look a little funny.

A temporary change in distribution may cause a difference in the color and taste of drinking water in several communities, including Quincy, he said. The quality and purity of the water will not be affected, he added.

The tunnel connecting the MDC's Southern High Water System with the Quabbin Reservoir has been shut down temporarily because of construction activities. Boston's neighborhoods of Dorchester, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain and Roxbury and the communities of Brookline, Milton, Canton, Norwood and Quincy will be affected during the change.

During this period, which may last up to 90 days, those communities will be served from the Sudbury Reservoir and Sudbury Aqueduct.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The most enduringly fashionable gems probably have been the pearl and the turquoise. For over 8000 years these stones have been used in jewelry, thrones, or in ornaments. They have been set in gold, diamonds and many other stones as well. Diamonds have also been fashionable stones for a long period of time, but diamonds are relative newcomers. The famous South African diamond mines only started producing early in this century. The fact that diamonds' recent entrance into the world of fashion can easily be forgotten enhances its secure position.

We hope you won't forget us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 when looking for jewelry and other gift items. Remounting is one of our many services. Now would be a perfect time to design a new piece of jewelry, to suit your present life style and pocketbook, from old stones, out of date and unwanted jewelry. We also welcome trades of an old piece towards a new. Hours: Mon. thru Sat., 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Drugs Spreading Like A Cancer

It CAN happen here.
It HAS happened here.
It IS happening here.
"It" is the sale and use of illegal drugs, from marijuana to cocaine to the insidious "angel dust," in the streets, in public facilities, and depressingly, in the schools.

No community is immune from it, and that includes Quincy, as is being shown by the series now running in The Quincy Sun, taken from the files and memories of the men who are in the front lines in the battle against illicit drugs. And that's just what it is, a battle.

"It's an ongoing battle, like World War II," says John W. (Butch) Mahoney, who is on the line every day as social health coordinator in the Quincy schools. "The sides are as clearly defined as they are in war. It is an 'us vs. they' thing."

"The drug business is rolling, rolling, rolling," says Lt. Walter Lynch, who recently asked out as head of the Quincy Police Drug Unit after nine years of frustration. "It's so big now that it seems like there is no stopping it. It's only getting worse."

In this week's Quincy Sun there are two news stories that emphasize the problem.

Five youths were arrested Sunday in the MBTA parking lot in Quincy Center with, among other things, what police describe as 53 "purple microdots." Purple microdots usually contain LSD, a powerful hallucinogen.

The Quincy Sons of Italy have just donated $1,500 to purchase for the Quincy Police Department a dog to be trained in detecting drugs by smell. Dogs can sniff out marijuana and cocaine but not PCP, the so-called "angel dust." That's an animal tranquilizer. It causes sleep in dogs. It causes brain damage in humans.

Butch Mahoney, Lt. Lynch and the Quincy police, and now the Sons of Italy, have come to recognize the drug problem for the malignancy that it is, particularly to the young.

Perhaps it's time that the rest of us learned to recognize it too.

It's here in Quincy as it is in every community. No community is immune—including Quincy. Not only must we recognize this fact, but admit it, too. Then maybe we can work together to bring it under control. It is a social cancer that must be stopped. Now is the time to do it—before it is too late.

The Kids: A Big Lift

Hostages in Teheran enter fourth month . . . OPEC hikes price of oil again . . . Chicago firefighters go on strike . . . Congressmen accused in bribery scandal . . . Russian soldiers fighting in Afghanistan.

It's hard to remember the last time we read a "good news" headline in the daily paper.

Then, in two electrifying weeks, a band of 20 enthusiastic American youngsters, who really never should have been there in the first place but didn't quit once they were, changed all that while the whole world looked on.

It was Jim McKay, the anchorman for ABC, who compared the victory of the U.S. Olympic hockey team over the Soviet Union's unbeatable sextet to a team of Canadian college kids whipping the Pittsburgh Steelers, the greatest upset in the history of sports.

We think it went beyond that, beyond sports.

It lifted a whole people from the edge of despondency to a point where, for one glorious moment at least, it was fun to be an American again.

Well done, kids.

Points To Ponder

- No matter how you slice it, Monday is a horrible way to spend 1/7 of your life.
- Do you think Russia would agree to pull out of Afghanistan, if we agree to pull the U.S. hockey team and Eric Heiden out of any future Olympics?
- T-shirts, now-a-days have almost anything printed on them. By far, however, the most disturbing thing you'll ever see on a T-shirt is the price tag.
- Isn't it ironic that our country spends millions and millions of dollars to build gymnasiums and sports arenas for young people to get exercise, and then spends millions more to transport them to school instead of having them get exercise by walking.
- During February we honor the birthdays of two of our most illustrious Presidents. It's hard to imagine though, that George Washington never told a lie and Abraham Lincoln was known as Honest Abe, and yet both men did so well in politics.

McGrath Eyes State Rep. Seat

City councillor Steve McGrath has his eye on Beacon Hill.

McGrath, insiders say, is going to run for state representative in the Second Norfolk District—the seat now held by Thomas Brownell.

A "Campaign Cocktail Reception" is being planned for McGrath for March 19 at the Neighborhood Club. Tickets are $35 per couple.

The Second Norfolk District includes Ward 1, Ward 5, Precinct 7 of Ward 4, and Precincts 1, 2, 5 of Ward 3.

McGrath, who is 26, is now in his second term as Ward 6 councillor. He was re-elected without opposition.

Friends say that McGrath will accent the positive in his campaign. That he's running for the job because he thinks he can do a good job—not "running against" Brownell.

McGRATH

philosophy. They just wanted to see what ties the candidates were wearing.

All the candidates except Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas have appeared at Chamber breakfasts or luncheons where the reward is the official "sea gull" tie of the Chamber.

CONNOLLY

When President Paul D. MacElhiney presented the tie to former Texas Gov. John Connolly last week he suggested Connolly might want to wear it that night since every other candidate had one.

"I wouldn't want you to go unprepared," said MacElhiney.

"We're all accused of having the same philosophical views anyway," said Connolly. "now we can dress alike."

And who wore the sea gull tie on TV? No one, that's who.

The Chamber's Executive Vice President Ron Zooleck, incidentally, thinks that Rev. Bedros Baharian, Quincy's development coordinator, is having an influence on the presidential campaign.

When Connolly spoke to the Chamber at noon, he advocated that people be permitted to set up "nest egg" accounts with taxes deferred on the income as a method of building up capital.

Baharian suggested that maybe there should be no taxes at all on the "nest egg," and Connolly allowed that that was a good idea. It was so good, in fact, that he incorporated it in his plan on TV that night.

INCIDENTALLY, does Connolly remind you a lot of Lyndon Johnson in speech and mannerism? And, at times, even looks like him. Johnson was Connolly's political idol.

WOOF! WOOF! Norfolk County has confirmed what many joggers, motorists and pedestrians alike have suspected—Quincy has the largest dog population in the county.

The county's annual report says 3,997 licensed canines call Quincy home—30 more than in Weymouth. Licenses for 50,310 dogs were issued throughout the county during 1979.

Quincy's dog population consists of 2,254 males, 1,499 spayed females and 240 unspayed females.

County treasurer James M. Collins reported $57,264.61 was returned to the county's 28 communities, with Quincy getting $4,508. The funds are earmarked for library purposes.

Many Positions Available For Decennial Census

The Bureau of the Census reports there are many positions available for the 1980 Decennial Census which will be taken April 1.

Employees will be paid on either a piece rate or hourly basis, depending on the job, and can earn $135 or more for a 40 hour week. A separate fee will be paid for training.

Persons employed will work up to 40 hours a week or more, and field employees will work some evenings and Saturdays.

Applicants must take a written test measuring such things as their ability to read and understand printed instructions, to do simple arithmetic and to perform clerical tasks.

For more information, contact Tricia DeLuca, Steve Crowley or Robert Stanton at 472-3623 or 472-3624.

Completion Seen In 1983

Burgin Parkway Extension Meets Approval At Hearing

Little, if any, opposition to the Burgin Parkway Extension surfaced last week at a design public hearing held by the Massachusetts DPW in the Lincoln-Hancock School.

"I feel the majority of the people out there, even those who had doubts about the project, sympathize with the problems of the city and they feel we are doing the right thing," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"Every indication I have from the Planning Department tells me that things are progressing very nicely."

The design presented last week includes the proposed Burgin Parkway (formerly Upland Rd.) extension from Granite to Center Sts. and a proposed Granite-Parkway Connector.

Also in the design was two bridges, one on Water St., the other on the Granite Parkway Connector, and a portion of the Town Brook local Flood Control Conduit.

Phase One, which includes the extension from Granite St. just past the Connector, will be advertised next fall and Phase Two, the rest of the project, will go to bid in the late spring of 1981. Target date for completion is the spring of 1983.

"This is probably the single most important highway project that will be built in my lifetime," said Sen. Paul D. Harold in recording his support of the extension.

Former Mayor and Planning Director Walter Hannon explained its importance.

"I don't think we ever really can measure what this is going to do for downtown Quincy," he said. "We can look back and see what has happened over the past 20 years because we did not have this road."

"Whoever was here 20 years ago did not have the foresight to give us the southerly and westerly access that we needed to the Quincy Center business area."

No one at the hearing actually opposed the concept of the Burgin Parkway Extension although concerns were expressed about some of the specific parts of the proposal.

David L. Trainor, attorney for Paperama, said the company was concerned that the Granite-Parkway Connector Bridge would disrupt business while it was being built over the Paperama parking lot.

"If consideration is not given we cannot continue to support the project, no matter how much potential good there is in it because we won't be around to enjoy it," he said.

Paul McHugh, who chaired the hearing for the DPW, promised that the DPW and the city would work with Paperama to cut the damages to the business.

H. William Moore, a consultant for the city, told the hearing that the Connector would not end in the Parkingway but would eventually cross Hancock St. to McGrath Highway.

"Ultimately," he said, "the road must go through otherwise it isn't eligible for federal funding and the city would be obligated to pay back the money."

"The city is in the process of signing a covenant with the state that they will proceed with a study."

The proposed Crosstown Connector, as it was then called, was placed on hold two years ago when merchants at the lower end of the Square objected to the manner in which it cut through Hancock St.

City Councillors James A. Sheets and Daniel G. Raymond recorded themselves in favor of the extension but both expressed their concerns about the flooding problem in South Quincy.

Sheets predicted that there will be "severe flooding problems" unless the Town Brook flood control project planned by the Army Corps of Engineers is carried out "hand in glove" with the Burgin Parkway Extension.

"Water will be collected faster and there will be more of it and there is only one place for it to go—down the Town Brook drainage system," he said.

"Someone has to put spurs to the Army Corps of Engineers and the Congress to get these two projects in tandem. This is the time to put pressure on the Army Corps."

McHugh answered Raymond's concern by saying that the DPW will hold the status quo on Town Brook during the construction phase.

"We're not going to solve that problem right now," he said.

City Council Bars Raises Granted By School Committee

The City Council, in an unprecedented action, voted to instruct the City Auditor not to honor the $200 salary increases granted to School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard and Asst. Supt. Albert H. Cochran by the School Committee.

Councillor Russell T. Bates led the attack on the raises that would have made Dr. Gossard's salary $8,200 and Cochran's $5,400.

But Bates failed in a bid to forestall a $500 raise for Dr. Ensio K. F. Ronka, director of City Hospital, and a $200 increase for Public Works Commissioner James P. Donovan.

Councillor Thomas F. Gilmartin succeeded in getting the Council to reject a $4,500 for creation of the new school post of assistant superintendent for maintenance and business affairs.

LANDMARK BURNS

An early morning fire destroyed the landmark newsstand next to City Hall operated by blind Samuel Gray, 52, which had the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce as the official tourist information bureau for Quincy.

Gray, a familiar figure around Quincy Square for 20 years, said he hoped to be back in business in four days. He estimated damage to newspapers, magazines, cigarettes, cigars and tobacco at $600.

FIRST LOSS FOR NORTH

The North Quincy High School basketball team suffered its first loss of the season after 14 wins as Brockton outscored the Raiders 8-4 in the last period for a 30-29 victory.

Nevertheless, the North Quincy team was one of the first chosen to play in the Tech Tournament at Boston Garden.

Criticizes Senator Jackson's Remarks

Editor, The Quincy Sun,

Today, on the T.V. Today's broadcast, a bitter, frustrated man, once a candidate for the Presidency of the U.S., appeared to contribute some inflammatory remarks. Even more strange is that he waited to inform his fellow citizens till today (Feb. 20), a few days before important primaries in New Hampshire!

Supposedly an influential Senator, Jackson complains that though he warned the White House of Soviet duplicity early in our President's occupancy, he was ignored. He used words known to have negative overtones like "bureaucrats" in reference to occupants of the White House who "white-washed" his serious, concerned warning. Poor baby!

Are we to believe that a long-term Senator would allow such a "white-wash" to stop him if he truly wanted such dire information to reach public ears? Had he no access to the media? If so, why is he now able to get coast to coast T.V. coverage just before the New Hampshire coming event?

Sen. Jackson referred to "new-born hawks" in reference to recent proposals to increase the national budget in the area of the military.... so subtle is he.

Why the frustrated Senator doesn't come out of the ground, (it's the month for it) openly endorse a Democrat for the office of President is puzzling.

If the Senator is trying to avoid the charge "politics as usual" as the purpose for his timely appearance he goes about it like an amateur....which he is NOT! I suspect he just fell short of endorsing his brother senator, T. Kennedy....perhaps that will come later.

Since puns are popular in the Senator from Washington's vocabulary here's some for him: "Birds of a feather flock....together".

Richard S. Cole, 70, Former Hospital Comptroller

Funeral services will be held today (Thursday) in Church of the Pilgrimage, Plymouth, for Richard S. Cole, former comptroller of Quincy City Hospital.

Mr. Cole, 70, died in Jordan Hospital, Plymouth Monday after a long illness.

Born in Attleboro, he lived in Quincy before moving to Plymouth nine years ago.

A graduate of Attleboro schools, he received his degree in business administration from Northeastern University.

He was comptroller at the hospital from 1954 to 1969, and a member of the Hospital Financial Managers Association. He was a captain in the Quincy Auxiliary Fire Department during World War II and a member of the Chester I. Campbell Men's Club of Wollaston Congregational Church.

He was also active in Plymouth political and social activities.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs.

Hope (Rider) Cole; two daughters, Mrs. Judith Page of Plymouth and Mrs. Joanne Ball of Scituate; four sisters, Mrs. Ruth Flemming of Attleboro, Mrs. Grace Doyle of Narragansett, R.I.; Mrs. Florence Mitchell of Oak Park, Ill. and Mrs. Jane Brennan of Peoria, Ariz. and 11 grandchildren.

Visiting hours were scheduled for 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at Beaman Funeral Home, Plymouth. Burial will be in Plymouth County Memorial Park.

Marine Corps League Service

In Memory Of William R. Caddy Sunday

The William R. Caddy Detachment of the Marines Corps league will honor the man after the detachment is named at a memorial service on Sunday, March 2.

The service will be held at noon at William R. Caddy Memorial Park, off Quincy Shore Drive, Merrymount.

Private First Class Caddy died on March 3, 1945 on Iwo Jima and was later awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for throwing himself on a grenade and saving the lives of his comrades. Caddy is buried at the Punch Bowl, a national cemetery in Hawaii.

The William R. Caddy Detachment was formed in October, 1946 and the memorial park was dedicated in his name in 1961.

Each year on March 3, or the Sunday closest to that date, the detachment places a wreath in memory of Caddy at the park. Also taking part will be his sister, Mrs. Wilbur Bevans and other family members.

First Church Of Squantum Observes First Sunday Of Lent

Members of the First Church of Squantum observed the first Sunday of Lent this week with two unusual musical offerings at the morning service.

The Boys' Choir, consisting of boys between the ages of five and eight, sang "Happy The Man" by Sebastian Temple. Their director, Kathi Fluhr, accompanied them on the autoharp.

The Senior Choir sang "Jesus! Name of Wondrous Love" by W. Walsham Titcomb. Robert L. Frazer was the soloist. Mary Ruth Scott is the director of the Senior Choir.

In his talk to the children, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, showed newspaper pictures of Olympic gold-medalist Eric Heiden and noted that Jesus was the "hero" of the Christian Church.

Leon MacIntyre led the Opening Prayer and the Lord's Prayer. Kathi Fluhr gave the Children's Prayer and Ralph Dougherty offered the Prayer of Dedication. Dr. Langevin said a special prayer for the hostages in Iran and their families, and for our country and leaders.

The sermon, "What Makes Jesus So Important?" was the first of a series of nine on the theme, "Jesus Christ, Son of God and Savior."

Greeters for the morning were Calvin and Gretchen Bumpus and their children, Holly and Blythe. Ushers were Tore Wallin, Bonnie Adams, Susan Mildram, Tom Adams, Steve A. Williams and Steven E. Williams.

The Fellowship hour after the service was hosted by Janet Sumner, Ida Von Riegers, Lorraine Josselyn, Richard Williams and David Stohberg.

The sermon for next Sunday's 10:15 a.m. service will be "How Does Jesus 'Change' People?" Both the Youth Choir and the Senior Choir will sing.

How Deadly 'Angel Dust' Got Into a Junior High School

He questioned them in a group. None admitted having a pill. Then he separated them and questioned them again. Still no admission. He called them in again separately. The other girls confessed, he said, why didn't they? He wouldn't punish them. All he wanted was the pills. One by one, they broke down and gave them to him. He had all 14.

"Nothing was done to the kids," said Mahoney. "They weren't suspended. There was no court action. But in cases like this the school has a moral obligation to tell the parents."

The parents were called in the next day for conferences, a half hour apart. Some were angry. Some were disappointed. Some were not surprised. All were cooperative.

One task remained for Mahoney. Where did the girl who sold the pills get them in the first place? She had been babysitting for her aunt, she told him, and the aunt gave them to her to sell. Mahoney gave the information to the girl's mother.

"The mother came in for a conference the next day," he said, "but there wasn't much to discuss. She said the girl had made a mistake. The aunt would never do anything like that. The girl must have found them somewhere. That was that."

The youngsters who were involved in the case were watched closely. The boy who overdosed recovered. He has not been in trouble since. Neither has the girl who sold the pills. The others have had some problems. The names of three of them keep popping up in Mahoney's files, not necessarily for drugs.

Except for the fact that the pills were recovered and no one suffered lasting bodily harm, it would appear that the case came to an unsatisfactory conclusion. No one went to jail. The source of the drugs went untouched.

But to Mahoney it illustrated the effectiveness of the Quincy public school system's seven-year-old social health procedures, provided they are observed to the letter.

"The school nurse followed the procedures to a T," said Mahoney, "and she did it quickly. She saw that the boy got to the hospital. She held onto the girl who had the information about the pills. And she called me."

"If school involvement had ceased once the boy was sent to the hospital then no one would have been aware of what was happening. They would not have known why the kids were nodding off in class. There could have been a serious overdose later on."

"We had the evidence, too."

When we contacted the parents, there was no question what had taken place. The parents had a chance to see their children in a new perspective. It opened up a line of communication between the parents and the school."

Cooperation from the parents of the troubled boy or girl is vital.

Mahoney recalls the case of another junior high school boy who came to his attention several years ago for smoking marijuana. The youngster was caught in possession of a joint, the name given to a marijuana cigarette, loosely wrapped and twisted at both ends.

"Even at 13 or 14, he was a cocky, disrespectful kid," says Mahoney, "yet he got blind support from his father. The father said: 'My kid wouldn't do that. He was probably holding it for someone.'"

The youngster was suspended for awhile. When he came back to school he had behavioral problems. He swore at teachers. His attendance was erratic. He always seemed to be around when some illegal activity was going on. He was what Mahoney calls "a poor citizen."

"He got into problems outside school, too," says

Mahoney. "Finally his father withdrew him from school. We lost track of him until a couple of months ago we read that he was convicted of kidnap and rape and sentenced to six years in Walpole."

"There is no guarantee, but if his parents had listened as early as junior high school and had been cooperative to our suggestions the kid might not have ended up in Walpole. But, like I say, there is no guarantee."

"You can't save all the kids. A school system the size of ours turns out the doctors, the lawyers, the businessmen, but it also turns out the rapists and the bank robbers. We run the complete spectrum of society."

"Even with everything going for you, there is no guarantee that you'll turn out a productive citizen."

"A lot of parents do a guilt trip when their kid gets in trouble. They cry, 'Where did I do wrong?' Maybe they did nothing wrong. Kids are touched by a lot of things, a lot of people. Parents are only one. So are the schools."

(Next week — How some high school kids went south of the border for marijuana and what happened when a little old lady got curious on the plane.)

Lt. Lynch's Statement

Lt. Walter Lynch was quoted by The Sun last week as saying, "In my nine years we have had only two investigations in which somebody went to jail." That was not correct -- although sometimes it seems that way.

What Lt. Lynch said was: "Two years ago we had one of the biggest investigations in my nine years on the job. Eighty people were arrested, 50 went to court, but only two went to jail."

Three Marshfield youths pleaded innocent to drug-related charges in Quincy District Court after they were arrested Sunday with two juveniles in the parking lot of the Quincy Center MBTA station.

The cases of Steven S. Sevigny, 18, Stuart T. Gilmore, 19, and Jeffrey Gilmore, 18, were continued until March 18 and all three were released in personal recognizance.

The trio was arrested Sunday afternoon in the MBTA parking lot by Patrolman Donald Pearson, who said he saw them acting suspiciously, stopped them and confiscated what appeared to be illegal substances.

The substances, police said, included an ounce of white powder, 53 purple microdots, eight tablets and six marijuana cigarettes.

The youths were charged with conspiracy to violate the controlled substances act and possession of a controlled substance.

Open Hearing City of Quincy

German Shepherd Gift From Sons Of Italy Newest Police Recruit To Snoop For Hidden Drugs

The newest member of the Quincy Police Department is an 8-month-old German shepherd named "Snoopy".

Snoopy, who was recruited by the Sons of Italy with a $1,500 gift to the city, is a narcotics dog whose assignment will be to sniff out drugs hidden by dealers and users.

"He will certainly lessen the burden on our officers," said Lt. David Rowell, head of the Quincy Police Drug Unit. "Sometimes hidden drugs are very difficult to find."

Snoopy was introduced Tuesday at a picture-taking session and news conference in Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's office.

Det. Frank Grondin, Snoopy's handler, explained that the dog was as yet untrained to sniff drugs but his credentials for the job were impeccable.

"His mother and father were narcotics dogs," said Grondin, "and so were his grandfather and grandmother."

Grondin, a member of the Quincy Police force for 12 years, and Snoopy will start school together Monday, March 10, at the Criminal Academy in Southboro.

After five days in the classroom, Snoopy will spend eight weeks learning the smell of the different drugs.

"All except PCP (angel dust)," said Grondin. "You can't train a dog to sniff PCP because it's an animal tranquilizer and it puts them to sleep."

Snoopy should be ready for active duty with the Drug Unit in mid-May or early June, although he'll be able to sniff out the pungent marijuana a lot sooner.

Presenting the dog to the city on behalf of the Sons of Italy were Mimmo D'Arcangelo, venerable; Mario Salvatore, chairman of charity; and Sam Masotta, chairman of bingo.

Garage Bond Issue Faces City Council Struggle

said he would not vote on the issue for fear of conflict of interest since his bank is on land that figures in another phase of the project.

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, the former Mayor whom Tobin defeated in a bitter campaign in 1977, was not available for comment. Some City Hall observers think LaRaia holds the key vote.

Councillor Joanne Condon said her vote would "depend on the information brought before us by the administration. I do not have enough right now to vote intelligently."

"I have a lot of questions," she said. "What is the garage going to look like? Where are the spaces reserved for shoppers' parking going to be? Will the spaces be metered?"

"I'm sure that if the information is well presented and the need for the two extra floors is shown clearly then maybe all the councillors will be able to support it."

Tobin conceded that the bond issue was in some trouble with the Council.

"I hope that the Council will be able to put political thinking aside," he said, "but if they don't, we'll just have to accept their vote. It's not the wisest thing to do but we'll accept it and go on from there with the five-story garage."

The city received a $3.79 million urban development action grant (UDAG) from the federal government with which to build the garage but that sum turned out to be only enough to build five floors, not seven, on the garage.

Seven floors were needed to guarantee space to Campanelli Quincy Enterprises for the office building being constructed on the Della Chiesa Parking area and to make up for lost shopper spaces.

"Originally," said Tobin, "when the money was awarded there was only enough to build a five-story garage. I did not want to go before the Council and request additional funds. That was strictly a political decision because of these tight economic times."

"But when you talk about taking the city of Quincy through the 80s and beyond and knowing of two future developments we'll be announcing on top of all the development we've brought in, it makes good sense to put the additional two floors on at the present time."

"I hope the council votes on the merit of the issue and not on personalities."

New Challenge For QHA Safford St. Home

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Quincy Housing Authority will move ahead with plans for a home for mentally retarded adults on Safford St., Wollaston despite yet another challenge.

One day after the long-awaited building permit was finally issued, a Safford St. resident filed a petition with the Zoning Appeals Board, asking that it be revoked.

The petition, according to a letter from Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon to QHA administrator Clement O'Brien, was filed last Friday by Gertrude Knowles of 207 Safford St., a direct abutter of the proposed home at 215 Safford St.

Lydon, a long-time opponent of the home, said he was notified of the petition "as a courtesy" and, in turn, notified the QHA. He was not acting on behalf of the abutter, he said.

Gertrude Knowles was not available for comment Tuesday and Lydon said, "I'm not commenting on it at all."

O'Brien said preparation for the home would go on as planned, since he had not received any official notification of any petition or action from the Zoning Appeals Board. He didn't know whether the petition would be accepted by the board, or when a ruling on it could be made, he said.

Since a building permit for the home had been issued by Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, bids for renovations to 215 Safford St. could be readvertised, and the home could be in operation as soon as midsummer, according to QHA Administrator Clement O'Brien.

The home, which will house six mentally and physically handicapped persons and four fulltime staff persons, has been the center of controversy between the authority, MacDonald and Wollaston residents since 1977.

MacDonald seemingly ended a months-long stalemate last week by agreeing to issue the permit.

O'Brien's surprise announcement of the agreement at last week's QHA meeting apparently paved the way for the authority, the Department of Mental Health and the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens (SSARC) to sign a final agreement.

A previous contract reached last year with Eco-Systems Inc. of Boston to perform the renovations at $93,000 fell through. The contractor notified the QHA that, because of the long delay in obtaining the building permit, the bid prices could no longer apply. O'Brien said the new cost of renovations would undoubtedly be higher.

Residents of the home will receive education and vocational training from the four staff members, who will be employees of the SSARC.

Brownell Draws New Bead On MDC Associate Commissions

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has taken off after the assistant MDC commissioners again.

Brownell recently testified before the Committee on Urban Affairs that the four $12,000 a year posts should be eliminated and replaced by a parttime advisory board.

The committee is considering legislation filed by Brownell that would abolish the positions. Similar legislation, also filed by the Quincy rep, failed in the last session.

"The $48,000 taxpayer burden is unnecessary as most of the work done by the associate commissioners is done by the full-time MDC staff," he said.

"It is my belief that these jobs are clearly gubernatorial patronage positions held by a few chosen campaign workers who maintain fulltime jobs in the private business sector."

Barbara Keefe Candidate

For Democratic State Committee

Barbara M. Keefe of 86 Edgell Rd., Braintree is a candidate for the Democratic State Committee from the 5th Norfolk District, comprising Avon, Braintree, Holbrook and Quincy.

1465 Catholic Daughters of America, Sacred Heart Parish, Weymouth; and a member of the Sacred Heart Mothers Club. Mrs. Keefe has also served as a volunteer at Long Island Hospital and at Foxboro State Hospital.

Formerly on the nursing staff of the Mass. Hospital School for Crippled Children in Canton, and of the Shriners Burns Institute, Mrs. Keefe is currently employed as a Supervisor at the Deaconess Hospital in Boston.

She has, for the past 20 years been actively involved in Democratic political campaigns on the local, state, county and national levels.

Married to John D. Keefe, a lifelong resident and former Selectman of the Town of Braintree, Mrs. Keefe is the mother of two daughters, Maureen and Kathleen Keefe Hood, both residents of Braintree.

A past Grand Regent of Court

Turnout Forecast Here

They are Suzanne Sheahan Johnson and Mary A. O'Connell, both of Quincy, and Maryanne Doherty of Avon and Barbara M. Keefe of Braintree.

Four years ago, O'Donnell turned back Keefe by some 2,600 votes.

O'Donnell's name is also featured on one of the slates that is contesting for 34 of the 35 seats on the Ward 2 Democratic Committee. Also on that slate are former assessor James P. Papile and former budget coordinator Sarah P. Saccone.

On the opposing slate are Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Rep. Robert A. Ceraso, City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond and Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall.

Kathryn Roberts Seeks Re-Election

As GOP State Committeewoman

Kathryn D. Roberts of 37 Estabrook Rd., Wollaston, is seeking re-election as Republican State Committeewoman.

She represents the Quincy, Braintree, Avon and Holbrook District.

Mrs. Roberts has been a State Committee member since 1976, was a delegate to the Massachusetts Republican State Convention in 1978, and is a District Director for the Massachusetts Federation of Republican Women.

President of the Women's Republican Club of Quincy, she is a member of the Ward 5 Republican Committee, member of the Quincy Historical Society, member of the Beechwood Knoll PTO, member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, 1974, Steering Committee of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus, 1973 and a member of the Growth Policy Commission, 1977.

Mrs. Roberts said she believes the Republican candidates for President have generated enthusiasm, interest and renewed participation in the Republican Party. Republicans have an opportunity to increase the number of senators and representatives in both the federal and state legislatures, she noted.

She said she is convinced that a United Republican Party after the July Convention can and will bring new leadership to the country.

A social hour for Mrs. Roberts was scheduled for last night (Wednesday), from seven to 10 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Thomas Costello, Wollaston.

Joyce Baker Candidate

For GOP State Committeewoman

Joyce I. Baker, Candidate for Republican State Committee-woman in the March 4 Presidential Primary, announces she has received the endorsements of Henry Cabot Lodge and John Volpe.

She said she has also received endorsements from Boston City Councilman John Sears, former Sen. Edward Brooke, Avi Nelson and Frank Hatch.

"The first responsibility of the State Committee," she said, "is to serve the grass roots organizations, assisting them in every way possible to grow, raise money, recruit candidates, and stimulate interest from all members of the party."

She expressed alarm at the virtual elimination of the two-party system which she said is a vital necessity for the checks and balances of our democratic process. If elected, she pledges to work with all segments of the Republican Party to increase enrollments in order that the two-party system will once again be a reality.

Mrs. Baker was a delegate to the National Convention in Kansas City in 1976; and a candidate for State Representative, Fourth Norfolk in 1974. She is vice-chairman of the Ward 5 Quincy Republican City Committee; treasurer and past president of the Quincy Women's Republican Club; nominating committee member of the Massachusetts Republican Club, as well as a member of a number of civic organizations.

monthly health series.

Dr. Reardon will also show slides and discuss smoking and throat problems and financial help for hearing aids through Medicare.

Legislation Needed To Protect Abused Seniors, Says Delahunt

Norfolk County Atty. William D. Delahunt recently told a legislative committee that the elderly of Massachusetts are being abused, and that legislation is needed to protect senior citizens.

"It's time we had a statute in Massachusetts which will truly help and protect our abused elderly," said Delahunt. "We need to know both the scope of the problem and exactly who needs help."

Delahunt spoke before the Human Services Committee regarding House 4709, the bill he has filed to protect the elderly. Delahunt's legislation would require certain professionals, such as doctors, nurses, and policemen, to report cases of abuse against the elderly.

"The Department of Elder Affairs must be free to not only receive and investigate reports of elderly abuse, but to also act as an advocate for the elderly," stated Delahunt. "It must be allowed to focus its efforts on that responsibility, and the Department of Social Services can be concerned with providing required services."

Delahunt's measure provides for the DEA and DSS to split responsibility regarding protection for the elderly.

"We have a Family Services Unit, which gives aid to victims of domestic violence," Delahunt said. "We've seen more and more cases of elderly abuse, and that's why I've introduced this legislation. It's not intended as a final answer, but it's a start."

March 7 Deadline For St. Patrick's Dinner Dance Tickets

Quincy's senior citizens are reminded that March 7 is the deadline for obtaining tickets for the annual St. Patrick's Dinner Dance.

Mrs. Marion Andrews, Executive Director, Quincy Council on Aging, announced the event will be held Thursday, March 13, at the Bryan VFW Post Hall, Broad St., Quincy.

A corned beef and cabbage dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. Baron Hugo's orchestra will play for dancing from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m. Bus transportation will be provided from various housing units. Tickets are $7.50. The meal will be served family style.

Further information may be obtained from the Council on Aging Office, 773-1380.

Tickets Available For Seniors Trip To Flower Show

The Quincy Council on Aging will sponsor its annual trip to the Flower show, Thursday, March 20. Tickets are $2 and are on sale in the Council on Aging office in the Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

Mrs. Marion Andrews, executive director, announces that due to the limited amount of tickets available, they will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. Tickets will also be limited to six per person upon presentation of identification card for each.

Further information may be obtained from the Council on Aging Office, 773-1380.

If Closed These Schools May Become:

- Myles Standish A Warehouse
- Great Hill Marine Center
- Cranch CETA Headquarters

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The closing of city schools this year could mean the Myles Standish School being used as a warehouse, the Great Hill as a center for marine studies or the Cranch as headquarters for Quincy CETA.

Those were some of the many possible uses revealed by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon this week.

Opponents of proposed school closings have claimed empty, boarded-up buildings would have detrimental effects on the city neighborhoods and said the school systems had not presented plans for using the closed schools.

"That is true, and it is not true," said Creedon. Until Mayor Arthur Tobin asked for a report on possible school closings in his Jan. 7 inaugural address, Creedon had not been formally asked for any list of school uses.

"There is no hard and fast plan, but there are some alternatives that are pretty well known to (school) committee members," Creedon said.

"There isn't a single school in the system that I couldn't tell you how we would propose to see it used," Creedon said. Proposed uses vary from school to school depending on age, location, structure and other factors, he said.

If the school committee decides to close any schools, it must then either decide on a school-related use for the building or turn it back to the city council. The council may then use the building for city purposes or dispose of it.

The six smallest schools in the system, and the six most likely to be closed by the school committee this spring, are the Great Hill (projected Oct. 80 enrollment, 48 students), Myles Standish (90), Hunting (90), Cranch (130), Beechwood Knoll (166) and the Gridley Bryant (190).

Referring to those six schools, Creedon discussed the following possible uses:

- A school system center for marine studies could be located at the Great Hill School, near the tip of Houghs Neck, or the Myles Standish or Beechwood Knoll schools, which are near both tidal marshes and Wollaston Beach.
- Quincy High's Alternative Learning Environment program, now in borrowed space in Quincy Junior College's Courtroom Building, could be relocated at one of several buildings. This would include the Great Hill, Hunting, Cranch or Beechwood Knoll schools. Beechwood Knoll, because of its central location, would be best if the ALE became a city-wide program, Creedon said.

Now in operation only at Quincy High, ALE isolates potential dropouts in a program featuring close supervision and strong student-teacher relationships. About 100 students are involved this year.

● The school system's business offices, now located in space rented from Quincy Savings Bank, could be located in either the Myles Standish or Beechwood Knoll schools.

Other proposed uses for the Myles Standish School are warehouse space or headquarters for the system's maintenance facilities. The system now rents warehouse space at Boston Harbor Marina, while the maintenance headquarters are located in "prime educational space" on the first floor of Quincy Vo-Tech, Creedon said.

● Quincy Junior College programs, such as medical facilities, could be moved to either the Cranch or Great Hill Schools, he added.

● If no school-related use is found for the buildings, at least one city department has expressed interest in using the Cranch or Myles Standish schools as a training center.

In addition, the Quincy CETA office has asked about renting the Cranch School for its administrative offices, Creedon said.

The one school among the six with no apparent use to the school system is the Gridley Bryant, he said.

"It's a difficult one," he said, "it's small, and kind of remote." The school, if closed, would probably be turned over to the City Council, which, because of the school's nearness to the Southeast Expressway, would probably find it a valuable piece of property, Creedon said.

RONALD REAGAN

INTEGRITY TO PRINCIPLE...

...EFFECTIVE ADMINISTRATION

*INFLATION: Reagan understands inflation comes from Government spending more than it takes in. Printing money like this cheapens every dollar we earn.

*GOVERNMENT SPENDING: Perhaps no man in America has more credibility on this issue. As Governor, Reagan constantly strove to bring big government under control and to limit how much personal income the government takes in taxes.

*KEMP-ROTH TAX CUT: The key to restoring the health of the economy lies in cutting taxes. Kemp-Roth could increase productivity and create more jobs.

*GUN CONTROL: "It would create still another costly and intrusive bureaucracy whose purpose as I see it would be to interfere with one of the basic rights of American citizens."

*FOREIGN POLICY: "We must never waiver in our commitment to our allies, nor accept any negotiation which is not clearly in the National interest."

negotiation which is not clearly in the National interest."

*NATIONAL DEFENSE: "Negotiation with the Soviet Union must never become appeasement. We've allowed the Soviet Union to continue with the greatest military buildup the world has ever seen and we've not attempted to keep pace with them."

*FAMILY: More outspoken on pro-family issues than any other candidate. Ronald Reagan is the only candidate endorsed by Cong. Henry Hyde, sponsor of the Hyde Human Life Amendment. Strongly opposed to Medicaid funding for abortion and against abortion, except only when the life of the mother is threatened.

*ENERGY: Ronald Reagan knows the U.S. MUST BECOME SELF SUFFICIENT IN ENERGY, so no one can ever blackmail us again. He wants an end to restrictive controls to use all our resources, oil, natural gas, coal, and more nuclear power within strict safeguards.

THE REAGAN RECORD: GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA - 1966 - 1974

For eight years Ronald Reagan fought big government spending all the way. A $200 million dollar deficit was turned into a $500 million dollar surplus. Reagan vetoed 994 Bills. Despite tremendous population growth, the size of State Government remained virtually unchanged. Reagan was the biggest tax-cutter in California history, enacting over $7 Billion in tax relief. Governor Reagan paved the way to proposition 13's success as early as 1973 by sponsoring an amendment which would have placed a 7% limit on the income tax California could levy on its citizens.

"The Citizens of this great nation want leadership - they want someone who believes they CAN 'begin the world over again.' A leader who will unleash their great strength and remove the roadblocks government has put in their way. I want to do that more than anything I've ever wanted. And it's something I believe with God's help I Can Do."

5 NQHS Students Winners In Occupational Education Contest

Five North Quincy High Students were winners in a competition at a recent district conference on occupational education.

The North Quincy winners are: Rebecca Ann Lampert, first prize on the manager-owner level of finance and credit careers.

Anne McDonald, first prize on the manager-owner level of fashion merchandising.

Ken Watt, third prize on the manager-owner level of food service.

Gerard Watts, fourth prize on the manager-owner level of food service.

Maggie White, fifth prize on the manager-owner level of general merchandising.

About 350 students from ten high schools took part in the distributive education conference, sponsored by the state occupational education office.

Distributive education is a career-preparatory program in the business education department of North Quincy High. It is an elective program for juniors and seniors interested in occupations in marketing.

McGrath Wants Future Water Rate Increases Publicized

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen J. McGrath urges that future increases in water rates be well publicized and announced in advance of billing.

Noting that the Wollaston area was the first section of the city to be billed under the new rates,

McGrath said he had received many calls from residents complaining about the new rates.

"By and large, people were understanding after the rate schedules were discussed with them," he said. "Most were justifiably upset that there was no notice ahead of time. There were some comments in December about a proposed rate increase in relation to estimated receipts, but there was no announcement that the rate would actually increase," McGrath said.

"I believe the whole thing would have been better received by the public without the element of surprise. A public explanation was in order."

Thomas McDonald Governor's Veterans Advisory Member

Thomas McDonald of 24 Vershire St., North Quincy was among 18 members of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Veterans Affairs administered the oath of office recently by Governor Edward J. King.

McDonald is Massachusetts Veterans of Foreign Wars commander. A 32-year member of the George F. Bryan VFW of Quincy, he is a letter carrier in the Quincy Center area.

The committee was created by Executive Order last August to study all laws, regulations and programs in the Commonwealth relating to the education, employment and health of veterans and investigate the need for new or expanded services.

The panel is to submit an annual report of its findings and recommendations to Governor

THOMAS McDONALD

King.

The members serve coterminous with the Governor, and without compensation.

CAAN Commends FAA Testing Of Ocean Route Plane Departures

Citizens Against Airport Noise of Quincy (CAAN) recently commended the Federal Aviation Administration for its testing of an over-the-ocean route for departures from runway 22R at Logan International Airport.

The organization also commended Massport for its active support of the concept. Massport has reviewed the FAA procedure and will request needed refinements to the route.

However, according to Bernice Mader, CAAN president, the organization also feels that both Massport and the FAA must re-evaluate their positions regarding the rapidity of the initial turn. The Quincy organization urges that the turn to 140 degrees be extensively tested so that the FAA can implement the best noise abatement route.

Nando Chrisafulli Winner Of Second Talent Contest Semi-Final At Wollaston Theater

Nando Chrisafulli, a singer guitarist from Quincy, won first place in the second semi-final of the Wollaston Theatre's amateur talent contest Sunday.

Other contest winners and the positions in which they finished were Beth Nelson, a Quincy singer dancer, second place; Steven Hunter, a Weymouth juggler, third place; Joanne Regan, a Dorchester dancer, fourth place; Megan Blyth Johnson, a Quincy singer, fifth place; Cheryl Collins, a Quincy dancer, sixth place.

Featured in the third semi-final contest Sunday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m., will be the Pegge Parker Seniors, Quincy; Quincy singer Ann Marie Kelly; Andy Jackson, Rockland singer guitarist; Linda
